WEDDING BELLS.

GOSSELIN—WARREN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday morning at St. Bridget's church by the Rev. Father Armstrong, of Violet Bessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Warren, late of Peterborough, Ontario, to Louie Alphonse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gosselin, also of Peterborough. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a gown of white crepe broche with an embroidered veil and wreath of orange blossom, and bouquet of ophelia roses and baby's breath. The bridesmaids were Miss Lilian Farthing, cousin of the bride, and Miss Muriel Gosselin, sister of the bridegroom, dressed in green and mauve georgette respectively, wearing large picture hats. They carried bouquets of ophelia roses and baby's breath and wore white gold bar pins, gifts of the groom. The groom was supported by Mr. Edward Guerin of Detroit. During the signing of the register an "Ave Marie" was rendered by Miss Williams, who was assisted at the organ by her sister. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Later Mr. and Mrs. Gosselin left by motor on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a navy tailored suit with pansy satin and velvet hat and beige fox fur, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside in Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Gosselin were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

USHER—WANAMAKER.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon in the Regent street church, which was tastefully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves, when Mary Hilda, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wanamaker of Lakefield was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Leroy Usher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Usher of Cobourg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. A. Kemp, and was unique in that it was the first performed in the United Church.

The bride who was given away by her father, wore a becoming gown of white georgette trimmed with silver lace, and the conventional veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. She wore the gift of the groom, a white gold octoganal wrist watch. The bridesmaid, Miss Myrtle Little, wore a shell pink georgette frock with filet lace yoke and sleeves, and wore a black satin picture hat and carried pink carnations. Mr. Harry Wannamaker supported the groom. The ushers were Messrs: Fred, Glen, and Clifton Wanamaker, and Percy Hockaday. Mrs. H. E. Moore played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register Miss Vera Botteril sang very sweetly "Joy Be Thine."

The grooms gift to the brides maid was a silver tea service and to the best man a pearl tiepin.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's cake brought from Lang, Sask., was cut by the bride. The happy couple left on the 4.40 C.N.R. train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and Detroit, the bride travelling in a green kasha ensemble suit trimmed with gold braid, and hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Usher will reside in Chicago.

Out of town guests included Mrs. William Rowe and Mr. Hiram Anderson of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. John Usher and Miss Edna Woodrow of Cobourg, Miss Mitchell of Lindsay, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hiscock of Bowmanville.

SPARKS' ACTIONS PUZZLE OTTAWA

Says Private Enterprise Overcomes Tariff Handicaps Under Liberals.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—The opposition of Roderick Percival Sparks, head of the Sparks-Harrison Co., Limited, to the Liberal party is incomprehensible to his friends and incidently to his relatives in Ottawa. Mr. Sparks first made known his faith on the platform of Right Hon. Arhtur Meighen in South Renfrew at the end of last week, and by mistake his speech was credited to his brother, Russel Sparks, who promptly demanded a retraction and explanation from the local newspaper which made the error. Subsequently a letter from R. P. Sparks has been featured by high protectionist papers.

R. P. Sparks has been professed Liberal.

For twenty years he has been interested in the manufacure of overall, children's rompers and other garments and six years ago he moved his factory from Ottawa to Hull, Quebec. As an evidence of the success of the firm under the tariff regime of Premier King, the Sparks business has been admittedly more successful during the past four years than in any period of its existence. While Mr. Sparks is absent campaigning for Mr. Meighen, the factory, which recently had to be increased in size is running overtime, and cannot supply the demands made upon its output.

Questioned recently as to his consistency under the circumstances in opposing Premier King, Mr. Sparks admitted that his business was prosperous but qualified his statement by saying that it was due to "individual enterprise."

Last season Mr .Sparks was active in getting the government to pass a law calculated to curtail the wholesale smuggling of materials from the United States.

The King government passed a law at the last session providing for the imposition of a jail sentence upon anyone smuggling goods over the value of $200, and Mr. Sparks declared before the senate committee which considered the measure that this provision would save Canadian manufacturers from dtstructive and impossible competition. An increased appropriation for preventive service was made.

It may be noted that in the county in which he made his first speech the Renfrew Woolen Mills are at present working on three eight-hour shifts and have never been more prosperous than they are at present.

MAN HELD FOR ROBBING HOUSES

Toronto Police Believe Him Responsible For Numerous Robberies.

HAD MUCH LOOT.

TORONTO, Oct. 2. Canadian Press—In the arrest earl ythis morning of Carlyle Johnstone, aged 31, the police believe they have the man wanted in connection with numerous house robberies and entries into the downtown offices during the past few months.

The nominal charge against Johnstone is that of vagrancy, but on his appearance in the police court he will be charged with burglary.

A search of a trunk and club bag in the prisoner's room revealed an astonishing amount of loot, the possession of which Johnstone will have to explain in court. Five revolvers, two of which were loaded, were among the booty seized. It is estimated that the booty is worth several thousand dollars.

ENCOURAGING SPORT.

The action of the Ontario Athletic Commission in arranging a track and field meet for the public and high school boys of the Province, the winners in the district events being sent to Toronto to compete in the finals, was the most valuable impetus that has ever been given athletics in this Province.

Too little attention has been paid in the past to the promotion of track and field events among Ontario's school boys.

The result has been that many youngsters who perhaps were not clever in team sports have been kept on the sidelines and have not enjoyed the healthful exercise that participations in track or field events might have given them.

Many boys not proficient in baseball or football may have the ability to become a good sprinter or a jumper or a pole-vaulter, but up to the present, except in a few larger centres, they have had no encouragement along these lines.

The policy adopted this year by the Ontario Athletic Commission will mean many more boys taking part in body-building sports, and looking to the future, will also mean that Canada may play a bigger part in the Olympic Games henceforth.

The success of the Provincial meet is gratifying to those who have been arguing that Canadians in regard to sport are becoming a nation of spectators rather than of participants.

SWIMMING POOLS.

The local Council, if they should happen to think about the question of bathing accommodation at all before next summer brings it to their attention, might be able to secure some information from R. J. Gibb, Assistant Engineer of Edmonton, where splendid outdoor swimming pools are maintained for the benefit of the citizens.

Adverse weather conditions during the past summer interfered somewhat with the attendance, but in spite of this fact, the average receipts per pool last year were $6,120, while the average cost per pool was $7,560.

This deficit, of course, must be charged against the improved health and physical condition of the citizens who used the pool, and the Assistant Engineer adds that it is expected the pools will pay off the fixed charges as well.

Mr. Gibb's summary covers the case exactly as follows:

"Of ccurse, the main asset is that thousands of children and others are learning to swim who would otherwise have no opportunity to do so. Just what this means to the community in the way of enjoyment and life-saving is hard to estimate, but is certainly a great deal and well worth the effort made."

Peterboro needs more adequate bathing facilities, and the experience of other centres should be a valuable guide in deciding upon a policy of improvement.

ACCIDENTS REDUCED.

If there was any doubt of the value of supervised playgrounds as a factor in reducing the number of accidents to young children, an investigation made into the subject by the National Safety Council engineers in the United States should eliminate it entirely.

The investigation of the safety experts in most of the cities cover the three-year period 1922-1924, and show that cities with the most playgrounds had from one-third to one-fourth as many child pedestrians as adult fatalities.

In Cleveland, with a high pedestrian fatality rate, less than 30 per cent. of the victims were children, according to the study. Cleveland's supervised playgrounds number seventy-two, and its low percentage of child fatalities is in marked contrast to the high percentage in an eastern county where playgrounds are few and poorly distributed.

In Toledo very few child fatalities were found within normal drawing distance of playground locations.

Richmond, where there are as many playgrounds in proportion to the population, the child automobile fatalities were less than 25 per cent. of the total number in which pedestrians were involved. Only twelve children were killed by automobiles in Richmond during a three-year period ending Dec. 21, 1924.

In view of these figures, it is satisfactory to know that 231 cities of the United States and Canada reported 635 new playgrounds last year.

Peterboro's supervised playgrounds have justified themselves, and the plant might well be enlarged before long to meet the growing needs of the community.

THIS TOURIST BUSINESS.

How many persons in Canada have any idea of where the American city of Pittsfield is? Pittsfield, not Pittsburg.

Probably not very many. For Pittsfield is not in the class of such centres as New York and Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit, Boston and St. Louis and Los Angeles.

Yet Pittsfield—a Massachusetts city of some forty thousand—is a pretty active centre of interest in Canada.

Not long ago Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, had a sketch map published and widely distributed showing the main automobile roads connecting Canada and the United States. One of these maps reached the Secretary of the Automobile Club of Pittsfield, and he promptly wrote back saying:

"If you can spare one hundred of these maps we would be pleased to receive them as we are receiving calls daily for road maps of Canada."

And what is true of Pittsfield is merely typical. It is equally true of literally scores and hundreds of American towns and cities. The invasion of Canada by American motorists comes from all directions—from New England and California, from the Gulf States, the Mississippi Valley and the Pacific Northwest. Clear across the States there is town after town and city after city where information on Canada and how to get there is eagerly sought.

What this tourist trade coming to the Dominion is worth financially in a year is a tidy problem to figure out. For 1925 the amount is placed at $30,000,000 for the city of Vancouver alone. A Halifax paper quotes an estimate of $345,000,000 per annum for the whole Dominion. Dr. Doolittle, the President of the Canadian Automobile Association, predicts that Canada's tourist business will in a few years be worth $500,000,000 annually.

It doesn't matter much what the exact amount is. The tourist trade is plainly one of the greatest business developments that has struck the Dominion in many years, and the chief interest of the Interior Department in regard to it lies not so much in the actual value of the present volume of tourist business, but in seeing that Canada's natural recreational attractions are brought to the attention of the prospective tourist from abroad no less extensively or effectively than the Dominion's resources in agricultural lands, in water power and other physical assets have been brought to the notice of prospective settlers, investors and business men generally.

THE WATCHDOG.

"What we need," writes Mr. Lovat Fraser in the London Daily Mail, "what private members of Parliament should press for, is a financial watchdog, an inspector-general of finance charged with the duty of discovering waste, and of showing the House of Commons where it can enforce economy." And his argument applies equally well here or in other countries similarly governed.

Mr. Fraser says the committee of estimates in the British House is essentially a sham, "for it does nothing because it can do nothing." Quoting another writer, he says: "Once the estimates have been published a taxpayer's fate is sealed." Then how is thrift to be imposed? Mr. Fraser says:

"I hold that the duty rests primarily upon the private members of the House of Commons, and that through undue subservience to the Whips they are deplorably neglecting their principal function. . . . . The enemy of economy is now the Government, not the present Government in particular, but any Government of the day. . . . . The remedy for private members is to refuse supplies in specific instances."

Here Mr. Fraser says that to make this possible, it is time the obsolete usage of Governments resigning when defeated on a money vote, should be abandoned. That also applies to Canada, with equal force. Then he adds that there is a comptroller and auditor-general, but points out that this official is "as invisible as the grand lama of Tibet," and doubts if any man on the street could name him. Again the likeness to Canada, save that our auditor-general is not a comptroller, but is employed to see that accounts are properly administered after they have gone through Parliament. However, Mr. Gonthier is seldom in the ublic eye, so it is fair to assume he performs his duties well.

Our whole trouble is that we lack an authorized watchdog, and that estimates are almost invariably passed in fear that to defeat them would involve resignation of the Government and bring on an election when the honorable members are not ready for it. That is why we cannot have real economy at Ottawa. The solution is not in the hands of private members, because most of them don't know Government economy from extravagance, and because they are working under a system which prevents them from finding out until it is too late. It may, however, apply in Great Britain where the average members are better schooled in national affairs.

We have not even progressed to the "committee of estimates" stage in Canada. Instead the House goes into an unwieldy "committee of the whole" on estimates, stops for other business and private members' days sufficiently often that most of the members lose what grasp they have of the figures, reports progress, and the net result is about the same as if it did not go into committee at all. The estimates go through. The Government has been sustained. The Auditor-General then provides Parliament a check on the Government, if members care to see how well the extravagances they authorized are administered.

The whole "watchdogging" is back foremost. The watchdog is at the back door, while the expenditure items enter by the front. By the time Parliament (the so-called watchdog) gets the estimates they have already been given the government's approval and to refuse them exit after their entry has been approved would be regarded as a mean thing indeed in party circles. In fact, lest such a thing occur, the tenant threatens to abdicate, whereupon the watchdog would be out of a job.

Canada can find an efficient watchdog just as soon as this country gives him a place at the front door, where the inspections must be made. The Border Cities Star has urged before, and urges again, that this be done by appointing an administrative expert who will scan the needs of all departments. He will act before the estimates go to the House, not after.

Our next need is to abolish for all time the theory that a Government must resign if voted down on a money bill. In no other way can we free the members of Parliament from the party whip domination and set them free to vote as they believe they should, rather than as they are told.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Vote on October 29th; every Canadian worthy of the name will use his franchise.

Moderation continues to be the watchword in British labour circles, despite the frothing of the Communists.

It is a case of Leader or leader in Portage la Prairie, where Harry Leader, Progressive candidate, is opposing Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader.

If Agnes MacPhail would begin broadcasting we'd know for sure that the election campaign had commenced.

Four weeks from to-day we'll find us all busy trying to explain how it happened.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

A THOUGHT.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

(By Glen Frank)

The "model citizen" of the twentieth century is the man who minds others people's business.

This is the age of the uplifter. An uplifter is a man who has misread the Golden Rule, a man who has interpreted the Golden Rule as a roving commission to busybodies, as a personal command to him to regulate the life of his neighbor and of the nation.

But the Golden Rule is not a roving commission to busybodies. It is the supreme command for us to mind our own business.

Bernard Shaw once suggested that we should not do unto others as we we would have others do unto us because their tastes may be different. This was not the irreverent quip it may have seemed to some. It was simply a picturesque reminder that there is something sacred about a man's personality and privacy, and that we should think twice before invading another man's life with our personal notions of what would improve him.

But I do not join Mr. Shaw in his jesting demand that we revise the Golden Rule. I merely suggest that we stop misinterpreting it and begin following it literally.

The one thing that most of us would most like to have "others do unto us" is to let us alone. It behooves us, therefore, to let others alone. In short, the Golden Rule means, among other things, that we should mind our own business.

But, if a man simply minds his own business, will he not become a selfish man, indifferent to the needs of his fellow-men, neglectful of those "good works" we call social service? Will he not become an uppish fellow, content to watch the world go hang as long as he is himself comfortable? Can a man who simply minds his own business be a good citizen? The answer, I think, is plain.

Minding one's own business is in itself a great social service. In fact, if every man minded his own business, social service would be unnecessary and the army of reformers would have to demobilize.

Why are reforms ever necessary in politics or religion or business? Obviously because some politicians or some preachers or some business men nave not been minding their own busines as they should. Because somebody has been giving less than his best to the job out of which he is getting his bread and butter.

The life of the world is moved and moulded mainly by the way the work of the world is done. The greatest opportunity for social service that will ever come to most of us will come to us in our private jobs.

The private businesses of the world are actually better agencies for social service than the public movements of the world.

It is not always the uplifter who uplifts the world; it is mainly the men and women who mind their own business.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Sharp set-backs in value of wheat accompanied unofficial tstimates yesterday that the 1925 yield of wheat is 15,000,000 to 21,000,000 bushels larger than was indicated by the government report last month. Chances of railroad embargo on wheat shipments to Duluth were a further depressing influence. Wheat closed weak, Dec. $1.35 to 1.33 1-4 and May 1.37 1-8 to 1.37 1-2, New style—that is contracts barring delivery of No. 2 Northern wheat here except at 3 cents a bushel discount. Corn finished at 1-2 cent off to 1-4 cent up, oats 3-8 to 1-2 cent down, and provisions showing 10 to 40 cents decline.

On the downward swing of the wheat market, May delivery touched a new low price record for the season, with old style contracts as much as 5 1-4 cents a bushel under yesterday's closing figures. In addition to the new private estimates of wheat yield in the United States and besides reports that grain elevators at Duluth are filled almost to capacity, much talk was heard that European demand will be insufficient to dispose of normal Canadian exports before fresh supplies on a large scale are available from Argentina and Australia.

Word that no railroad embargo on wheat destined for Duluth was expected for at least some days failed to stimulate any important late buying.

Corn and oats eased down with wheat, although estimates that the corn yield had shrunk 20,000,000 bushels during September acted as a steadying influence.

Provisions, after an early upturn, were weakened by the action of grain and of hog values.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 11,000. Top yearlings 16.00; new high marks for year, these scaling 917 and 984 pounds; best heavies 16.30 ;active trade on Westerns; grass steers mostly cake-fed Nebraska at 15.50 downward to 8.25; bulls stronger; vealers 25 cents higher at 13.50 to 14.50.

Hog receipts, 25,000; better 140 to 225 pound butchers largely 12.85 to 13.10; majority packing sows 11.40 to 11.70; bulk strong weight killing pigs 12.75 to 13.10; shippers took 4,500; estimated hold over 16,000.

Sheep, receipts 22,000; best fat range lambs 15.85; bulk 15.50 to 15.85 most better grade natives 15.00 to 15.25; several loads 15.50; feeding lambs upward to 15.75; bulk fat ewes 6.50 to 7.50.

CANADIAN GRAIN

MONTREAL, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—There were some demands from foreign buyers on the Montreal market yesterday for Canadian grain and sales of odd loads of Manitoba wheat and oats were made for October shipment. The bids received for barley were one cent per bushel below working basis, and a cable from London reported that sales of No. 1 Northern were made in that market at 49s 3d per quarter for October shipment. A bid of 15 cents per 100 pounds for 25 loads of oats to Antwerp was received from New York exporters, but as the rate is firmly held at 17 cents, no business resulted.

The only business of importance reported in the cash grain market was sales of a few loads of No. 3 Northern wheat at 8 1-2 and 9 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal. The domestic trade in Ontario and Quebec oats was quiet, but as the offerings were small the tone of the market was steady and prices were unchanged. No. 2 white selling at 50 1-2, No. 3 white at 48 1-2 to 49, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47 per bushel, ex-store.

While the undertone to the spring wheat flour market was easier, prices failed to show any change. There were no new developments in the Winter wheat flour market, prices being well maintained under a fair demand.

A fair volume of business was transacted in all lines of milliced and prices were steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was steady.

The stock of cold storage eggs in Montreal yesterday was placed at 127,923 cases, which showed a decrease of 5,059 cases as compared with the same date last month, and an increase of 8,018 cases with a year ago, while the stock of fresh eggs was 4,068 cases larger than that of September 1, and 4,287 cases in excess of a year ago.

The tone of the market today was firm, and prices for all grades were unchanged. The demand for supplies was steady and a fairly active business was done. The receipts were 2,745 cases, as against 1,620 for the same day last week, and 681 for the corresponding day a year ago.

A firm feeling prevails in the market for potatoes owing to the continued somewhat limited supplies coming forward for which there was a steady demand, and a fair trade was done, with sales of car lots of New Brunswick Cobblers at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs. ex-track.

The stock of creamery butter in Montreal today was 155,660 packages, which showed an increase of 2,820 packages, as compared with the first of last month, and a decrease of 101,864 packages with a year ago, while the stock of dairy butter on the first of the month was 1,559 packages larger than a month ago, and 172 packages above the same date last year.

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 4,442 packages, as against 4,291 for the same day last week, and 9,107 for the corresponding day a year ago. The undertone to the market was firm and prices showed no important change, but the volume of business was small, the demand being somewhat limited from all sources.

The stock of cheese in Montreal on the first of the month showed a decrease of 36,389 boxes, as compared with the same date last month, and an increase of 5,738 boxes with a year ago. The stock of Canadian cheese in the three leading English ports on October 1st showed a decrease of 38,400 boxes with a month ago, and an increase of 49,500 boxes with last year, while the stock of New Zealand cheese was 45,600 boxes smaller than on September 1, and 64,600 boxes below October 1, 1924.

Th receipts of cheese in Montreal today were 8,938 boxes, as compared with 6,962 for the same day last week, and 10,063 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued somewhat limited demand from English importers for supplies an easier feeling prevailed in the market, and prices were reduced a fraction.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press).—The general tone of the egg market remains strong and unchanged. Reports from Montreal state that the car lot business is slow Western reports also state that Eastern dealers are not interested in Western eggs at the present time.

Ontario country points paying extras 37 to 40, firsts 33 to 36, seconds 23 to 25.

Montreal market is unchanged with an advance in prices expected the first of the coming week. Winnipeg is asking fresh extras 40, firsts 36, seconds 32. Egg stocks on hand on October 1st were 127,925 dozen as compared with 119,900 dozen at the same time last year. Poultry market is cleaning up closely and the outlook is favorable.

Winnipeg—Manitoba and Saskatchewan markets are steady but quiet and prices remain unchanged, Manitoba dealers paying country points extras 32, firsts 30, seconds 26, delivered cases returned.

Edmonton egg market is firm with fresh jobbing extras 40, firsts 35, seconds 30. Poultry receipts are light. Wholesalers quotations spring 15, fowl 12.

Vancouver market is strong for the better grades. Jobbing fresh extras 50, firsts 48, seconds and pullets 42. Dressed chickens 35 to 40. Saint John egg market is well stocked. Jobbing fresh extras 41, firsts 41, seconds 35. Storage firsts 30, seconds 34. Poultry is plentiful and demand good.

Charlottetown demand is good under decreasing receipts. Wholesalers are paying country points extras 36, firsts 31, seconds 25. Poultry market is firm with dealers offering 14 to 17 for birds 5 pounds.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Ginger-bread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly

DIARY OF PRIVY COUNCIL CLERK PRESENTS INTERESTING VIEWS OF TO-DAY'S LIME LIT NOTABLES

Says That Chief Justice Fitzpatrick is Above Usual Type.

BORDEN FORCEFUL.

LONDON, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—Reference has been made in previous despatches to the memoirs recently published by Sir Almeric Fitzroy, for many years clerk of the Privy Council, it which he discusses notabilities whom he encountered during his long tenure of office. The following additional extracts are of interest:

"July 19, 1912. At today's meeting of the Privy Council opportunity was taken to summon Mr. Borden to be sworn. The Canadian Chief Justice, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, also attended. Fitzpatrick is much above the usual type of Colonial lawyer, a man of polished manners, intelligent address, and not without distinct juridical value. He was much gratified by the King giving him an audience after the Council. Borden struck me as a forceful personality, direct and straightforward in his methods, one to be reckoned with in the estimate of Imperial dynamics.

"July 19, 1919. I saw Lord Byng last night, who had much that was interesting to say of those conspicuous men, Lord Northcliffe, the Prime Minister (Lloyd George) and Winston Churchill. The first, who stayed with Byng more than once at the front, in his opinion narrowly missed greatness owing to an instability of purpose. . . . While, however, the fit was on him, he believed him to be perfectly sincere. Byng thought nothing could rob the Prime Minister of the honor belonging to a man who had won his way by his tense energy and singleness of aim, and he also described him as alone among politicians in not only listening to the call for action, but throwing all his activities into its accomplishment, Asquith's genius lying rather in his ingenuity to find reasons for inaction.

"Winston he (Lord Byng) esteemed very highly, subject to the peril he became to himself and others when he surrendered himself to dreams of strategy—he (Churchill) has the great gift of placing his confidence undeservedly, and in a task he asked Byng to undertake has given him complete freedom of method and free choice of instruments.

"March 26, 1920. Dined with the Maclennans (he is a Canadian senator) and met Sir G. and Lady Perley, Lady Bective, and another Canadian politician. The conversation when the men were alone turned not unnaturally upon Canadia politics, and I was surprised to learn the extreme rancor of party divisions in that country. Even the admission of Liberals to Borden which made conscription possible does not seem to have softened aspersions, and the political future of such men seems very obscure."

ENCOURAGEMENT OF EMPIRE TRADE BY A RESOLUTION

Astor Says Appointment of Liaison Officer Excellent Step.

BUT NOT FAR ENOUGH.

Better Trade Organization and Good Will is Necessary.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—The encouragement of inter-Empire trade was laid down by a resolution passed by the Imperial Press Conference here yesterday as the avowed policy of the whole Imperial press.

The resolution was moved by Major the Hon. J. J. Astor, chairman of the Times Publishing Company, London, who said that the appointment of an Australian liaison officer in London was an excellent step, but in his opinion it did not go far enough. The British Foreign Office should take a larger part in Imperial affairs, he added, and the creation of better inter-Imperial diplomatic machinery would lead to greater results than had already been achieved in inter-Empire development.

With regard to Empire preference, Major Astor expressed the belief that public opinion in Great Britain would continue to move towards the Dominions' point of view, but preference was not the only thing needed—better trade organization and goodwill were also necessary.

The formation of a sub-committee to consider the subject of the promotion of Empire trade was agreed to by the conference.

Lord Apsley, M.P., of the Morning Post, London, moved a resolution, which was carried, calling for the publication of accurate information as to the opportunities of emigrants to the Dominions. Lord Apsley said he would like to see an improvement in the conditions for the reception of immigrants, who, he said, must be fit and willing to work and determined to succeed. "Nearly all the failures among migrants," he said, "are due to physical unfitness."

It was resolved to hold the next Imperial Press Conference in London in 1930.

WOMEN SWELL LISTS.

HULL, Que., Oct. 2. —(Canadian Press). —Hull registration figures will be ready during the week-end but present indications point to approximately 10,000 additional names on the lists. The former voting lists totalled somewhat over 5,000 and with the new names registered the Hull Federal vote this year will be at least three times that contained on the original lists.

The increase results from the heavy registration of women who, not being permitted to vote in the Quebec Provincial elections, the list of which formed the basis for registration ,have turned out in very large numbers.

DAWES PLAN KILLS MINING MOVEMENT

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press). — The proceedings of the parilamentary labor party at their conference yesterday were mainly concerned with the partys internal and foreign policy. The effect of the Dawes plan on British mining was discussed; Herbert Smith, vice president of the miners federation alleged that the plan was killing the mining movement.

J. Ramsay MacDonald promised that if the party again came into power, he would order an investigation of this matter. He also announced that as soon as the terms of the security pact were known the internation socialist body would call a conference to consider action against the pact, which they apposed.

The conference adopted a resolution presented by Sidney Webb, former President of the Baord of Trade, in favour of the public ownership of banks and a credit system. Speaking to this resolution, Lieut. Oswald Mosley, husband of the former Lady Cynthia Curzon, just nominated as prospective labor candidate for the Commons, declared that the banks wielded goverrntal power all the more supreme because their deeds were carefully concealed from public knowledge.

"The great banks are like cuttlefish," he said, "their tentacles over every industry, while their directive purpose is concealed by inky clouds of manufactured mystery."

The business of the conference closed with the election of a new executive a significant feature of which was the defeat of Sidney Webb.

TO INCREASE SUBSIDY.

LONDON, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press Cable)—Premier Baldwin announced yesterday that in order to speed up and encourage mass productions the government has decided to increase the Wheatley subsidy from £160 to £200 for the first 4,000 houses of alternative types in Scotland.

It had been pointed out to the government that while the shortage of houses in England was being overcome, the position in Scotland was steadily growing worse and the people in some districts were living and dying in hovels.

BREAD PRICE DROPS IN LINE WITH WHEAT

One Cent Hacked From Retail Figure—Record Wheat Move.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 2. —(Canadian Press) —Declining wheat prices brought a reduction in the price of bread here to-day. A one cent per loaf decrease was announced, the 16-oz. loaf selling at seven cents and the 20-oz at eight.

In Constantinople a great portion of domestic purchases is made from street peddlers, who sell nearly everything, from fish and vegetables to dress suits.

ESTIMATES EXCEEDED.

Subsidy Granted By Government to Owners—Maintain Rate.

LONDON, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—The Mines Department announces that the amounts paid in the mining subsidy for the month of August totalled £1,517,678, which bears out the prediction that the first estimates of a million sterling monthly would be largely exceeded.

This subsidy was granted by the government to enable the mine owners to maintain the rate of wages for their employees pending a settlment of the controversy between th operators and workers, which threatened a general strike.

COMMONS TO HAVE CANADIAN SESSION

Inter-Parliamentary Union—Now in Washington—To Meet in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 2. —(Canadian Press) —The Canadian House of Commons will on Tuesday, October 13, be the scene of the Canadian Session of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, which is at present in Washington, U. S. A., local arrangements are in the charge of Senator N. A. Belcourt who has been selected head of the Canadian session, and who is at present in Washington.

DECLINED NOMINATION.

Conservative Convention Chose Hon. Dr. Normand Unanimously.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Dr. L. P. Normand, ex-president of the Privy Council, yesterday declined the nomination as Conservative candidate in Three Rivers-St. Maurice for the forthcoming Federal election. It was tendered to him by a delegation from the Conservative convention, which had chosen him unanimously.

It was later proposed that Hon. E. L. Patenaude be asked to come to Three Rivers and beg Mr. Normand to enter the fight.

THE EVENING EXAMINER, PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1925

The tail end of my September and part of October notes do not matter now. They are lost, and perhaps the wild folks are reading them in the Greenwood, laughing at me too, but new notes crowd me with more than I can tell.

When I left Ruth, to go and seek more experiences, I took a canoe and paddled along the shore to a place where there is a clearing. I got out, pulled the canoe up on the rocks, turned to pick up my field glasses, and—Look who's here!

Five partridge sitting on a log, crooking their necks to see what kind of beast I may be. They decided I did not look so good, upon closer inspection, so all five hopped off the log and into the brush, and were lost to view in a moment.

That was in August. In Autumn, these birds seem to lose their wits. It is one of the unanswered riddles of the Canadian Woods. The Partridge, or Ruffed Grouse, in Autumn will act in such a foolish manner that it is hard to understand. They will sometimes come into the house, jump on the table and act like one demented, and then suddenly become afraid and leave in a hurry.

While I sat down to tie my boot laces, which had become caught in the underbrush, a flock of strange birds wheeled through the air in a most fanciful manner, twittered in great confusion, and alighted on a pine. I nearly fell into the lake in my hurry to look through the glasses at them.

They were Crossbills.

That does not sound very spectacular, but just listen.

The Crossbill is a bohemian wanderer. It is not permanent in any one place and it is five years since they were last seen here. They eat the cedar fruit or seeds the pine and other conefirous seeds and they climb about upside down, just as a parrot does. The male is very brilliant, with red coat, and the female is yellow green, and another, which I suppose to be a male young one, shows a mixture of all these colours.

In the winter, these beautiful and rare birds may visit you, and if so, take a good look, for they may not be seen again for years. This is a true Canadian bird.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Overfeeding is one of the obstacles to a baby's happiness. He is unhappy for a few moments if he is not permitted to take all the food he thinks he wants. He is miserably unhappy for a long time if he is permitted to take this surplus of food.

The baby's stomach is limited in its capacity. It just cannot hold more than this limited quantity. If too much milk is given, the excess is returned through the mouth.

The doctors call this particular rejection of food "regurgitation." That is a big word, isn't it? Regurgitation differs from real vomiting. It is merely a return of the surplus, without sign of pain or illness.

Nature is very watchful of the health and welfare of the baby. The stomach is supplied with watchful nerves and strong muscles. On the first sign of overfeeding the good little stomach makes known that it can handle no more food. The regurgitation of the milk is the warning to the mother that baby has had enough.

The mother has more milk than the very young baby needs. As the child grows older and stronger he can take more.

Vomiting is quite a different thing from simple regurgitation. In the latter the milk is returned sweet and normal. In vomiting the ejected material is sour and may be clotted.

True vomiting is accompanied by certain pronounced symptoms which indicate real illness. The baby is cold and pale. He may be bathed in a clammy perspiration. It is very apparent he is a sick youngster.

Vomiting does not of necessity indicate stomach trouble. Usually it does, but the infectious or contagious diseases are sometimes introduced by this symptom. Pneumonia and other ailments may begin this way.

In most instances, however, vomiting, especially if the discharged material is disagreeable to the smell, is a sign of a disturbed stomach due to improper feeding. On this account, the first thing to do in case of vomiting is to stop the food.

It seems a terrible thing to a young mother to deprive her baby of all food, but it can go very well for seven or eight hours without any food whatever. Then barley water can be given.

Always notify your doctor if the baby is seized with vomiting spells. There is something wrong in your method of feeding and you should find out what must be changed to make the feeding exactly right.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

L. M. B. Q.—What do you advise for blackheads?

A.—Careful diet, and regular elimination, and be advised by your doctor as to your condition. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars.

* * *

R. E. B. Q.—Does a bad or affected liver cause one to have dizzy spells?

A.—Yes, that is a symptom.

* * *

I. W. S. Q.—What causes snoring?

A.—Usually this is the result of mouth breathing. The first essential is to restore normal breathing through the nose. It may be impossible on account of adenoids, catarrhal thickening of the nasal tissues or excessive nasal secretions. There are other causes of snoring due to habit or posture.

* * *

N. B. Q.—Would it be advisable to give a two-year-old child grated carrots?

A. Yes; if they are well cooked.

P.W. Q.—What is the cause of aching feet?

A.—It may be fallen arches. Consult an orthopedist.

STREET NAMES

LUNDY'S LANE.

The name of this street celebrates one of the engagements between the British and American forces during the war of 1812. The battle field is within a mile of Niagara Falls, and was part of Lundy's farm which was occupied by the British troops who maintained it against an American attack after a day of hurried movements, rapid advances, desperate charges, and quick retreats. Victory hovered doubtfully over a well and chivalrously fought field. Both sides claimed to have won the action as the field was left for a time untenanted, the Americans retreating across the Chippawa river and the British withdrawing to their encampment on Queenston Heights, but the advantage lay with the British, as the field remained in their possession and on them fell the duty of tending the wounds of friend and foe, and digging graves for the fallen of both armies.

In the pursuit of the flying Americans, Lieutenant Moorsom, one of the most promising of the younger British officers, was mortally wounded. Beside him fell the commander of a brigade of Americans who had been the last man to retire before the onset of the British. Both officers were buried in a single grave at the foot of a large acacia tree which still stands, a fitting memorial to the virtues and courage of the dead on both branches of the Anglo-Saxon race who sleep under its shadow.

FINDS 100 NEW FLOWERS.

One hundred new flowers were brought to the United States recently when Dr. Francis W. Pennell, of the Academy of Natural Science, Philadelphia, returned from an exploration trip to Chile and Peru. They all are species of the family to which the fox glove, snapdragon, and lady-slipper belong.—Popular Science Monthly.

PLANTING PERENNIALS.

The fall is one of the best times for planting perennials of all kinds, as they can be readily distinguished and arranged and the effect can be seen as one works. As soon as they have matured, probably about the fifteenth of September, they may be divided and transplanted. Most perennials are better for a fairly frequent digging up and dividing. At this time only the younger portions should be kept and the oldest parts discarded.

If you can't obtain planting material from a neighbor, have a partially or wholly filled border from which to obtain stock, do not remove the entire plant but use portions only. Uncover the roots on one side of the plant, remove a portion, say a half to two thirds and restore the earth after the reduction is made, firming it carefully. This piece removed may be divided into as many new specimens as possible. Smaller pieces of healthy growth, young growth will do better and fill out just as well in the long run as larger clumps.

Perennials may be obtained from the nurserymen either field grown or pot grown. The pot grown plants though more expensive of necessity are more compact and will stand the transplanting much better.

If you are fortunate enough to have a nursery of your own containing well grown seedlings which have been transplanted as necessary, this is no doubt one of the best ways of stocking. For success in transplanting this class of stock it is best to remove the plants with a good ball of earth, to avoid any setback any part of their growing period. water copiously the evening be- ose a day after a rain, so that ot shake loose easily from sary. Starting at the plant's circumference set the spad down its full dept into the earth all the way around; the gradually work it around the root mas which will gradually loosen if the implement is worked back and forth patiently. Grasp the entire top of th plant close to

COMING TO SALVATION ARMY TEMPLE

Colonel and Mrs. Powley, chief secretaries for Canada East are visiting Peterboro on Saturday and Sunday next, and will conduct special services all day Sunday. They are late of Australia; you should hear them. The Colonel is quite a musician, and both sing well together. Come and hear them.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, Oct. 1.—The Young People's League of the United Church, held their opening meeting, for the fall and winter term, in the Sunday school room on Monday evening. It being literary and social night the president of that department, Miss Rita Kennedy, was in charge of the programme. The scripture lesson was read by Mr. Gordon Bradley, followed by the devotional leaflet by Miss Violet McBain.

The topic was ably taken by Miss Ethel Wright teacher at Fee's school. She chose for her subject, "The Four-Fold Life", and used the verse of scripture, found in St. Luke 2-52: "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man", to emphasize "the Jesus way of living." The speaker related some of her experiences at Balsam Lake Camp for girls this year, in bringing out the four divisions which before closing she summed up as follows:

Mental—Read good books, go to church and hear good sermons, talk to educated people, etc.

Physical—Remember the health rules.

Spiritual—Know God.

Social—Love others.

Mr. F. G. Sandy, who has recently been appointed as assistant president of the League, then briefly spoke ,relative to the opportunities of the boys and girls of today, whether we accept them or not. He afterward brought before the Leaguers an idea which met with much approval, namely, a special evening once a month, when outside talent would supply the programme. Accordingly the Rev. Mr. MacIntosh, of Lindsay, the moderator of Presbytery, has accepted the invitation to be present on Monday evening next and will give an address on "The challenge of the United church to the young people of the United church." This address will be supplemented with a musical programme, the committee in charge being Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Miss E. Race and Miss E. Wright. A silver collection will be taken at the door to defray expenses and light refreshments will be served at the close.

A Lindsay quartette, with one member giving a talk on music, was the next programme outlined by Mr. Sandy, and for the following months, the Hon. Dr. Godfrey, of Toronto, who is in sympathy with the League of Nations and is employed by that body to address such gatherings as these has accepted an invitation to Omemee. Mr. Bartley of the Methodist Book Rooms, Toronto, who is in charge of the lantern slides has replied in the affirmative and an effort is being made to secure Mr. Jack Miner, of Kingsville, the naturalist ,at a future date.

A contest answered by the names of authors was the last item on the programme and an enjoyable and profitable evening was brought to a close by the Mizpah Benediction in Unison.

ELECT LA FOLLETTE WITH BIG MAJORITY

218 County Precincts Show Desire For the Senator.

"The following Associated Press bulletin on the election in Wisconsin has been received over the wires of the Canadian Press."

LaFollette, when 218 country precints out of a total of 2,692 in the state had been heard from last night. The vote in these precints stood; LaFollette, 14,920; Dithmar, 5,811; Bruce, Democrat, 494 Work, Socialist, 166; Bauman, Socialis-Labour, 54.

MANY AT SERVICE.

Church Filled For Anniversary of Rylstone Congregation.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 1.—A large number from Burnbrae attended anniversary services at Rylstone United church on Sunday. In spite of bad weather the church was filled at both services. Rev. J. J. Black, assistant pastor of Orillia United church conducted the services. Mr. Black is a former minister of the congregations of Seymour and Rylstone and naturally his old parishioners were anxious to hear him once more.

In the morning Mr. Black delivered a splendid address on "The Call of God to the United Church", while at the evening service he took as his text, Matt. 21:10, "All the city was moved saying, Who is This."

The choir rendered excellent music at both services, while the collection was larger than usual on these occasions being almost $250.

"I'll see you again, Doctor"

He is wise who goes to his dentist regularly for teeth and gum inspecting. Many serious illnesses which originate in the mouth may be prevented by modern dentistry. See your dentist at least twice a year. It pays.

4 out of 5 get pyorrhea through neglect

PYORRHEA, dread disease of the gums, attacks four persons out of every five past forty because they are careless of Nature's warning.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Later the teeth loosen in their sockets and poison is spread throughout the system, often causing rheumatism, neuritis and other sickness.

If you have pyorrhea go to your dentist at once for treatment. He can help you. To prevent pyorrhea consult your dentist at least twice a year, brush your teeth night and morning with Forhan's for the Gums.

Forhan's is the formula of a registered dentist. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid which has been used by dentists for the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea.

If used regularly and used in time, Forhan's for the Gums will prevent pyorrhea or check its progress. It is a pleasant dentifrice which serves a dual purpose: it cleanses the teeth and wards off dread pyorrhea. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Half the world is half asleep

Can success in life be undermined by constipation? Indeed it can. The poisons of this disease tire you out, wear you down, make you listless and make you lose interest in things in general. Ambition is most often prompted by a thoroughly healthy body. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings permanent relief from constipation.

He didn't have the energy to fight

LOST . . . another big order . . . the fourth defeat that day. All because he didn't have the energy to fight when his prospect said "No." Something had blunted his senses and stolen his strength.

That "something" was constipation. What a shame so many people suffer from constipation when there is an easy, pleasant, sure way to permanent relief—the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it travels through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it sweeps the intestine clean and drives out the vicious poisons of constipation. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, stimulating it to healthy, normal action. ALL-BRAN works as nature works.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over cereals, or cooked with cereals; in soups, or made into the many recipes given on the package. Delicious with fruits too. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price.

Caution! Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Leading restaurants serve it. Buy a package today.

CANADIAN DELEGATES TO PRESS CONFERENCE FIND CANADA TO BE IN FAVOR WITH NEW ZEALANDERS

Interest Shown in Exhibition at Dunedin is Appreciated.

PROMOTING TRADE

Canadian Motor Cars Enjoy Preference in Southern Dominion.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct 2 .—(Written for The Canadian Press by W. A. Craick).—The Imperial Press party has just completed a ten day tour of the North Island of New Zealand spending some time in the picturesque thermal regions around Rotorea and travelling by motor through the fine scenic country of Taraniki in the west coast. Were these attractive districts located on the North American continent, they would undoubtedly be worth millions of dollars as tourist resorts, but in New Zealand, which is to a certain extent off the main highway of round-the-world travel and separated by thousands of miles of ocean from the more thickly populated centres of the world, their beauties are only enjoyed by a limited number of travellers. Time should repair this deficiency and bring to the beautiful country an increasing flow of tourists and of tourists' money. A year or so ago a Highway Board was formed, which is doing aggressive work in the direction of building and maintaining a fine system of roads, which will facilitate motor travel in all parts of the two islands.

To a Canadian it was interesting to find that Canadian made automobiles are in good favor in New Zealand and are being purchased in relatively large numbers. Both Canadian and United States makes seem to enjoy the preference over the British cars, for the reason apparently that manufactures of the latter do not adjust their products to the peculiar needs of this country, which with its heavy grades, sharp curves and generally strenuous driving requires plenty of strength and horse-power. The Dominion of New Zealand has over 100,000 motor vehicles registered and claims to stand next to the United States in per capita ownership. It is importing at the rater of 13,000 cars per annum.

Relations with Canada seem to be of the best and I have heard numerous expressions of appreciation of the interest being shown by Canada in New Zealand and South Sea Exhibition, which is to oen at Dunedin in November. That this will lead to increased business with this country is certain, while I have learned from government officials that there is a likelihood that the exhibit of the Department of Inhibition which is to open at Dunedin will be taken next year to Toronto for display at the Canadian National Exhibition. New Zealand seem anxious to learn from Canada successful methods of administration both of public and private enterprises and it would seem to a casual observer that Canada could very well follow New Zealand's lead in several directions.

In forestry and Hydro-electric development New Zealand is making marked progress. Forestry work, which is being conducted on a large and profitable scale is beng carried on under the direction of a young Canadian engineer, Captain Ellis, a graduate of the University of Toronto. He has come in for high praise for his achievements and is regarded as one of the ivest members of the Civil Service.

Hydro-electric developments is being aggressively pursued. Three large plants are in course of erection in the North Island and one in the South Island. The use of electricity on dairy farms and in the homes of the people is rapidly increasing and becomnig an important factor in industrial life.

Regarding the approaching General Election in New Zealand the man on the street declares that it is simply a case of the ins and outs. Rt. Hon. J. G. Coats, the new premier, a splendid specimen of manhood, seems assured of victory, as he has behind him a fairly well-united party, while the liberal opposition is weak and labor's day apparently not yet come. Indications point to a gradual fusion of the two old parties and the emergence as the main opposition party. There will then be a more well-defined difference in the policies of government and opposition. In the meantime New eZaland again votes on the prohibition question, its law on the subject requiring a vote at each triennial election. While prohibition ists are putting up a strong fight, it is not generally expected that any change will result in the present system.

Two notable speeches have been made by members of the Canadian delegation and these have been extremely well received by the New Zealand people and favorably commented upon in the press. J. H. Woods, of the Calgary Herald, president of The Canadian Press and chairman of the delegation spoke at a luncheon tendered by the Government on August 27, with the Governor-General in the chair and the Premier, his cabinet and members of both Houses in attendance. Mr. Woods gave a clear and forceful interpretation of Canadian ideals, both with respect to Empire relations and relations with the United States and appealed for active sympathy and co-operation among all parts of the Empire. On the previous evening at a dinner tendered by the Empire Press Union of New Zealand, John Bassett of the Montreal Gazette, president of the Ottawa Press Gallery, spoke vigorously and effectively on Canada's status in the Empire and its connection with the United States as the interpreter of British ideals.

BIG FLYING BOATS TO CARRY HUNDRED

Scientist Says They Will Appear in Less Than Ten Years.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 2 —(Canadian Press).—If a flying boat of fifty tons weight has not been developed within the next ten years progress will have inordinately slow Oliver Simmonds told the engineering section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Southampton. Such a machine would have a body of about six thousand square feet wing space and a span of 220 feet. It would accomodate 100 persons, would fly at more than 100 knots an hour and would travel up to 1,500 miles without alighting. Such a boat would be able to fly from Europe to America with only one stop, at the Azores ,in 36 hours or less.

LADY PROSPECTOR ENJOYS HER WORK

Mrs. J. A. Stevens is the Discoverer of Several Claims.

STEWART, B.C., October 2—(Canadian Press).—British Columbia has one woman prospector who is making good. She is Mrs. J. A. Stevens, discoverer of several promising claims in the Texas Creek district of Northern British Columbia.

The Texas Creek is not a location for a tenderfoot, but Mrs. Stevens works with her husband in the almost inaccessible hill district, and recently brought some very fine samples of galena ore here from a group of six claims which she staked this summer.

RALLY DAY SERVICE WELL ATTENDED

Rain Barred Numbers, But Program of Music Worth Hearing.

OMEMEE, Oct. 2.— Rally Day services were observed in the Unite Church on Sunday morning, and whi there was a splendid turnout of scholars and teachers, who almost filled the centre pews of the church, yet the usual Sunday morning attendance of adults was somewhat lessened by the heavy rainfall.

The Rally Day leaflets were used as far as possible. Mr. David Weir, the teacher of the Adult Bible Class, was the leader. Following the Scripture reading and prayer, seven little girls, arrayed in white, marched gallantly to the platform and sang sweetly, "I am so glad that our Father in Heaven." Master Arthur Williamson and Miss Christina Connell gave recitations in splendid style, and the choir afterward rendered an appropriate hymn, "Come in, Childhood's Sunny Hours."

The address to the children was given by the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, and not only to the juniors could a lesson be derived but to the grownups as well. The subject was, "Loyal to Jesus."

At the evening service the choir was composed of male voices, which was an added attraction to the service, and although many were hindered by the continual rain, those who put forth a special effort felt they were amply repaid. The music was very pleasing, two numbers being rendered by the choir, "Will Your Anchor Hold?" and "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," in which the full deep bass, combined with the clear tenor notes were audible above the several soprano voices.

Rev. E. W. Rowland, the pastor, occupied the pulpit. He took his text from Job 7 : 17: "What is man, that thou shouldst magnify him? and that thou shouldst set thine heart upon him?"

HALF HOLIDAYS OVER.

Wednesday Was Last Weekly Rest For Norwood Merchants.

NORWOOD, Oct. 2.—Wednesday, September 30, was the last half holiday for the village of Norwood for the 1925 summer season. The half holidays were observed this year every Wednesday afternoon during the month of June, July, August and September and needless to say were enjoyed and greatly appreciated by all.

Corn Roast Held.

A corn roast under the auspices of the Young Peoples League of the United church, was held on Monday evening about two miles west of the village on the banks of the river Ouse, where it runs through Mr. J. Allen's farm. Cars left the church corner about 8 oclock and conveyed the members, about sixty in number, to the grounds. All present report a very enjoyable time.

Starting with one club of twenty members, the English Women's Amateur Athletic Association now embraces over 500 clubs with an aggregate membership of 25,000

CALENDAR EIGHT YEARS TOO LATE

Birth of Christ Took Place in Year 8 B.C., Says Report.

FRESH EVIDENCE

LONDON, October 2. - (United Press).—Strictly speaking, this is not the year 1925 of the Christian era; it is according to the researches of the British Asia Minor Archeological expedition, the year 1933.

This conclusion, to which modern scholarship has been slowly approaching for some time, is supported by photographs, which have reached London, of an old Roman milestone near the modern village of Yonuzlar in Syria indicating by the strongest circumstantial evidence that the Year of the Nativity was not, as the monk Dionysius claimed, 1 A.D., but rather 8 B.C.

In the Gospel according to Luke, the year of Christ's birth is described or dated with reference to two contemporary events. The only trouble is that scholars have found it impossible to reconcile those two events; this feat is finally achieved by the old milestone. Luke says:

Now it came to pass in those days, there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the (Roman) world should be enrolled. This was the first enrolment, made when Quirinius was governing Syria. And all went to enrol themselves, everyone to his own city. And Joseph also went up.....to enrol himself with Mary his wife.

Here are two specific points, the "first enrolment" under Caesar Augustus and "when Quirinius was governing Syria." Old records show that the Romans took their census every fourteen years, and that there was one in the year which we now describe as 20 A.D. Dating back, we have one (probably) in 6 A.D. and before that, in 8 B.C. Was that the "first enrolment"?

Many schoalrs have said "no", on the grounds that Quirinius was not "governing Syria" at that time; contemporary records usually refer to Saturnius as the governor of Syria at that time.

But the old milestone which has been discovered explains it completely. It bears the date equivalent to our 6 B.C. and shows that Quirinius, acting as military governor, as distinguished from the civil governor, was engaged for two years, that is from 8 B.C. to 6 B.C., in pacifying the country. Thus if the census took place in 8 B.C., the two conflicting points in Luke are reconciled and the year of Christ's birth fixed approximately at 8 B.C.

ANIMAL GHOSTS HAVE BEEN SEEN

Psychic Parson Has Seen Them and so Have His Pets.

HAS PICTURES

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press).— "We have seen ghosts of animals in this house and we have seen our cats see apparitions and rear up at them," Rev. C. L. Tweedale, vicar of Weston, who has been called "the psychic parson" professing a belief in the survival of animals after death, based on apparitions he has seen.

Mr. Tweedale gave some experiences on "his word of honor as a gentleman and a minister." He said his wife and mother had seen a white dog in a cupboard. "It was my aunt's dog," he said.

"Twice an apaprition of my aunt, accompanied by that of a large bird, appeared and struck a gong in the hall. Once the apparition of the white dog bounded into the gong and made a sound. And it sprang at my wife and caused her to break a lamp she was carrying. The apparition of my aunt spoke to us in a tremendously loud voice which rang through the house". Mr. Tweedale has a number of "spirit photographs" of his wife, himself and his son, which show dim figures and "spirit faces."

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Oct. 1.—The annual Rally Day service was held at the United Church at 10 a.m. on Sunday. The attendance was good, though interfered with by rain. The official programme was followed wherein an address on "Loyal to Jesus" by the pastor was listened to with rapt attention by all present.

A meeting of the Rural Deanery of Prince Edward is convened to take place at the Rectory on Tuesday afternoon. Evensong will be taken in St. Paul's at 7.30 p.m. at which the visiting clergy will be present. The preacher will be the Rev. F. G. Kirkpatrick, M.A., B.C.L.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's church assemble at the Rectory on Thursday afternoon for the election of officers for the ensuing term.

On October 9th the local branch of the A.Y.P.A. will again resume activities.

SECRECY OF BALLOT PROTECTED BY VERY STRINGENT LAWS THAT GOVERN VOTERS AND OFFICIALS

VOTE WITHOUT DELAY.

Showing By Voter of Marked Ballot Is Also an Illegal Practice.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—The secret ballot has always been regarded as one of the cornerstones of democratic government. In Canada the secrecy of the ballot has been protected by stringent laws. No matter what proceedings may arise from election, no man or woman is required or permitted to divulge the name of the candidate for whom he or she has voted.

Every election brings forth a new army of voters. Three or four years brings many young men and women to the voting age and many aliens into the ranks of citizenship. For these, as well as for persons who have exercised their franchise and forgotten the strict regulations which circumscribe the casting of the ballot, the actual terms of the Dominion Elections Act are of interest at the present time. The Act is the law governing all federal contests and contains the provisions for the guarding of the citizens' right to the secret ballot.

The Act requires every candidate, officer, clerk, agent or other person in attendance at a polling station or at the counting of the votes to aid in maintaing the secrecy of the voting and no candidate, officer, clerk, agent or other person shall:

(a) Before the poll is closed communicate to any person any information as to whether any person on the list of voters has or has not applied for a ballot paper or voted at that polling station or

(b) At the polling station interfere with or attempt to interfere with a voter when marking his ballot paper, or otherwise attempt to obtain information as to the candidate for whom any voter is about to vote or has voted or

(c) At any time communicate (except to a court or judge lawfully requiring him to do so) any information as to the number on the back of the ballot paper given to any voter at a polling station, or

(e) At any time or place, directly or indirectly, induce or endeavor to induce any voter to show his ballot paper after he has marked it, so as to make known to any person the name of the candidate for or against whom he has so marked his vote, or

(f) At any time communicate to any person any information obtained at a polling station as to the candidate for whom any voter at such polling station is about to vote or has voted or

(g) At such counting attempt to obtain any information or communicate any information obtained at such counting as to the candidate for whom any vote is given in any particular ballot paper.

Clause two of the section states that any person who violates any provision of this section shall be guilty of an illegal practice and of an offence against this Act punishable by summary convictions as in this Act provided."

It is against the law for any voter, unless unable to read or incapacitated by blindness or other physical cause from voting in the manner prescribed in the Act, to show his ballot paper when marked, to any person so as to allow name of the candidate for whom he has voted to be known any any person who violates the provision of this section shall be guilty of an illegal practice," states the Act.

A person unable to vote without assistance is not debarred from voting, but he is required to make oath in the prescribed form of his incapacity and the deputy returning officer may then assist the voter by marking his ballot in the manner directed by such voter, in the presence of the sworn agents of the candidates or of the sworn electors, representing the candidates in the polling station, and of the other person, and place such ballot in the ballot box. The deputy returning officer is required by law to indicate in the poll book where such votes have been marked by him.

In the case of a voter applying for a ballot, when the deputy returning officer does not understand the language spoken by the applicant, he is required to swear an interpreter, who shall be the means of communication between him and the voter with reference to all matters required to enable such voted to vote, and in case no interpreter is found, such voter is not to be allowed to vote.

Voters are required to vote without undue delay and as soon as they have voted the law requires them to leave the polling station. Provision is made that in each polling station there must be separate rooms, or parts of the room curtained off, into which the voter may retire for the purpose of marking his ballot, and these must be fitted out with a table and a pencil.

A section of the Act governing court procedures under the Act provides that 'no person may be required to state for whom he voted" in any proceedings which may arise.

Penalties are provided in the Act for persons guilty of illegal or corrupt practice at elections. Section 86 of the Act provides that: "Any person who during an election commits a corrupt practice or an illegal practice shall ipso facto become disqualified from voting and incompetent to vote to such election. He shall also in addition to any other punishment for such offence by this or any other Act prescribed, forfeit to any person who in any competent court shall therefore sue,—

"(a) for every corrupt practice committed the sum of two hundred dollars and costs and,

TRANSPORTING CANADA'S WHEAT IS BIG PROBLEM

Railways Prepare for the Task Many Months Before Grain Ripens.

DAILY CROP REPORTS

Difficulties Call for Careful Organization and Closest Co-operation.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 2 (By G. F. Bannerman, for Canadian Press).—Binders are whirring through the length and breadth of the Western prairie land as miles of waving grain resolve themselves into golden bundles thrown along stubble burdened ground. Myriads of men garnered from every quarter of the far-flung Dominion gather ceaselessly from day to dark the richly laden bundles into compact stooks of potential wealth. Here and there, the hum of busy machinery and sharp explosive bursts from laboring gas proclaim the first visible source of that mighty river of wheat, the economic life stream of Canada, as it flows in an increasing and unending volume to strategic centres throughout the world from whence in millions of rivulets it goes to feed multitudes of hungry mouths. By what miracle of man does this life giving stream pass from the great spaces of its birth to the distant centres?

Early in the year, before the prospective harvest is more than a carpet of green blades, the servants of the two great railway companies are busily engaged in overhauling and repairing old equipment and securing new to replace the worn-out. Tracks and roadbed are thoroughly gone over and keyed up to the highest of efficiency in order that there may be no weak link in the system. All through the summer the intelligence services of these two companies are almost daily reporting to their respective headquarters upon the crop situation in the many different areas of the Western Provinces. They are the heralds in the gigantic drama of the west. Sometimes they herald the grim silent tragedies of blighting heat and smiting hail, sometimes extensive and devastating, but happily this year much restricted.

Finally they announce the first whirr of the binders and then in a twinkling, orders reach into every division of the railway systems and the mobilization of their motive power is under way. Gradually there is a concentration of locomotives and grain cars at strategic points on the western lines. Here they are ready for immediate and rapid distribution wherever they are needed.

Three hundred and seventy-five million bushels are the recent estimates for the 1925 crop, and all this except some 80,000,000 or 90,000,000 bushels must find its way to the outer world through two gateways, Vancouver on the West and Winnipeg on the East. During the next eight weeks wheat will flow with great rapidity from the farmers' waggon into the local elevators. Each station has its quota of these elevators, varying in number from one to ten, according to the surrounding acreage and its productivity. From their bins, grain cars are filled daily, and long trainloads and panting locomotives find their way to terminal elevators. Here the grain is loaded upon lake and ocean carriers and gradually finds its way to all parts of the world.

This seemingly commonplace task of distributing Canada's wheat to the world is enveloped in intricate problems. These difficulties call for the most careful organization and closest of co-operation if the grain is to move steadily and smoothly to its destination. Even the weather affects the flow, for it may be that a storm on the lake will hold up a considerable number of the carriers, and cause congestion in the elevators, resulting in a loss of time and money to the railways. It speaks well for the organizations engaged in the work of distributing the crop that seldom if ever is the steady flow halted.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DAVID MAKES A DISCOVERY

One day while David was visiting his aunt in the southern part of Africa he wandered down along the bank of the river just back of his aunt's house.

A queer-looking, shadowy thing flitted along the bank in front of him. It was so near dark that David couldn't make out just what it was and was on the verge of turning around and retracing his steps when a tiny voice called his name.

"Come on out, Squeedee," laughed David, greatly relieved. "I can tell your voice any time I hear it."

Out of the bushes in front of him popped a tiny little head and two black eyes twinkled merrily.

"So you can," laughed Squeedee. "Here I am."

"Was that you running ahead of me just now?" David asked. "It really just looked like a shadow."

"And I guess that's what it was, all right, a Shadow Bird," replied Squeedee. "Come along and we'll see if we an catch up with her." And he caught hold of David's hand and together they ran up the river bank until they came to a queer little house, made of sticks plastered togther with clay. In this was a little doorway and Squeedee stuck his head in and called softly.

Out came a queer bird with a great long beak and terribly long legs. A tuft of long feathers stuck out on the back of its queer-shaped head.

"Well, well, Mrs. Shadow Bird," laughed Squeedee, "I want to meet David Dorn. I dont' believe he has even seen a Shadow Bird before."

"He has nothing on me," laughed Mrs. Shadow Bird. "I've never seen a little boy like him before, either. Where do you live, David?"

"In North America," replied David. "This is my first visit to Africa. Is this your house?"

"Certainly, certainly," chuckled Mrs. Shadow Bird. "Come right in, folks, and make yourself at home." and she led David and Squeedee into her queer little house of mud and sticks. It was made in three rooms, each carefully made of clay and sticks, with a little doorway leading from one room to the other.

"Now this back room is my bedroom," and Mrs. Shadow Bird led David through the largest doorway. There, nestled on a lovely soft bed of leaves and grasses, were three baby Shadow Birds, almost naked. "Daddy is out now gathering supplies for our pantry," and Mrs. Shadow Bird showed David the centre room piled with provisions. "If he were at home he would be in our guard room with his head hanging out of the doorway. Daddy shadow Bird helps take care of the youngsters just like a nurse. He is a splendid father. Now I must get back to my babies if you'll excuse me," and before David knew what was happening, he found himself standing in the moonlight with Squeedee.

"Better run home now, it's bedtime," chuckled Squeedee, and bidding David good-night he disappeared and David ran back to his aunt's house.

INDIANS GATHER FOR HOP-PICKING

Occupation Seems to Have Strange Appeal to Natives.

HAVE GREAT TIME

AGASSIZ, B.C., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Indians from all sections of British Columbia are here for the hop picking harvest, which commenced reecntly.

Hop picking is an occupation which seems to have a strange appeal for the natives and while it lasts only a comparatively short time they look forward to it through out the year as the period when they are enabled to build up the family finances, brought low in many cases by a summer of idleness on the reservations.

With the arrival of each trainload of Indians the station platform presents a colorful scene. The hop-pickers come with their entire families and in most cases practically every member of the family finds a job in the fields. Aged squaws with their shawls, flapp a of the tribe with bobbed hair and fancy dresses, young bucks with brilliantly colored neckerchiefs and shirts, noisy youngsters playing with the inevitable dog—all have a part in the picture.

The Indians are housed in comfortable sheds at the hop camp. Each family is allotted one or more rooms, but usually at night all the hop-pickers assemble at a common meeting place, sit around a camp fire and carry on their traditional pow-wows. Hop-pickers are representative of several tribes, and their dialects are so different from each other that conversation between many of the harvesters is impossible. They all share a common desire to work in the hop fields, however, when the time comes to garner te crop. When the hop season is on in the state of Washington the British Columbia Indians, through a special immigration arrangement, move into the hop fields across the border.

"I've been afeard you two boys were both gettin' stuck on Caroline, Bob," the Widow ventured, "but I'm glad there ain't no danger of that, since you've got a girl. Ain't you the slick one, though—and us never gettin' wise?"

Somehow Bob managed to smile mechanically and stumble away, more deeply mired in trouble, sicker at heart, than before; astounded at the hinted probability that he had unconsciously grown into rivalry for a girl with his best friend. He tried to laugh it off, but his footsteps dragged as he neared the door of the house where blazing windows betokened unusual preparations and bustling inside; he tried to tell himself that surely Mrs. O'Leary must be mistaken in her deductions for Jim would not and could not have kept such a thing as falling in love from him, yet he remembered with a sinking heart that he had without effort or reason refrained from going out of his way to reveal his own infatuation for Caroline to Jim.

It could not—it must not—be true—that he and Jim were rivals for Caroline; that would be too starkly tragic, too unkind even for the sort of malignant Fate that had harassed him before and now, after a respite of five years, was at work again.

He refused to believe it; and he goaded himself to approach without hesitation the door of the little cottage. Nevertheless, something cautioned furtiveness and stealth when he had his hand on the knob; some latent instinct of suspicion, that he was ashamed of but weakly obeyed.

From the hall he could see, without himself being observed, through to the dining room and thence to the kitchen, the doors being open in deference to the humidity of the summer night. Caroline was carrying a frosted birthday cake, which she had obviously just completed, into the dining room; Jim walked close at her side. Bob realized with a queerly hollow thumping in his breast, which seemed tight and peaked, that there could be no mistaking the tender devotion in the way Jim hovered near Caroline; in the way his eyes shone upon her.

As Caroline set the cake down on the table she noticed with a little gasp of dismay that a portion of the soft floating was cascading over the rim of the plate; it was an emergency that required the quick and deft use of a practised forefinger in order to save the table linen from being messed. Then Caroline, laughingly involved, determined to round off the mishap with full childish enjoyment. She raised her cream laden finger to her lips to "lick it." But Jim was too quick for her; he caught her hand to his own lips, and kissed the frosting away in a manner dissembled in fun at first, but under the passionately desired thrill of the contact quickly becoming an ardent caress.

Bob in his bewilderment and pain saw only the attitude of Jim; it was lost on him that a vague frown shadowed Caroline's face that she was annoyed and flustered momentarily, before she forced herself to smile awkwardly and withdraw her hand.

Bob relaxed limply, stolidly, against the hallway wall as one ill and in a stupor. Through misted eyes, with ears that were filled by a far-off buzzing, Bob saw and heard further confirmation of his worst fears. Jim saw showing Caroline how he had arranged the place cards;

"Bob and his girl over there. You, and Bobby, and I on this side—Bobby in the middle—No, I'll change that—you in the middle, so that I can be closer to you—"

That much Bob saw and heard. Again Caroline's reaction was lost on him, for while she reprovingly changed the cards back to their original position and insisted to Jim that Bobby was entitled to the place of honor in the middle of the table, Bob had tiptoed away along the hall, seeking the seclusion of his own room and a free play of his bitter thoughts.

"Hey, Daddy Bob—where you going? Come in this way and see my cake that the lady made!"

It was Bobby, devastating in his childlike prying brightness, who had caught wind of Bob's quiet presence in the hall. Further concealment was out of the question, but before he turned Bob struggled to contain himself—won, and then surreptitiously remained in the shadows of the hall rear until he had fished out of his pocket and adjusted a papier mache mask, a hideous, gargoyleish thing. The clown must amuse, even when his heart breaks!

Bobby fled squealing joyously into the dining room before Bob's leaping, booing, pursuit; fled, and took refuge under Caroline's apron so that when Bob straightened up and removed the mask in order to get his bearings he found himself face to face, sad eye to sad eye, with Caroline. He tried to laugh and effect merriment, but only succeeded in forcing a series of flat and spiritless laughs that hardly passed his throat.

The embarassment of Caroline and Bob after they had nodded good evening to one another was mutual and deep; she lowered her eyes and flushed cheeks to the task of setting five candles in the birthday cake, while he grinned at Jim in an apathetic way then sank to his knees and took refuge in a fussily boisterous presentation of birthday gifts to Bobby.

"Bob, you rascal, postpone your comedy and stand up here and tell us where your girl is. Why haven't you brought her?"

Bob, rising deliberately, was miserably conscious that Caroline, though she kept her eyes on her work, was intently listening. He tried to take solace in an aggrieved, injured rationalization—if he had not come clean with her, she had not been fair with him, either, in not telling him about jim, and—

"Come, old man, 'fess up—who is she and where is she? The one I saw you kissing the other night!"

There, it was out; Jim's innocent blundering and misinterpretation had woven, in company with all these other things, a net of circumstantial evidence from which he could wriggle totally clear neither by lies nor by truth. Anyhow, what did it matter now?!—again, in the innermost recesses of his brain were echoing the words, "What the hell difference does anything make?" Yet, why was there a dull red glow in Caroline's downcast cheeks, and a dewy mist trembling on her half-closed lashes?

"Why—er-r- I don't know what you mean, Jim—honestly—Excuse me now, won't you please—I've got to wash up and dress."

Bob felt rather than saw his way wretchedly out of the room, moving with the uncertain feet of a blinded man. Carline had looked up quickly at his words, thrilling to a fundamental suggestion of honesty and sincerity in them; grasping at them as at straws to save her drowning soul.

Perhaps Jim had been mistaken in his identification—it was queer, if such a romance had been going on and no one in Crater City knew anything about it. Who could the girl be?

No one locally, that was certain; and there was no other town on the Division that could have harbored a clandestine love, without the railroad men getting to know of and gossip about it. The nearest place of any importance was Salt Lake City—quite too far for even a lover's commuting. But the eager trend of her thoughts was rudely dashed in another moment;

"Bob's kidding us, I'm sure. I was not mistaken—I know his train was sidetracked there, and in the moonlight it was almost as bright as day. The searchlight of Bob's engine, too, made them stand out clearly. That son of a gun has a girl—and I'll bet he'll bring her tonight and surprise us!"

Still Caroline clung to her vague and hopeful doubts of Jim's tale, and when, after Bob was ready, they sat down to supper she found herself unbending toward him, yielding to him and following him with her eyes and her thoughts like a flowerstalk to her sun-god. The one element that remained to puzzle and disquiet her was a visible restraint and aloofness toward her that was quite foreign to Bob's characteristic genial friendliness; but she could not know that this sprang from a great-hearted resolve, born in the tortured minutes when he was alone in his room engaged in dressing, to give Jim "right-of-way," as the railroad men would say, if it became apparent that his case was on the main track in Caroline's affections.

CANADIAN INVESTORS DRAWING MILLIONS FROM THEIR STOCK

Interest and Dividend Payments Started Yesterday With Rush.

REACH $20,000,000

Toronto Stock Exchange List Alone Pays $11,982,943 in Dividends.

TORONTO, Oct. 2. — Millions of dollars were distributed yesterday to Canadian investors in the way of dividend and interest payments. The total amount of dividend payments by companies having their stocks listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange, by actual compilation, counts to $11,982,943; add to this the dividends paid by stocks listed on other exchanges, and not included in the Toronto list, together with payments on unlisted stocks, and the total dividend payments must reach close to ....20,000,000.

Bond Interest.

October is a big month for dividend payments, as September 30 marks the terminaton of the third quarter of the calendar year. January and July are the big months for bond interest payments, but nevertheless this month will see a large sum paid in the way of interest to Canadian investors. It is almost impossible to make a reliable estimate of bond interest payments as a number of municipalities issue thir loans on the instalment plan, and it is also a hard matter to keep track of the thousands of payments made by industrial corporations.

The Dominion of Canada alone will make payments on war loans this month of $7,448,290, as follows:

1931 war loan, $1,332,290, payable Oct. 1; 1928 war loan, $1,325,000, payable Oct .15; 1943 Dominion loan, $3,675,000, payable Oct. 15; 1944 Dominion loan, $1,125,000, payable Oct. 15. Total, $7,448,290.

Dividend Payments.

There are 64 companies whose stocks are listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange making their dividend payments now. The public utility and traction group, with a total of $9,365,183, accounts for more than 75 per cent. of the total sum. Banking and financial institutions will pay to their shareholders $1,171,464, and industrial corporations, $1,446,296.

Tractions and Utilities.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. has the honor of being the largest distributor. Bell Telephone will distribute close to a million, McKay Company a million and a quarter and Consumers' Gas a quarter of a million.

Following is a table showing the companies making dividend payments and the amount paid by each:

	Capital Issued.	% Div.
Braz., prf.	10,000,000	1½	150,000

C.N.R. MOVE PLANT TO NEW LOCATION

Shops Moved From Parry Sound to James Bay Junction.

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press). —Canadian National authorities have completed the removal of the Parry Sound plant to James Bay Junction, where new shops are practically completed.

This point is at the junction of the railroads, from Depot Harbor and Parry Sound. Wednesday night special trains from both places conveyed a large number of employees, with their families and friends, to the new plant, where a dance was held in celebration of the opening.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE IS OF GREAT SIZE

350 CLERGYMEN.

Features of Interest Include Visit of Dr. Pidgeon, General Moderator.

An event of unusual significance will take place in Peterboro from October 13 to 15, when the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada will hold its first sessions. The boundaries of the Conference extend from the west side of Ontario County to the east of Renfrew, Lanark, and Leeds Counties, and extend from the lake shore northward about one hundred miles. Within the area of the Conference there are about two hundred and fifty pastoral charges, as well as the ministers who have retired from the active ministry. The ministerial strength of the United Church within the area of the Bay of Quinte Conference is about three hundred and fifty, and as every minister is entitled to a lay representative, the possible attendance at the Conference would be approximately seven hundred. It is earnestly hoped that every minister and his representative layman will make an effort to attend the sessions of this first Conference, which promises to be an event of historical interest and spiritual dynamic.

Among the features of the Conference which will be of special interest and merit there will be a public Communion service in George Street Church on Tuesday evening; the visit of Rev. G. C. Pidgeon, D.D., Moderator of the General Council of the United Church, will give an added impetus to the work to which the Church is committed. Other speakers of prominence are also expected to be present and take part in the proceedings. The committee appointed by the General Council to convene the Conference consists of Revs. J. T. Daley, D.D., Port Hope; C. W. Barrett, Stirling, and D. W. Best, D.D., Bowmanville.

APPOINTED JUDGE OF COUNTY COURT

Arnprior Barrister Fills Vacancy in Ontario County —Practised 40 Years.

WHITBY, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press).—James E. Thompson, barrister, of Arnprior, has been appointed Senior Judge of the County Court of the County of Ontario, and local Judge of the High Court division of the Supreme Court of the Province of Ontario. He succeeds the late Judge T. A. McGillivray.

Judge Thompson has practiced law in Arnprior for 40 years.

PRESENTATION TO BRIDE AND GROOM

Handsome Wicker Dining Room Suite and Many Other Gifts.

DUNSFORD, Oct. 2.—On Wednesday evening a very large crowd of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Marshall Middleton where Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Middleton (formerly Miss Vera Elliot) were spending the evening, and presented them with a handsome wicker work living-room suite consisting of one rocker, one arm chair, a table and two jardiniere stands.

The address was read by Mr. Elmer Evans and the presentation made by Mr. Austin Peel after which both Mr. and Mrs. Middleton made very fitting little speeches thanking the people of the community for the presents they had received, and also invited everyone to visit them in their new home.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies, and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

CONSERVATIVE BUT SMART COSTUMES AT FALL RACE MEET

Conservative, yet smart, costumes featured the styles worn by Toronto racegoers at the fall opening of Woodbine Park on Saturday. Black was predominant with deep wine colors, browns and dark greens also popular, and gold cloths given a marked preference by the younger set. Fur was more in evidence than at any previous autumn meeting. As will be observed in the costumes shown above, the small hat has returned to universal favor, despite predictions to the contrary. At the left is a smart woollen sports suit worn with a silver fox and small hat to match. The young lady's companion chooses the long black wrap so popular at this season with platinum fox fur. The handsome fur coats at the right serve as a prediction of the coming mode, caracul, as chosen in two of the models, being one of the most favored furs for the coming season.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

MY DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am in deep distress and have come to you for help.

I am a young girl twenty-three years of age and have been going with a young man three years my senior for some time. I love him very much and he has often told me he loves me. All was well between us, until about a month or so ago my young sister, who is eighteen and who has been staying with my aunt in the States, came home. Of course I wanted her and my young man to be friends, but it seems they took a great liking for each other. At first I didn't mind bringing my sister out with us and he seemed to like it too. But lately she wants to come all the time with us, and if some night she doesn't want to come he urges her too, and he takes far more interest in what she is saying than he does in me. It seems he enjoys her company better than mine. Just the other night he came to see me and he wanted me to go to a show with him but as I was tired I didn't feel like going so I asked him to sit in the house with me, and he said he would. When my sister, who was present, said she would go with him and he seemed very pleased to take her; they didn't urge me to go either. It was quite late when he brought her home too. I try hard not be jealous of my sister but I can't help it. I think it is mean of her to make me so unhappy for she knows she is, when she can get lots of younger boys and girls to go out with. Please dear Annie Laurie tell me what to do and pardon me for writing such a long letter.

BROKEN HEARTED IRENE: This is a very unpleasant situation, and one that will require some self control on your part to come through with any satisfaction to yourself. It looks to me as if your young man is either infatuated with a new face for the moment or else he is somewhat fickle-minded. If you love him very much, as you say, and he meant it when he said he was in love with you, perhaps you had better make up your mind to do nothing for awhile but simply watch developments. If he was sincere, he will forget your sister and come back to you later. That is the passive way of getting around the difficulty, and you have to take the chance of him forgetting you altogether and falling in love with your sister. As for her part in it, she really is acting in a mean way, that is if she knows you care for him. Would it do any good for you to explain matters to her fully and show her how she is hurting you? Do not let foolish pride stand in the way if you feel that you care for him enough to make a fight for his affections. Personally, I do not think he is worth the effort. If you could do it, it would be a wise move to pay attention to some other admirer, if you have one anywhere in the offing. If you haven't, why not try to get hold of one somewhere. This habit of some women of sitting mourniully at home, weping into a handkerchief, while some other, spryer lady waltzes off with their best beau, isn't just the best method with men. Either give him up and 'et your sister have him or else sail in and make a grandstand play with another man. But, no matter how the affair turns out, don't for goodness' sake, be broken hearted. At twenty-three eyars of age, the whole world lies before you. Why let one man and a mean sister spoil your good times?

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3.

Although the astrological forecast for this day is a generally quiet one, yet it will not be without its surprises or sudden visitations. It is possible that there will be an opportunity for change or travel or a propositions, since on this day it is ventures. But the mind may be slow to see the advantage of such proositions, since on this day it is rendered slow and conservative by the studious Saturn vibrations. "Make haste slowly" would be the day's slogan.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a rather quiet year, but one in which there may be opportunity for change, travel and new enterprises. But these may not be eagerly embraced since the mind will be studious and quiet. A child born on this day may be inclined to be studious and introspective, with possibly a mind turned to the occult or mystical. It should make its best success in the employment of others.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

GOOD DISHES FROM LATE GARDEN VEGETABLES.

Gleaning the last garden vegetables of the season means several days' enjoyment of the root crop while still fresh. Perhaps some of the following dishes may be new to many housekeepers.

Cabbage and Pepper Salad.

Remove the outer leaves and the heart from a small, firm cabbage and chop it fine. Lay two large ripe red peppers in the oven and let stay until the skin curls, then peel them, remove the seed cones and chop them fine. Mix cabbage and peppers, add the juice of two onions, moisten with a little bit of French dressing, highly seasoned, let stand 20 minutes, stirring often. Add enough heavy mayonnaise to bind and fill lettuce leaves with the salad. Garnish with stoned olives stuffed with anchovies.

Boiled Cucumbers.

Pare large cucumbers, quarter and remove all seeds, then dice them. Put in a saucepan and cover with boiling water and let stand ten minutes. Then drain, cover with fresh boiling water and cook until tender. When done drain carefully. Have ready a rich cream sauce and add to it a tablespoonful of capers. Pour the sauce over the cucumbers and serve. If preferred, pour the cucumbers into a buttered vegetable dish, add the sauce and dust with grated cheese and a few crumbs. Dot with butter and bake a delicate brown. Both ways are good.

Escalloped Eggplant.

Peel and dice a large eggplant. Butter a deep pudding dish and place a layer in the bottom, dust with pepper, salt, a little sugar, a tablespoonful of minced onion, then add a layer of diced fresh, or canned, tomato. Dust a few crumbs and a little grated cheese over the top, then add another layer of egg plant and so on until the dish is full. Dot the top with plenty of little lumps of butter and add a half cupful of tomato juice. Bake in a medium oven a good brown. Excellent with roast beef.

French Beets.

Boil eight small beets until tender, then skin them under cold water as usual Melt a quarter of a cupful of butter in, shallow frying pan and put in the beets. When they begin to color, sprinkle them with sugar and as it melts it forms a caramel coating. Lift the beets and place on a hot dish, but do not use the gravy.

COMFORTS FOR THE GUEST

By Annette Bradshaw

How many times have you gone visiting and been ushered into a bare, austere room, that you just know is the "company room?" There isn't a vestige of comfort in it. It is as bare as—well I was going to say hotel rooms, but nowadays the hotel rooms are often more comfortable than the rooms in one's own home.

Then again you have gone into a room, which seemed to breathe a welcome from the very second you opened the door.

Why not learn your lesson from the contrast and make up your mind that your guest room shall be as comfortable as you can possibly make it.

A comfy chair, a writing desk, supplied with materials, even to stamps, a few good books, a cheery lamp, flowers in attractive vases, and if you can possibly arrange it, a telephone. This may be an extension of the house 'phone, but it's a convenience nevertheless.

There should be in the dresser drawers, or the dressing table, a supply of pins — all varieties — hangers in the closet; perhaps a sewing basket, with the staple color silk and threads and a pair of scissors, not forgetting the needles. A convenient reading lamp over the bed, a bedside table with its water bottle and glass. All these little things make for the comfort of a guest and you can rest assured are more than appreciated by the weary traveller. A real hostess never fusses — she knows what she likes for herself and her own comfort, and tries to do the same for her guests.

Try using the room yourself for a few days and you'll soon see just what is needed. Then you will have a room that guests will enjoy—not dread.

Let's Talk It Over

BOY DEPLORES "FREE-AND-EASY" PETTING.

"If a girl is free and easy with her kisses I don't want her for my steady, let alone for my wife," says Twenty, "because she would be just as free with any one else. No man wants a wife that all his friends have manhandled. A woman's value lies in the struggle a man has to win her. If he gets her easily he will not value her very highly, as a rule."

No, but he usually values her highly enough to take her joy-riding, or to the show, or to the lobster palace. And you can't blame the girls for taking said attentions as an indication of approval.

The young man who writes the following letter proclaims himself no petter, but we've had the same line of conversation from those who pet. Until the men cease confining their noble thoughts to paper and begin to take the girls who don't pet out, you'll never get the average flapper to believe that petting doesn't pay.

So it's up to you ,boys—the girls aim to please.

The letter from "Eighteen" asking boys to give their opinion about petting interests me.

I am a sophomore in college and have been going about with girls for over two years. Rather, I should say—have gone—the present tense is out of date here.

"Eighteen," I used to have all your ideas of love, and still cherish them. I have learned their true value after many experiences with modern ideas. When I went to dances with girls, I wouldn't so much as put my arms about them riding home. They all said that I was dumb—that's what they told my boy friends, who in turn told me.

Last Summer I met a nice girl. I cut loose on my first petting party. We got along very nicely. Then she tired of me at the end of six months and started out with another sheik. I really cared for her and it hurt me to lose her, but apparently she didn't care for me, excepting for the good times I could give her. She was just a "gold digger."

It's just as you say, "Eighteen"—if you don't pet you are a piker, you are dumb and a half dozen other things. Believe me, after the last six months I would rather "stag" it to dances and leave the girls have their petting from other fellows on the way home. Petting parties cheapen a girl in the eyes of a fellow, especially if they are staged with every sheik that comes along.

"Eighteen," it seems repulsive to me to pet and kiss any girl that happens along. If she is free and easy with her kisses, I wouldn't want her for my steady, let alone my wife, because she would be just as free with anyone else.

I wish there were more girls like you, "Eighteen." I would certainly like to meet them. —Twenty.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

KNOBBY KNEES SWITCH ADMIRING GLANCES.

Not a stitch on—not a stitch.

Over in Germany thousands and thousands of people are following the dictum of a new sun cult.

Switzerland fans are falling into line. Some Swedish folk have caught the fever and now the English coast, they say, swarms with sun bathers. The preachers are preaching and the councilmen in the different towns are counseling and it.

What s the matter with such people? Have they no vanity at all, no wish to seem beautiful whether they are beautiful or not?

I wish a certain club man of my acquaintance would get out his trusty kodak and take a few pictures and then go abroad and speak his mind on the subject.

He spoke his mind to me right on the street car the other day and he didn t care a cent who heard him.

We were sitting opposite two women—one of them was about eighteen and one was forty.

The eighteen year-old girl was knock-kneed and the forty year-old woman—I don t know what was the matter with her knees, but there was something frightfully wrong about them and yo couldn t keep your eyes away from them to save your life.

And both of these strange beings were wearing rolled socks and bare knees and skirts up to the limit.

I happened to know the middle-aged woman and she is the wife for rather a nice fellow and the mother of three daughters and a son.

I never heard a thing against her in all my life and I've known her for twenty years.

I've always thought of her as rather a sensible, rather a kindly, rather a nice sort of person—but after those knees——

The club man saw the knees, too—that's when he spoke his mind.

"What on earth has come over the women?" said the club man to me.

"Don't they realize what they look like when they get themselves up like that? Why, I never knew there were so many knock-kneed, pigeon-toed, bow-legged, scrawny, pudgy, unromantic looking women in the world.

"I met my sister-in-law on the street the other day and really I know now why my brother-in-law frequents the Follies whenever he gets a chance. The knees of the Follies girls are usually presentable.

"Sister-in-law—somebody ought to tell her about it, they really ought.

"Elbows—how I hate the sight of 'em, knobby, red, rough affairs, most of them seem to be, and we'd built up such a tradition about them, we poor simple minded bachelors.

"Ankles, oh, they disillusioned us about them when the khaki uniform came in during the war—I do hope the German sun bath fad won't come across the ocean—not till I step along out of the procession."

Earthly sort of creature, my friend the club man, isn't he?

At first I wanted to shake him, but when I looked at the two pairs of hideous knees opposite—I don't know—I sort of wonder——

Knees and elbows—they ought to be pretty, oughtn't they? but somehow so many of them aren't and tell me Ye Winged Winds, why is it that the women with the ugliest knees and the most hideous collarbones seem to be possessed to make the most determined exhibitions?

How do you feel about it.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE FOX AND THE CROW. AESOP I

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

BOARD OF EDUCATION REPORTS ON ACCOMODATION AND PROPOSES ERECTION OF COMBINATION SCHOOL AS WISEST SOLUTION OF THE COLLEGIATE PROBLEM

One-Third of Present Institute Enrolment Crowded Out —Nearly 200 Pupils in Commercial Department Housed In Building Condemned Years Ago.

NO ROOM FOR VOCATIONAL CLASSES.

Suggested Additions and Alterations Will Cost the City Over Quarter of a Million — Department of Education Endorses Recommendations of Local Body.

DAILY—WILDE—FRIDAY MUST—Board of Education Reports—C—C— —

A copy of the following statement of facts from H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, and proposals from the Board of Education has been submitted to each of the members of the City Council:

"I have been requested to acquaint you with the facts that show that there is an imperative need of immediately providing increased accommodation for pupils desirous of attending the Collegiate Institute. Briefly stated they are as follows:

Nearly One Out of Every Three Pupils Crowded Out.

"Of the present enroiment of 621 pupils, 194, or almost one-third cannot be accommodated in the Collegiate Institute building. This building contains 12 regular class-rooms and at the present time there are 427 pupils in attendance, or an average of 36 pupils to a room. There are no other available rooms in the building that are suitable for class-rooms.

Serious Handicaps of Commercial Students.

"The 194 pupils in the Commercial Department are at present housed in the South Central Public School, a building discarded some years ago as unfit for school purposes, when the Prince of Wales School was built. The building has no ventilation, is insufficiently heated although there are five furnaces, and is poorly lighted.

"Moreover, these 194 pupils are cut off almost entirely from the corporate life of the school. They are deprived of the advantages of the school library, the Literary Society, the Cadet Corps, the Boys' and Girls' Athletic Associations, and the social life of the school in general. Surely no one can say that these pupils are getting a square deal.

Need of Gymnasiums.

"The Collegiate Institute has not had a gymnasium since the one in connection with the old Collegiate Institute was burned down 20 odd years ago. Seven hundred dollars a year is paid by the Board of Education to the Y.M.C.A. authorities for the use of their gymnasium for the boys for 5 months of the school year, and the girls have a limited use of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium for basket-ball practice. This is by no means satisfactory. Our boys and girls should have their own gymnasiums accessible at all times and under the supervision of members of our staff.

Manual Training and Household Science.

"The Collegiate Institute has no rooms or equipment for Manual Training or Household Science. We have been using for only a limited number of our pupils, the rooms and equipment belonging to the Public School in the old Collegiate Institute building. The proposed new building will afford adequate opportunities for this most important part of the school curriculum.

Non-resident Pupils.

"For some years past, pupils, not residing in the city, except those wishing to take a Commercial Course, have not been admitted to the First Forms in the Collegiate Institute. Pupils may be seen every morning, coming from Brownton and along the Highway to catch the train for Lakefield, to attend school there. Others go to Norwood. Others are prevented by the expense involved from getting any Secondary education whatever. There should not be a cleavage between the city and the country. The admission of non-resident County pupils would be beneficial to both parties. Make provision for County pupils and the law requires the County Council to pay 80%, not only of the cost of maintenance, but also of the cost of capital expenditures. At present the few non-resident pupils in attendance pay a little over one-third of the cost of their tuition.

Vocational Students.

"The present programme of studies in the Collegiate Insitute does not provide for all classes in the community. The needs of those wishing to enter any of the professions or Commercial life are provided for, but there is no provision whatever for those who wish to enter a trade. The increase in interest in Secondary Education in recent years has been accompanied by an insistent demand for a wider range of instruction, more especially for courses which, while giving attention to the essentials of a general education, will prepare young people directly for employments. In practically all the larger centres the new buildings which have been recently erected to take care of the increased attendance in Secondary schools provide for accommodation and equipment for vocational departments. New buildings of this type have recently been erected at Renfrew, Guelph, St. Catharines, Weston, Kitchener, Waterloo, St. Thomas, Oshawa, Fort William. Only the very largest centres have separate schools for vocational instruction such as Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Windsor-Walkerville. The proposed building in Peterborough has been planned to establish such vocational courses. Should there not be an equality of opportunity for all classes in the Community?

Night Classes.

"The evening vocational classes in Ontario have continued to prosper and are becoming firmly established as an important part of the educational service of the province. The extent to which they supply a real need is shown in the fact that evening classes in 1923 were carried on in 50 centres with an enrolment of 33,500 persons. In Peterborough the Night Classes have been carried on under most adverse circumstances. Some of the classes have been held in the old Collegiate Institute building and some in the South Central School. The proposed new building is intended to be used for Night Vocational Classes and the attendance, I venture to say, will double the first year it is opened.

Combination Schools.

"I have carefully studied the needs of the pupils desiring Secondary Education and I am quite convinced that the Combination School affording opportunities for both Academic and Vocational training is the most economical solution of the school problem in Peterborough. The cost of a separate Technical School, together with additions to the present building of a gymnasium, provision for Manual Training and Domestic Science and additional class-rooms is prohibitive. To those who say that the school of the size contemplated would be unwieldy my answer is that just as large and in some cases, larger schools have been built in other centres in Ontario and are being successfully managed by High School principals who have had no previous experience in Vocational Courses.

The Double Shift.

"In conclusion just a word about the Double Shift advocated by F. H. Dobbin, in a recent letter to The Examiner, as a solution of the problem. The school day consists of 5½ hours, 9.00 12.00 in the morning and 1.30 to 4.00 in the afternoon. What would the Double Shift involve? One-half of the pupils would attend from 6.30 a.m. until 12.00, and the other half from 1.30 until 7.00, or say 1.00 o'clock until 6.30 p.m. This might work in Germany, but who in Peterborough would get Johnny's breakfast in time for him to be at school at 6.30, or who would care to wait until 7.00 o'clock for Mary Ann to have her evening meal?

Yours very truly,
H. R. H. KENNER.

ACCOMMODATION PROPOSED TO BE PROVIDED—

"It is proposed to meet the need for increased accommodation in the Collegiate Institute by building an addition to the present building on the property of the Board of Education immediately west of the present building.

"Plans and Specifications have been prepared and tenders have been called for and received, covering the construction of a modern three-story, fire-proof structure, giving the following accommodation:

Class Rooms:
- Academic 4
- Vocational (Including Commercial 10
- Total 14

Shops:
Machine, Electrical, Wood-working.
Two Lecture Rooms.
Draughting Room.
Commercial: Typewriting Room, Office Practice Room.
Household Science: Sewing and Millinery Rooms, Cooking Room; Demonstration Room.
Administration and General: Library and Board Room, Gymnasium, Boys' and Girls' (and other necessary rooms for administrative and General purposes.)

"The work also includes certain necessary alterations in the present building, such as changes in the heating and ventilating and electric wiring systems, and the construction of fire-proof stairs in place of the existing wooden stairs.

"This will give accommodation to take care of both Academic and Vocational classes, as requested by the Principal, as recommended by the Department of Education, as a result of a very careful and complete survey made of conditions in Peterborough, and as appears to be necessary to take care of the natural growth.

Cost of The Building.

"The cost of the work is as follows:

Building (as per tenders received)	$327,369.00
Miscellaneous Items	31,869.00
Total Cost of New Building	$359,238.00
Government Grants on New Building only (estimated from information supplied by the Department, and stated by them to be essentially correct)	$130,949.00
Net Cost of New Building to the City of Peterborough	228,289.00
Cost of Alterations in Old Building (included in tenders received)	26,898.00
Net Total Cost to the City of New Building and Alterations in Old Building	$225,187.00

"From this will also be deducted the amount which will be chargeable to the County when the City is able to take in all County pupils that apply; which amount will be equal to 80% of the interest and sinking fund chargeable to the County pupils, proportioned according to the number of pupils attending from the County; thus, if one-tenth of the pupils are from the County, then one-tenth of 80% of the interest charges and sinking fund would be chargeable to the County.

"For purposes of comparison, the cost of an addition to the present building making provision for Academic training only, has been estimated, using the tenders received on the Combination addition, as a basis for figuring.

"In order to take care of the expansion it would be a mistake to figure on a building containing a less number of rooms than that provided by the Combination addition on which tenders have been received, namely, 14 class rooms. A building providing the following accommodation:

14 Class Rooms—Manual Training Room, Household Science Cooking and Demonstration Rooms, Typewriting and Office Practice Rooms, Gymnasiums, Boys' and Girls' Rooms required for Administrative and General Purposes.

"They would cost approximately $283,452.00, on which there would be no grant from the Government. This is a cost to the City of about $28,265.00 more than the Combination addition.

Cost of Maintenance.

"The Government pays 50% of the cost of equipment purchased for Technical work, approved by the Minister. This grant is made in cash at the time the equipment is paid for in cash by the Board. The cost of equipment ranges from $30,000 to $40,000, of which the City would have to pay from $15,000 to $20,000. This would not necessarily be all purchased at once, but from time to time as needed.

"The Government make a grant on Teachers' salaries, the proportion which is paid depending upon the size of the pay roll. On a pay roll of $13,000, the Government would pay a little better than 50%.

"The County Council would be liable for an amount equal to 80% of the cost of maintenance of each pupil attending from the County.

"NOTE—If work could be begun in October (and incidentally provide for a number of men this fall, and enable a good deal of shop work to be done during the winter months) it would make it possible to have the building completed by Easter, 1927, by which time the overcrowded conditions will be even more acute than at present."

CORN STALKS TO PROVIDE PAPER FOR NEWSPRINT

Salvation of Northern Forests is Seen in New Process.

MANY GRADES.

Almost Any Formula Used Now Can Be Used With Corn.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(United Press).—The possibility of making newsprint paper from corn stalks was seen as a salvation for the forests of North America, vanishing before a vastly increasing demand for wood pulp, in an announcement apppearing in the New York State Publishers bulletin.

The process of manufacture and the future possibilities are explained by Dr. O. R. Sweeney, head of the chemical engineering department of Iowa State colleges, Ames, Iowa, in response to a letter of inquiry sent by the bulletin.

"We have succeeded in making many grades of papers from corn stalks," Dr. Sweeney states in his letter. "Almost any formula that is used in the manufacture of paper can also be used in the manufacture of corn stalk paper. The yield seems remarkably good. We propose to carry on experiments on a much larger scale during the coming Home":—

AUSTRALIA TO PUT BOUNTY ON PAPER

Will Encourage Production of Newsprint and Other Varieties.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 2.—Canadian Press. — In order to encourage the manufacture of newsprint and other varieties of paper in Australia, the Commonwealth Government proposes to offer a bounty of $4 per ton, according to an announcement made by Premier S. M. Bruce.

A bill to this end will be submitted at the next session of the Australian Parliament, the premier states.

SETTLEMENT IS BEING CONDEMNED

British Press Says Wrangle Over French Debt Will Start Again.

LONDON, October 2. — United Press. — The British press to-day prominently displayed editorial comment from Paris and Washington despatches excoriating the French Finance Minister Caillaux and American Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for making a "semi-settlement" of the French debt question.

"At the end of the five year period or earlier the wrangle will be started all over again," commented the Evening Standard.

May Have Been Fired By Beleaguered Riffs or Spanish Guns.

KRIM'S QUARTERS.

MADRID, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press)—Ajdir, Abd-el-Krim's capital in Spanish Morocco, a few miles from Alhucemas Bay, is in flames, but whether set afire by the much-beset Riffians themselves or by shells from the Spanish guns, is not known here.

General Primo de Rivera, aboard the dreadnought Alfonso IIII., lying off the Alhucemas coast, sent by radio the fact that Ajdir was burning. It was against this stronghold that the Spanish advance in the past few days has been directed.

In his message Primo de Rivera says of the Spanish troops reaching the Maekran heights without resistance by the Moors and few casualties. Of the fate of Ajdir, he says: "Ajdir is afire, including Abd-el-Krim's headquarters. The conflagration viewed from our new positions, presents a strange spectacle."

DRASTIC PATRIOTISM.

Girl Killed Man Considered a Traitor to His Country.

VIENNA, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press).—Mencia Garniciu, a Macedonian girl, was found guilty today of the murder of Tocor Panizza, an alleged Balkan desperado. She was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment, with a fast day in a dark cell on every May 8, the anniversary of the day she shot Panizza.

The girl, who is in the last stages of consumption, was put on trial yesterday. She killed Panizza at a performance of "Peer Gynt" at the National Theatre in Vienna and declared she committed the deed because she considered it a patriotic act to kill a traitor to the country.

Harry Jackson Was Arrested By San Francisco Police.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Oct. 2. Canadian Press. — Harry Jackson, alias Jacobson, said by the police to be wanted in Ontario, Canada, in connection with a $25,000 merchandise theft, was arrested yesterday and booked enroute to Windsor, Ont.

GAINS MADE IN CANADA'S TRADE

Balance Improved By $74,894,000 For Year Ending August 31.

EXPORTS INCREASE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—In the twelve months ended August 31 last, Canada improved her favorable trade balance against the world by $74,894,000, as compared with a net improvement during the year ended July 31 last, of $50,575,000. In the latter period the improvement was almost equally divided between a decrease in imports and an increase in exports, the imports dropping by $32,715,000 and the exports growing by $26,860,000.

In the year ended August 31 last, while there was a decrease of $4,246,000 in imports, as compared with the twelve months ended August 31, 1924, exports made a record-breaking increase of $70,648,000.

Empire Trade.

The adverse balance of trade held minion was reduced by nearly $31,000,000 that total being comprised of an increase of $22,140,000 in Canada's exports to that country and a decrease of $8,731,000 in the imports from the United States.

Imports from the United Kingdom totaled $156,560,412 an increase of $6,000,000, and exports to the United kingdom increased nearly $35,000,000 to $420,253,443. Imports from the British Empire rose over $6,000,000, and exports to the Empire increased by more than $33,000,000.

Foreign Trade.

Exports to Argentina increased more than $1,000,000; to Belgium they increased more than $3,000,000; to Brazil they nearly doubled to China they dropped from $15,215,000 to $6,148,000; to France they decreased from $16,667,000 to $8,811,000; to Germany they doubled, increasing from $17,765,000 to $35,033,000; to Italy they dropped from $10,344,000 to $7,923,000; to the Netherlands they jumped from $8,296,000 to $20,136,000; and to Russia they increased from $47,185 to $14,517,000.

BOOSTER CLUB IS ORGANIZED BY PETERBOROUGH YOUNG MEN

Hon. G. N. Gordon and Other Speakers Tell of Canada's Government.

INTEREST HIGH.

Jack Marshall Tells Impressions of His Trip Across Canada.

With an enthusiasm that found expression in many songs lauding Hon. G. N. Gordon and the policies of the Liberal party, the Booster Club of Peterborough last night launched itself on an intensive campaign that it fully expects will culminate in the return of the city's first Cabinet Minister to his place in the victorious Mackenzie King Government. The meeting was held in the Liberal Women's Committee rooms, under the chairmanship of Ronald Deyell, and the speakers were: Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration; J. J. Duffus, John Marshall, Joseph Wearing and John Dewart.

Mr. Deyell announced as the object of the Club the gathering together of young men to discuss the issues of the day, hear prominent speakers expound the principles under which the country is governed, and to get acquainted with one another. The meeting last night assumed a decidedly social trend under Mr. Deyell's leadership, enlivened by rollicking songs under the able coaching of Joe Wearing, and brightened by a solo by R. Snelgrove. George Henderson played the piano accompaniments.

Hon. G. N. Gordon.

In outlining his policy and that of the Liberal Government of which he is a Minister, Hon. Mr. Gordon pointed with pride to the achievements of the past four years. People often referred to the Liberal party as being for Free Trade, but this was not true. The country has a huge war debt to pay, and must have revenue to meet its obligations. The tariff raises about $300,000,000 a year, and in Mr. Gordon's opinion there will always be a tax on imports to raise the revenue necessary to carry on the work of government and pay the debt. The Liberal party believes in the middle course, equitable taxation, and trading arrangements with other parts of the Empire. The Conservative party believes in things as they were, and in the matter of taxation it penalizes the many for the advantage of the few. The great republic to the south, Mr. Gordon pointed out, would still be a part of the British Empire had it not been for a Tory King and a Tory Chancellor of the Exchequer who insisted on taxing the colonists without giving them an opportunity to say how the revenue should be expended.

"We have special interests in Canada to-day who demand certain privileges at the expense of the masses of the people. They are entrenched behind the battlements of what is left of the Conservative party. I am unpopular in this city to-day through opposing certain of these big interests, and I still oppose them."

The speaker pointed out that Hon. Vincent Massey is an outstanding example of successful business built up on its merits without special favors. It is the little petty concerns that think they should have special privileges and bonuses to carry on their work, whereas if they had the confidence to go after business they could succeed like Vincent Massey and Jack Marshall.

Business Improving.

As prominent business men who believe that the future of Canada lies in having trade relations with other countries, impossible with an extremely high tariff, Mr. Gordon cited A. Matthews, John Marshall, and Vincent Massey, and said these men are convinced the business of Canada is improving steadily.

Replying to accusations made by some that the Government had refused the $2,000 bonus to returned soldiers, Mr. Gordon pointed out that a request for this had not been made to the King Goverment. Having been refused attention twice by the preceding administrations, he thought the soldiers' representatives had become discouraged.

Answers Challenge.

Referring to a challenge made by Mr. Burnham through The Examiner, that he would give $10 to the Children's Aid Society if Mr. Gordon would authenticate his statement that neither the Quaker Oats Co. nor the Canadian General Electric Co. desired higher tariffs, Mr. Gordon indicated the reasons why these firms are satisfied with the King administration's handling of the tariff question. "What I said," Mr. Gordon repeated, "is that the C.G.E. Co. and the Quaker Oats Co. did not need any higher tariff and did not require them." The Quaker Oats export mill it at present operating 24 hours a day, with enough business to keep it going all winter. The Quaker Oats Company is selling its products in the free trade countries of the world. It laughs at tariffs it never needed a tariff and it doesn't need it now.

As for the C.G.E., two years ago representatives of that company came to Ottawa to protest against a proposed tariff on copper from the United States. The smelting interests of British Columbia, supported by certain Conservatives in opposition, wanted an increase of the tax on raw copper which would have increased the costs of the C. G. E. raw material; increased the costs of production, and, consequently, increased the costs to the consumer. On Mr. Gordon's suggestion a bonus in the British Columbia concern took the place of the proposed increased tax, with a consequent saving to the Canadian General Electric Company of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and a proportionately smaller saving to the Peterborough Lock Works.

A Fundamental.

It is a matter of absolute certainty, the speaker said, that people have a certain limited earning power. When the earning power is decreased the purchasing power is decreased and every seller feels the loss of business.

There is no question about the business improvement under the present regime, Mr. Gordon said, when the trade balances of the country are analyzed. In 1921 Canada brought in $30,000,000 more of goods than she shipped out, with the result that the dollar was worth only 85 cents in United States exchange. The Conservative administration didn't change a thing in the tariff to bring the better times that they say would follow an upward revision now. Mr. Meighen didn't do a thing when he had a chance to increase the tariff and keep everything out. Why? Because he knew if he increased the tariff enough to keep all of these things out he would have caused a crisis in the business and consuming life of the country. In the last twelve months Canada shipped out $285,000,000 worth more goods than she imported, and the Canadian dollar rose to above par of United States exchange.

Referring to the Australian treaty, Mr. Gordon indicated the benefits to be obtained by Canada through it. A market for $5,000,000 worth of pulp and paper has been opened to Canadian mills, all other paper in the world being excluded by a tariff that is not in effect against Canada. All factories in Canada will feel the impetus of increased business.

Mr. Strickland fears the effect on the farmer of the importation of eggs under the revised tariff under the treaty. The eggs that come from Australia, Mr. Gordon said, will be seven weeks on the way and will not compete seriously with the Canadian farmers' fresh paid product. The importation of butter from Australia only totals one-third of an ounce per head, and comes during the winter when the production in Canada is light.

Cement Factories.

In 1921, Mr. Gordon pointed out, quoting from statistics, there was more cement brought into Canada from outside, and more men were idle, than in all of Canda's history except during the war. In 1924 the only cement brought in was in the west, where the product of Canadian factories was inaccessible, and only $10,000 duty was paid on the amount imported, so it was not very large—hastly smaller, in fact, than under Mr. Meighen's regime.

Local Achievements

There were those, Mr. Gordon said, who claimed he had not done anything for the City of Peterborough. In this regard he would like to point out just one achievemtn. The Quaker Oats Co., the largest mill in the British Empire, depends for its success upon a low rate from the West. The Crow's Nest Pass agreement abolished all rates so that there would be an equitable arrangement, except the rate eastward on flour and grain. Mr. Gordon urged the board to give a preferential rate to carry the products of this mill to the seaboard, so that it might compete in world markets, and to give the eastern millers an advantage over Western mills such as Minneapolis. That has an effect on the employment and prosperity of the city than building an addition to the Customs House, although the latter may be easier seen.

His Portfolio.

Mr. Gordon referred briefly to an article in The Examiner, written by the Conservative Publicity Committee, commenting on his position "When the Prime Minister and his colleagues invited me to become a Minister of the Crown," he said, "I was asked If I would take the portfolio of Immigration and Colonization. I said I would, but pointed out that I thought a Western man in that office would be stronger. The Prime Minister said, because of peculiar qualifications he had seen in me, he desired that I should take the portfolio, but finally it was agreed that if a suitable man were elected from the West, he should be appointed to the office and the Prime Minister assured me that I would have a portfolio in the cabinet of equal or greater importance than that of Immigration. I believe that Peterboro particularly will benefit very much by my accession to the new portfolio. You have now a Minister of Immigration in the Federal Cabinet, the first Cabinet position that ever came to Peterborough, and after October 29 you will still have a minister of the Crown representing West Peterboro.

Mr. Gordon recalled that certain members of the Conservative party now hailed as leaders were at one time cast out of the party as undesirables by the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden. "As a matter of fact," he said, "Mr. Meighen's crowd looks like a circus parade with Mr. Meighen as the drum major."

In concluding, Mr. Gordon said he was glad to recognize the fact that there are good men, and able, in the Conservative party, but that their ranks have been sadly dilapidated since the days when the Conservative policies suited Canada's then, four or five, provinces.

J. J. Duffus.

J. J. Duffus, secretary of the West Peterboro Liberal Association, expressed gratification at the presence of so many young men, which augurs well for the future of Canada, indicating as it does, an interest in the business of the country. "It is a great honor and credit to Peterboro that we elected G. N. Gordon," he said.

It was the beginning of the end of the Tory party. He was re-elected, and after only one year in Parliament he was selected as Deputy Speaker. After putting in four years he was selected as a Minister of the Crown. We should appreciate this honor. Are you going to send a man to Ottawa who will sit as a private member on the Opposition benches, or a man who will hold a portfolio in the Liberal party, which will undoubtedly be returned on October 29? "I believe in good vigorous opposition, but in Mr. Meighen we have nothing but a pessimist. He has reason for it, as he was even defeated in his own riding, but at the same time I can hardly forgive him for going arou I the country sowing the seeds of pessimism, as it does harm, and tieratens to ruin the country."

After explaining the railway situation, Mr. Duffus went on to say that the Premier need not have gone to the country, even Mr. Burnham admitting that this was an act of real statesmanship.

John Dewart.

In an address that sparkled with apt illustrations of his points, John Dewart outlined the Parliamentary government of Canada, and said he saw no reason for pessimism under conditions. Canada has four basic industries: Agriculture, Mining, Lumber and Fishing. The foundation of all new wealth is in these, and Premier King set himself to encourage them, foreseeing that prosperity in these would necessarily encourage prosperity in all other branches of the national life. Since 1921 conditions have steadily improved with the farming industry getting on its feet. The farmer has more money to spend as a result, and business generally feels the effect of freer money.

Mr. Meighen said this policy of encouraging the basic industries by lowering the cost of productive implements spelled ruin and would cause untold hardships. But Mr. Meighen's pessimistic prognostications had erred and all Canadian industry is now in a more prosperous condition than it had been since the peak of the war boom. It would be a mistake, Mr. Dewart said, to change Governments until Mr. Mackenzie King had finished what he had started. The Liberal party has been marked throughout its existence by its fighting for the rights of the common people—the rights of the masses in opposition to the privilege of the classes.

On the ability of the men elected, Mr. Dewart continued, depends the future of Canada. The policy of the King Government has been to keep the middle of the road, thus bringing all of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific into one great happy family. "In West Peterboro you have a man supporting the right party and you have the right man," he concluded.

John Marshall.

John Marshall, urging the duty of a well-considered vote in the coming election, pointed out the responsibility that rests on the young men of Canada. He himself is not a hide-bound Liberal, but has sufficient mentality, he said, to take note of what goes on around him and to act on the judgment so formed. "Taking all the conditions into account," he continued, "I feel that I must do my part in sending the Liberal party back into power."

In an extensive trip over Canada during the last six months he had learned the sentiment of Canadians in every walk of life, and there is no doubt but that if sane, sensible, patriotic legislation is put through all elements in Canada will bind together in support of that government. The Liberal party realizes the diversified needs of the several component parts of Canada, and is welding these divisions into one grand and glorious Canada.

He did not think the Liberal party stands for free trade, but it does stand for as low a tariff as is consistent with raising the revenue needed to carry on the work of the government.

Digressing to remark on the railway situation, Mr. Marshall said: "I want to tell you that the C.N.R., the people's railroad, is giving superior service in every department. The C. N. R. employees are actuated by a spirit of service which is to be admired. They try to please." This, the speaker believes, is the result of the introduction into the C.N.R. of Sir Henry Thornton, and the Liberal government is to be congratulated on securing him.

Canada cannot ignore the growing favorable trade balance and the increasing value of the Canadian dollar, Mr. Marshall said, and must give credit to the government that brings these things about. The people of Canada should not change horses in the middle of the road. They should give the government an opportunity to complete the work so well begun and carried out.

Speaking of local conditions, Mr. Marshall said every citizen should support Mr. Gordon. He does not know anyone at Ottawa who has had at heart so much the welfare of his constituency.

Joseph Wearing.

Pos. Wearing, who brought his usual bright manner to the meeting with him, outlined the work attempted as an educational campaign. It object was the enlightenment of young men so that they would not go blindly to the poll, but could form their judgment on facts presented by qualified and able citizens. He announced another similar meeting for next Thursday evening.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—In the midst of so much heated discussion as to whether Canada is or is not prosperous a letter sent out by Wood, Gundy and Co. headed "Turning the Corner," is of special interest.

"A significant sign of the times," says this letter, "is the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway—a barometer of Canadian prosperity—has published a statement showing larger earnings last month than in any August since 1916."

"Agriculture, still the predominant factor in our national wealth, has shown a gratifying improvement with an estimated production nearly $400,000,000 larger than last year. Newsprint production, probably the next in importance, is progressing favorably on a sound basis and in three individual months Canadian output exceeded that of United States. Water power development, in which more than $765,000,000 has been invested, is continuing to progress, with its usual accompaniment of industrial expansion. The development of the Aluminum Company of America in the Saguenay district in Quebec is an illustration.

"Smaller public expenditures are indicated by total borrowings during the first nine months of 1925—nerly $50,000,000 less than during the corresponding period in 1924. The most important financing has been completed and while two or three substantial issues may appear, the total volume will be relatively unimportant.

"The larger volume of harvest funds that will shortly be available, combined with the increasing insurance and loan companies' revenues that will be seeking investment, gives rise to the question: 'Where will the money go?'"

An article to-day showing approximately $12,000,000 due in dividends from the listed stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange alone also raises the query: "Where will the money go?" not to mention $8,000,000 interest due on government loans this month. The street believes that the major portion of this will find its way back into the market. It was considered significant that the recent break in New York was not followed by a corresponding break in Toronto.

LONDON MONEY RATES DOWN.

Reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate from 4½ to four per cent. surprised and cheered the London stock exchange yesterday. Business in first-class issues immediately broadened, causing an advance of from 3-8 to 1-2 per cent. in British government stocks and corresponding gains in most other departments.

In New York on Wednesday call money went up to 6 per cent. which was the highest since September 21. Money went up because it was the last day of the month, and there had been temporary heavy withdrawals in order to supply the demand for dividend and interest payments due on the first of October. There was, of course, with a remembrance of November, 1919, the usual talk about a possible rise in the federal reserve rediscount, as one of the influences back of the selling.

Liverpool Quotations Help In Lifting Chicago Price

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Active trading and higher prices were the rule in the wheat pit to-day as soon as business here began. The unexpected strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool was chiefly responsible for the upward trend of values in Chicago. Liverpool advices said arrivals of Russian wheat were satisfactory, having a larger admixture than was looked for and that loadings in Russia were being delayed owing to the lack of arrivals at the seaboard. Chicago opening prices, 1 to 3 higher, new style Dec. 136 1-2 to 138, and May 138 1-2 to 139 3-4 were followed by a reaction to slightly below the initial range and then by fresh upturns.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 2.—The concert given on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Agricultural Society was successful, both in point of attendance and the quality of the entertainment provided. The entertainers were practically all old favorites and received a hearty welcome from the audience, who enjoyed the many good laughs provided for them.

Among the artists were Joseph Dwyer, soloist; Jerry Loescher, musical specialist; Dave Quinlan, whose dancing is remarkably clever; W. Lush, the cartoonist, whose lightning sketches charmed the audience; Geo. Wesley, the famous blackface comedian, and Frank Clark, whose manipulation of the banjo is a marvel, with A. Weatherhead at the piano.

The large audience fully appreciated the entertainment, which closed the successful day of the annual Fall Fair.

While some classes were poorly represented, owing to local weather conditions, the directors expressed great satisfaction at the result. The attendance was slightly over last year's.

Whales, it is believed, often pass from Antarctic to Arctic waters, and a British expedition now in the Southern seas will attempt to label a few of the animals in the hope of solving the problem of their migratory habits.

HARVEST FESTIVAL SERVICES

AT ST. GEORGE'S

"They joy before Thee according to the joy in harvest," taken from the third verse of the 9th Chapter of the Book of the Prophet Isaiah was the text chosen by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley for the harvest sermon at St. George's Church. Two words from that text, "Joy" and "Harvest" were chosen by the preacher as the subject.

Taking the first word, "Joy," Mr. Spence said that the very sound of the word conveyed its meaning. Joy is exaltation, gladness, delight; it is found in everybody from the cradle to old age. The joy of a child is not the same as that of the old person, which is largely a joy of anticipation. Life is made up of joy in many things, but the greatest of these is the joy in the harvest. The prophet, writing the chapter from which the text was taken, wished to show how great the joy of the people before God, and he said it was "according to the joy in harvest." There is joy in harvest for several reasons. There is joy because of rest from toil, for the harvest is not gathered without toil; there is joy because of the cessation of anxiety, because the farmer waiting for his crops knows great anxiety; and there is joy in the knowledge that one's wants have been supplied by the abundance of the fruits of the harvest.

Taking the word "Harvest," Mr. Spence said that it means the gathering in of the crop. There is a wider sense than this. Harvest is the fruit of all toil, whether it is in the fish caught by the fisherman, or the result of the labors of the school teacher. The greatest of all harbests is the spiritual harvest. Spiritual and natural laws are analogous, in many cases being exactly alike. The Lord Jesus Christ used to base many spiritual truths on natural laws when he taught men. "What a man sows, so shall he reap, both in kind and in degree. If he sow to the flesh, he shall reap corruption, and if he sow to the spirit he shall have life everlasting."

"What is meant by Life Eternal?" asked the speaker. It does not mean simply living for ever and ever, for all souls will do that, but eternal life is the life of God, and means living with Him. Those who believe that they shall have everlasting life and sow to the spirit will have everything that life has in store. They trust in the giver of all good and great joy will be theirs. Sorrows and troubles will have no weight. They will be able to endure all things in the joy of the harvest. In closing, the speaker expressed the hope that his hearers would sow in this life in such a way that they would reap eternal life.

The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes. Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' read the lessons. The anthem was "Break forth into joy" and the solo parts were taken by Miss Mabel Scott and Rev. Mr. Hughes. The church was appropriately decorated.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Both sides of the porch of St. John's Church were decorated by the fruits of the earth last night and small sheaves of golden grain bedecked the sides of the pews, appropriately garbing the church for the annual harvest festival, which was attended by a large congregation.

The chief items in the musical portion of the service were the Finale of Dr. Garrett's Harvest Cantata and a setting in the Key of D by Marchand. The Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave conducted the service, the sermon being delivered by the Rev. J. H. Coleman of Napanee.

Taking his text from part of verse 12 of Psalm 65, "Thy paths drop fatness," or, as it might be rendered, "The clouds drop fatness." Mr. Coleman said the harvest festival was a time for thinking as well as for thanking. They were the better able to offer due and faithful worship if they thought for a few minutes on the gracious methods of nature's laws and customs in making provision for man's needs. They could accept all that science told as to nature's ways of working. W. J. Bryan was an honored man but he made a great mistake in identifying Christianity with opposition to the evolutionary theory. No theories and no facts could ever shake the faith that discerned the unseen behind the seen. Behind all was a personality. They called that personality God, who was worshipped and to whom was given thanks. "The clouds drop fatness." A spiritual meaning lay behind the material facts. The clouds—sometimes a little patch seemingly from nowhere—from earths surface, from the dewdrop on the rose, the perspiration from the face, the steam from the kettle, water from the ocean, formed of a vast number of inconceivably small molecules pressed together and transformed into vapor or gas. If the molecules remained still, the atmosphere would be saturated, but the same heat that draws the vapor from the earth provided energy for the molecules, set them in motion, preventing stagnation. The vapor, lighter than the oxygen and nitrogen of the atmosphere, was moved by the varying degrees of heat or cold or by currents of wind. As the air became colder, the less became its capacity for retaining moisture and finally had to lose some of the very small droplets which, uniting with others, formed a thick and dense mass—a cloud. Droplets united with infinitesimal drops of dust which gathered others until a drop was formed heavy enough to fall earthwards.

These molecules were hard workers. Taken from the sea, they traveled hundreds of miles through the air, then down to the earth, sinking in and forming a spring, from which they might be taken up in a tumbler. In one tumbler of water were trillions of molecules.

Every scrap of food we possessed, we owed to the fertilizing power of these molecules. Without them, all life would be blotted out. To the ancients the rainbow was a promise that all men should no more be cut off by the waters of the flood. Men to-day saw in it the rays of light bent and reflected by the myriads of droplets and saw that man would have water to provide his daily food. No wonder Jesus used the clouds as the symbol of his coming. "Thou shalt see the Son of Man coming from the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

He had seen three fields of the same soil and not far apart. The first had no harvest, the second had a scanty growth of poor quality, the third had a bountiful harvest of the finest of the wheat. The first field was untilled, the second was tilled poorly, but on the third, man had labored with skill and intelligence. Man had co-operated with nature.

The speaker applied this illustration to the cultivation of spiritual virtues. As the clouds dropped fatness of material blessings, so the grace of God dropped fatness on our souls. The great differences that existed in human character were due to the varying extent of co-operation with Him. Spiritual laziness bore no good fruits. One must cultivate. The more spiritual activity one displayed the fuller the measure derived of spiritual wealth.

Mr. Coleman also drew some lessons from the advantages of clouds in developing character. A climate where summer reigned all the time did not produce the highest character. He contrasted the British character with the Italian, the British ideal of Christianity with the Italian, the superiority of the former being due to the fact that it was nurtured in a land where clouds and sunshine alternated.

AT ST. LUKE'S.

The harvest festival services at St. Luke's Church last evening were well attended. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with autumn fruits, flowers, grains and vegetables, the decorating committee receiving many congratulations on their artistic work.

Evensong was said by the rector, Rev. G. J. Bousfield, and special music for the ceremony included the "Magnificat" and the "Nunc Dimittus." The anthem, by Simper, was entitled: "He Watereth the Earth," the bass solo being taken by Mr. Hepburn. The musical services were in charge of the organist, Mr. Wm. C. Thomson.

Rev. Walter Cox, rector of St. John's Church, Lakefield, was the special preacher for the occasion, and took his text from the hymn, "Come ye thankful people, come, raise the song of harvest home." Rev. Mr. Cox elaborated on the several verses of the hymn, and also referred to the verse from Isaiah: "Joy before thee according to the joy of the harvest." He prefaced his address with a short biography of the writer of the hymn, Dean Alford.

SHOWER HELD FOR SEPTEMBER BRIDE

Friends of Miss Mary Cupoli Gathered With Many Gifts.

The Misses Nellie and Stella Brady were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given to Miss Mary Cupoli in honor of her approaching marriage. During the evening, little Miss Dorothy Brady, niece of the hostess, as a bride with veil and wreath, drew the prettily decorated wagon of gifts into the parlor behind the bride-elect to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Beulah Payton. After Miss Cupoli had opened her gifts and the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellaw" the party wended their way to the dining room, where Miss Cupoli was presented by Miss Genevieve Driscoll with several pieces of Old Colony silver, the gift of the employees of the Peterboro Lock Co., and an address which was read by Mr. Irvin Bailey, read as follows.

Dear Mary.—We, your friends, employees of the Peterboro Lock Mfg. Company., have gathered here to express our regrets of your departure from our midst. Your sunny smile and cheery disposition has endeared you to us all, and we could not let this opportunity pass without showing you in some tangible way how much you will be missed. Please accept this as a small token of our good wishes for your future happiness.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Peterboro Lock Co.

Miss Cupoli, who was taken very much by surprise, thanked them one and all, and assured them she would never forget them. The party adjourned, wishing Miss Cupoli every happiness and success in her new life.

MR. PECK DEALS WITH OUR LOSS OF POPULATION

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

In soliciting the support of the electorate of West Peterborough in the pending election, I desire to present some of the reasons which prompted me to accept the nomination of my party as its candidate.

With many others, I have observed for some time the gradual slackening of the activities of the industries of the country, accompanied by a growing despondency upon the part of those affected thereby, indicated by a steady increase in the numbers of those migrating to the United States on account of these depressing trade conditions.

In dealing with these conditions I here reproduce to you certain statements prepared and issued by the present Government and furnished by it to the public, dealing with the amount of employment and the exodus.

First, I submit figures showing the value of the construction contracts awarded in the last three years. In 1922 the value of such contracts was 331,000,000.00; in 1923, $314,000,000.00, and in 1924 only $276,000,000.00.

Dealing with the exodus above referred to, I note that in the statement of exports prepared each year by the Government, there is contained an item entitled, "Settlers' Effects," representing goods and personal belongings taken by persons removing from Canada to the United States and proposing to make their homes there. In the year 1922 the value of these effects was placed by the Government returns at $5,346,000.00. In the year 1923 this value was increased to $6,635,000.00. and for the year 1924 this value, for that year, amounted to the large sum of $9,846,000.00.

This and other facts, which will have come to the notice of many of my readers, clearly support the following conclusions, namely:

1.—The value of construction works in Canada has been gradually falling in the past three years, so that the value of such works in 1924 fell below that of 1922 by over $55,000,000.00.

2.—There has been a very extensive exodus of our citizens to the United States, extending over the last three years.

3.—THAT EXODUS IS INCREASING AND NOT DIMINISHING.

4.—These conditions were necessarily fully known to the McKenzie King administration.

What can be more serious to contemplate than the immense loss of population due, evidently, to lack of employment in this country, and what must be the feeling of those, finding themselves owing to labour conditions, forced to break up their homes and leave their own country for a foreign land?

THE GOVERNMENT IS NOT ONLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE EXISTING CONDITIONS, BUT ALSO HAS NOT MADE THE SLIGHTEST EFFORT TO DEAL WITH THE PROBLEMS INVOLVED.

The Premier's claim that he could do nothing because he had only a small majority is puerile, for he could, at any rate, have submitted his policies (if any) to the Parliament for consideration, and gone to the country if they had been rejected. Instead, he has hung on to office for four years to the great loss of the country. Even now he has nothing to offer to improve conditions.

What is, of course, necessary is to take steps to protect the labour interests of this country.

THIS CAN BE DONE—WISE LEGISLATION CAN EFFECT IT.

BUT NONE SUCH CAN BE EXPECTED FROM THE PRESENT PREMIER, WHO STILL PERSISTS IN CONTENDING THAT THE COUNTRY IS PROSPEROUS.

It is the duty of every citizen, not merely on behalf of himself, but also for his fellows, to put into power a party which will actively deal with these and our other problems. In many different ways labour interests are suffering under existing conditions.

One of these is failure to receive adequate protection by means of tariff against the importation of foreign manufactured goods, which could and should be manufactured in our own industries. We imported, last year, over $600,000,000.00 worth of manufactured articles, while we have factories, shops and machinery capable of producing similar goods. Amongst other articles included in these importations, were goods of woollen manufacture to the value of $40,000,000.00, including nearly $2,000,000.00 worth of carpets and rugs. Of goods of cotton manufacture were imported $38,000,000.00; of rolling mill products, $49,000,000.00; hardware and cutlery, $3,800,000.00; clocks and watches, about $2,000,000.00; of machinery, including such things as sewing machines, carpet sweepers, washing machines, mining machinery, cash registers, cranes and derricks, machine drills, etc., $28,000,000.00; and this is only a partial list. It is perfectly obvious that some increase in our tariff is necessary to protect the employee in shops engaged in such manufactures.

PARTICULARLY IS PROTECTION NECESSARY AS SOME OF SUCH IMPORTED GOODS ARE MANUFACTURED WHERE THE STANDARD OF LIVING AND WAGES ARE LOWER THAN WITH US.

Then in other respects our labour interests suffer. We export large quantities of raw material which could well be manufactured in this country and exported as a finished product. Of wheat not required for home use we only manufacture into flour less than one-fifth. Our railways, and other means of transportation, also suffer in this respect. They are not used as they should be in the carriage of our exports. Of the grain exportation to Europe and other continental countries, three-fifths goes by the port of New York, instead of by Montreal, and our other ports. Again our labour suffers.

The advantage to those engaged in agricultural pursuits in retaining our manufactures and building up our urban centres is manifest. This will improve their home market and tend to counteract the effect of the high American tariff against agricultural products. I will deal with these and other important issues at a later date.

I AM NOT PESSIMISTIC. I KNOW THAT WITH A WISE GOVERNMENT A GREAT FUTURE AWAITS CANADA.

I would ask from the electorate a careful consideration of the statements contained in this address, and also its support at the coming election on the 29th of October.

Sincerely yours,

E. A. PECK

IN SEMI-FINALS.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Niagara Falls and Kingston will start their semi-final series in the O.B.A.A. on Saturday afternoon in Niagara Falls, with the return game in Kingston on Wednesday.

Both games will be started at 2.30. The Intermediate semi-finals will also be on to-morrow afternoon, with Bridgeburg visiting Goodyear, the winner of the series to meet Deloro for the title.

MR. JOPLING'S REPLY.

Answering the challenge of the South-End Garage tug-of-war team's challenge, Fred Jopling, manager of the Men of the North team, said this morning that the championship had been fairly decided at the Peterboro Exhibition. He also pointed out that this was an annual competition which the Exhibition Board had kept alive, and at some personal expense he had helped keep it going.

"Our team are quite satisfied with the decision," Mr. Jopling remarked, "but we can't get them together as easily as some men seem to think. On Thanksgiving Day some of us will be away hunting, so what we advise the South-End Garage team to do is to keep together until next fall, get in the best of shape, and they can meet us at the Exhibition. It should be a good attraction for the Fair, and the teams can be doing that much to boost it."

BOWLING NEWS

The final games in the local tournament staged by the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club this week will be played off to-night at 7.30. Will all the skips who are in the running please show up early so that the draw can be made and the games get away to an early start.

LADIES' SPORTS WORTH SEEING

Ladies From Toronto Have Won World Fame, While Local Girls Play Fast Ball.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

It's going to be a real ball game to-morrow, when the C.G.E. Ladies meet an all-star team from the Sunnyside Major League of Toronto. The record of the local girls is well-known. They have lost only two games this season, both on Toronto fields, after making the journey by car. That their opponents will be of high calibre is shown by the fact that they beat an all-star team from the Danforth League, which included many players of the Danforth and Hope Ladies, the only teams who have beaten the local team this year.

The ball game alone should draw a large crowd to the Exhibition Grounds, but there will be in addition a chance of seeing some of the best of Toronto's lady athletes perform on track and field. The names of the Conacher sisters, Myrtle Cook and Kay Flanagan are well-known, especially since their splendid showing overseas, while the other members of the party are not far behind in fame or skill. The afternoon's programme will start at 3.30 sharp.

SOCCE NOTES

The Semi-Final for the Peterburn County Cup will be played on the King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, when those two well-balanced teams, the C.P.C., the Holders, and the DeLaval, will meet to decide which team will meet the Masseys in the final. The players are requested to report at their club rooms at 2.30 p.m. sharp. The game will start at 3 p.m. promptly. George Blowers will referee and W. Anderson and A. Mitchell, Senior, will be linesmen.

Official notification was given by Jack Burton, jr., to the effect that there would be NO senior game between the Quaker Oats and Thistle in a league match to-morrow afternoon. The Quakers could not get a team, owing to a number being compelled to attend to business.

ORCHESTRA ELECTS DIRECTORS FOR YEAR

Good Attendance at First Practice of Fall Season.

At the regular rehearsal and meeting of the Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday evening, with a good representative attendance, the following were elected as the executive for the coming year:

Honorable G. N. Gordon, Mayor J. J. Turner, Dr. H. G. Park, Messrs. Jno. Crane, R. A. Brown, R. Gliddon, Geo. McDonald, R. G. Kingan, Chas. Westbrook, J. M. Greene.

At the meeting of directors to be held next week, the officials will be elected from the directorate.

DEMPSEY ARRIVES IN CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 2.—Jack Dempsey arrived here today to keep a boxing exhibition engagement at the Olympic arena tonight.

Dempsey immediately went to a hotel where he conferred with his attorney, Raymond J. Cannon of Milwaukee, for an hour, discussing the contracts calling for the title fight between Dempsey and Harry Wills, signed at Niles, Mich., last night.

Dempsey insists he is to receive no guaranty for his fight with Wills. The champion does not know whether Michigan City, Ind., Benton Harbor, Mich., or Chicago will be the site of the battle. The contracts call for the match to be fought "somwhere in the United States."

Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons wants to stage it at Michigan City next September, but Dempsey feels opposition to the match may develop in Indiana and hints that he will suggest that another site be selected.

ROVERS JINXED BY BAD START, CLIMBING NOW

Experienced Run of Three Defeats—Now Scalping Indiscriminately.

ARSENAL LOST ONE.

Huddersfield Sole First Division Club Still Undefeated.

LONDON, Oct. 2 (Canadian Press Cable).—Saturday's fixtures in the First Division of the English soccer league do not present anything in the way of outstanding interest, the card indicating that with all teams playing to form, none of the leaders will have anything to fear. Sunderland, the league leaders, play what would have been their third consecutive Saturday away from home had the game with Cardiff on September 19 been contested that day. As it was the encounter was run out on the following Monday. On the day after tomorrow, Sunderland will face Manchester City, and they should have an easy proposition on hand. It has to be taken into consideration, however, that Manchester City have not yet been defeated this year on their own ground, although they were forced to split the point at home on two occasions. Sunderland have resumed their winning ways following that check by Blackburn Rovers last Monday week, and since then they have defeated Cardiff and the 'Spurs.

Tottenham Hotspur stage the only first string game slated for the Metropolis on Saturday, when they play host to Blackburn Rovers. The 'Spurs are bracketed with Sunderland in the place of honor, while Blackburn occupy a middle-position. The Rovers began badly and it took four games before they could banish the jinx that seemed to be following them. After a run of three defeats they started in to climb the ladder with a win over Newcastle United. A relapse three days later was followed by an effort at recovery when they drew the "Blades," and since then they have taken the scalps of both Sunderland and Cardiff City. Whether this return to something like Blackburn's true form will be continued remains to be seen.

Arsenal, whose one defeat this season was sustained in the opening game, from Tottenham, are scheduled to visit the Tyneside to take on Newcastle United. In their recent games, their acquisition of Buchan from Sunderland has stood them in good stead. They have developed a powerful attack, although their defence is by no means invulnerable. This may not serve them ill on Saturday, for according to form Newcastle United are running weak all through the piece. Nor can it be said that the fetish of locale has any great advantage for the Northumbrians since it was seen that Blackburn Rovers could visit the Tyne and take the home team into camp by no less than 7 goals to 1.

Huddersfield Town cross the Shire-line into Lancashire, and it is expected by their fans that, following two indecisive contests in succession, they may emerge with full points. Huddersfield are the only First Division club that have not yet been defeated, and their supporters do not think that Everton are strong enough to do the deed. Everton have been extremely mediocre so far. The fact that they stand near the top of the bottom section in the table is due to their series of drawn games. Out of nine encounters they have divided the points in five. Their sole victory of the season was gained on September 16 at the expense of West Bromwich. Since then they have drawn with Manchester City and dropped games to Birmingham and Liverpool.

Other scheduled games are:

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT COMRADE HUNTER

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The first accident of the hunting season in this district occurred on Wednesday evening, when Dave Alexander, of Hillier, was instantly killed, having the top of his head blown off by the discharge of a gun in the hands of a man who was in the boat with him at the time. An inquest was held at Hillier by Dr. C. D. McCulloch, and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

JEALOUSY BRINGS CHURLISH ATTACK ON NEW MINISTER

With No Great Principles To Stand Upon, Conservatives Take New Front.

AVOID ISSUES.

Parrot Party Fails To Follow Its Leader and Spills Vitriol.

Looking through the green spectacles of jealousy, the Conservative party has seen fit to impugn the good faith of the Honorable the Minister of Immigration G. N. Gordon, and to question his sincerity in administering the duties entrusted to him by a Government appreciative of his ability.

It is not the purpose of the Liberal Publicity Committee to engage in personal vilification, or to question, unless forced to, the motives behind the publicity put out by the opponents in this election. It is unfortunate, from a Liberal party standpoint, that the election is not being fought on the record, achievements and ability of the candidates alone. If that were the deciding factor then there would be no doubt of the outcome. But there are larger issues than the personal status of the candidates.

With their usual enthusiasm the Conservative propagandists are endeavoring to becloud the issues, and they will succeed in about the same measure as they did by the use of similar smoke screens in 1921.

Mr. Meighen, hailed as leader by these same Conservatives, says the issue is the Tariff. The Conservatives of West Peterboro have said nothing about the Tariff except in a weak presentation by the candidate, a statement that convinced nobody and only served to enlighten the voters still more as to the paucity of ideals and ideas behind present-day Conservatism.

Up and down the hustings Conservatives are declaring there is no railway issue, although they in the next breath criticize violently the Government's administration of the railways which the Conservative party loaded upon the people of Canada. According to the Conservative speakers in this riding, all that is necessary to the success of the railways is the arrival here of millions of immigrants all eager to go somewhere. Probably the farther they go from the Atlantic coast the better for the railroads—and on Mr. Meighen's own say—so he doesn't care a snap of his fingers for the farmers of the West, so let the immigrants go there and .... There the Conservative story ends. The railways have been saved; the country be damned.

Senate reform is not an issue, says Mr. Meighen. Speaking at Kingston the Conservative leader is reported as follows: "Touching on Senate reform, Mr. Meighen said he hadn't met a soul interested in it in Canada. It was just a joke." From which the man of average intelligence would take it that the leader of the Conservative party is tragically out of touch with the people he seeks to represent. Senate reform that will put an end to the power of the "House of Irresponsibility" permanently to veto such legislation as social reform, railway aid, relief to Home Bank depositors, advances to farmers by extension of rural credits and restriction of gambling, is far from being regarded as a "joke" by tens of thousands of the Canadian electorate.

The electors of West Peterboro, therefore, are justified in understanding from the Conservatives that there is no issue in this election except the question whether Conservative jealousy can turn G. N. Gordon out of office. The issue set by Mr. Meighen has been ignored in West Peterboro; the issues named otherwise are dismissed by a wave of Mr. Meighen's hand.

Instead of coming out with a suggestion for the betterment of Canada the Conservative Publicity Committee commissions some hoary party follower to take down his rusty pen, open a new bottle of vitriol, and commence a personal attack upon Peterboro's first Cabinet Minister.

That is not politics as the Liberal Publicity Committee sees it. It is common churlishness that will be so recognized by the electors who are astute enough to differentiate between issues and abuses.

The Liberal Publicity Committee hopes it may not be necessary hereafter to turn aside from the discussion of constructive issues to administer reprimands to disappointed ward heelers.

It is the duty of this Committee to remind the voters of other years, and to tell the new electors of this year, that GORDON IS THE MAN.

G. N. GORDON

STRONG OUTFIELDS IN WORLD'S SERIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.— Two mighty outfields, strong in every department of baseball, will clash when Washington and Pittsburgh meet in the first game of the world's series next Wednesday.

A contest for slugging honors impends between the two heaviest hitters of the rival squads, Leon (Goose) Goslin, Washington's home run hero of the 1924 series, and Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, sensational young Pirate outfielder.

The Goose has proved his world's series worth. He hit .344 last fall and was always dangerous. He has been a bit erratic this year, trailing his outfield mate, Sam Rice, in the league percentage column, but Goslin has the familiar Washington habit of being at his best in the pinch.

Cuyler, one of the brightest stars to break into the majors in a decade, combines with Max Carey and Clyde Barnhart to form an outer array which seems superior to the Washington trio of Goslin, Rice and Earl McNeely or Joe Harris, if the comparison of season averages is taken as conclusive.

Pirates Fast.

The Pirates, for instance, have an edge of speed. Carey, long base thief, has 42 steals to his credit, against 37 for Cuyler. Barnhart has pilfered nine, to give Pittsburg a total of 88. Washington's outfielders have stolen 64 bases, with Goslin and Rice sharing first honors, with 27 apiece. Cuyler, according to the averages, is the best hitter on either club, his .360 this season placing him amongst the first basemen in the National League, in addition to which he is the leading run-getter.

Carey has batted .340 for the season and Barnhart .327, an outfield average of .342. Rice's mark is .350, Goslin's .340, McNeely's .288 and Joe Harris' .305. With McNeely playing centre field the Senator outer works averages .325, but with Harris in the line-up the figures are .332.

But to offset this Washington has one of the greatest defensive outer trios in baseball, although Pittsburg is not far behind.

AT THE GRAND

MOST DELIGHTFUL PLAY IN YEARS, "BLOSSOM TIME," COMING.

The most delightful musical play of years, "Blossom Time," will be presented by the Messrs. Schubert at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, Oct. 3rd, matinee and evening.

"Blossom Time" was produced at the Ambassador Theatre, New York, three years ago. It ran there for an entire year and was then moved to the Jolson and Century Theatres where it ran for another year. Now in its third year it has been seen in Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, and many of the larger cities of the country, where it has broken all house records for receipts. "Blossom Time" is based on incidents in the life of Franz Schubert, the famous Viennese composer. The book and lyrics are by Dorothy Donnelly, adapted from the original of A. M. Willner and H. Reichert. The music is from melodies of Franz Schubert and H. Berte, adapted by Sigmund Romberg. It was staged by J. C. Huffman, under the personal direction of Mr. J. J. Shubert.

The original theme of the story was discovered in a semi-fiction and semi-biographical life of Schubert which was publised shortly after his death. It is a charming love story that has been made use of. Schubert, in the play, is already famous, but very poor. He falls in love with Mitzi, daughter of the Crown Jeweler, whom he is giving music lessons. There is some doubt as to the girl's love for Schubert, it is more admiration for the composer's great abilities. Schubert's friend, Baron von Schober, also falls in love with Mitzi and his love is reciprocated.

Poor Frantz Schubert is too good a fellow to resent his friend's luck and he loves Mitzi too much not to rejoice in her happiness and so takes refuge in his music. The Messrs. Shubert have brought together a splendid singing and acting company to present "Blossom Time."

AT THE CAPITOL

SPECIAL PAY-DAY FOR CHILDREN AT CAPITOL

A special children's matinee will be held at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow (Saturday) at 2.30. Every child that enters the theatre will receive a pay envelope which will contain either a pass for any other show, else money ranging from one cent to one dollar. The last payday held at the Capitol several children received in their envelopes dollar bills and half dollars. The pictures to be shown will include 'The Scarlet West, a feature with thousands of Indians, wild horses, frontiersmen and cavalrymen. The usual comedies will also be shown, in addition to the second episode of 'Idaho,' a serial of the gold rush days.

After seeing "The Scarlet West," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre for an extended engagement, one feels a new respect for the motion picture art, for here is entertainment par excellence. And it also demonstrates the superiority of the screen over the speaking stage.

Bearing the First National trade mark, which has come to mean the best in photoplays, "The Scarlet West" reaches epic heights in its masterful portrayal of that most dramatic of eras in American history—the winning of the West from the Indians. The producer, Frank Carroll, and the director, John Adolphi, are to be congratulated for the skill with which they have breathed the spirit of romance and adventure into this remarkable production.

Our blood ran faster as we beheld the mighty battles between Indians and American soldiers, with thousands of combatants taking part in the battles; we gasped with awe at the magnificent scenery unfolded upon the silver sheet; we shuddered with horror at the plight of the hero and heroine, and we gloried with the lovers in the culmination of their romance.

Seldom have we seen a picture which wove such a spell about the spectator and held his attention so raptly.

Great credit is due to the splendid work of the cast. Clara Bow is inimitable as the flirtatious daughter of General Kinnard; Robert Frazer, as an educated Indian, forgetting the blood barrier in his love quest, gives a startling performance; Robert Edeson is excellent as the irascible general; Johnny Walker as the suitor gives his usual polished portrayal. Equally as capable is the remainder of the cast, including Walter McGrail, Gaston Glass, Helen Ferguson, Ruth Stonehouse, Martha Francis and Florence Crawford.

This pulse-quickening photoplay is one of the finest ever shown on the screen of the Canital, and we believe you will enjoy it as much as we did.

AT THE ROYAL.

APPEAL OF "SMOULDERING FIRES IS FOR THE LADIES.

Many Might Benefit by seeing it — Frederick and La-Plant Co-Star.

There are two classes of persons who can learn a lesson from "Smouldering Fires," Universal-Jewel-Clarence Brown production, which opened yesterday in the Royal Theatre. They are the young man who sees visions of luxury and happiness in becoming the husband of a woman who is much older than himself, and the middle-aged woman who sees happiness as the wife of a youth half her age.

However, the lesson will be gleaned through the medium of as fine entertainment as ever has been seen on the screen, for there are many pleasant diversions from the lesson part of the story, which was probably not intended to teach any lesson at all.

Pauline Frederick and Laura La Plante are co-starred in the picture. The former has the part of a middle aged woman whose life is devoted to the management of a big factory left to her by her father. Praise of Miss Frederick's ability as an artist is not necessary to convince the great theatre going public, either motion picture or speaking stage, of her capabilities.

In "Smouldering Fires" she takes full advantage of a fine opportunity to show her ability in character portrayal. At first she is man-minded person extraordinarily capable as a business executive but quite evidently without knowledge of love, but the time comes when she is feminine, with all the glory of feminine maturity.

Younger Sister Resentful.

This is after she falls in love with the youthful employee as a result of very logical circumstances, and much to the delight of her younger sister, played by Miss La Plante.

The Royal Theatre was filled last night for amateur night. The audience and Sammy Harris had a wonderful time for a while. As the tiny tots who were billed for the programme did not turn out in any too large numbers, the programme was chiefly Mr. Harris, and he acquitted himself admirably. He gave a very fine imitation of a mind-reading expert, told one or two humorous stories, sang a medley of comic verses and introduced the new illustrated song, "I miss My Swiss, my Swiss Miss misses me." Mr. Harris invited the audience to join with him in the chorus of this remarkable ditty, but they could only listen entranced to the rolling "esses" with which the new number abounds. Little Gladys Gilbert and small Thelma Pattenden were vocal soloists on the programme who warbled faint little songs that were received with much applause.

"Smouldering Fires," with Pauline Frederick in the stellar role, is the feature picture, and shows the famous stage actress in a story that illustrated admirably the irritations of the eternal triangle. Pauline Frederick enacts the part of Jane Vale, a masculine-minded lady who spurns love until she is well on the way to sorty years, then falls in love with and marries a youth of twenty or thereabouts. Her young sister arrives on the scene and vamps him sufficiently to take all his attention away from his elderly wife and the latter finally gives him up, in a dramatic scene. The picture is interest-holding and calls for a good deal of fine work on the part of the star, who gives a splendid presentation of the role.

AILEEN PRINGLE BOB SEEN IN "WILDFIRE."

In "Wildfire," the famous racing melodrama produced by Vitagraph, and which will be seen at the Royal Theatre on Monday, Aileen Pringle will be seen for the first time in her motion picture career with her hair bobbed. Miss Pringle was a long time coming to it and hated to give up the great mass of titian beauty that was one of her charms. But the times, the added comfort and convenience and the knowledge that she possessed the figure, face and carriage best suited to such a coiffure, finally decided her. Her bob is distinctive, as anything about Miss Pringle is bound to be, and unless all signs fail it is due to become a vogue.

STORMS PLAY HAVOC WITH BUCK JONES' FILM TROUPE

William Fox Cowboy Star and His Supporting Company Delayed By Hot Winds and Heavy Downpours In Producing "Hearts and Spurs"

Those persons who still entertain a belief that the life of a picture star is sweeter than the proverbial "Bed of Roses" are referred to Buck Jones, William Fox cowboy star, recently returned from a lengthy location near Daggett, California.

The original intention of Buck, Director W. S. Van Dyke and a large company of motion picture players, including Carol Lombard, William Davidson, Freeman Wood, Jean Lamott and Robert Littlefield was to "shoot" exterior scenes for the big Fox Star's latest production, "Hearts and Spurs," now showing at the Regent Theatre. The picture is based on Jackson Gregory's novel, "The Outlaw."

But the best laid plans are sometimes worse than no plans at all—and that is the case regarding this trip. The troupe arrived at the location and immediately plunged into the detail of preparing to shoot the scenes. But the elements bucked against them.

Hot winds to-day, burning faces and arms to a crispness that rivaled California's famous barbecued quarters, with terrific sand storms. The next day chilling mountain breezes lashing heavy downpours of rain. And so it went. Day after day the troupe forged ahead, shooting a few scenes whenever the opportunity availed.

The actors journeyed that long distance for a reason, they remained until the work was finished — and finished it was with the dramatic action made more dramatic by nature's wild turmoils.

When Buck and his cohorts returned they resembled those hardy folk who first pushed their way across the California plains. Every actor, actress and member of the technical staff bore marks of the skirmish. Blistered hands, glistening faces and bleached locks were the most prominent exterior evidences of nature's erratic temperament.

BREAK LOST LAST HEAT FOR WINNER OF FREE-FOR-ALL

Closing Day Feature of Circuit Meet Won By Sir Roch.

LOST TO HAL MAHONE.

Winners of Largest Stake Heats Given Race Honors.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct 2. — Although losing the last heat, Sir Roch yesterday won the Free-for-all pace, the feature event on the closing day's card of the Grand Circuit meeting here.

A break cost Sir Roch the final heat, which went to Hal Mahone. After his jump which put him several lengths back of the field Sir Roch paced the final quarter in 28½ seconds but could do no better than finish fifth.

Cupid's Albingen and Clara Dillon were each heat wnners in the Ohio Citizens' Stake for 2.07 Trotters, but the former was declared the winner as he won the heat carrying the largest purse. The same thing was true of the Buckeye Trotting Stake, which had only two starters. Trumpet won from Mike Dillon, by virtue of winning the second heat and largest money

Ribbon Cane proved better than Star Ruth and Frank Worthy, the other two starters in the Arch City Stake, and won in straight heats.

The summaries:

SMART GOLF IN THIRD ROUND OF WOMEN'S MATCH

WINNERS UNDER 80.

Canadian Representative Set Relentless Pace, Obtaining Early Lead.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press). — Brilliant golf yesterday marked the third round matches of the women's national championship at the St. Louis Country Club. All four winners scored under 80. The lowest score of the losers was an approximate par 81. As a result of these contests, Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, will meet Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Glenna Collett, of Providence, will compete with Edith Cummings, of Chicago, in the semi-finals. Mrs. Fraser, who held the national title five years in succession, had to score three under par for the 16 holes played to defeat Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, tennis star, 3 and 2, while Miss Fordyce found Mrs. F. C. Letts, of Chicago, off her game and won handily, 7 and 5, by shooting three under par for 13 holes.

Miss Collett had the best score of the day, equalling the medalist card of 77, made by Mrs. Fraser on Monday, in overcoming Fritzie Stiefel, of Wheeling, W. Va., 3 and 2, and Miss Cummings was also three better than par for the 15 holes, including two successive eagles, in eliminating Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, 4 and 3.

Miss Collett played out the bye holes and got 38-39—77, while Miss Cummings, if she had played out the route at the speed she was going would have scored 37 on the second nine for a 77. Mrs. Fraser was not scoring so well at the close, but on the basis of holes played she would have tallied 78 and possibly 77, for she shot the first nine in 37, the best out score of the day.

Miss Fordyce was one above par for the first half, but she was coming home at a 36 clip which, if kept up, would have netted a 77.

It was a good day for golf, for the greens were in fine condition after Wednesday's deluge. Comparatively small galleries watched the best golf ever exhibited in a third round.

In the international match between Mrs. Fraser and Miss Browne, the Canadian started at a relentless pace, snatching three birdies on the first half and playing all the other six holes in pedfect figures to gain a lead of five up with a 37, although Miss Browne was only two above par with 42. The Californian developed a slice at the start of the round, and this all but cost her the first hole and did deprive her of the second and third. She lost the next two to a birdie and a par and was five down at the end of seven holes when she took four at the short seventh.

From there on, the tennis champion outplayed Mrs. Fraser, but it was too great a task to overcome such a lead when the most Mrs. Fraser would concede was to refrain from beating par.

Three down and only four to go, the Westerner laced out a drive of 250 yards down the centre of the 15th fairway, outstripping Mrs. Fraser as usual from the tee. They were both short of the green in two, but both ran up close and Miss Browne, with the result of the match in the balance, sank a 12-foot putt for a half in birdie four. The tennis star sliced to the right of the tabled 16th green, 180 yards, while Mrs. Fraser pulled a long iron to the rough at the left. Both made splendid recoveries, and Miss Browne again sank from 12 feet for a par 3, but it was no use, for the Canadian got down from four feet, halving the hole and winning the match.

BILL M'KECHNIE WON PENNANT IN HIS THIRD YEAR

Pirate Manager Has Had a Long and Varied Baseball Career.

SAND LOT PLAYER.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 2. — (Associated Press).—Bill McKechnie, a third baseman of parts in his day and a native of Pittsburgh, has attained a National League pennant after approximately three seasons as a manager.

McKechnie is a product of the sandlots and a much travelled ball player. His life has been entangled with several of baseball's squabbles. Early life found him playing third for the Butler and Washington teams in his home State, and in 1907 he was purchased by the Pirates, making his first appearance in the majors at about the time Heinie Zimmerman cropped up at second base for the Chicago Cubs. Babe Adams also made his bow that season.

In 1908 McKechnie was transferred to Canton, O., and a year later appeared with Wheeling where he played remarkably and was adjudged the best man at his position in the Central League. In 1910 he rejoined the Pirates and played very little, the same holding for 1911 when the presence of Jack Miller, Bobby Byrne and Hans Wagner prevented any aspirant from breaking into the infield.

St. Paul received him in 1912 and in 1913 the Braves drafted him. He played only one game in Boston and drifted to the New York Americans. Once again he went to St. Paul on Aug. 22, 1913, to play alongside a youthful shortstop who was destined to create records in the majors—Everett Scott, of the Red Sox and Yankees, and now with the team that will fight McKechnie's band in the World's Series, the Senators.

The next year the present Pirate manager was among several who jumped to the Federal League. He proved to be one of the organization's greatest infielders with Indianapolis. That year he batted .305. In 1915 the team was transferred to Newark and McKechnie succeeded Bill Phillips as manager and won the pennant.

Another season saw the collapse of the Federals and for a time McKechnie was out of work. He finally went to the Giants in a settlement which Harry Sinclair handled. In New York he played brilliantly, but the Giants lost eight straight battles, only to swing through the West for the first time and capture every game, with the mauling bat of their third baseman working overtime.

Returning to the Polo Grounds McKechnie was the hero of New York, only to be traded to Cincinnati two days later along with Christy Mathewson and Eddie Roush for Charley Herzog and Wade Killifer. At Cincinnati he alternated with Heinie Groh until he suffered a broken hand in the second game of the 1917 season, and was out of play for almost the entire schedule.

Hugo Bezdek, now Penn State athletic director, but at that time the Pirate manager, obtained him in 1918 and McKechnie participated in every game. He left baseball in 1919 to enter business. The call of the diamond was too strong and he was back in uniform in 1920, the year that Harold (Pie) Traynor appeared on the Pirate squad. Traynor came fast and McKechnie was sent to St. Paul the next year, to be called in 1922 as coach and assistant manager to George Gibson, recently named manager of the Cubs. He succeeded Gibson as Pittsburg manager on June 30 of that season and has remained in control since.

Three times before this season the Pirates, under McKechnie, have been pennant threats, but no more. Each season they have faltered in the stretch, usually in tackling the main rivals, but this year it has been a different story. McKechnie, with Fred Clarke as his advisor, has kept the Pirates to the fore and when the crucial test came with the champion Giants not long ago, the Pittsburghers came through triumphantly.

Hornsby Will Equal Record If He Keeps Up .400 Hitting

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Rogers Hornsby will equal a major league record of long standing if he keeps up his present .400 hitting pace for the last few games of the season.

By doing that the great Cardinal manager will equal the mark of hitting .400 or better for three seasons, first established by Jesse Burkett of the old Cleveland Nationals in 1895, 1896 and 1899 and duplicated by Ty Cobb in 1911, 1912 and 1922.

Hornsby now has a mark of .403 and there is little likelihood of his falling below that in the short space remaining before the close of the season.

BABE ADAMS, PITTSBURG STAR, ON TEAM IN LAST WORLD SERIES

Won Three Games From Detroit in Series of 1909.

IS NOW 43

Old Pitcher Has Had His Ups and Downs in Baseball.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2.—(Associated Press).—Sixteen years ago, on a cold October day, there came into everlasting baseball fame a bulky Missouri ploughman, for the moment one of the great moundmen of the day—Charles (Babe) Adams.

Detroit had won the American League pennant that year, 1909, and Pittsburgh the National, but the Pirates' pitching staff had crumpled at the last—with one exception. Adams, a first year man, had won two games and stood on the mound at Detroit in the final struggle, facing another famous right-hander of that day—the late "Wild Bill" Donovan, killed in the Twentieth Century Limited wreck while on his way to attend the baseball league meetings in 1923.

With Detroit was the great Tyrus Raymond Cobb of Georgia, still great after 20 years; the powerful Sam Crawford and a string of other dangerous batsmen. But Adams carried the series and the world's championship to Pittsburgh by permitting only six hits, materially aided by bow-legged, fighting Hans Wagner, who seemed to be everywhere at once. Pittsburgh scored eight runs for a decisive conquest in this seventh and final game.

Today Babe Adams, now 43 years old, stands ready to pitch his triumph in world's series combat and the sentiment of the Pirate fans very likely will draw him into action in at least one of the games. His arm has not the stamina of old, but his courage and skill remain.

Babe has had a notable career. Born in Tipton, Ind., in 1882, he went with his father to Mt. Moriah, Mo., in early life. His father was a tiller of the soil, and so was Babe until his work as pitcher for his home-town Haymakers came to notice. The Parsons team of the Missouri Valley League picked him up in 1905 and he won 30 out of 40 games, enough to attract the attention of the St. Louis Cardinals. After spending half of the season on a St. Louis bench, he was sent to Louisville and thence to Denver. In the Colorado capital he became a hero, with 38 victories out of 50 games, and Pittsburgh snatched him away for a short trial in 1908. Then again he went to Louisville and pitched so well that he came back to the Pirates to stay.

After his remarkable work in the world's series of 1909, Adams remained for a long time in Pittsburgh, but finally failed in 1917 and departed for the lower leagues. But he pitched remarkable ball for Hutchinson of the Western and Kansas City offered him an opportunity. It was the road back to fame, a road few major leaguers have travelled. The veteran conquered Columbus twice in the season of 1918, allowing one hit each time, to show he was back in form.

The latter part of the season saw him return to the Pirate fold and remain there. In his career in the majors he has pitched in 2,476 innings, equal to 275 full games. This season he has participated in the credit for a dozen contests, winning as many as he has lost.

Tex Rickard Might Start Legal Fight

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Legal action will be started against Jack Dempsey by Tex Rickard, if the heavyweight champion attempts to fight Harry Wills for any other promoter.

Rickard is awaiting the return from the West of Paddy Mullins, Wills 'manager, to get the background of the signing of articles yesterday for a Dempsey-Wills fight next September.

"I have a two-way agreement with Dempsey to fight for me," Rickard said. "I have Dempsey's verbal promise and several telegrams, and I have an agreement that Jack Kearns signed as his manager.

"Dempsey can't double-cross me, and I'm surprised that he is trying to pull off anything like that. I put him in the way of making all the big money he ever made in the ring, but I guess that no one should be surprised at anything that happens in this fight business."

Rickard said that he had advanced a considerable sum as a binder when Kearns signed the agreement, and that he felt sure he could recover that amount in court and additional sum representing the profit he could have made on the fight.

JOHN RAWLINGS TO VIEW SERIES FROM THE STAND

IS A VETERAN

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 2.—(Associated Press).—Johnny Rawlings, one of his legs broken in his never ending efforts to carry his team to the front, will view the coming World Series' battles from the grandstand.

The Pirates owe much to the little second baseman who arose to great heights in the crucial series in New York which saw the Giants collapse for the first time in five years. His fielding was sensational, his batting timely, and well it might be, for it was on that same baseball field in New York, the Polo Grounds, that Johnny Rawlings was recognized as the greatest player of the World's Series of 1921.

Little Johnny was a member of the Giant forces then, even at that time a veteran whom the Braves had cast adrift. With Boston he failed to scintillate, for there was little opportunity for starring in such a club as the Braves produced after the halcyon days of 1914. But his time came and he took full advantage of it. His bat and fielding were big factors in the first Giant victory over the Yankees.

Rawlings might well be termed a money player, for it has been in the crucial moments that he has risen to his best. He will be missed when the Pirates go into the World's Series, although Eddie Moore, now scheduled for the position, is a capable fielder and heavy hitter.

Johnny was injured at Forbes Field while sliding in a base, only a few weeks ago. In the morning he had been at the Oakmont Country Club, a fan himself before the golf prowess of the national amateur champion, Bobby Jones.

Rawlings obtained his degree in law at Leland Stanford University before entering professional baseball. He was born in Bloomfield, Iowa, in 1892, but makes his home in California.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher." says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The head has a very definite control of the shoulder action in the golf swing, which is another reason why the golfer should learn to preserve his sense of balance with his head. When the stooped position is assumed in the address the center of gravity, or the swing center, would be, let us say, at a point at the base of the neck midway between the shoulders. In the backward and forward swings the shoulders rotate with this point as the center. Because of the stooped position the shoulders have an oblique plane the same as the clubhead in its path—that is, the arc described in their turning is tilted between horizontal and perpendicular. The shoulder plane differs from the plane of the clubhead, but the player need not be concerned with this. If the head moves up or down the action of the shoulders in relation to the swing centre is of course changed. Compare this with swinging a stone on the end of a string. Move the head up or down, and you know how the course of the flying stone changes.

RUGBY SQUADS ARE BOOTING PIGSKIN

Light Running and Catching Engages the P.C.I. O.R.F.U.

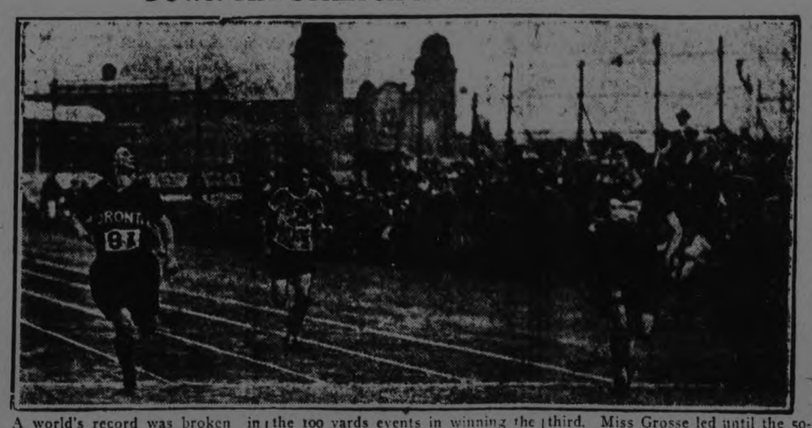
Both the local Rugby squads are practising almost daily to get in shape for their coming games. The P.C.I. squad was out in full uniform immediately after school on the Oval on Monday, Tuesday and yesterday. The Junior O.R.F.U. team have had practices on Central Park every evening except Wednesday.

Coach Browne has an eager bunch of boys who are training faithfully. So far the coach has been drilling the boys in tackling and running with the ball. There have been few scrimmages. Some of the players are already going great guns, and the P.C.I. team of this year will be light but fast. Alden Bookhout was sending out some giant punts, and his kicking this year will likely be a feature of the garnet and grey games.

The O.R.F.U. are also busily practising the rudiments of the game. Max Sloane has gathered together a heavy squad, and has had as many as twenty-five out to practices. A practice has been called for tomorrow afternoon, and the P.C.I. coach will be in charge.

P.C.I. has been grouped with Oshawa H. S. and University of Toronto Schools. U.T.S. in the past was grouped with the Hamilton schools, and have usually trotted out a smart team. Oshawa is an old rival, and has never given P.C.I. much trouble.

DOWN THE STRETCH IN RECORD TIME



A world's record was broken in the athletic meet on Saturday. Fanny Rosenfeld, Pats A.C., established a new mark of 11 seconds flat for the 100 yards events in winning the final from Rosa Grosse, Toronto Ladies' A.C., the former record-holder, with Myrtle Cook a close third. Miss Grosse led until the 50-yard mark, but the winner forged ahead, and finished a foot ahead of Miss Grosse in one of the finest races seen here in some time.

MOST VALUABLE

Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Washington club, was selected as the most valuable player in the American League for the 1925 season by a small margin over Al Simmons, youthful star who has been shining in the outfield for the Athletics. Peckinpaugh, just finishing his fifteenth year as a major league shortstop, was given 45 points out of a possible 64, and Simmons received 41 points in the voting for the honor, which was awarded by a committee of one veteran baseball writer in each city of the American League.

TEN COLLEGIATE AND HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS IN MEET

P.C.I. Athletic Associations Plan Gala Sport Festival.

EIGHT MAJOR EVENTS.

Assembly Hall To Be Scene of Banquet For Visitors.

The Boys' Athletic Association and the Girls' Athletic Association of P.C.I. are planning a large Inter-Collegiate Field Day of sports to be held at Exhibition Park, Friday afternoon, October 7. Invitations have been sent to Lindsay C. I., Belleville C. I., Oshawa H. S., Cobourg C. I., Port Hope H. S., Campbellford H. S., Havelock H. S., Norwood H. S., Lakefield H. S. and Hastings H. S. It is expected that each of these ten schools will send a team of track athletes to compete.

There will be eight major events, including: Half-mile relay race, 100 yards dash, 220 yards dash, 880 yards run, 120 yards low hurdle race, running high jump, running broad jump and the pole vault. The winner in each event will count five points for his team; second, three points, and third one point.

The school winning the most points in this meet will be called the champions of Central Ontario, and Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of P.C.I., has promised to secure a cup as trophy.

The pupils of the local school plan to make this a real gala day of sports, the biggest of its kind in this part of the province. After the events arrangements are going forward to entertain the visiting athletes to a banquet in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate, where a new bond of friendship will be sealed in songs and toasts.

Besides the big competition the local school will hold their usual annual list of events for girls and boys in senior and junior groups.

Mr. McKinnon, of the P.C.I. staff, is in charge of the local track team, and the boys practised at the Exhibition track yesterday afternoon.

DEMPSEY HAS NEW MANAGER

Raymond J. Cannon Selected as Guiding Genius For Bruiser.

HAS BEEN ATTORNEY.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Raymond J. Cannon, a Milwaukee attorney will be Jack Dempsey's business manager in the future, the Cleveland News said yesterday. Dempsey made this known here last night after he signed a contract with Cannon which calls for the latter to serve him as "legal and business adviser."

Cannon has been Dempsey's attorney for years. He succeeds Jack Kearns with whom the champion recently split. Kearns holds a contract to manage Dempsey until August 3, 1926. Both Cannon and Dempsey contens, however, this contract was broken by Kearns and therefore no longer legally exists.

WINGED WHEELERS AND M'GILL PREPARE TEAMS FOR THE FRAY

Exhibition Engagement With Queen's Showed Weaknesses and Timidity.

SHAUGHNESSY BUSY

Freshmen Getting Individual Attention to Hasten Development.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1 (Canadian Press).—Chasing loose balls around the gridiron will form one of the most important departments of the final training the Montreal interprovincial rugby squad will receive this week prior to their opening the Big Four season at Ottawa on Saturday.

It did not take Coach Nicholson long to pick the main faults of the Winged Wheel after watching his team in action against Queen's in the exhibition game here last week-end. Sloppy handling of the ball on occasion and failure to recover loose balls spelt defeat for the home combination. Some of the slips in catching could be excused a bit on account of the direct sun rays shining on the field, but there was little to be condoned in the rather timid manner in which the Wheelers went after the ball when it went astray from one cause or another.

The Montreal team will be handicapped by the loss of Bert Adams, who is out with a dislocated elbow. Adams was the first string relief man carried by Coach Nicholson for front line duty. He could fill in equally well at inside or middle and his loss takes from the squad the one experienced line plunger on the sub list.

While Montreal are putting the finishing touches to their pre-season training schedule this week, up at the Stadium, Coach Frank Shaughnessy is beginning to stiffen the drill of the McGill intercollegiate team candidates. With the enrolment of the students practically completed, the Red and White squad has now been brought to about its full strength, though there are one or two players who may be among the late arrivals.

This afternoon Shaughnessy had a squad of some fifty candidates out, the dozen odd new men being freshmen of unknown ability who will be given every chance to come along under the direction of Dr. "Bones" Little, who is assisting Shaughnessy in coaching the team. Among the newcomers to the camp over the week-end was Flynn, the former Colby halfback. He is not yet conversant with signals and so far has been kept to individual practising.

Shaughnessy will start more serious work today. Eighteen of the more experienced men whose capabilities are known to the coaches, have been named to go into training quarters at the Stadium field house. To this group will be added others as the coaches select the likely candidates from the more untried players comprising the balance of the squad. Those selected for the training table from last year's team are: Eddie Hanna, Joe Cameron, Herbie Murphy, Hammie Boucher, Art Manson, Captain Philpott, Ney Gordon, Gordie Hughes, Blair Jack Nickles, Boyd Millen and Spears, Dessy Walsh, Dick Woodruff and Les Parsons, line players of two seasons ago, are also on the list, while the Freshmen include Ralph St. Germain, Jerry Altimas and Sullivan.

SENATORS TAPER WITH LIGHT WORK

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Tapering off in their preparation for the opening Big Four rugby game here with M.A.A.A. on Saturday, Ottawa Senators were content with a light workout yesterday afternoon. The greater part of the hour and a half was given over to signal drill and Coach McCan raced the team through their formations.

Jerry Ault turned his ankle in the workout and was forced to drop out of the practice, but it is not expected that the wrench he sustained will keep him out of Saturday's game. The Senators are well drilled, well-conditioned and are counting on scoring a victory over the Winged Wheelers, provided that nothing unforseen happens in the meantime. Speculation is still rife as to the personnel of the team. The same big squad that has featured the workouts to date was again on hand this afternoon. Some of the positions have been decided on, but there are others very much undecided and a host of candidates trying for them. Monohan snapped through the signal calls this afternoon in good style and it is more than likely that the former Brockville intermediate star will be on the starting dozen. Jerry Timmis eased up today with a slight cold but the remainder of the crew are fit and ready for the opening whistle.

HONESTY NOT YET EXTINCT IN CITY

Mrs. Joseph Dean has received the following letter, which illustrates that honesty is a virtue that has not yet died out, no matter how pessimistic some people may be about the sad state of the world as compared with the good old days:

Enclosed please find one dollar.

Buying some candy one night some time ago I thought I received one dollar too much change. It may have been, however, in another candy store, as I was buying some in two or three different stores.

It does not belong to me so I am enclosing it to you. This was my first opportunity to return it.

Yours truly,
"One Who Likes To Be Honest."

OBITUARY.

JAMES PAXMAN
Mr. George Paxman received word last evening that his youngest brother, Mr. James Paxman, formerly of Clinton, Ont., had passed away yesterday at Royal Oak, Mich., where he had been living for the past year. The deceased had visited Peterboro frequently, and had made many friends here, who will be grieved to learn of his demise. In addition to Mr. George Paxman of this city, there are left to mourn his loss two other brothers, Daniel in Detroit, and John in Vancouver; and four sisters, two living in London, Ont., and two in Parkhill.
The funeral will take place under Masonic auspices at Clinton tomorrow.

ROBERT H. ELLIOTT
The death took place in Toronto today of Robert H. Elliott, for some years a resident of Peterborough. While here the late Mr. Elliott was in the employ of the Robert Fair Company, Limited, and for the past eight years has been in business for himself in Toronto, representing a French firm.
The deceased had been ill for a period of seven months, and while his death was not altogether unexpected, it is a shock to many of his old friends in the city, and particularly those whom he met in business, and in connection with his work through the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's Church, where he was a very valued member.

LABOR PARTY

Arthur Henderson's book on the party says that its intentions is to create a national democratic party open to every worker by hand or brain. It commands about one-third of the vote in British general elections.

The Communist party in Britain, said the speaker, seems to have four aims. These are to force their way into the Labor party, to submit Britain to the rule of Moscow, to prevent constitutional reform, and to start a Communist uprising in Britain. From the pronunciations of such leaders as Ramsay MacDonald and Philip Snowden, Professor Jones concluded the sanity of the British working man can be trusted to prevent an armed Communist revolution in Britain, as they prefer ballots to bullets as a more sensible way of getting what they want.

The thanks of the club were conveyed to Professor Jones by I. P. MacNabb. President Charlie Cook occupied the chair.

MILLBROOK PERSONALS

MILLBROOK, Oct. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. John Spence, and daughter, Elsie, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hubbeard motored to Lindsay last week and attended the fall fair.

Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Miss Margaret and Master Arthur Howard, motored to Whitby on Monday, and were guests of friends in that town, Mr. Howard having been pastor of the former Methodist church there for three years before coming to Millbrook. Mr. Howard and Mr. H. W. Johnston were at Pickering, and at Welcome this week attending business meetings in connection with the United church, going from Whitby to Pickering on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, and Miss Gertrude Gray, motored to Toronto recently, the latter making a business trip in connection with the purchase of further supplies for the millinery store she has opened at Orono this season.

Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Miss Mamie Collins, Miss Etta and Mr. A. A. Needler motored to Lindsay on Tuesday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. McClennan, and Miss Helena Needler, for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Duncan, and Miss Gertrude Gray, of Orono, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray on Sunday.

Born: In Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital, on Tuesday, September 29, 1925, to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Aiken, a daughter.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

At E. A. Peck's committee rooms, last night, forty-five of the Conservative workers from north ward held an enthusiastic meeting completing plans for a thorough canvass of that of the city. On Tuesday evening about forty of Mr. Peck's supporters in Ashburham met with him at his home preparing for getting out the vote across the river. Last night, J. F. Strickland went to South Monaghan assisting in the organization of most southerly parts of the riding, and practically all parts of the constituency are mobilized for the campaign. Dalton Johnston, M. P. P., is looking after Otonabee with an array of workers behind him.

OFFICIAL TO LONDON EMIGRATION HEAD

OTTAWA, Sept. 29 (Canadian Press).—J. Bruce Walker, superintendent of United States Emigration for the Department of Immigration and Colonization, was felicitated by the entire staff at headquarters of the department last evening. He was presented with a gold-mounted umbrella and a travelling clock. The occasion was in the nature of a farewell party, as he leaves Ottawa on Thursday en route to London, England, where he will take over the duties of director of European emigration for Canada. The presentation was made in behalf of the officers of the department by W. J. Egan, deputy minister, who briefly reviewed Mr. Walker's long and useful service in the immigration service of Canada, and said that he knew that the new director for England would carry into that field of work, the ability, the enthusiasm, the loyalty and other qualifications that he had displayed as superintendent of United States emigration, as commissioner of immigration at Winnipeg, and as superintendent of emigration in the British Isles some years ago. Mr. Egan said that W. R. Little, who is at present director of European emigration for Canada, was sent over there by the department to re-organize the Canadian emigration machinery in Great Britain, Northern Ireland, the Irish Free State about 18 months ago and to carry out certain specific work. Mr. Little had carried out his assignment with complete success, and is now coming back to Canadian immigration headquarters to devote his ability to the office of Commissioner of Colonization.

QUEBEC SITUATION IS EMERGING FROM CONVENTION PREPARATION TO FORCEFUL CAMPAIGN ACTION

ENEMY TERRITORY.

Liberals Collect Their Cohorts to Repel the Oral Attack.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press). —About forty out of sixty-five seats in the Province of Quebec having their full quota of candidates in the forthcoming federal elections, and nominees for the one party or the other having been selected in the remainder, the political situation ha sgraduated from the stage of conventions to that of straight and vigorous campaigning. The week end will see an invasion of the Quebec district by Hon. E. L. Patenaude, former secretary of state and Provincial Conservative leader, who will 'carry the war into Africa," by holding meetings at St. Sauveur in Quebec East, the territory of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, and in other parts of the city. Henri Bourassa, the independent candidate for Labelle, will open his campaign in that division on Sunday and elaborate arrangements are being made to convey numbers of Mr. Bourassa's admirers from Montreal to his fighting ground.

When Mr. Patenaude travels to Quebec City, he will go by special train that will stop at various places en route and the Provincial leader will address gatherings at each of the halts. On Monday, Mr. Patenaude will speak at Beauce, the constituency that sent Senator, the Hon H. S. Beland, Minister of Health, to Parliament, in support of the candidate of Omer Langlois, who is opposing E. Lacroix.

The Liberal leaders will be no less active. The government's forces have been depleted by the withdrawal from the Quebec field for a time of Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, who is on his way to join the Prime Minister in his Western campaign, and this has increased the activities of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in charge of the government forces in the Montreal district, and of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice in the Quebec riding.

Hon. Mr .Cardin will speak in his own constituency of Richelieu, where he is being opposed by W. G. Morgan, on Sunday, being slated to address a public gathering at Sorel. He will be supported by Hon. Dr. Beland and Hon. Lucien Cannon, Solicitor General.

Theodule Rheaume, candidate opposing Hon. E. O. Patenaude in Jacques-Cartier will speak twice on Sunday in his own division, when, according to a news item in yesterday's "La Patrie," he will make important declarations respecting Mr. Patenaude and certain of his friends.

ABD-EL-KRIM,
The beleaguered Riffian leader, has suffered the greatest reverse since the initial move of the revolt was instituted.

STORM PLUNGES SOUTH ONTARIO INTO DARKNESS

For About 30 Minutes Motorists Had to Use Headlights.

FOUR FATALITIES.

Storm Crossed Michigan, Leaving Dead and Injured in Its Path.

WINDSOR, Oct. 3. —(Canadian Press).—A storm phenomena that plunged Detroit and other Michigan cities into the darkness of night for more than half an hour yesterday, cost four lives, resulted in probably fatal injury to two others and the less serious injury of ten more. A severe storm also swept across Southern Ontario.

Two section workers were killed and twelve others injured when the speeder and three trailers on which they were riding on the Wabash tracks near Milan, Mich., was struck by a Chicago-Detroit passenger train Darkness prevented the men seeing the approaching train. Two men met instant death at Lansing when struck by lightning.

Throughout Southern Ontario, the storm swept with great severity and for a period of about thirty minutes the darkness was so great that motorists were forced to switch on their headlights. The heavy rain resulted in the flooding of a great many cellars, but no damage of a very serious character has been reported, so far.

PROSPERITY WILL MOVE EASTWARD

Beatty Believes That Conditions in West Will Be Reflected.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Belief that the era of prosperity through which the West is advancing will find reflection in the East by Spring at least, was expressed by E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday, while in Toronto, on his return from a tour of first hand observation of conditions as they are to be found in British Columbia and the Prairie Provinces.

BIG PROHIBITION DRIVE STARTING

Movement Will Begin With Meeting in Manchester October 19.

LONG PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — The biggest prohibition campaign yet attempted in Great Britain is about to be launched after many months of secret preparation. The Daily Mail says the organizers of the movement will not begin by advocating outright prohibition, but local option. The keynote of the campaign will be an appeal to the women of the country.

The movement will be inaugurated in Manchester October 19, and meetings will be held afterward in other large cities. The speakers will include Mrs. David Lloyd George, wife of the former Premier; Philip Snowden, former Chancellor of the Exchequer; Lady Donald MacLean and Sir George Hunter.

"Casting For Bass the Other Day— What Do You Think—"

CENTRAL LAKE, Mich., Oct. 3.—Bird fishing had been added to Michigan's list of outdoor sports Thursday, following the catching of an eagle with a hook and line Wednesday by John Van Skiver, proprietor of a local hotel.

Van Skiver was casting for bass on Intermediate Lake, in Antrim County. As he made a cast an eagle with a wing spread of five feet four inches, flew directly into the path of his artificial bait, being securely hooked around the leg. After a considerable struggle Van Skiver brought the bird to the water and shot it.

FINAL REVISION OF VOTERS' LIST BEGINS OCT. 8TH

Morning, Afternoon and Evening Sessions Arranged By Judge Huycke.

THE LAST CHANCE.

The final revision of the voters' lists for the coming Federal election will be held by His Honor Judge Huycke in his chambers at the Court House on the six successive days, October 8th to 13th inclusive when the lists for the city will be closed absolutely.

His Honour will hold three sittings daily from 10.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.; from 2.30 to 4.30 in the afternoon and from 8 until 9 in the evening.

The evening sessions have been specially arranged by the Judge for the convenience of the working men of the city. They are not required of him according to his official instructions, but he felt that probably many men would be unable to attend the day sessions without loss of time and therefore in some personal assense. And because he has allotted them the evening sessions, Judge Huycke expects that the other electors will make their enquiries at his chambers at either the morning or afternoon sessions.

His Honour emphasizes the fact this will be the voter's last chance to make sure that his name is on the list. Copies of the first draft of the list as compiled by the registrars will be made available to the public, and it becomes a personal duty to examine them. Any name that has been omittted, that is not shown on this list should be referred to Judge Huycke as Revising Officer during the time he has appointed.

60 BOYS SAIL TO FARM HERE

OTHERS COMING.

LONDON, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Sixty boys will sail for Canada on October 9 and 10 on the liners Montcalm, Regina and Ausonia to take up farm training under the auspices of the Alberta Government at Vermilion, Alberta.

Many applications from other British boys who wish to migrate to Western Canada are now under consideration. These boys all have superior educations and have been brought up amid home surroundings. They anticipate being able to secure sufficient capital to obtain farms of their own when they have mastered the details of productive farming.

Two hundred families, representing 1,000 persons in all, have been approved for migrating to the Dominions under the Dominions Family Settlement scheme, but they will not sail until next year.

DISASTER NEARLY DUPLICATED

The above photograph show how the monster derrick, Century, nearly foundered, when she attempted to raise the Submarine S-51 on Monday. The salvage vessel dipped under water as her engines strained to pull the wreck from the sand in which she is embedded.

ADJIR SECTOR IS CLEAR OF RIFFS

Spanish Despatches Say That Tribesmen Have Retreated.

FRENCH TAKE HEART.

MADRID, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Apparently Spaniards have cleared the Ajdir sector of rebel tribesmen. The midnight official communication said there was nothing new to report in the zone of hostilities. The dispatches indicate that the tribesmen have retreated over a wide area.

French Efforts Redoubled.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Heartened by the news of the Spanish capture of Ajdir, the French are redoubling their efforts in preparing for their next moves, so that no time may be lost in following up the Spanish success on the French side.

HOTEL CHANGES.

A. T. Neal Discontinues the Management of Royal Hotel.

MARMORA, Oct. 3.—Mr. A. T. Neal is relinquishing the management of the Royal Hotel on Nov. 11th. On that date, Mr. T. E. Potts, who has been proprietor of the St. James Hotel for the past nine years, will take possession.

BIG ORDER FOR CANADIAN FLOUR

More Than 100,000 Barrels Shipped to Orient in Past Month.

GRAIN ON ORDER.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Orders for approximately eight million bushels of Canadian wheat have been placed by buyers connected with firms in the Orient, according to reports in grain circles here. These interests are also said to be in the market for large quantities of flour. It is estimated that more than 100,000 barrels of this commodity left Vancouver for the Orient during the past thirty days.

MUCH WANTED JUDGE.

T. H. Warrington Has Passed Upon Poultry From Coast to Coast.

The extensiveness of the demand for the services of J. H. Warrington, of Cornwall, as a judge of poultry is indicated by the fact that during September he travelled to the Pacific Coast and then turned east to the Atlantic. He first went to New Westminster, B.C., and, returning, came to the Peterboro Exhibition, then to Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, back to Colborne, and yesterday judged the exhibit at Tweed. His autumn work will wind up at Brockville.

DISPLAY OF HORSES FEATURE OF AGRICULTURAL FAIR AT TWEED

George Hooton, of Ida Judged All Horse Classes on Friday.

BIG ATTENDANCE.

TWEED, Oct. 3.—"An excellent display of horses, especially in the light classes," was the compliment which George Hooton of Ida paid to the exhibits in this department at the Tweed Fair yesterday, when he had completed his duties as judge and passed into the hands of R. McCrae and John Stevenson, who were in charge of this section of the exhibition.

Mr. Hooton is one of the judges appointed by the Ontario Government for the agricultural exhibitions, and is well known in the Peterboro district.

"The classes for horses were exceptionally well filled," he said, "and some of the large fairs in the fall might have copied the quality and the quantity of the horses I had to handle. If this was a sample of Hastings County's horses we have not much to fear yet from the efforts of the automobile on the breeding of good horseflesh in this part of the province."

Mr. Hooton was busy from 10 a.m. until after 5.30 in the afternoon, and, while he was particularly impressed with the carriage horses, he found the classes for agricultural draught horses also well filled with stock smartly turned out.

It was Saturday's day in many districts, and particularly in the town of Bancroft, and also the merry throng attended Tweed. George H. Hooton was left secretary of the directors and has completed from such discussion [illegible] Hornsby, Bellrock, [illegible] Tweed and [illegible] Bancroft [illegible] Tweed [illegible] Bancroft [illegible] Tweed [illegible] Bancroft [illegible] Tweed

CAMPBELLFORD FAIR ATTENDANCE SET NEW RECORD AND EXHIBITS AND EVENTS KEPT UP STANDARD

Merchants Took Space For Wares for the First Time.

HORSE RACES GOOD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 3. — The figures tell the story. Campbellford's fair held yesterday was the best on record for attendance and in every other way. The first count of the gate receipts placed the total at $1236, and when all the concessions are heard from it is likely that the funds of the Seymour Agricultural Society will be increased by the neat balance of $1500. All the special events materialized as announced and every department was well filled with high class exhibits. For the first time in the history of the fair three business men of the town took space in the main hall and had their wares on display. This is a feature which the directors have for years done everything in their power to encourage, the only obstacle being the lack of space, but it is likely that before the next Fair is held a special building for the benefit of business men will be erected.

In dairy cattle, light and heavy horses, and in poultry, this district always has been recognized as a leader, and the exhibits in all of these departments yesterday justified the claim. The poultry house is a large building and every available inch of space was taken. Departmental judges who have officiated at fairs all over the province said yesterday that at none of these had they seen finer light and heavy horses and dairy cattle than were in the various rings of Campbellford yesterday.

A foot race is something of a novelty at a Fall Fair but there was one on the hill here yesterday, the contest being the result of a challenge issued by Jack Ward of Peterboro to take on any sprinter in Campbellford for a 100-yard dash. Ward arrived on the noon train accompanied by Jack Marchen and both entered the race, the prize for which was an order on a store for $5 worth of goods as none of the runners cared to risk his amateur standing by accepting cash. Leo Bush was the runner chosen to uphold the honor of Campbellford. The race was held on the track in front of the grand stand, all three young men being in regulation running costume. William Fitzpatrick of town acted as starter. The three runners were bunched for about half the distance and then Ward took the lead and kept it to the wire, Marchen being second and Bush third. Two stop watchers caught the time at 11 seconds flat. Ward came to Campbellford with a reputation as a sprinter and this reputation he upheld. Both the Peterboro visitors will be remembered here as clean and gentlemanly athletes who would have accepted defeat as gracefully as they took their victory.

The Baby Show.

There were four entries in the baby show, for the $5 cash special offered by the Peterboro Examiner, $3 to the first, and $2 to the second finest baby not over 12 months old. The arduous task of judging the merits of the four infants was undertaken by Dr. W. F. Loucks. The first prize went to Evelyn, daughter of Mr and Mrs.C. Chessell of town and the second to Percy, the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Goodwin of Wooler.

The Speed Events.

There were four races on the programme and the following was the result of each:

Free For All.

Polly Stout, R. Elmhurst, Kaine 2 1 1 1
Viola Belle, R. Turbey Frankford 1 2 2 2
Roy Mack, Watson, Cobourg 3 3 3 3
Best time—2.21 1-4.

2.20 Race.

Belle Malone—Dr. Johnston, Port Hope 1 1 1
Rhoda Patch — McMillan, of Campbellcroft 2 2 2
Lillian Patch — Watson, of Cobourg 3 3 3
Best time—2.21¼.

2.30 Race.

Babe Direct — D. Elmhirst, Indian River 1 1 1
Butcher Girl—Stacey, Wooler. 3 2 2
Lulu Brooks—Vasseau, Trenton 2 3 3
Tim Alert—Wellman, Marmora 4 dr
Best time; 2.20¼.

When the horses were scoring for the first heat in the 2.20 race, Babe Direct undertook to give a fancy exhibition of broncho bucking, but her hobbles were against her, and she came as complete a cropper as was probably ever seen on a race track, A. Elmhirst, her driver, taking a high dive over her. It looked as if the mare was done for, but she was soon on her feet, and won the race without apparent effort in straight heats.

Hal Direct won the green race, with Jack Moore second and Nellie D, a trotter, third. This race was the best two in three and the horses went fast under the three-minute mark.

An Old-Timer.

Charles S. Gillespie watched every race with the interest which none but a veteran in the 'sport of kings' can feel. Thirty years ago, Mr. Gillespie built the track on which the events were held, from places furnished the late E. King Dodds, of Toronto. The circuit is exactly half a mile, measuring twelve feet out from the fence. Mr. Gillespie has guided many a race horse to victory on that track, one of the best he ever handled being Lady Alexandra, owned by D. Kerr. This mare was a pacer, going without hobbles, and had a mark of 2.14.

Special Race.

E. Dunn, of Wooler, was first; W. Dunk of the English Line was second, and Tom Snarr of Wellman's Corners third, in the race for driving horses, once around the track, for a special prize donated by H. C. Coveney.

In the Horse Ring.

Horses drew a large portion of the crowd around the judging ring. The keen competition and high quality of the entrants keeping up interest to the end. Owen Henry with a clean cut little chestnut gelding carried off first for single driver under 13 1-2 hands, and first for saddle horse. William J. Ross won four firsts in the heavy draught class, and William Cowan of Codrington was again much in evidence with his fine string of Percherons, carrying off a number of firsts.

Ayrshires Take the Lead.

In the showing of cattle, Ayrshires topped the list with nearly one hundred entrants; A. Hume & Son, Menie; F. M. Rutherford, Bonar Law; E. A. McCook, Thomas Kerr of Seymour, and Fred Hawes of Rawdon being the chief exhibitors. Hume was awarded firsts on 2-year-old bull, 3-year-old dry cow; 3-year-old milch cow, 2-year-old dry cow; 2-year-old milch cow, senior yearling heifer and senior herd. Hawes carried off first prizes on junior herd, junior yearling bull, junior yearling heifer, and senior calf.

F. M. Rutherford first on aged bull with Robinhood of Springbank; first senior bull calf, junior heifer calf and milch cow any age.

Garnet Kerr was the chief exhibitor of Jerseys, winning all the first ribbons with the exception of senior heifer calf and junior bull, which went to Wesley Brady of town.

A. F. Ward and Sons of Dartford showed a fine string of Holsteins and pulled down an even dozen red tickets; W. A. Wynn also showed Holsteins and grades.

The sheep classes were larger than usual. The exhibitors being George Hendy, Bert Stimson and Fred Hendy of Seymour; J. C. Honey, Dartford; C. H. Curtis, Warkworth, and Dr. Alyea, Colborne.

The hog classes was fairly well filled. The poultry building was a busy place all day, and while the entries of poultry were not up to last year's record, the water fowl exceeded last year's showing and the quality of most of the entrants would do credit to a much larger exhibition. There was also a sprinkling of guinea fowl, pouter pigeons and Angora rabbits, and the latter were the least a little bunch of fluffy fur, who occupied a cage at the poultry. Perhaps the showing was small to start something in the line of a dog show for future fairs. Such a feature would create interest for the fellow whose chief hobby is dogs.

The Main Hall.

The show of fancy work in the Rochdale Building has never been equalled in town before. All kinds of crocheting, tatting, needlework, embroidery, knitting, hand paintings and drawings, to say nothing about the ware exhibited by merchants, rugs, were displayed upstairs.

Downstairs was the home of good things to eat, where pies, fruits, cakes, canning and preserving was much in evidence on the display. Miss Bolt had charge of the appetizing booth and everything that could appeal to the appetite was there beautifully.

DISTRICT I.O.D.E. MET IN NORWOOD

Dominion President Gave an Interesting Address to the Ladies.

REPORTS RECEIVED

NORWOOD, Oct. 3.—The eighth annual rally of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire for this district was held on Thursday in the Foresters' Hall, Norwood. The first session began at 10.30 a.m. Mrs. B. W. Squire, Regent of the 40th Northumberland Chapter, Norwood, presided. The meeting was opened with the I.O.D.E. prayer. Mrs. McLaren of Peterboro, secretary for the district, read the report of the last year's rally, held at Port Hope. This report was received and adopted. Telegrams from Mrs. Burkholder, Provincial President, and Mrs. Jackson of the Toronto Muncipal Chapter, were received and read, expressing their regret at not being able to be present and wishing the meeting all success. Reports were then read from the different chapters, the first being the 57th Regiment Chapter, Peterboro, followed by the Peter Robinson Chapter, and the Major Bennett Chapter also of Peterboro. These all told of ways and means taken to raise money, and the use made of it when raised. All have helped in the National War Memorial scheme of the Order, and also along secondary education lines besides helping the blind, the navy, the Well Babies' Clinic, and the Peterboro Health Association. The Peter Robinson Chapter has also adopted an Armenian boy at the Home in Georgetown, and have given him their name Peter Robinson. Warkworth Chapter was reported as having disbanded. The report of the Harry Lauder Chapter, Havelock, was given by Mrs. W. Vance, and showed this Chapter in a very flourishing condition, and they intend to continue and do the best they can.

Mrs. Jno. Weir gave the report of the 40th Northumberland Chapter, Norwood. This Chapter reported the work done in the past year and also of the work undertaken for the coming year, which is to make it possible for the daughter of one of their deceased soldiers to attend Normal School by financing the same.

Campbellford Chapter reported working for their local monument. They felt humiliated to think they had not as yet a memorial.

The report of the Hastings Chapter was given by Mrs. Walter Powlds, who spoke of the difficulties the smaller Chapters had to cope with.

Madoc was not represented, but a report had been sent in and was read by Mrs. McLaren. This Chapter emphasized visiting the sick and sending flowers, etc., to the same. The report of the Argyle Chapter, Belleville, was the last given, and they, too, were shown to be doing a splendid work.

The meeting then discussed the advisability of continuing the District Rallies, and after some deliberation, it was unanimously decided to continue holding them.

An invitation was extended and accepted to hold the 1926 Rally in Peterboro, the date to be fixed by the Chapters of that city.

The meeting then adjourned and the ladies repaired to the dining room of the United Church, where hot dinner was served to the visitors by the members of the local Chapter.

The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock. Mrs. B. W. Squire gave an address of welcome, and introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Church of Toronto, the National President.

Miss Church began a very interesting address by assuring the ladies that she was glad to be at the meeting, but sorry that the Provincial President and the President of the Toronto Municipal Chapter were unable to be present. She was very much in favor of the district meetings, as the personal touch is vital to success of organizations. She thought it was advisable to name Chapters after some worthy outstanding persons, as it is an incentive to live up to a standard.

Woman's work was emphasized by the speaker and a number of different women's organizations were mentioned as doing a wonderful work. She said that the men did not seem to give the women credit for what they do. The motto of the Order, "Unity, Loyalty and Sacrifice" was quoted and it was suggested to endeavor to keep the Chapters together because each is a link in a chain and a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. Therefore, if one Chapter demands it make the chain weaker.

At this juncture, Mr. J. Sloan, Wm. rendered a solo, entitled "Friends of Yesterday" followed by an encore "Keep on Hoping".

Mrs. W. Yeo of Havelock gave a short address appreciating some of the words of the former solo, "Keep on Hoping" and "You'll Get There in the Morning."

Miss Una Duffield then favored the meeting with a solo, entitled [illegible] of plants, photographs and [illegible].

McIntosh's booth was a drawing card for the ladies, the latest in coats and dresses were shown to the [illegible].

Tottenham and Fowler, also of Auburn, had a display of furniture and stoves.

Don't permit rubbish to accumulate in basements, workshops or anywhere about the premises. Clean property seldom burns.

Don't burn trash, brush or rubbish near buildings, fences or other property, nor permit children to do so.

Don't keep ashes in wooden boxes or deposit them against wooden buildings or partitions. Keep in non-combustible receptacles.

Don't fail to place metal protection under all stoves and protect woodwork where stoves or furnaces are close to walls.

Don't neglect to have all flues cleaned, examined and repaired at least once each year.

Don't fail to provide screens for open fireplaces.

Don't use gasoline or benzine to cleanse clothing near an open flame, light or fire. Use non-flammable cleaner.

Don't use kerosene, benzine or naphtha in lighting fires or to quicken a slow fire.

Don't thaw frozen pipes by applying a torch or open flame of any kind. Wrap pipes loosely with cloths and pour on hot water, or send for a plumber.

Don't fail to remember that there is always danger in the discarded cigarette and cigar stub.

FROM HON. G. N. GORDON.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir.—I have sent the following letter to Mr. J. F. Lillicrap, Lakefield, Ont., replying to a letter published in The Examiner:

Trent Canal.

I beg to acknowledge your favor of the 27th inst. The proposed work at Young's Point Lock has been investigated by engineers, and they report that it is necessary.

The preservation of the level of the waters in the Trent Canal is a very important factor in the industrial life of both Lakefield and the City of Peterborough.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario pays rental for all the water it uses, so that the expenditures are, in part, paid for by the rental from the Ontario Commission.

The Quaker Oats was influenced considerably in building at Peterborough, the largest flour mill in the British Empire, in the hope that the Canal might be completed at an early date to permit that company to transport its grain from Georgian Bay to its plant here. I have not lost faith in the plan of developing the Trent Canal as a means of transportation.

In addition to that it is a most important source of power, and unless there is a surplus of power close to Peterborough and Lakefield, we cannot expect any new factories to come to the City or to Lakefield.

I thank you for drawing this matter to my attention, but I have been firmly convinced that this work is necessary.

Yours faithfully
(Signed) G. N. Gordon.

A THOUGHT.

PORCUPINE QUILLS, FEATHERS AND HOT TAR.

Malice never tries to wound a stranger. It always selects an acquaintance or picks on a personal friend.

The fly would be a more flea pest if it were to run down all the suspicions and suspicions uttered against us.

You remember the old story about the man who was ordered to do penance for slandering an innocent friend? It seems that the scandal-monger was called to account by the priest, and the good Father directed him to drop a feather in every front yard along the village street.

When the scandalmonger returned to the priest and reported his penance performed, he was then told to go out and collect up all the feathers.

The gossip protested that this would be impossible, adding: "Most of the feathers have blown away."

"Right," replied the Priest. "No matter how hard you try, you can never undo the harm that you have so thoughtlessly scattered."

CANADIAN GRAIN

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was again very quiet, the demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba grades of wheat being still of a very indifferent character and in consequence the volume of business was small. There was a steady enquiry for oats and as the prices bid for No. 1 and No. 2 feed grades were in line with some exporters' views, sales of a few loads were made. Cables received from London stated that sales of No. 1 Northern wheat were made in that market at 48s. 7 1-2d per quarter for October shipment.

There was no improvement in the movement of cash grain in the local market owing to the fact that the demand from all sources was limited, but as the offerings were none too large the tone of the market remained steady and prices were unchanged. Car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats were quoted at 50 1-2; No. 3 white at 48 1-2 to 49 cents, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47 cents per bushel, ex-store.

There was no important change in the condition of the spring wheat flour market, the undertone being easy, but no change in prices were announced. A fair export and domestic trade was transacted in this direction. The Winter wheat flour market was quiet but steady.

The market for millfeed was steady under a good demand. There was little business done in standard grades of rolled oats, but prices were firm.

The quality of new crop hay is turning out to be very disappointing to dealers, as the bulk of it is grading No. 3 and under and in consequence the volume of business with outside sources is checked to some extent, as they only want top grades. The tone of the market remains steady with car lots of good No. 2 Timothy selling at $14 per ton; clover mixed hay at $12 per ton, and No. 3 timothy hay at $10 to $10.50 per ton, ex-track.

There was no actual change in the local egg situation, prices for all grades being fully maintained with a fair amount of business passing in a wholesale jobbing way and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 2,740 cases, as compared with 1,382 for the same day last week, and 3,172 for the corresponding day a year ago.

A fair trade continues to be done in potatoes owing to the fact that supplies coming forward are just about sufficient to meet the daily requirement. The tone of the market was firm and prices were unchanged with sales of New Brunswick Cobblers at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs., and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

The receipts of butter yesterday were 3,531 packages, as compared with 3,532 for the same day last week, and 9,133 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was some demand from foreign buyers for pasteurized creamery butter and it was reported that sales of odd lots were made at 220s. per cwt., which was equivalent to 51c per lb., and cables received from Liverpool and Glasgow stated that sales of Canadian butter were made in these markets at 218s. per cwt. There was no important change in the condition of the local market, prices being steady but the volume of business on the whole was small.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 8,793 boxes, as against 9,056 for the same day last week, and 6,295 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade was the renewed strength that developed in the market owing to the increased demand from English importers at advanced prices, and sales of Western No. 1 white and colored were made at 120s. per cwt., which was equivalent to 25c per lb. A fair volume of business was done and the market closed 1-2c per lb. higher.

CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press)—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Ontario cheese held here yesterday, there were 1,146 boxes offered, of which 395 boxes No. 1 colored sold at 24 3-4c per lb., which price was 13-16c per lb. higher than a week ago, and 24 11-16c per lb. was bid for 551 boxes No. 1 white with 24 3-4c per lb asked.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.83 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.83 7-8.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Discrediting of reports that Russia has been a big purchaser of Canadian wheat led to a decline in wheat values yesterday, after an early advance. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent lower, new style, December $1.35 to $1.35 1-4, and May $1.36 1-2 to $1.36 3-4, with corn 1-4 to 1-2 cent up; oats unchanged and provisions unchange to 15 cents down.

Unexpected strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool did much to give temporary countenance to advices about the Russian wheat trade, advices which for once had a tendency to lift prices. Liverpool reports said arrivals of Russian wheat were of poor quality, and that the vessel chartering in Russia had been suspended. The effect of the Liverpool news was greatly heightened here by Winnipeg reports that the Soviet State of Chita in Siberia had placed orders of 10,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, and that other large quantities of Canadian wheat and flour had been bought for the Orient.

Heavy selling, however, became the rule instead of active buying in the Chicago wheat market when, toward the end of the day, the talk about Russian buying in Canada was apparently shown to be baseless. Canadian as well as United States exporters characterized the reports of such buying as buncombe. Meanwhile, word that dry weather prevailed in Australia, and that Australian wheat was being taken for India, failed to act as much of an offset for the weakness of the wheat market here as the day drew to a close. Lowest prices reached were made in the last hour, with early buyers trying to unload.

Corn and oats were firmer than wheat, helped by the fact that the corn receipts are light, and that the country is offering no corn to speak of.

Provisions were weakened by a further break in hog values, making the total fall of the hog market $1 for the last three days.

STORM PHENOM. COST FOUR LIVES

LIGHTNING KILLED 2.

DETROIT, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—A storm phenomenon that plunged Detroit and other Michigan cities into the darkness of night for more than half an hour yesterday cost four lives, resulted in the probable fatal injury of two others and the less serious injury of ten more.

Two section workers were killed and twelve others injured when the velocipede and three trailers on which they were riding on the Wabash tracks near Milan, Mich., was struck by a Chicago to Detroit passenger train. Darkness prevented the men seeing the approaching train. Two men met instant death at Lansing when struck by lightning.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Everything is overshadowed by the news of the capture by the Spanish forces of Ajdir, headquarters of the rebellious Moors, which is regarded as the greatest reverse yet suffered by the insurgent chieftain, Abd-El-Krim, and as marking the beginning of the end for him.

Although it was expected for the last forty-eight hours, the event nonetheless made the deepest impression, which was augmented by news from reliable native sources that the Djebala tribes, the backbone of Abd-El-Krim's coalition, intend to withdraw from the struggle. This, it was declared at French headquarters, foreshadows the complete breaking up of the Riffian forces.

Other tribes, it was pointed out, are drawing away more and more from Abd-El-Krim, notably the Beni-Gorfet tribesmen, in the Spanish zone, and the Metalsa and Guezuaia, in the French sector.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN NOW FIND RELIEF

By Driving the Poisonous Acid From the System.

Rheumatism attacks people when the blood is thin and watery, or charged with impurities, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Cold, wet weather or sharp winds may start the pains, but the cause is rooted in the blood and to get relief it must be treated through the blood. As a blood builder and nerve tonic Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed, and for that reason do not fail to give relief to rheumatic sufferers when given a fair trial. Among the rheumatic sufferers who have proved the great value of this medicine is Mrs. Simeon J. Tatton, Indian Head, Sask., who says:—"For over two years I was an intense sufferer from rheumatism and until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills no treatment that I took helped me any. The trouble grew so bad that I could not move around the house without help, and finally I had to give up and go to bed. Words can not tell how much I suffered, and I could not bear to have anyone come near me. Finally one of my neighbors strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to do so. In the course of a few weeks I could feel an improvement, and I was able to get up. I kept on taking the pills until all traces of the trouble were gone, and I could again do my housework, feeling like a new person. Three years have passed since that and there has never been the slightest return of the trouble, so that I feel safe in saying that the relief brought by this medicine is permanent."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COMMISSION IS AUDIENCE FOR MILLERS' PLEA

C.N.R. Counsel Submits Milling Industry is Not Suffering Any.

EXPORT HAS RISEN.

Canada Exported 4 1-4 Million Bushel of Flour to Gt. Britain.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Hearing was concluded yesterday afternoon in the application before the Railway Commission of Ontario Millers for a reduction of railway rates on flour and grain to meet American competition. In answer to the argument of the millers interests that the rate of 18 1-2 cents per cwt. from Port Colborne to New York was unfair and should be reduced to 16 1-2 cents on 70 per cent. of the Chicago to New York rate, Frank Watson, K. C., counsel for the C.N.R. maintained that the Canadian Milling industry was not suffering under the existing rates.

Mr. Watson pointed out that the export of flour by Canadian Mills had risen from 6,886,000 barrels in 1920 to 12,000,000 barrels in the last named year the United States exports of flour to the United Kingdom were only 1,451,000 barrels, while Canada exported 4,252,000 barrels to that country in the same year.

Regarding the application for a reduction of the Port Colborne to New York rate, Mr. Watson feared that it would lead to a reduction in the rate to Canadian Ports, which was already low. Over the Canadian National this 18 1-2 cent rate covered over 1,200 miles and any reduction would reduce earnings unwarrantedly.

E. P. Flintoft, K. C., for the C. P. R., objected that a reduction in the Port Colborne to New York rate would throw the present flour rate out of range. All other rates would have to be changed, as the present rates fixed in 1924 were designed to put all the Lake and Bay milling points on an equality. Moreover, the Canadian commission could not control the American roads and it would be impossible to enforce the reduction unless the United States would willingly accept their share of the rate. Mr. Flintoft handed in to the board a statement showing the grain and flour rates to Canadian and United States ports. This showed that on a mileage basis the rate on flour from Goderich, for example was on each 100 pounds only decimal 70 cents to Montreal, decimal 95 cents to Quebec, decimal 39 cents to St. John, decimal 45 cents to Boston and decimal 46 cents to New York.

In Japan, when a police officer takes a man into custody, he ties a bit of string around the arrested man's wrist, and then leads him by the loose end of the frail fetter to the police station. So strong is the Japanese respect for the law, that the piece of string holds the prisoner as securely as though he were manacled by steel.

Nobody loses anything by politeness, but many people seem afraid to risk it.

When a man flatters himself that he understands a woman, he flatters himself.

WHEAT DECLINE QUITE NATURAL

APPROACH PARITY.

WINNIPEG, October 3. — Canadian Press. — "Considering world wheat conditions I see nothing unnatural in the recent decline in Winnipeg prices of wheat futures," D. L. Smith, Sales Manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd., the selling agency for three Prairie Provinces, declared yesterday.

The decline of the October future from the closing price on August 28 to the close on October 1 was 21 3-8 cents.

He sees in this decline only an approach of Canadian prices to a parity with prices asked by other exporting countries on the world's market.

When the prospective wheat crop for Western Canada was estimated at 320,000,000 earlier in the season, quotations then prevailing seemed justified," he continued.

Decline is Logical.

"Now that a crop of 380,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels seems assured, the decline witnessed during the last month appears quite logical, and is the result of any artificial market manipulation.

GIRL PATRIOT IN COMATOSE STATE

The Prisoner's Pitiful Plight Brings Plea For Mercy From Prosecutor.

SLEW DESPERADO

VIENNA, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Mencia Carniciu, a Macedonian girl, who Wednesday was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment for the murder of Todor Panizza, said to have been a Balkan desperado, yesterday lapsed into a comatose condition as the result of exhaustion brought on by her trial.

The girl, who is in the last stage of consumption, during Wednesday's court proceedings lay propped on cushions straining every nerve to understand the developments of the trial carried on in a tongue foreign to her.

So pitiful was the young defendant's condition that the prosecutor himself pleaded with the judge to make out the lightest possible sentence on the dying prisoner. He declared that her country was largely responsible for the slaying of Panizza. She said she considered her act patriotic because the victim was a traitor to his country.

Counsel for Panizza's relatives made the open charge in court that the Tsankoff Government of Bulgaria had hired Mencia Carniciu and others to remove anyone connected with the late Stamboulisky Communist regime, and declared that Panizza was the eighteenth Macedonian murdered recently in connection with Bulgaria's political troubles.

ENGINEER KILLED OTHERS MISSING— TUNNEL CAVE-IN

Two Score Men Were Trapped, But Worked Way Out

NO ACCURATE CHECK.

Fireman and Brakeman Escaped, Though Badly Scalded.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). —Tom Mason, engineer, is believed to have been killed and six negro workmen are missing as the result of a cave-in of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad tunnel at Churchill yesterday which trapped more than two score men engaged in reinforcing its walls. Most of the workmen, however, dug themselves out of the fallen earth and crawled to safety and police officials declared that little hope was held out for any remaining in the tunnel.

Guided down the rescue workers from the tunnel shortly after eight-30 and it was believed that any who may be entombed in the passage way could not survive the poisonous fumes.

Officials indicated that rescue operations would not be resumed until to-day.

The fact that those who escaped were hurried to homes or hospitals, prevented officials from making any accurate check of the men, who were in the tunnel when the slide came.

Engineer Mason is believed to be buried in his locomotive which was completely covered with earth. His fireman, D. F. Moseley, and A. G. Adams, a brakeman, both escaped. They were severely scalded by the steam which poured from the twisted boiler of the engine. C. H. Kelso another brakeman, also was injured badly.

Mason's corpse is regarded as unrecoverable. He was in the cab with the engineer when the cavein occurred and he was said to have pressed over the starting switch that now buried in the earth.

BODY CAST UP.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 3.—(United Press).—The body of an officer or chief petty officer, believed to have been from the ill-fated submarine, S-51, was cast up by the waters near Stonington, Conn., yesterday. The submarine base here sent an ambulance to bring the corpse here.

FRENCH MINGLE REGRET AND JOY IN DEBT RESULT

Disappointed Over Failure of Minister to Reach an Agreement.

BUT APPROVE STAND.

Call Conditions "Unnecessarily Hard" as Imposed By United States.

PARIS, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Downright disappointment over the failure of Finance Minister Caillaux to come to an agreement at Washington on the funding of France's debt to the United States is mingled with unconcealed approval of M. Caillaux's stand, refusing what is characterized here as "the unnecessarily hard conditions" imposed by the United States Debt Commission, in the comment of the French press and the people as the Minister of Finance begins his homeward journey.

The disappointment is tempered by a certain relief that the ultimate offer of the French negotiators, which, Paris experts contend, would have strained France's resources to the limit, has been rejected.

In the absence of Foreign Minister Briand at Locarno, Switzerland, and Premier Painleve at Nimes, no official opinion is forthcoming on behalf of the French Government. In official circles it is explained that no such expression can be made until M. Caillaux has laid the situation before the Cabinet Council upon his return to Paris.

The general feeling is that the Parliamentary situation of the Minister of Finance has been strengthened by the developments at Washington.

Le Temps says that there is no need to regret the American Commission's rejection of the offer "imposing on us such a heavy burden."

The Journal des Debats says that public opinion may console itself for the failure to conclude an agreement at Washington, since the prospective heavy sacrifices involved would be liable to make the taxpayers' burden too heavy. "Time cures many ills, but cannot settle money difficulties," this paper says. "France at some other time must face the settlement."

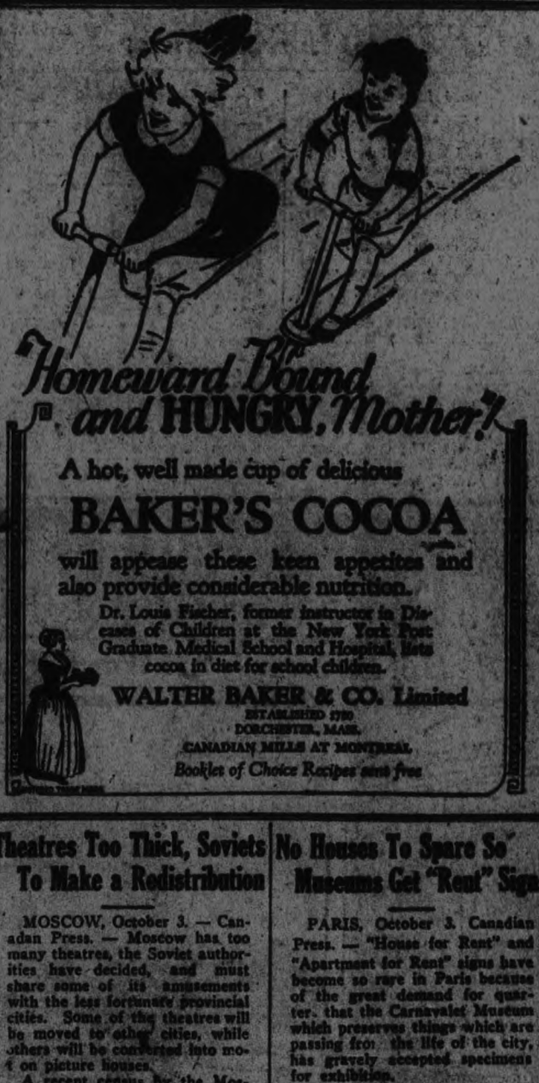
Egyptians from time immemorial have been shockingly addicted to cursing.



Theatres Too Thick, Soviets To Make a Redistribution

MOSCOW, October 3. — Canadian Press. — Moscow has too many theatres, the Soviet authorities have decided, and must share some of its amusements with the less fortunate provincial cities. Some of the theatres will be moved to other cities, while others will be converted into moving picture houses.

A recent census by the Moscow Board of Education, showed that the city contained 344 theatres, clubs and motion picture theatres, providing accommodation for 75,000 persons.

By many it is imagined that the cult of athletics for women is a modern one. But history shows that it was practised in the days of the early Greeks, when women were trained in such competitions as running, throwing the discus, and wrestling.

No Houses To Spare So Museums Get "Rent" Signs

PARIS, October 3. Canadian Press. — "House for Rent" and "Apartment for Rent" signs have become so rare in Paris because of the great demand for quarter, that the Carnavalet Museum which preserves things which are passing from the life of the city, has gravely accepted specimens for exhibition.

The housing shortage here, even worse than that of London since the war, have been aggravated by the heavy tourist traffic of the summer, and the crowds attracted by the exposition of decorative arts.

The Manx Derby, which takes place this month, recalls the little-known fact that horse-racing in the Isle of Man dates back to 1687, long before the sport was known in any other part of the British Isles.

All Canada Demands
Comfort Without Waste; Beauty Without Extravagance; And Chrysler Six Results

The Chrysler Six meets the new Canadian demand for comfort without waste, for highest quality without excessive cost, for exceptional beauty without extravagance. Women, especially, are enthusiastic about these Chrysler qualities.

Always in the lead in body style as in engineering, the Chrysler Six today reveals more graceful contours than ever.

The Chrysler Six actually rides more comfortably and safely than many two-ton cars—due to scientifically distributed weight and a low center of gravity; to the Chrysler-designed type of spring mounting, which does away with side-sway; to full balloon tires and Watson stabilizers, the finest device of its type to eliminate the shock of road inequalities.

To the superiority of its unsurpassed performance results, the Chrysler Six joins a complete freedom from mechanical worry. An air-cleaner keeps all dust and road dirt out of the engine. The Fuseless Motor fires the gasoline oil as the motor runs. Thermostatic heat control keeps the motor always at the most efficient working temperature. Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes insure a wide factor of safety.

Let us make you better acquainted with this Chrysler Six. A phone call will bring a Chrysler Six to your door for a demonstration.

SCHOOL FAIR WAS DECIDED SUCCESS

Exhibits Numerous, Varied and of Excellent Quality —Representative.

REVISED SYSTEM

YOUNG POINT, Oct. 2.—On Friday, September 25, Young's Point held its annual school fair. Six schools, including Young's Point, took part and although the attendance was not as good as in former years, the fair was a decided success and the teachers and pupils certainly deserve praise for the way in which all carried out their different parts.

The exhibits were numerous and of an excellent quality and in many classes it was hard to judge. The judges for the different classes were: Mrs. McCrae and Miss Scott of Norwood, Messrs. McCrae, McMillan and Barry of Norwood, and R. Graham of Lakefield.

The North Smith band provided excellent music during the afternoon and led the parade which marched through the village. Rex Wilson drove his car nicely decorated and the schools followed in succession, all in different dress. Young's Point, with their teachers, Mr. Walsh and Miss L. Aikenhead; Pine Grove School, Douro, teacher, Miss Young; S.S. No. 6, Smith, teacher, Miss Sharp; S.S. No. 7, Smith, teacher, Miss Burgess; S.S. No. 10, Smith, teacher, Mr. Munroe, and S.S. No. 12, Smith, teacher, Miss Boyce.

The prizes for the parade were awarded in former years for marching, dress and singing, but a new course was adopted this year and each school underwent a physical drill, which showed careful training and percentage counted as follows: 25 per cent for marching, 25 per cent for the way in which the teacher gave commands, and 50 per cent for the drill. Miss Muriel Boyce and her class of S.S. No. 12, Smith, were successful in winning first prize with 82 per cent; Miss Sharp and pupils of S.S. No. 6, Smith, won second with 81 per cent, and S.S. No. 8, Smith, with teachers, Mr. Walsh and Miss Aikenhead, third, with 80 per cent.

The prizes for the public speaking and singing were awarded as follows: For singing—1, Myla Bogue, S.S. No. 6, Smith; 2, Mary Young, S.S. No. 8, Smith; 3, Bernice Northey, S.S. No. 7, Smith. For public speaking—1, Geraldine Bell, S.S. No. 12, Smith; 2, Dorothy Holmes, S.S. No. 6, Smith; 3, Margaret Northey, S.S. No. 7, Smith.

Field corn—1, Mildred Coones, Douro, S.S. No. 14; 2, Earl Harvey, Smith, S.S. No. 8; 3, David Farrow, Smith, S.S. No. 8; 4, Morley Bullock, Smith, S.S. No. 14.

Sweet corn—1, Muriel Harvey, Smith, S.S. No. 8; 2, Ralph Darling, Douro, S. S. No. 14; 3, Muriel Bullock, Douro, S.S. No. 14; Mary Hatton, Smith, S.S. No. 12.

To the Party of the First Part—

YOU own your own home. That's fine. But there's a mortgage at 7%. That's all right. You are reducing it steadily each year.

Yes, but are you protected on that—is your mortgage covered by life insurance? A mortgage is a poor asset to leave wife and family—a curse instead of a blessing to a widow and children without income.

Think it over. We recommend Mutual Life Insurance for all young men who are carrying mortgages on their homes. Mutual life insurance is insurance at net cost. We particularly recommend the Mutual, profit-participating, 20-pay life policy as most suitable for the young man with a young family who is gradually acquiring title to his home, with every prospect of a bright future before him. It's a good policy. But you can get any form of policy issued, in the Mutual Life, and profit-sharing reduces the cost.

TOO MANY FAIRS IN ONE WEEK SPOIL MILLBROOK'S SUCCESS

Splendid Exhibition of Last Year Not Equalled Yesterday.

BLAME HIRED MAN

Poultry Showing Stood Out With Ninety-two Classes Shown.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 3.—Although the Millbrook Exhibition had a fairly good chance of success as far as the weather man was concerned, for its second day, it closed its Fair yesterday with a somewhat disappointing record, as compared with other seasons, and with the splendid results achieved last year. The attendance was in the neighborhood of four thousand, with gate receipts of $1,014, as against last year's receipts of over $1,200.

There were two races at Millbrook, with three horses entered in each. Campbellford had the racers yesterday, declared the directors, who also blamed the small attendance on several things. One was the holding of two other County Fairs this week, those at Orono and Uxbridge, and another reason advanced for the non-attendance of several men who heretofore brought livestock to the Fair was the fact that they had always reckoned on showing their stock at both Millbrook and Port Hope Fairs in the same week. Port Hope Fair being moved this season to another week, the boys were not so keen to make what is in some instances a long trip, twice in succession. Another reason was said to be the fact that horses are not being raised in Millbrook district in such large numbers as formerly.

The live stock showing fell down lamentably, with only a few sheep, swine and cattle on view, as compared with the filled stalls and pens of last year, and the exhibit of horses was not up to the standard set in past years by this Fair, which has been noted for years for its splendid showing of horseflesh.

The Farmer's Boy to Blame.

Among the mainy reasons advanced for the small showing of livestock was one, agreed upon by many of the directors, and summed up in the words: "The farmer, if he has time, brings in the stock to the Fair. The hired man takes his car and best girl and goes in to enjoy himself." The hired man, and he is a scarce article in the neighborhood since so many of him and his fellows went out to help in the Western harvest, is blamed for his lackadaisical attitude. He refuses, it appears, to help with the stock at these Fall Fairs, and consequently the stock stays at home and the Fair loses out. Another reason is the business of the farmers, occupied just now in filling silos and in threshing.

A few Jerseys and Holsteins and a number of Durhams, with a fair showing of the Shorthorns, were in the cattle sheds, the main exhibitors being Harry Seymour, R. O. Larmer, Oscar McGill and Richard Matchett. There were Leicesters and Southdowns over in the sheep pens, and the honors among the swine were evenly divided between the Yorkshires and Tamworths.

Good Poultry Exhibit.

The poultry showing was very good, with a larger number of birds than last year, ninety-two classes being represented by about three hundred birds. Exhibition Barred Rocks, White Wyandottes, with a cockerel in the latter the best bird in the show; Silver-laced Wyandottes and Black Minorcas were very good, with Emden and Idian Runners well represented in the waterfowl section.

There was a trio of fine bronze turkeys also. The judge remarked that this show was notable for the total lack of Bantams.

In the main building, there was a fine display of vegetables and apples, the latter notable for their size and color, with some rosy St. Lawrence far in the lead. The fancy work showing was not as good as usual, and the flower display suffered also from the drought and insect pests of this season. There were some exceptionally fine examples of homemade cooking on view, with half a dozen light layer cakes in the special showing by the Millbrook Women's Institute.

The Singer Machine people from Peterboro had a couple of sewing machines in the main building, in charge of Mr. J. W. Stewart.

In the fine arts section, there were some pretty things, with an exceptionally good bit of work in the detail of the water-color interior of a studio, done by A. Irwin, a first prize winner.

Pretty Linens.

The fancy work display contained some very pretty things in fine embroideries and stitching. One linen spread attracted a good deal of attention, with a spray of finely-drawn silk embroidered flowers topped by a peacock with spread tail, the whole outlined by buttonhole stitching. A mauve linen breakfast set with serviettes was another very pretty exhibit, its corners, embroidered with baskets of button asters in natural shades.

Out of doors, there was a miniature Midway, with a number of refreshment booths and several of the popular dart and wheel games, with aluminum and rugs and shawls outdistancing the kewpie in popular favor. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Continuing Presbyterian Church had a dining hall, while the ladies of the United Church sold fancy work and refreshments, and the Boy Scouts of the Anglican Church also dispensed soft drinks and ice cream.

One of the largest booths and most attractive was that of the Grafton Company of Peterboro. With its checkerboard front of black and green, topped by waving small flags and its display of the latest ideas in men's and boys' clothing, it made a brave showing.

The Ontario Forestry Branch, from the Provincial Forestry Station at Orono, with the superintendent, G. M. Linton, B.S.F., in charge, had a pleasing little open booth, its interior filled with tiers of small wooden boxes holding tree seedlings, illustrating the growth of conifers at hardwoods from one year up. Examples of the Carolina poplar were shown outside, tall specimens nearly twelve feet in height, grown from cuttings level with the ground last March.

The Maple Leaf Milling Company had a display of its products on a truck, with the local agent, Mr. H. W. Johnson, in charge, and also showed samples of the bread made from its flour by Mr. Chamberlain.

Mr. J. R. Brownlee, Peterboro's blind man, had a nice little display of his clever work in reed and cane.

Automobiles were shown by the Gilleaspie Garage of Peterboro, with the Chrysler, T. Harkness with the Ford; Albert Tinney with the Chevrolet, and Harry Tinney with the Overland models.

Following on the ring went on all afternoon. The display of horses included teams of heavy draught that were fairly good, with four collies, teams of heavy draught (2) saddlers, and a quarter-ring also of drivers. The agricultural horses were also well represented.

Judges in the different sections were Joseph Shelds, Lansdowne, for cattle; W. A. Cranston of Halloway, for sheep; S. Sharpe of Toronto, for poultry; T. H. Bradley of Millbrook, for grains; Dr. Bryan of Peterboro, for flowers, cereals, fruits, etc., and Mr. Fortune, for fine arts and domestic science; Joseph Hickson of Janetville, for vegetables; John A. Miller of South Monaghan, for light horses, and Wm Doherty of Toronto, for heavy horses.

Two Races.

Two races were run off, a free-for-all and a named race. Jim McGregor, owned by Ira Nattrass of Millbrook, won the free-for-all, with a standing in the three heats of 1, 1, 1, Kelly Todd, 2, 2, 2, owned by C. H. Fife of Laing, came second, and Armour Bar, 3, 3, 3, owned by J. Rodden of Orono, third. Time 2.39 1-4; 2.39 1-4; 2.39 3-4.

The named race was won by Lady Bryson, owned by S. Johnson of Millbrook, with Sadie P. owned by A. Lunn of Millbrook, and Hazel M., owned by W. Mulligan of Bethany, in second and third place respectively. Purses in the two events were $100 in the free-for-all, and $50 in the named race.

Judges were J. McMillan and W. J. Maher of Cobourg. G. H. Kingsley of Cobourg acted as starter, and James Hickson of Janetville as timer.

Jim's own confidence in his belief that Bob was preparing a surprise for them, and that his "best girl" would undoubtedly come in at the last moment, began at last to grow flat in the face of Bob's insistence—without committing himself—that Jim was on a false trail. Caroline became radiantly certain that it was all a grievous error, and though Bob's strange manner continued to render her somewhat ill at ease, she took matters into her own hands with an attempt at joviality to stir up the increasing staleness of the party.

"Jim, you've made a most selfish and inartistic disposition of your guests with three of us on this side and poor Bob alone and forlorn on that side." She rose and gathered up her plate with placid determination. "I'm going to move over there to keep Bob company, and you and Bobby can have this side to yourselves. It will—"

A sharp ring of the front doorbell jangled through the little cottage.

Caroline remained rivetted where she was, standing in her original place, and Bob found his eyes instinctively exchanging with hers an arrested glance of dread wonderment. Jim, however, had jumped to his feet in gleeful anticipation.

"I'll bet—" he began smiling at Bob significantly, then darting to the door without finishing.

Bob could feel in the subtly charged air of the room that Caroline, like himself, was taut as a bow-string; he felt that he could hear the beating of her heart.—And his own seemed to stop in the next instant when from the outer door there came a raspingly familiar feminine voice.

"Does Bob Wilson live here?"

Jane—and here! It was the final blow. He could not raise his eyes to look at Caroline, but he felt that she had relaxed into her chair like a stricken reed. In all his life Bob had never experienced such a deadly desire to commit murder as he did while he listened, in dull stupefaction, to Jim's native acceptance and greeting of Jane as something to be taken as a matter of fact.

"You're Bob's girl—I remember you—we knew you'd come although that sly rascal pretended you wouldn't!"

Jane was in the room now, saying nothing in her bewildered attempt to get her bearings after this totally unexpected sort of welcome. Jim set her suitcase down in the hallway, as Bob, gripping the table drew himself erect on his numb legs. The consciousness of Caroline's presence burned into the back of his head; he wished that he could spare her this ordeal, and felt for her sympathy of a divine sort that one might feel for an angel trapped in hell.

Jane came straight to him, smiling archly. "You see I've come back and found you, Bob, dear."

Caroline suddenly went into the kitchen, on the pretense of an errand.

Bob, striving to gain the energy necessary for the effort, finally introduced Jim to Jane, without having himself replied to Jane's first greeting.

"This is—Miss Gordon, Jim!"

When Caroline returned a few moments later Bob again knew without looking at her the state of her emotions so bravely hidden behind her pleasant expression. He felt the hotness of quickly dried tears in her eyes, the fever in her cheeks, and the slender figure held proudly and quietly erect, while the heave and fall of her bosom was held in restraint at the risk of a bursting heart.

"This is Miss Gordon, Bob's girl!" said Jim, introducing the women, who bowed politely to one another in a clash of instincts that caused Caroline's eyes to narrow and drop—and brought a hard grin of understanding to Jane's thin lips.

Jim's enthusiasm because the party had worked out so ideally in accordance with his plans—Bob had his girl, and he had his girl—knew no bounds. He talked and he laughed and he teased, all oblivious to the tension around him so well was it concealed by those vitally affected. Jane had been quite dumbfounded at her reception, but the sharp edges of her particular plans in the world had given her keen eyes and nose for woodpile niggers; so she became profusely pleasant, warmly sitting down and joining in the party at Jim's invitation, without knowing or caring what it was all about.

"You just came in time to help me," said Jim to Jane with a knowing aside wink at Bob, "for Caroline had just taken pity on Bob in his lonesomeness and was going to desert me and move over to your place, when you rang!"

Jane fingered her place card thoughtfully, then looking up under her eyes across at Caroline she quoted from it.

"'Bob's best girl'—question mark! So you were going to sit in the married for Bob's best girl? "Bob," turning to him, "Were you glad or sorry that I came?" she tormented, cruelly.

"Hey, don't I blow the candles out now?" Bobby demanded of the group at large. He felt that he had been eating in quiet neglect long enough.

Caroline gently slid the cake close to Bobby's place. "Blow them, dear, and wish on each one!"

"That's for Daddy Bob's best girl!"

A second candle expired fatally under an uneven blast from Bobby's lips:

"That's for Daddy Bob!"

Bob smiled wanly upon the child. Jane glared suspiciously at Bob—was this, his baby? The relationships at this party were quite confusing to her, thrown down as it was out of hand and without any foreknowledge of what was what, and who was who—except Bob. She had not finessed artistically to the interlocutionary she had merely rushed into the melee until she could get the lay of the land and make her own deductions.

"That's for Daddy Jim!" Bobby was saying, as the flame of the third candle reluctantly went out under a wonderful amount of spent hot breath.

Two failures! Jane gave up; it was all over her head.

"That's for—Caroline!" guessed Bobby feelingly certain of his ground, even if he was not sure of the first name of the girl in the picture. Bob filled in on the last of his hero's hopeless infatuation of late, as the fourth candle died under a cloud and frowned cedes of smoke while.

One burning candle remained, and Jane, instant curiosity on her face, fell upon her knees, ostensibly to help Bobby retrieve a little wisp, to regale his breath and disappear himself, give the spirit of participation and companionship and in the guise of a gift understanding un-wasted in one so young. He turned his large eyes slowly from Caroline to Jane first, then blew out the last candle.

"That's for Mousie!" he said, wistfully.

In the midst of the hallowed silence that ensued, Jane's voice seemed curiously resonant and out of place, like a cash register in a church, as she said, frowning to Caroline,

"Oh, I thought you were his mother!"

Instead of breaking the tension, this stupid comment increased it. Bob again took enough physical interest in matters to nudge Jane warningly. Caroline, embarrassed and resentful, stared coolly at Jane; while Jim reached down the table across Bobby's towhead and patted Caroline's head gently, then told Jane with a smile.

"Caroline is only a very dear friend—as yet."

Another slamming and jangling of the doorbell broke into and dispelled the uneasy savor created by Jane's indiscretion. To Bob and Caroline, over and above the others, it came as a blast of additional fear. Their eyes involuntarily met across the table in the instant while the iron echoes of the gong still vibrated within the room; their glances bore a sudden mutual consideration for fraught nerves and tortured minds. What other blow was Fate about to crack him, Bob wondered bitterly as he pushed back his chair and went into the hall, glad of even a momentary escape of whatever portent.

A callboy from headquarters followed Bob into the lighted dining room, and while Bob was signing for the message fidgetted from one foot to the other and ogled the birthday cake with yearning that Caroline, noticing him, could not ignore. When he departed a moment later a sizable and tasty chunk was disappearing into his wide mouth.

"It's an order," quoted Bob from the message, "for me to take out the westbound Limited Mail tonight, in place of Morse, who is sick."

Bob's other troubles were forgotten for the time being in the proud and thrilling flush of professional responsibility that came over him; at last to be at the throttle of the Limited, the pride of the Transrockian and the fastest and most powerful locomotive in the history of American railroading! Jim, rushing to him, clasped his hand.

"We'll take her out together to-night, old boy—it's the thing we've always dreamt of doing!"

Caroline, her heartsick constraint bested in that moment by a possessive pride in Bob, came to him and gave her big hand.

"Congratulations, Bob!" she said, with quiet sincerity.

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies. The modern mother does not resort to so-called soothing mixtures but corrects the trouble by sweetening the little stomach and giving a gentle laxative that acts without griping. Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets, easy to take and guaranteed to be free from opiates or narcotics.

Every mother who tries Baby's Own Tablets becomes enthusiastic about them. Mrs. Oscar Auger, Hebertville, Man., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think them a splendid medicine for constipation and other ailments which affect little ones. I have no hesitation in recommending them to other mothers." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. SIR HENRY DRAYTON IN VICTORIA SPEAKS ON BEHALF OF T. H. STINSON GATHERING LASTED 45 MINUTES

Meeting Adjourned to Allow Electors to Attend Funeral of Conservative Councillor.

TARIFF ADVOCATED.

The Ex-Minister of Finance Blames Policy For Loss of Population.

Adverse and totally unforeseen circumstances combined to rob the South Victoria and Haliburton Conservative meeting in the Public Hall of Omemee yesterday, of much of the importance that the presence of such a distinguished speaker as Sir Henry Drayton, former Minister of Finance might have warranted. The annual School Fair was in progress during the meeting, necessitating the temporary absence from politics of several Conservative stalwarts. The meeting was held under the shadow of the loss of Thomas Magee, contractor, a prominent Orangeman and Conservative, and for many years a councillor of Omemee, whose burial took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Arrangements for the holding of the meeting had been completed before Mr. Magee's death, and while it was found practically impossible to cancel the meeting, an early adjournment was decided upon. The entire proceedings were compressed into three quarters of an hour.

There were about 100 people present when the meeting opened and the chairman, R. J. Patterson, M.P.P. for Victoria Co., explained that out of respect to the memory of Mr. Magee the meeting would be speedily adjourned to enable the people to pay their last rsepects to one whom they had all admired. In a few well chosen words, he introduced the Conservative candidate for the riding of South Victoria and Haliburton, T. H. Stinson of Lindsay.

Mr. Stinson gave a short survey of the Conservative prospects in South Victoria, and other ridings. He spoke of the enthusiasm which was manifested all over the province and appeared confident as to the ultimate issue of his contest with his Progressive opponent. He described the Progressives as being merely an adjunct of the Liberal party; their presence complicating the position. He likened the situation to the letter V, with the Conservatives midway between the other two parties. He did not desire to make a lengthy speech, as he wished to allow Sir Henry Drayton as much as possible of the few minutes left before the meeting would be adjourned; but he promised to make an endeavor to arrange another meeting in Omemee before the conclusion of the election campaign.

Sir Henry Drayton, in a brief speech, launched into a vigorous indictment of the King administration, concentrating his fire on the tariff policies of the Liberal government. When Canada was first peopled by the men of our race, he said, the settlers produced for themselves, the necessities of life. Production was for the home market. As the population increased and markets changed, it was found that a surplus of production existed in many commodities. Producers in other countries were extending their markets. Their product comes into this country. The home producer was placed in a quandary and the system of protecting him by a tariff was put into operation. This protection, was to a great extent removed by the Liberal party.

It was very evident that Sir Henry found considerable difficulty in developing a rather intricate theme in the limited time at his disposal, and the experienced poltiician adroitly overcame the handicap by confining himself entirely to one issue—the effects of tariffs on the farming industry—thereby exhibiting excellent generalship, as a large proportion of his audience was comprised of tillers of the soil.

Sir Henry laid special emphasis on the fact that great quantities of American farm produce found its way into Canada. This produce, he said, was brought in just before the Canadian products were released; the home market was flooded just at the time the Canadian farmer might well have expected good prices for his stuff. He quoted reams of facts and figures to prove that a tariff wall would have beneficial results for the Canadian farmer. On American butter coming into Canada, a tariff of 4 cents per pound was imposed; on eggs 3 cents a dozen, and on vegetables 30 per cent. But when our farmers endeavored to market their produce, they found themselves confronted by a hurdle of 8 cents per pound on butter and similar imposts on all farm produce. Millions of dollars every year were thus diverted to the United States which should have been kept in Canada.

The results of this policy were to be seen in the exodus of thousands of the very best type of Canadian citizens to the United States. This exodus was still continuing in spite of numerous denials of the fact. From a constituency at which he had recently spoken, no less than 3,000 persons had migrated to the United States during the four years' administration of the King Government. Canada was on the downgrade, but its downward progress could be stopped by the raising of a tariff which would keep employment and money within the country.

The present government had done nothing to stop the deterioration of Canada's industries. He roundly declared that none of the Government measures designed to maintain the national welfare, had any real, lasting, beneficial effect.

In conclusion, Sir Henry brought charges of reckless extravagance against the Liberal government. In the days of the Conservative administration, said the speaker, he, as Minister of Finance, required for the treasury a box so big (indicating the size by movements of his hands). Now the Finance Minister required a box twice that size, and two others in addition.

He regretted the circumstances that called for the premature adjournment of the meeting, and urged the electors to return Mr. Stinson to strengthen the hands of Mr. Meighen in his efforts to bring back to Canada the prosperous times she had enjoyed in the past.

COMMITTEES OF CITY COUNCIL IN BUSY MEETINGS

Finance Committee Receives Report Showing 95.3 Per Cent. of Taxes Paid.

PLANT PROGRESSES

Three committee meetings in one hour and thirty-five minutes was the record made by the Mayor and Aldermen last night.

The first and most lengthy meeting was that of Alderman Nagle Phelan's Finance Committee. After hearing the list of hospital bills and others presented by F. W. Miller, relief officer, and passing on them for payment or investigation, the report of the collection of taxes was received. It was shown that 95.3 per cent of the first two installments has been paid, as against 96 per cent paid at October 1 last year. A request from a gentleman who had paid both income and poll tax in the same year that his poll tax be remitted was granted and the treasurer authorized to issue a cheque. At the request of Leon Frazer, secretary of the Tourist Association of Ontario, Mayor Turner was named as the city's representative to vote at meetings of the Association by virtue of the city's membership.

After the finances of the city had been cared for, Alderman Fife summoned the members to reconvene as the Board of Works. The principal subject was the drainage of the addition to the Bell Telephone building, Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral was on hand and explained that the by-law forbids the connection of drains from roofs into the sewers and that he had told the contractor to run his drain into the surface drain on the same street or to run it out into a sump in the gravel soil of the back yard. The matter was left with Mr. Metheral. A letter was read from the Utilities Commission advising that the cost of constructing the necessary line to the sewage disposal plant for the supply of power would have to be assessed entirely against the plant, as it would be used for nothing else. The Commission also suggested the use of a synchronous motor for correcting the power factor, but the City Engineer said that the suggestion had been received too late, as the motors were well under construction. He said that if necessary synchronous convertors could be installed for the some purpose. Mr. Parsons also reported good progress made at the work at the disposal plant.

The Property Committee, Alderman McIntyre, chairman, was the last of the three. This was called to consider the request of the Market Clerk for some steps to provide better tables and chairs in the market building. The matter was left to the chairman and Mr. Parsons.

In commemoration of the inauguration of steam railways one hundred years ago, the organized railway workers of England have arranged a great pageant of tramways throughout the ages, from camels and sledges to the latest locomotives.

The matter in this column has been supplied by the Conservative Publicity Committee in this campaign.

NOTES FROM MR. PECK'S COMMITTEE ROOMS

The following meetings have been arranged in the township districts for next week:

At Stewart's Hall, Otonabee, Monday, 5th Oct., at 7.30 p.m.—A delegation from the city will assist Mr. Peck at the meeting.

At Temperance Hall, Selwyn, on Tuesday, Oct. 6th, at 7.30 p.m.—It is expected there will be a good attendance from the Smith divisions to hear discussion. Mr. Peck will speak, and others and friends in the riding will be heard.

At Bensfort, South Monaghan, Wednesday evening, Oct. 7th, at 7.30 p.m.—The place of meeting is readily accessable, and there should be a good crowd in attendance. Mr. Peck will explain the position he takes on public questions.

At Villier's School House, east of Keene, on Thursday evening, Oct. 8th, at 7.30 p.m.—South Otonabee should be well represented and a good attendance from Keene is expected.

At the organization meeting held at Lakefield on Monday evening the officers previously in charge for the village were re-elected: President, W. Charlton; Vice-President, E. J. Webster; Secretary-Treasurer, F. J. Burgess; Chairman of No. 1 Ward, S. J. Charlton; No. 2 Ward, W. H. Morrison. The meeting was well attended and the friends of Mr. Peck are determined to carry the village in his favor.

The women of the village have just finished organization, having opened a committee room next to the Connell House. The village has been divided into districts, and the women will make a thorough canvas of every home and family and urge support for Mr. Peck. There seems to be much more interest shown by the women of the village in the present contest than for some time. Mr. Peck, from long acquaintance and association in the village, will gain a very strong support.

All young people who wish to enroll under the Peck banner are asked to come to the George Street Committee Rooms of Mr. Peck on Saturday evening, when they will be met by friends and initiated into the details of a Federal election contest.

Young men should make it as a point of their general education to pick up some familiarity with the procedure in elections that they may be informed and become useful. The older heads will pass away, and it is to the younger men that succeeding Conservative candidates must look for loyal and helpful help. Why not come in now and learn the ropes. Others always respect a man who knows from his experience how the thing is done and the procedure. This applies to municipal politics as well as Provincial or Federal.

Mr. R. R. Hall Tells of the Silk Label Industry.

Most men who go fishing claim to have an inspiration as to the probability of fish being procurable from the look of the water, the configuration of the shore of the stream, the color of the sky and a lot of things, taken in position, all pointing the prevalence of fish. Quite reassuring to the primitive angler, but the proof of these deductions are to be tasted at the end of the rod.

Something of this kind seems to have animated Mr. R. R. Hall, who in his speech on Saturday last, 26th, stated that the textile industry in Canada was improving. Said he was sure of this, because the Colonial Weaving Company of this city, which manufactured silk labels, were receiving more orders than for some time past.

This is very enlightening, and Mr. Hall's deduction is most cheerful and reassuring. It would be helpful to know what proof Mr. Hall has that the cloth from which the labels are made was produced in Canada, and that is the critical and real point. On this point Mr. Hall is profoundly silent.

The cards to which are attached the labels made by the Colonial Weaving Company may have been cut from cloth manufactured in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia or any other country except in Canada, for all Mr. Hall knows. If he could have added that all garments were of Canadian weaves, why that would be conclusive, assuming that the fact could be substantiated. Why was Mr. Hall silent on this point? If Canada's contribution to the completed garment amounted to the label on the neck-band, it is about as much as if an importer, reproached for not using home-woven goods, should reply that at least the paper the goods were wrapped in, in sending out to customers, was Canadian.

The fact that the Colonial Weaving Company is making more silk labels than for some time proves nothing at all. But what would be of communal interest would be for Mr. Hall, President of the Colonial Weaving Company, to tell us what dividends have been paid to the shareholders of the company since the King Government came into power. That would tell something tangible, and Mr. Hall's company would have the benefit of this excellent advertisement thrown in. And most folk will agree that the ad. is a tangible asset.

STRANGE SUIT IS DISMISSED

Man Alleges He Brought Up Boy as His Son.

DECEIVED BY WIFE.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press)—A suit for damages launched some month ago by Philip Faulkner of Toronto against Dr. John A. Tuck for, it was alleged, misrepresenting the parentage of a boy now 18 years of age, was dismissed yesterday by Mr. Justice Mowat in the Supreme Court. The papers filed by the plaintiff alleged that in 1907 it was represented to him that a child had been born to his wife and that color was lent to this allegation by the fact that his wife was then sick in bed in her home with a nurse in attendance, the child was maintained in his home by Faulkner and, he alleges it was only recently that he discovered the child was the son of John and Minnie Deacon and that his own wife and Dr. Tuck had conspired with the Deacons to foist it on him, Faulkner, as his own. Dr. Tuck and the Deacons were sued jointly for damages, Faulkner asked for $7,000 for maintaining the boy and for educating him, and $5,000 for mental suffering and ill health.

COL. MILLER, CIVIL WAR VETERAN, IS EIGHTY YEARS OLD TO-MORROW

Served in the Titanic Struggles Between Northern and Southern Forces.

SAW LINCOLN.

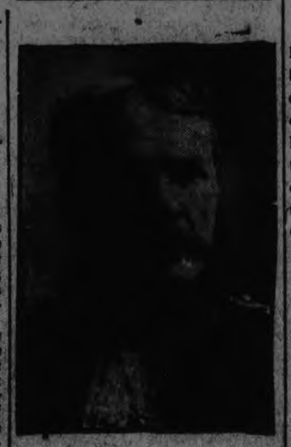
Peterborough congratulates Col. J. W. Miller on attaining his eightieth birthday, which milestone he reaches to-morrow. Col. Miller is a veteran of many campaigns, and served with great distinction in the Federal army during the American Civil War.

He enlisted while on a visit to the States under the impression that the struggle would be of very short duration, and was absolutely without the slightest intention of following a permanent career in the army of any country. No one would have been more amazed than the adventurous young Canadian if he had been then told that he would become a fully fledged Colonel in the army of his own Sovereign and would enjoy the confidence of Ministers of the Crown like the late Sir Sam. Hughes or the Governor-General of Canada.

Although the Civil War proved to be anything but a community picnic, young Miller stuck to his guns and took part in practically all the most important engagements in the great struggle. He was wounded twice, and was taken prisoner at Gettysburg. Imprisoned by the Southerens along with many other unfortunate captives, he suffered incredible hardships, and on being released was compelled to spend several weeks in hospital to recuperate. At the conclusion of the war he had climbed to the rank of Quartermaster, and was prevented from re-engaging in the American Army by the dramatic intervention of his brother, who had come to the States to seek him out and to urge him to return home.

Colonel Miller has many personal recollections of the historic figures of the time, and is one of the comparatively small number of men still alive who have seen and spoken to President Lincoln.

On returning home he linked up with the Militia here, and rose to be commander of the 57th Regiment. The sturdy old warrior still refuses to retreat before the advance of old age, and is at present in better health than he experienced some months ago. The citizens of Peterborough of all creeds and classes join with The Examiner in wishing him many happy returns.



COL. J. W. MILLER.

A former commander of the 57th Regiment is still hale and hearty at 80 years of age.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC.

200 Cases in Fifteen Days—10 Deaths in Twenty-four Hours.

MANILA, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press). — Forty-seven residents of Manila and adjoining provinces have died since September 17 from cholera. Of this number, ten deaths have occurred in Manila in the last 24 hours and three have been reported in adjoining provinces. In the past fifteen days 200 cases of cholera have been reported to the health service here.

GOVERNMENT AIDE MAY REST SUNDAY

OTTAWA, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—In future no employee of the Dominion Government will be required to work on Sunday "except in circumstances of emergency or necessity." If any employee is required to work on Sunday, he shall be allowed during the next six days of the week a period of 24 hours for rest.

The above is the effect of an Order-in-Council which has been passed by the Dominion Government. It declares that there shall be no exception to the above rule except by Departmental authority, and then only when there is no substitute to do the work.

The Order, which was presented to council by Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, points to the fact that many employees of the Government are now required to work on Sunday. It states that the draft convention and recommendations adopted by the International Labor Conference in 1921 for twenty-four hours' rest in every week for workers,

WOMEN'S ART ASSOCIATION HAS GOOD REPORTS AT END OF YEAR

Annual Meeting Held at Conservatory of Music Discharges Business.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Big Membership Interested in Varied Work of Institution.

The annual meeting of the Women's Art Association was held this week in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, when reports of the year's activities were given and election of officers for the ensuing year took place. A president nor convenors of committees were not named at this meeting, but other officers were elected as follows:

Honorary President: Mrs. McKay of Toronto; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. F. C. Neal; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. G. N. Gordon; 4th Vice-President, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Senior; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Grace Reinhardt; Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. Sangster; Treasurer, Mdme. Masson; Assistant Treasurer, Miss Edith Murphy; Archivist Miss Florence Edwards; Press Secretary, Miss Geraldine Glover; Members' Representatives: Mesdames J. H. Seels, J. Vernor, H. E. Connolly, R. M. Waddell, F. A. Hodgson, A. Moir, T. Cruickshank, G. E. Porter, R. Harstone, R. A. Beown and Miss M. Rush.

During the year, exceptional interest was manifested in the affairs of the organization, which had a membership total of one hundred and three. The programme of the society consisted of a series of exhibitions, musicales and lectures, with Art Study, Interior Decoration and Dramatic Study Clubs in connection and a Weaving Guild.

More exhibits were held by the society than in any previous year, five being given during the winter, with two musicales, three travel talks, and one stereopticon lecture. Every meeting was well attended. Musical selections appropriate to the programme were a delightful adjunct to the Saturday afternoon studio teas, which also gave the members the opportunity of meeting in a social half-hour.

At the annual meeting it was decided to raise the annual membership fee from one to two dollars, and to give ten strip tickets for a dollar, to admit members and guests to the Association affairs. Some kitchen equipment and silver was purchased last season, also a walnut cupboard for the display of china and pottery and a pedestal for the cast of "Mercury."

Reports of Convenors.

Mrs. W. H. Pretty, convenor of the Weaving Guild, reported a membership of twelve ladies who had met regularly at her home and made progress in weaving, so much so that they had been encouraged to hold an exhibit and sale of their work.

Miss Mayme Montgomery, convenor of the Interior Decoration Club, said that the new venture had proven popular from the beginning, and had a membership of twenty-two. Throughout the winter and spring meetings had been held every week at the homes of the members, when papers had been given on Period Furniture, Draperies, Color Harmony, and Floor Coverings.

Mrs. B. L. Barnes, convenor of the Art Study Club, reported a membership of twenty-six, and a decided progress made during the past season. Thirteen meetings were held, when the lives and work of twelve painters and one sculptor were studied, and a paper on the Hanging and Framing of Pictures given by Miss Anderson, a member of the Interior Decoration Club.

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro said that the Dramatic Study Club had met in the studio to study the history of the drama and had read several plays.

Miss Cameron Edwards, convenor of the Exhibition Committee, reported having had charge of four exhibits, also the silhouettes put on by the society for the Peterboro Health Association in connection with their Made-in-Peterboro Fair.

The past president, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, in her address, reported on some of the rules of the Ontario Women's Art Association, and told of many ways in which the work might be furthered throughout the coming year. The past season had been one of the most successful in the history of the organization, while the coming year might be looked forward to with even greater prospects of success. Mrs. Munro stressed the necessity of each member taking a keen personal interest in the society and its work.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Munro for the splendid record she had made in holding the presidential office for the past year was voiced by Mrs. H. W. Morphet and unanimously accorded by the ladies, and Mrs. Munro expressed her thanks to the members for the co-operation and support they had given her.

The regular meetings of the Association will commence in November. The first meeting of the Art Study Club will be held on the 20th of October, at the home of Mrs. H. W. Morphet.

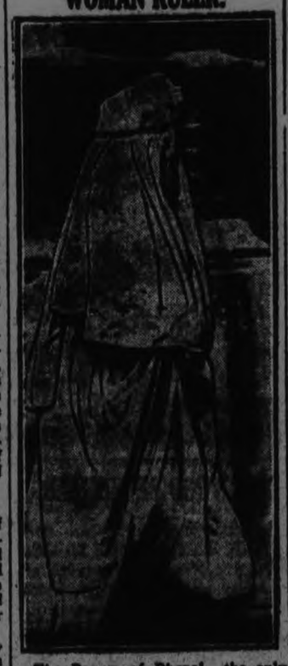
WOMAN RULER.



The Begum of Bhopal, the only woman ruler in India, is in London to ask that Britain allow her third son, Sahib Cada Mohomed Hamidulla Khan, to be the heir to her throne. Her eldest and second sons both died last year, and according to the law of primogeniture, the throne would go to the son of her dead eldest son when she dies. The Begum rules over a state comprising nearly 7,000 square miles, with a population of about 2,000,000. She is always veiled, and the only man who ever saw her face was her husband.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am going with a young man I know very well, and think a lot of. We are both very fond of sports and are great pals. As we can't always arrange a party of young people to accompany us on our hikes, we go alone. Is this considered right in this modern age. We are both in our teens. (Seventeen years).

Looking for as early a reply as possible, thanking you,

A Modern Girl.

A MODERN GIRL:

In this modern age most things that our grand-mothers did are considered foolish. Chaperones, like chig nons and hoop skirts, are definitely in the discard. There is no particular reason why you shouldn't go alone on your hikes, providing you don't go too far away and stay too long away from home. Outside of the fact that you may cultivate too free and easy an attitude with the young man if you become too "pally" with him, there is nothing objectionable in going alone with him, provided you don't tire of each other's company, and that you don't turn your "hikes" into "petting" parties.

ROBERTS-SCOTT NUPTIALS.

A lovely wedding was solemnized at half-past twelve o'clock to-day, in Murray Street Baptist Church, when Florence Louise, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Scott, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Alexander Roberts, Junior, of Toronto, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Roberts, Dumberton, Scotland. The pastor of the church, Rev. C. W. Rose, D. D., officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with asters merging from pale mauve to deep purple and from pale pink to deep rose, and was banked with ferns and begonias. In the centre of the choir loft was a large basket of pink roses and mauve asters. At the head of the two centre aisles stood high standards of wrought iron and copper, filled with pink chrysanthemums and ferns. The guests pews were divided from the rest of the church by large ferns on high pedestals.

The wedding music, the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," and Mendelssohn's wedding march, was played by Mr. Francis Sutton, A. T. C. M., A. R. C. M.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white bridal satin, having a rounded neck long tight sleeves and godets of ninon. Her long court train of white brocaded satin, lined with silver cloth, fell from the shoulders, where it was held by long pearl tassels. The veil of bridal net, forming also a face veil, and held in place by a coronet of rose point lace, orange blossoms and a sprig of white heather, fell to the end of the train where it was caught by sprays of orange blossom. White satin shoes and stockings completed the ensemble. The bride carried a beautiful shower bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley centred by white heather sent from Scotland by the mother of the bridegroom.

The matron of honour, Mrs. G. Raymore Scott, sister-in-law of the bride and the bridesmaid, Miss Jean Eastwood, were gowned alike in Madame Pompadour frocks. The tight bodies were of white silk net, the bouffant skirts of white silk net, scalloped at the edges, and worn over shorter slips of crepe de chine, enriched with filet lace. With these frocks were worn large black velvet hats, long white kid gloves, silver shoes and stockings to match. The bride's attendants carried arm bouquets of deep crimson Hoosier roses.

Little Barbara Vining Scott, attirver hair bandeau and shoes of pink crepe de chine, with a pink and silver hair handeau and shoe of pink suede with stockings to match, and Master William Andrew Scott, wearing a white sailor suit, niece and nephew of the bride, made charming little flower bearers. They carried a basket of pale pink butterfly roses and baby asters.

Mr. Wilfrid Huycke was best man. Ushers were Dr. Raymore Scott, brother of the bride, Mr. Mark Burnham, Mr. John Harstone of Toronto, and Mr. Frederick Hills. The gentlemen of the wedding party wore buttonieres of white heather.

During the signing of the register, a violin solo, the "Meditation" from "Thais," by Massenet, was beautifully rendered by Miss Edwin Palmer, L. R. A. M., who wore a frock of old gold brocade with large black hat and corsage bouquet of columbiaroses.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, at 286 Hunter street, West. Dr. and Mrs. Scott and Miss Scott of Carlton Street, Toronto, a cousin of the bridegroom, received the guests at the entrance to the living room, which was arranged with roses. At the front of the fire place banked with springeri, lilium rubrum and Easter lillies, the bride and bridegroom and their attendants also received. Mrs. Scott, mother of the bride, wore a gown of patentia ble French cut velvet over a slip to match, with hat en suite, muskrat fur and corsage bouquet of mauve Michaelmas daisies. Miss Scott was in black and whhite, with corsage bouquet of orchids, and Mrs. G. R. Raymore of Toronto, the bride's grandmother, who was present for the occasion, wore black crepe with corsage bouquet of orchids.

Following the reception, refreshments were served in a marquee on the lawn. The bride's table was centred with the bride's cake and Dresden baskets at each end and were filled with sunset roses and lily of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts left later by motor for Port Hope, en route on a motor launch trip to the Thousand Islands and up the Rideau River, after which they will reside at Hampton Court Apartments, Toronto. The bride's travelling costume was of snuff-colored Poiret twill, trimmed with grey squirrel fur, with small snuff-colored Gainsborough hat, faced with black, black patent leather shoes and snuff-colored stockings.

Out of town guests present at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Bartle, E. Bull and the Misses Bull, Mr. and Mrs. John Eastwood, Mr. and Mrs. E. Douglas Huycke, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lightbound, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews and Miss Jessie Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Mullin, Mrs. L. MC. Pinkerton, Mrs. H. S. Raymore and Miss Raymore, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Raymore, Mr. G. S. Raymore, Miss Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, the Misses Elizabeth and Catherine Scott, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Vining and Miss Margaret Vining, all of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Britton of Gananoque, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mercer Denholm of Blenheim, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Matthews and Mr. and Mrs Donald M. Waterous of Brantford, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morris, of Westmount, Quebec, and Mrs. J. J. Milltkin of Delora.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, OCTOBER 4-5.

Sunday's horoscope favors all ecclesiastical and charitable associations and activities, but assumes a rather checkered aspect toward affairs of a general nature. False friends, sickness and disappointment are presaged.

Those whose birthday it is may reap some success in business during the year, but they should care for the health and beware false friends. A child born on this day should be equipped to surmount difficulties in business.

Monday's astrological forecast is one of difficulties and hazards in business of a speculative nature, and warns against new enterprises and all money asks. Law and quarrels should be shunned and those in employment should be careful.

Those whose birthday it is should refrain from all speculative or untried business during the year. They should shun disputes and litigation and be very careful if in employment. A child born on this day may meet difficulties in life because of its extravagance, indolence and over-fondness for pleasure, unless given early training in industry and thrift.

Now —
Warm Oats every morning

Doctors urge oats for breakfast, because oats start the digestive organs functioning naturally and regularly for the day. Combined with milk or cream, they furnish nature's most nicely-balanced nourishment.

Wisely select the food, and you will promote sound health in all the family.

Now you may have warm oats every morning, no matter how rushed the breakfast hour is, for Quick Quaker cooks while coffee boils. From 3 to 5 minutes is all you need to make wholesome, appetising porridge.

Quaker Oats and Quick Quaker are made from the cream of the oats crop. Only ten pounds in each bushel of the finest oats are sufficiently rich and plump to be placed in the Quaker cartons.

Quaker Oats for those who like the large, regular-cooking flake. Quick Quaker for those who want the Quaker Oats quality and flavour—but quick cooking.

Only in sealed, dust-proof cartons, bearing the picture of the well-known Quaker. Your grocer has both kinds. Use the one you like best.

MRS. FRASER AND MISS COLLETT TO BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP; SEMI-FINAL CLOSELY CONTESTED

ONE BETTER THAN PAR

"Glenna" Had Best Medal Score. Taking 40 on Each Nine For an 80.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 3. —(Canadian Press). —An international match between Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, and Glenna Collet, of Providence, will decide the 29th women's national golf championship at the St. Louis Country Club to-day. Both women won yesterday in matches so closely contested that one of them ended on the home green and the other went 19 holes.

Mrs. Fraser, who held the title for five successive years closed her semi final match with Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, by sinking a 40-foot putt on the19th green for an eagle 3. Miss Collett, champion in 1922, had a score one better than par for 18 holes to win by one up from Edith Cummings, of Chicago, who won the title in 1923 by defeating Alex Stirling in the finals.

Miss Collett had the best medal score of the day, taking 40 on each nine for an 80, as compared with par 40-41-81, while Miss Cummings was second with 41-41-82. Mrs. Fraser was one stroke behind with 39-44-83. and Miss Fordyce took 42-42-84.

Miss Collett was one over par on only two holes, and she got three birdies and scored the other 13 holes perfectly.

Mrs. Fraser owed her close victory to two long and lucky putts on the first hole. At the start of her match she sliced out of bounds and then, driving another ball, put her second on the green and sank from 70 feet for an eagle 3 on the 395-yard hole and a real birdie with the out of bounds stroke added, when this hole was played at the 19th, the Canadian repeated the performance, except that she did not lose one out of bounds and the telling putt was 40 feet long.

Slicing beset Mrs. Fraser several times after the first hole, but she made good recoveries in most cases.

The cards:

Par Out 9 4 3 5 5 4 3 5 6—40.

Mrs. Fraser —Out—443 555 346—39.

Miss Fordyce — Out — 546 455 346—42.

Uar In—553 655 345—41—81.

Miss Fordyce—In—563 645 454 —42—84.

Extra hole:

Mrs. Fraser—3. Miss Fordyce, 5.

The other match was even more fight, although it ended without extra holes. Neither ever had a lead of more than one up ,and it was a question of which would have the lead when they reached the final hole Affairs broke so that Miss Collett had the advantage ,and she was the winner, although Miss Cummings, to show her nerve, sank an 8-foot putt at the hole for a half in birdie four, although it could do her no good.

The cards:

Miss Collett—Out—543 455 356 —40.

Miss Cummings —Out— 543 655 355—41.

Miss Cummings—In—462 755 444 —41—82.

FIVE HITS OFF FIVE OFFERINGS IN FIVE AT BATS

Jimmie Dykes in Hammer Fest Against New Yorkers.

COMMITS BATTERY.

Boston Reds Making it Unanimous Against the Senators.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3—(Canadian Press). — Philadelphia defeated New York here yesterday, 10 to 0, in a contest requiring but one hour and fifteeen minutes to complete. Jimmy Dykes created what is believed to be a major league record when he made five hits off five pitched balls in five times at bat, included in Dykes' work for the day was a triple and a home run, the latter being registered with two men aboard. Score:

Phihladel. .. 230 000 23x—10 16 0

SENATORS READY AND CONFIDENT

Taper Off With Signal Drill and Light Run—Chased Home.

TENTATIVE LINE-UP.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3— (Canadian Press).—Signal practice at 5 o'clock, a light run for those who desired it, and then coach McCann chased the Ottawa Senators home to rest until to-day at 3 o'clock when they meet the M, A. A. A. team at Lansdowne Park in the opening game of the big four rugby football union.

Trained to the minute and fully confident of victory, the Senator squad showed another brilliant turn in their signal drill this afternoon. They are keen on starting the race with a victory, and the men are pulling together in splendid style with only one aim in sight.

While nothing definite was given out by the coach after yesterday's practice, from inside sources it was learned that the squad will line out in the following order: flying, wing, Emerson; halves, Miller, Tuhman; Connel; quarter, James, snap, Bruce, insides, Ketchen and Cote; middles, Timmis and Monohan; outsides, Young and Anderson; subs, Mulrooney, Ault, Grace, Lynch, Umphrey, Curry, Pritchard, Herbert, Ruelle, Chevrier and Kirby.

This looks like one of the strongest teams that has paraded in the Red, White and Black for some years and critics on the inside are of the opinion that they will just about hold their own with any team in the Union.

BIRDS BALLOON FOR FALL AGAIN

PARK SOGGY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3. —(Canadian Press). — Hits at opportune times for Louisville, mingled bases on balls at inopportune times for Thomas, gave Louisville the second game of the junior worlds series here yesterday, 3 to 1. The Association champions thus became two up on the Baltimore internationals in their quest for minor league supremacy.

A heavy field handicapped pitchers and fielders alike, although remarkable catches by the two left fielders cut off what would have been extra-base blows. Baltimore handled the wet ball faultlessly, while Louisville made two errors.

Joe Deberry kept the Birds five hits well scattered, their single run in the third inning being the result of a hit and two errors.

Baltimore .. .. 001 000 000—1 5 0
Louisville .. .. 101 000 01x—3 8 2

Thomas and McKee; Deberry and Meyer.

DIAMOND TIPS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Charles E. Rigler and Barry McCormick were yesterday appointed as the National League umpires for the world's series by President John A. Heydler. They will have charge of the series together with two umpires to be appointed by President B. B Johnson of the American League.

Coveleski, Premier Pitcher, May Be Out Of Series Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3. —(Canadian Press). —The possibility that Stanley Coveleski may be unable to participate in the world's series developed yesterday when, after days of treatment, sore muscles in the veteran hurler's back failed to respond favorably to treatment.

Coveleskie, who has been looked upon by Manager Harris to share the bulk of the hurling with Walter Johnson, first felt the soreness in his back during a fielding drill last week. The prevails that the spitballer is suffering from a muscle strain.

If Coveleskie is unable to take his turn in the series, it was indicated that Alex. Ferguson, the right hander recently obtained from the Yankees, will be used in his stead.

ULSTER SUSPENDED.

Sent No Team To Timmins For Ontario Cup Semi-Finals.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Suspension of the Ulster United Association Football Club, its officials and players until further notice has resulted from the failure of the club to send a team to Northern Ontario to meet Timmins in the semi-final for the Ontario Cup. The Ontario Football Association thereupon declared the Claremont team of the Oshawa and District League, Southern Ontario Champions. This club will leave for Timmins on Thursday next. The semi-final will be played on the following Saturday, the winner to meet Hamilton Westinghouse for the cup.

BIG FIGURE OFFERED FOR STAR DEFENCE

New York Hockey Club Would Give Boucher 5-Year Contract.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3. —(Canadian Press). —The New York Hockey Club, Inc., through its manager, "Tommy" Gorman, has offered the Ottawa Hockey Association $10,000 for the services of George Boucher, star defense man of the Ottawa hockey team. Frank Ahearn, owner of the local team, has the offer under consideration. Mr. Gorman, accompanied his offer with a marked cheque for the amount mentioned.

Mr. Gorman is understood to have proposed to double George Boucher's salary and to give him a five-year contract.

Referring to his offer, Mr. Gorman stated tonight: "It is a lot of money but I feel that George Boucher is worth it. He is a brilliant stick-handler and would make a great impression in New York. He will not be sold or traded if I secure his services."

RESERVE FORCE OF TEAMS SHORT

One Injury Might Wreck Either of Series Contenders.

MANY OLD PLAYERS.

Reserve strength is a vital factor to be considered in doping the chances of the Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the world's series. They are too good ball clubs, representative champions out of a pair of hot races in which their opposition extended them to the very last. They have good pitchers, good catchers, good infields and good outfields.

Yet either team could be wrecked by one injury as the reserve strength on the bench is not of the usual championship calibre. One spike turned in the ground, one blow from a batted or pitched ball, one slip on the grass and the whole tide of battle might be turned in the series.

The Senators had a narrow escape in the world's series last fall. The team was fortunate in going through the season without serious injuries and the lack of reserve power was not apparent until Peckinpaugh pulled up with a charley-horse and had to sit on the bench.

Injury Halts.

Bluege had to be moved over from third base to stortstop and Miller, who was not even a minor league infielder, had to be used at third. Poor Miller, trying with all the gameness of a real fighter, found himself up in every pinch and he was almost useless. The Senators, of course, finally beat the Giants, but it was luck more than class that dropped the Giants in the last game.

Bucky Harris learned his lesson from that experience and he got busy this year and collected some veteran reserves. He got Mike McNally from the Boston Red Sox but Mike didn't hold up and was passed to the minors. He secured the veteran Deacon Scott from the New York Yankees but Scotty is not good for many games and he has slowed up to a walk. He picked up Joe Harris from the Red Sox also and found him very handy when Joe Judge was hit on the head with a pitched ball in Detroit and was forced to the bench for weeks. Harris is not the best of fielders but he is one of the most dangers batters in baseball.

Harris also picked up Bob Veach from the Red Sox to use him as a pinch hitter and for occasional duty in the outfield. He also had Nemo Leibold for spare duty in the outfield and a youngster Jeanes.

Good Assistance.

As catching reserves the Senators have the veteran Hank Severeid and young Tate. Muddy Ruel, who has been doing most of the work behind the bat, is badly worn from the strain. He is a little fellow and has to work chiefly on nerve. He is a great little catcher but his work fell off badly late in the season, the loss of strength showing chiefly in his poor throwing to the bases.

The Pirates received a heavy blow when "Lucky Johnny" Rawlings, perhaps the best utility player in baseball, broke his ankle late in the season. His work at second base during the final drive of the Pirates was a piece of art and without him the Pirates certainly would have had more difficulty if they did not actually lose the pennant.

As utility infielders the Pirates have the veteran Stuffy McInnis, who can still bat even if he is as slow as a truck, and Ens and Thompson. The team would be in a serious plight if anything happened to Traynor or Wright.

In the outfield the Pirates have as reserve, Carson Bigbee, a good relief man, and Haas, a youngster. Bigbee has slipped a lot in the last two years but he is still good for a game or two.

Giants Strong.

Compared to the brilliant reserve staff the Giants had in the world's series last year the utility men of the two champion teams this year is decidedly ordinary. It is not fair, however, to compare any team's secondary strength to that of the Giants because John McGraw has recruited more high-class reserves than any other two teams in baseball.

The Pirates, however, will be much less liable to need reserves than the Senators. The Pirates are comparatively a young club and the players can stand the wear and tear better than the veteran Senators. If anything should happen to Peck during the series, the Senators probably would blow their chances.

CINCINNATI, Ohio., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Hendricks was reappointed manager of the Cincinnati National League baseball team yesterday. His contract will run for one year.

ATTENTION, AUTOMOBILE OWNER!

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE

Sells for 2c More a Gallon —and is worth it

1 The Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has never made, or sold, but two grades of gasoline—White Rose and Red Seal. Our Red Seal sells for 32c a gal.

2 They are pure as gasoline can be made.

3 For nearly a half-century White Rose Gasoline has been sold for more a gallon than the market price of ordinary gasoline.

4 White Rose is the only gasoline for which those who know its merits have willingly paid a higher price for nearly fifty years.

5 White Rose Gasoline is made by a Company that drills its own wells, owns its own pipe lines, tank cars and refineries.

6 The sale of White Rose Gasoline has increased from a few hundred gallons to many millions of gallons a year.

8 The results claimed for White Rose Gasoline are based on facts gained from actual usage and not on theory or experiment.

9 Recently, there have been many "price" imitators of White Rose Gasoline. But never has White Rose had a "quality" imitator.

Continuous use of WhiteRoseGasoline will soon convince you of these facts:

11 That it creates a smooth, turbine-like flow of power—never jerky, cranky, sputtery or "bomb-like."

12 That White Rose Gasoline will "drive" your engine to the maximum of its capacity.

13 That White Rose Gasoline can not injure in the least those finely-machined parts with which it comes in contact.

14 That the instantaneous ignition of White Rose Gasoline gives you that most desirable feature—"pick-up."

15 That White Rose Gasoline makes your car run more quietly and smoothly, because it "pushes" instead of "blasts" its way through to the exhaust.

17 That it gives greatest load-mileage.

18 But, only at the end of a year's daily use of White Rose Gasoline will you fully appreciate how much it has saved you. This evidence you will obtain by a comparison of your engine repair-bills as against those of the previous year.

Lu-ar-co Motor Oil Saves the Silk Surface of Polished Steel

Lu-ar-co Motor Oil is softer than velvet. It prevents friction of moving parts. It allows noiseless freedom. It has "body" that withstands the severest heat, always preventing metal-to-metal contact.

Lu-ar-co Motor Oil forms a perfect protective film between rings and pistons, between pistons and cylinder walls. This prevents escape of "gas" into the crank case, prevents excess oil reaching valves and plugs to form injurious carbon.

These are the reasons why White Rose Gasoline sells for 2c more a gallon—and is worth it.

Latest Comment on Grain and Industrial Markets.

Closing Quotations on Principal Active Stocks.

Viewing the stock market in the role of a barometer few will now question its accuracy. Its forecast of improved business conditions has been verified without a doubt. Nevertheless the public had to pass through its period of scepticism before it would accept "the tale of the ticker." Now that they are beginning to see for themselves that the market was right a wave of optimism is beginning to make itself felt.

Long after the market entered upon its uphill struggle against "business blues" the great mass of people who felt the pinch of lean conditions and leaner profits failed to realize that the tide had turned and continued to grumble. Now they are willing to admit that things are looking brighter although the improvement is more marked in some quarters than others. Probably all lines of enterprise will feel the impulse in due course.

Changing Trade Cycles.

The business world is familiar with trade cycles and it seems quite likely that we are now passing out of a cycle of depression into one of expansion and buoyancy. Its duration depends largely on world wide conditions bus as a general rule these major swings last for some years and there is little doubt that broadly speaking the trend of events in Europe in particular favor an extended period of business expansion. The movement now in progress in the direction of the recognition and consolidation of war debts will result in an economic accomplishment of vital importance and form the basis for fresh strides towards recovery by the war-stricken nations of the old world.

Embarking On New Era.

Canada, as a growing producer of natural products which many overseas countries, as well as the United States ,require, stands in an excellent position to benefit by re-establishment of normal international conditions, There is reason to believe that, despite some handicaps which may be remedied in time, this country may be embarking on a period of growth and expansion which will mark an era to be remembered in the history of the Dominion.

There is a tendency to regard a federal political contest as a disturbing factor in a business sense but in the present instance the fight is largely one of party leadership rather than vital changes in policies. In any event should there be any feeling of unsettlement it is bound to be of short duration as the country will have given its decision in less than a month and the country can proceed to develop along the favorable lines which have been shaping for months past.

Transportation Interests.

Now that it is felt the business skies are clearing and a more optimistic feeling pervades the country the stock market is beginning to feel impulses from quarters which have hitherto been dormant. It is a good sign to witness returning interest in shares representing the transportation interests of the country, which, by the way, are one of our greatest investments, and, unfortunately, inadequately represented in the list of securities dealt in on our exchange.

Transportation issues, are, in themselves, a great barometer of business within a country. The shares of the Canadian Pacific Railway, once active in the local market, are no longer dealt in here, New York and London being the chief markets. It is interesting to note, however, that there has been a decided improvement in the price of C.P.R. in the past few weeks. This is in a very large measure due to the improvement in current traffic receipts but the better outlook for the Dominion as a whole must be taken into account weighing the reasons for the upturn.

Popular Leaders Act Well.

This review would be incomplete without reference to some of the stocks which have been foremost in the public eye in recent months. Brazilian Traction is an outstanding example. This stock appears to have consolidated its forward movement around 72 to 74 after a brilliant performance by moving up from around 50 early in the year to close to 75. A heavy volume of selling has been absorbed with a minimum of reaction and great confidence exists in influential quarters that the company has a brilliant future which will be demonstrated more strikingly as improving national conditions in that country are emphasized in the improvement in exchange which will be reflected in the future dividend policy of the enterprise.

The action of Montreal Power as the leader of the public utility group has also been a source of great strength and the future holds out hopes of an entirely new phase of its market position when the time comes to make a change in the trading units.

Substantial improvement has also taken place in a number of other power and utility stocks and this group promises to retain its popularity. The increase in the dividend in Shawinigan to an 8 per cent. basis, combined with the creation of valuable rights to a new issue stock, was a constructive step which tends to confirm the public's preference for such issues.

Buying Motor Shares Speeded Up Movement

NEW YORK, October 3. Canadian Press. — Broad buying of motor and popular industrial shares added impetus to the forward movement of stock prices to-day. Short covering, promoted by yesterday's vigorous recovery accounted for sharp upturns in many issues while general rise was accentuated by the usual crop of announcements and rumors regarding favorable combines, earnings and larger dividend payments.

European Difficulties Bring Lower Prices For Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Influenced by reports of difficulty in disposing of wheat to Europe, wheat prices averaged lower to-day during early dealings. On declines in market, however, commission buying of future deliveries increased and rallies ensued with demand chiefly from the north-west and from foreign quarters. The opening 1-8 to 1 1-4c lower, December $1.24 to $1.24 1-2 and May $1.36 to $1.36 3-8, was followed by numerous changes and then by an upturn to $1.36 1-4 for December and $1.37 3-8 for May.

CAPACITY AUDIENCE FOR RETURN OF POPULAR PLAY 'BLOSSOM TIME'

The "Ottawa Free Press" says: A capacity audience greeted the return of "Blossom Time" to the Russell Theatre. The great New York success which packed the Russell when it was here three years ago opened its three-day engagement this season most auspiciously. The splendid melodies of Schubert and a responsive audience made it a bright spot in the early season.

On the road for over three years, "Blossom Time" has survived bad times which have wrecked innumerable other shows, and it enters a new season as popular as ever. The big audience which attended the performance enjoyed every moment of it.

"Blossom Time" is built on a firm foundation. In it nothing has been attempted of the bizarre; there are no departures from the beaten track such as have been attempted to provide new thrills for jaded New York in recent seasons. In fact, it is a return to the old and tried in musical comedy. Some years ago musical comedies were all cut from the same pattern and they depended on their catchy music, the singers, the comedians—or Montgomery and Stone—to win popular favor. In "Blossom Time," chief reliance was placed on the interesting high lights, historical and otherwise, of the life of Franz Schubert, youthful genius, who in a short life ran the gamut from grave to gay, from powerful to trifling in the world of music, yet never dropped to the level of the commonplace. Interest to the lover of Schubert lies in the fact that this year rounds out the even century since Schubert was at the peak of his ability and fortunes.

Is Charmingly Arranged.

There is no gainsaying that the musical score is charmingly arranged. Light interludes give place to the magnificent melodies of Schubert, and incidental touches of great passages keep reminding the audience that here is music. Jazz is no doubt enjoyed by many who have seen "Blossom Time" and by many who were at the Russell, and it is proof of something intangible but mighty in Schubert that this show has been and is yet so successful.

The company playing at the Russell contains some capable and talented artists. Arthur Huson, as Franz Schubert, was quickly recognized as not only the possessor of a fine baritone voice, but as an actor of parts. Admirably adapted to the role he must be in personality, for there are passages where mediocrity would ruin the whole performance. He was particularly fine in the well-known and beloved "Song of Love." Another member of the company who must be mentioned among the first to whom attention is paid is Warren Prostor (Baron Von Schober) Mr. Proctor has a voice of rare charm and in his sevegal numbers was forced to respond to encores which stretched out the performance to after 11 o'clock.

Divide the Honors.

Mary Powell and Lillian Wagner divide the honors of the female cast. Miss Powell, as Mitzi, is well placed in a role that abounds in opportunities for a versatile performer. Possessed of a voice that demonstrated some fine qualities, she made the most of her allotment, and was also quite acceptable as a commedienne. Miss Wagner is vivacious and charming. Her role is also versatile, no attempt having been made to write the parts down to the general run of musical comedy players. Thus it is that good companies must always be the rule for "Blossom Time." Miss Wagner as Bella Bruna has moments of greatness in the light and the heavy. In her opening melody and in the second act in "Let Me Awake," she impressed her audience as the possessor of a fine voice which she was well able to play upon. In "Keep it Dark," a number with the male quartet, she gave a performance that was immensely enjoyed and that won the popular verdict, to judge by the number of encores to which she was forced to respond.

William Sellery, as Kranz, carried the comedy at a high level. His lines and his handling of them probably made many regret that the old time comedian does not find a place in more of the modern shows.

In dancers, chorus girls and minor players the company in Ottawa is rich, and the performance was so excellently rounded out that it would be hard to find fault with any part of it.

Mention should be made of good work by Mary Stockwell, Doris Miller, Ruth Meier, Allan Mathes, Ray Green, Sano Marcov and Don. MacLuskie.

BIG CROWD TO GREET PREMIER

Renews Plea For Liberal Members From Western Canada.

CALGARY, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—With the exception of the open air demonstration in Quebec East, Premier King Thursday night faced the greatest crowd of his campaign.

The Prime Minister, in his argument, pressed for the return of Liberal members from the West. "I have come," he pleaded, "to make a special appeal to Western Canada to help the Government to govern the country. We want the voice of the West heard on every move and every policy."

CANADIANS HELD BY AMERICAN COURT

Two Port Colborne Men Were Captured Running Liquor Cargo.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Federal Grand Jury action awaits George King and Joseph McIntyre, both of Port Colborne, Ontario, who were captured recently by coastguards of the Erie, Pa., station, while attempting to land a cargo of liquor near Dunkirk. The Port Colborne men appeared before United States Commissioner Cook here yesterday and, following a preliminary hearing, were held in $4,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

GAME POSTPONED.

Rain of Friday Made the Grounds at Falls Unplayable.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — The O. B. A. A. Senior championship game between Kingston and Niagara Falls, scheduled for this city to-day, has been cancelled on account of wet grounds. The heavy downpour of yesterday left the playing field in bad condition. The game will be played sometime next week.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The golfer is always cautioned to relax, but he gets a better grasp on the precise manner of the swing, I think, by acquiring such facility with the club through other channels than merely making his muscles entirely resistless. It accomplishes nothing for the player to do that because he immediately becomes so loose that control of the clubhead is lost. The best road to the correct degree of relaxation is found through working with the head—and by that I do not mean through thinking exactly. I mean through maintaining the sense of balance with the head. Balance is in itself the result of a restrained relaxation of the muscle system. When you throw a ball or a stone you maintain the body's position—or balance—with the head. The same thing applies to the golf swing. The head is always used as the counter-balancing agent. That is why you hold it still, as the saying is.

U. S. FIGURES ON IMMIGRATION

More Than Quarter Million Aliens Entered Country in Past Year.

100,895 FROM CANADA.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Canadians to the number of 100,895 immigrated to the United States during the last fiscal year, said a report issued today by the Department of Labor. The number of Canadians returning home, the Department said, was 2,217. While a total of 284,314 aliens was being added to the population of the United States during the year, 92,728 already in the country emigrated to their homes. The backward flow was so marked as to several nationalities formerly important in immigration totals, that there was a net loss of their numbers in the United States.

LEADER EXPLAINS ANTI-COMMUNISM

MacDonald Says He is Opposed to Revolutionary Methods.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Explaining his opposition to the Communists in the Parliamentary Labor Party conference here, J. Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, and former Premier, is quoted in an interview as declaring:

"I opposed the Communists at the Labor Party conference because I am not revolutionary. I don't believe in revolution. The vote against the admission of Communists to the Labor Party was an indication of sanity of the trades union movement.

"Socialism and Communism are two different things. The Socialist Party aims at getting to its object by constitutional methods.

"I don't want support of the Communist party, and I am not moved by their abuse. The Labor Party can carry its own burdens without their assistance."

FIFIELD UPHOLDS HIS CHAMPIONSHIP CLAIM

Maintained Two Handed Attack All Through Ten Round Bout.

TORONTO, October 3. Canadian Press. — Aggressively maintaining a two handed attack throughout each of ten rounds, George Fifield of Toronto, supported his claim to the Canadian welterweight championship by defeating Bert Schneider of Montreal, 1920 Olympic champion, in the final bout of the International sporting club's show at the arena last evening. The Toronto boxer was faced by a plucky and determined foe but left no doubt as to which man deserved the decision. Fifield at 145¼ pounds outweighed Schneider by a pound and a half.

Bobby Ebber decisively outpointed Frank Porto of Pittsburgh in the other ten round bout. It was little more than a good hard work out for Ebber who had command of the situation at all times.

FORKE AGAINST CUT IN TAX ON INCOME

Is Fairer Than Customs Tax Says the Progressive Leader.

TOULON, Man., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—"Mr. Robb, Minister of Finance, has announced that if the Government is returned he will reduce the income tax. I am not in favor of it," said Robt. Forke, Progressive leader, here Thursday night. "It is the simplest tax and is paid by those who can afford it. It is much fairer than a Customs tax," he said.

PLENTY PRODUCE AT LOCAL MARKET

Things to buy were many and of varied type at the farmers' market this morning. The basket section was flowing over with poultry supplies, butter and eggs, and on the open market ,the curbs were lined with carts whose contents spilled over with onto the sidewalks.

Chickens were priced from 25 to 30 ceints a pound, hens at 23 and 25 cents, ducks at 27 and 30 cents and a lone big goose at 30 cents a pound. Eggs were selling generally at 43 cents a dozen, and butter at 43 and 45 cents a pound. Cream was 25 cents a pint.

Downstairs, potatoes were priced at $1.50 and $1.75 a bag. Winter onions were 50 cents a peck. Tomatoes were 25 cents a basket and appeared to be of excellent quality for such a late period of the season for these vegetables. Other vegetables were priced just about as usual.

Apples were plentiful. Snow and St. Lawrences and Tolman Sweets were 40 cents a peck, Crabapples the same price and Alexandras were were 25 cents a peck. Strawberry apples were 35c a peck. Blue and green grapes were 25 cents a measure. Pears were 50 cents for a large basket. Damsons and small, old-fashioned red plums were 35 cents a basket. Baxter apples by the bag were priced at $1.50, with Wealthies at $1.25.

Upstairs there were fine looking Asters at 2 dozen for a quarter and 25 cents for the larger ones, with cosmos ,marigolds and gaillardia.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

'SMOULDERING FIRES' CLOSES TO-NIGHT AT ROYAL.

"Smouldering Fires," which has been attracting large audiences at the Royal, where the ladies largely outnumbered the men the last three days, closes its run to-night. Its chief appeal is mainly for the ladies, and if you are of the feminine sex you should avail yourselves of this last opportunity to-night.

COUNTRY STORE NITE MONDAY.

Instead of the groceries usually given Monday at the Royal, twenty-five baskets of pears, apples, tomatoes, etc., will be given to the lucky ones. These prizes are worth a lot more and are easier carried away.

"WILDFIRE."

George Broadhurst's Famous Stage Success at Royal Monday—Racing Drama Made Famous By Lillian Russell.

Not satisfied to have just a few flashes of racing scenes for "Wildfire," Vitagraph sent its entire company to Havana, Cuba, to bring back the most thrilling race episodes that could be "shot." T. Hayes Hunter, who directed the picture, spent several weeks at Oriental Park and finally got some actual race stuff, flying horses, yelling crowds, thrilling finishes and regular race-track atmosphere that, worked in as the big punch of the play, will carry motion picture fans right to the track and make them live as part and parcel of the greatest sport in the world—well termed "The Sport of Kings." All the extras in these scenes are unconscious motion picture actors, for they were the real patrons of Havana's beautiful race-course. They didn't have to be rehearsed because they were acting as their real selves—didn't know they were being photographed—were intent only on the whirling thoroughbreds that carried their hopes and their money to victory or defeat—and as a result "Wildfire" promises to be one of the most realistic racing dramas, ever to come to the screen. This picture will be shown at the Royal Theatre on Mohday. Aileen Pringle is the star and she is ably supported by Edna Murphy, Holmes Herbert, Mary Thurman, Edmund Breese and a number of other well-known film players.

CONVICTS LOOK ON AS TOM MEIGHEN "BREAKS JAIL."

There's one prisoner less in Sing Sing.

Tom Meighen, a convict-for-a-day for scenes in his newest Paramount picture, "The Man who Found Himself," a prison story written especially for the star by Booth Tarkington recently broke jail, hopped from a brief visit a fast moving freight train, which carried him to freedom while several hundred inmates of the "college on the Hudson" looked on with a half-hearted "they-do-it-in-the movies" grin.

In "The Man who Found Himself" which will be the feature at the Capitol Theatre on Monday, Tom as vice-president of his father's bank in a small Hudson River town, is suspected of having taken a considerable amount of bank funds for his own use. A rival banker puts the examiners wise. Result: a two year vacation "up the river" for the star.

By frustrating an attempt on one of the guards, Tom is made trustee and he takes advantage of his new position to make his escape when he hears that "the girl back home" is to marry the man who sent him to jail through trickery. So out he went, while prisoners peering in the barred windows high above the courtyard wondered just how far they would really get if they tried the same thing.

Virginia Valli is Meighen's leading man in the production which was adapted for the screen by Tom Geraghty. Frank Morgan, prominent figure on the Broadway stage, is Tom's rival in business and love. Others in the cast include John Harrington, Norman Trevor, Charles Stevenson, Julia Hoyt and Lynn Fontanne.

OBITUARY.

HAZEL ADAMS.
LINDSAY, Oct. 3.— The funeral of the late Miss Hazel Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Adams, and niece of Mr. J. B. Adams and Mr. George W. Mulligan, all of Peterborough, took place yesterday to Riverside cemetery.
The deceased, who had been a member of the business staff of the Lindsay Post for seven years, passed away suddenly on Wednesday morning from heart trouble.
Mr. George W. Mulligan, of Peterborough, assisted in the funeral services at the home of her uncle, and also rendered a solo.

ALEXANDER AUSTIN.
The deceased was born in Scotland in 1848. He came to Canada about 40 years ago and has lived in the County of Peterboro the past thirty years.
He leaves to mourn his loss beside a sorrowing wife, six sons and two daughters: George of Port Hope, William of this city, Malcolm of Hamilton, Robert of Toronto, Henry of this city and Norman, staying at home; Mrs. William McLean of this city, and Virginia at home.
The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 from Comstock's undertaking parlours. The Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, will officiate.

MRS. W. E. McILMOYLE.
The death occurred yesterday of Annie Bullock, wife of W. E. McIlmoyle of Smith Township. Mrs. McIlmoyle, who had been ill only a few days, was born in Smith Township 58 years and 5 months ago. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Willis and Kenneth, both at home. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the family residence, Concession 12, Smith, to the United Church, Young's Point. Interment will be made in Lakefield Cemetery.

PHILLIP JAMES HEASLIP.
There passed away yesterday, after a long illness, an old resident of Peterboro, Phillip James Heaslip, aged 68. Mr. Heaslip, who was employed in the Quaker Oats Mills, had lived in the city for 30 years. Surviving him are his wife and two sons, William of New York and Thomas of Chicago; two daughters, Mrs. Varley of New York and Mary at home in Peterboro, and three brothers located at Ottawa, Gananoque and Toronto.
The funeral, which will be conducted by the Rev. A. J. Langford, will take place from the family residence, 241 Gilmour Street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

NEARLY DOUBLE HYDRO RATES MAY DRIVE USERS OFF LINES IN NORTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP

Township Council May Call Meeting to Discuss Critical Situation.

REASON FOR RAISE.

The virtual doubling by the Hydro Electric Commission of the domestic rates for electric power in North Monaghan is agitating householders in the township suburbs, some of whom are said to be considering the action of discontinuing the service, and others have been urging Warden H. B. Rye to call a special meeting of the Council to discuss the increases with a view to protesting against them.

The rates becoming effective on November 1st are said to override those made by the suburban householders with the Peterboro Utilities Commission when the Commission's power lines were extended into the township and power supplied to many of the residents living on the city's fringe. According to the information given The Examiner, it has developed that the Utilities Commission exceeded their rights under their contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission when they sold power outside the city. Their operations were to be confined to the municipality of Peterboro, it is stated, and the Hydro-Electric Commission has stepped in with an order, the result of which means an increase of $11 or $12 a year in the cost of electricity to the average householder in North Monaghan. It was pointed out that the extensions were made with the city's Utilities Commission by the individual consumers, and although the Township Council is not involved it might be willing to call a meeting of the ratepayers in order that the domestic power situation could be fully discussed. It is also understood that no further extensions may be made except by the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Even at the increased cost the annual expense for power to the North Monaghan family is said still to be less than the cost of kerosene, apart from the convenience of electricity for lighting and other domestic uses.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

The two political parties were well represented at the Millbrook Fair yesterday. Among those noticed on the grounds were the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., Minister of Immigration, accompanied by Mr. J. J. Duffus, Honorable and Mrs. Vincent Massey, the former the Liberal nominee for Durham, also his opponent, F. W. Bowen, M.P. and Mrs. Bowen, and Mr. Roland Denne.

WEDDING BELLS.

CONVERY—KEMP.
A quiet wedding took place at 7 o'clock this morning at the George street church, when Wilhelmine Mildred, daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. Kemp, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John Hugh Convery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Convery. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd.
The bride wore an ensemble suit of black and cocoa color, with hat and scarf to match.
Mr. and Mrs. Convery, who were unattended, left later for a honeymoon trip, after which they will reside in Toronto.

MAHER—HEFFERNAN.
The Sacred Heart church was the scene of a very pretty wedding this morning at eight o'clock, when Geraldine Aloysia, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Heffernan, of Romaine street, became the bride of Mr. Charles Maher, of Washington, D.C.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. O'Brien.
The bride looked very pretty in a gown of orchid French crepe made with circular godet flares and silver lace trimming. She wore a panne velvet hat, silver brocaded shoes and stockings to match. She wore the gift of the groom, a stone marten neckpiece and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.
The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Heffernan, who wore a dress of sand crepe, and velvet hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.
Mr. Moher was attended by Mr. Geo. Heffernan, of Lakefield.
As the bride entered the church the wedding march was played by Mr. Armstrong.
After leaving the church the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's mother, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The dining-room was tastefully decorated with white streamers and bells and autumn leaves. The table, centred by the cake, was decorated with white and pink asters, candles and silver candlesticks.
The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a beautiful crepe scarf, to the groomsman a pair of white gold cuff links.
Later Mr. and Mrs. Moher left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a dress of maroon flat crepe, maroon hat and Hudson seal coat.
The young couple will make their home in Washington, D.C.

SOME NEW RASPBERRIES.
Mr. Henry Kerr, of 80 Hilliard street, brought in a sample of raspberries picked this morning from a plant that has already borne a good crop earlier in the season. The berries are of as good a quality as the earlier crop.

Y.W.C.A. ANNUAL AUTUMN RALLY

Gym Was Filled With Members and Friends For Meeting

ADDRESSES GIVEN.

The annual Fall Rally of the Young Women's Christian Association was held on Friday evening in the gymnasium, which was filled to capacity for the occasion.

The programme opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of George Street Church. Rev. Mr. Todd also spoke in terms of high praise of the splendid, well-equipped Y.W.C.A. building and of the influence exerted by it and its classes over the lives of the young women under its roof.

Mrs. T. Cruikshank, whose address was entitled, "Why Join the Y?" gave an eloquent little discourse on the manifold advantages to be derived from membership in the Association, both because of personal benefits accruing to the member and because of the opportunities given for service to others. She also referred to the splendid staff, and to the ever-ready service to the girls of Mrs. E. Morrison and the Misses L. Brownscombe, C. Littlefield and M. Storey.

"Why Join the Gym?" an address by Miss Thelma Paxman, pointing out the advantages of physical exercise, was illustrated by a series of Swedish exercises, given by Mrs. Harold Yelland and the Misses Gertrude Gimblett, Marjorie Lawrence and Florence Roberts. An Irish Jig was also performed by the Misses Hazel Laing and Hazel Bradley.

"Why join the swimming pool?" was the title of Miss Grace Allen's address, illustrated by a tableau in which the Misses Marion Wood and Mary Kingsbury took part.

Miss C. Littlefield spoke briefly, announcing the commencement of fall classes on Monday, with a new class for leaders, giving instruction in teaching games, etc., to be formed on Tuesday evening.

Papers on the Intellectual side of "Y" activities were given by various young ladies. Miss Florence Murray spoke on "Why Join Home Nursing and First Aid?" with a tableau given by her two sisters, the Misses L. and F. Murray; Miss Kathleen Cooney spoke on "Why Join the Ukulele Club?" to the accompaniment of soft ukulele music played by Miss Grace Cunningham; Miss Ethel Garbutt's subject was "Why Join the Basketry Class?" with a weaving tableau presented by Miss Jean Anderson, and Miss Dorothy Pogue's address on "Why Join a Y.W.C.A. club?" was illustrated by several young ladies in turn. Miss Gertrude Pinch, representing the Cumjoyngs Club, Miss Annie Whitwetsh the Cheerio Club, Miss Olga Reynolds, the T.M.T.M. Club, and Miss Rhoda Cullen, the Ever Bright or Sunshine Club.

In the Religious Section, Miss M. Graham's paper on "Why Join a Bible Study Group?" was illustrated by Miss Mabel Bettes in Japanese costume. "Why Live at the Y.W.C.A.?" by Miss Agnes Stout, who spoke of the many good times enjoyed and the friendships formed; also of the kindness of the superintendent, Mrs. E. Morrison, was illustrated by Miss May Carvin, representing a newcomer to the Y., and the addresses were concluded by a talk on new classes by Miss Leta Brownscombe, who mentioned the English literature class to be taken by Miss Margaret Hamilton, with books suggested for study in "Hamlet" and "St. Joan," the Household Workers' course, in cookthe junior sewing and cooking class, the junior sewing and cooking class. Miss Brownscombe also announced a Leaders' conference to be held at Stoney Lake next week end. This is for girls from the various classes who are interested in the all-round programme of the Y.W.C.A.

The presentation of First Aid certificates were made during the evening by Dr. G. S. Cameron who congratulated the members on the progress made. A musical selection was given by Stewart Wilderes and a recitation by Miss Marion Dryland.

The service of light refreshments brought a very successful evening to a close.

LIQUID GOODS TAKEN IN RAID

Westcott Street House Yields Three Barrels—Alleged Owner Missing.

DEFENDED BY DOG.

Three barrels of bottled liquids labelled Scotch whiskey and beer were seized yesterday at the home of J. "Solly" Siegel 172 Westcott Street, by License Inspector Stewart and Provincial Constable Maker.

Siegel disappeared during the raid, but will answer in the police court on Monday morning to a charge of having liquor for sale, according to the assurance which his lawyer, J. A. O'Brien, gave to Constable Maker.

Inspector Stewart was unable to estimate the quantity of the alleged booze, but it required two men to lift each of three barrels.

"We didn't examine all the way through them," he told The Examiner, "but you can get an idea of the quantity from the fact that they are big salt barrels, two of them full of wrapped bottles and the third has about nine bottles missing.

"When Constable Maker and I called Friday morning at Siegel's house, the first west of George on the north side of Westcott Street, we found all the doors locked. I stayed there, and Mr. Maker went uptown to ask the city police for assistance and Constable Thompson joined us. We were also expecting to find Siegel uptown. He was told that he was wanted at the house, and when he came down he raced by. After a while he came back and stopped, and threatened us about going on his premises. I asked him to open the door, but he refused. I told him I was going to stay, and he said, 'Well that will be a long time.' I told him that was nothing to me, that I could stay as long as it suited me.

"We broke in the back door and found the barrels in the kitchen. Mrs. Siegel was there and sicked a police dog on us. I grabbed a long poker and drove it away, and then Constables Maker and Thompson searched the house on the warrant we had, but found nothing more. We took the three barrels to the Court House and stored them in a cell there."

Heard Of Tragedy By Radio In West Canada

A poignant feature in the Dr. Mann tragedy of last week has just come to light. Relatives here have received a message from G. Willan Mann, the aged father of the doctor, who has been travelling through Western Canada, intimating that he first heard the appalling news of his son's death while listening in on the radio. He immediately got into communication with his son George who is located in the West, and on whom fell the melancholy duty of confirming the sad tidings.

MAID ASPHYXIATED.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Jessie McLeod, aged 27, a maid in the employ of T. G. McConkey, in the Rosedale district, was found asphyxiated by coal gas in her room at the house of her employer this morning. The furnace door had been left open and the young woman was suffocated as she slept. Other occupants of the house escaped. It was found that the window of Miss McLeod's room was not open.

PROTECTION FOR WORKERS IS KEYNOTE OF RALLY SPEECHES

Supporters of E. A. Peck Gathered in Committee on Saturday.

MANY SPEAKERS

Policies of Party Were Explained by Various Speakers at Meeting.

The large hall of Mr. Peck's committee rooms was filled on Saturday night for the weekly rally of the workers in the Conservative interests in the riding of West Peterborough, and addresses on the policies of the party by the candidate and other members of the party were heard with great attention and enthusiasm. V. J. McElderry, president of the association, was chairman.

Mr. Peck was the first speaker. He reported that he had held meetings in the northern part of the riding during the week which had been attended by good audiences who had given him, Mr. Bradburn, and local men a fair hearing.

Referring to an article over the signature of the Hon. G. N. Gordon in the Examiner of Friday, Mr. Peck said that according to that article the Conservatives were simply after Mr. Gordon personally, but really, he said, the Conservatives are after the MacKenzie King Government. Mr. Gordon has a right to have a good opinion of himself and to express that opinion at his own expense through the columns of any newspaper, but, said Mr. Peck, "He might have left me alone." He then quoted from the article in question. "It is unfortunate, from a Liberal party standpoint that the election is not being fought on the record, achievements, and ability of the candidates alone. If that were the deciding factor then there would be no doubt of the outcome." Referring to the sentences quoted, Mr. Peck said that there was no doubt that Mr. Gordon was a man of ability, but that in speaking of comparing the

RUSSIA RETURNS TO WET REGIME

Private Manufacture and Sale of All Varieties is Permitted.

NEED REVENUE

MOSCOW, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—After eleven years of partial prohibition, Russia yesterday became completely wet, whiskey, brandy and liquors containing sixty per cent. of alcohol, and vodka of forty per cent. strength, again appearing in the cafes, restaurants and stores. Several hundred thousand bottles of pre-war liquors of various kinds were automatically released for sale at from $1 to $4 a quart.

Heretofore the Government had maintained a monopoly of the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors but under the new order private individuals will be permitted to make and sell liquor. Many influential Communists, including the widow of Nicolai Lenin, were opposed to the abandonment of prohibition, but the Government's need of revenue, the improvident use of wheat and rye by the peasantry in making vodka, and the wholesale traffic in illicit spirits, prompted the Government to return to the wet regime.

EASTER FIXED PERMANENTLY

Will Be Second Sunday in April Every Year, Says League of Nations.

CHURCHES AGREE

VANCOUVER, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—The first steps toward the reform of the calendar to divide the present year of 12 months into 13 months, have been taken by the League of Nations Committee on Calendar Reform, in fixing the date of Easter permanently on the second Sunday in April, beginning 1928.

Moses B. Cotsworth, of Vancouver, director of the International Fixed Calendar League, Saturday, announced the receipt of news from the committee that the unanimous assent of all the great Church authorities had been secured to make this change.

It is the first essential step accomplished toward winning the more important benefits of calendar reform, said Mr. Coatsworth. The proposed 13-month year will be a gain to all humanity, he said.

The plan is to make the last day in each year an international "year day," and divide the 52 weeks into 13 months.

The new month, "Sol," is proposed to be made from the last two weeks of June and the first two weeks of July. Each month would consist of four complete weeks like February, 1925, and all times for earning and spending would be equal or exact multiples of each other.

STORM CENTRES AROUND FORMER CROWN PRINCE

KEPT IN CASTLE

Father of Girl Has Gone Insane and Feeling Runs High.

BERLIN, October 5. — United News. — The village of Oels is indignant over former Crown Prince Wilhelm's behaviour in connection with his reported attachment to Hilda Rattich, an engineer's daughter, according to a special correspondent of the Montag Morgen sent to investigate the charges recently made in the Prussian Diet by Socialist Deputy Muller.

Muller declared that the former Kaiser's son was keeping the girl in his castle at Oels, and that her father was declared insane and committed to an institution the day he attempted to take his daughter from the castle, where he became actually insane before released.

According to the newspaper investigation, the feeling over the fair is running high, particularly among the women, who say that the former Crown Prince's favorite is wearing silk stockings that Wilhelm bought in Oels for his wife. The girl's father is barred from his family, living with sisters who are very poor. His wife favour. Hilda's attachment to the former Crown Prince.

Wilhelm is "still the buoyant youngster, dressed in the height of style, with his hat familiary cocked," the Montag Morgen's correspondent says.

GANG RIVALRY CAUSES DEATHS

Fourth Victim Was Killed Today in New York Coffee House

TALKED TOO MUCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press). — Enmity between rival gangs of East Side gunmen, which resulted in the killing of three gangsters, one of whom was found shot to death in a burning sedan, was blamed by the police for a fourth killing to-day.

Irving "Chuck" Madonick, a taxi-cab driver, was killed in a Roumanian tea and coffee house in the East Side by two gunmen who pursued him from the street. The police said they were convinced Madonick was killed "because he talked too much."

WEATHER

Another shower last night added almost one-third of an inch (.30) to our already super-abundant supply of rainfall. The trees are commencing to show their autumnal tints, and in some cases the leaves are already falling. As there has not been a severe frost as yet they lack the brilliant and variegated hues that are sometimes seen, but a few days may make a difference, and the song of the poet may be literally true:

"Ah, autumn roads are red and bronze and glowing as a flame; each one of them is like a torch, yet no two are the same. Each one of them is like a glow from vast sunset sky, and each one makes the pulse to thrill, and makes the heart beat high. Oh, autumn roads are luring roads that call us from afar, that bid us win to that dim place where great adventures are."—W. P.

TURKISH DISPUTE AREA

This map shows the relation of the disputed Mosul province to Turkey and to Iraq, as part of which it is meantime being administered. The temporary frontier agreed to at Brussels last year, and known as the "Brussels Line," runs east and west immediately north of Amadia. The shaded area beyond it is the scene of the Turkish deportations reported, concerning which a protest has been lodged by Britain with the League Council. The inhabitants of this small region are Assyrian Christians, who have asked to be included with Iraq.

BOURASSA HAS MANY PLANKS IN HIS PLATFORM

Predominance of Canadian Interests With Proper Protection.

WARNING TO CITIES

Plea for Better Understanding Between Races—All in Address in Labelle.

MONT LAURIER, Que., Oct. 5.—Canadian Press. — In a fifty minute address, Henri Bourassa, protagonist of Nationalism, yesterday afternoon opened his campaign in Labelle, the constituency for which he has pronounced himself an independent candidate. Mr. Burassa's eloquence held an audience of 2500 people in rapt attention while he propounded the policies that he would adhere to if he was favored with their suffrages: — Canadian interests to pre-dominate over all other interests; opposition to this country engaging in any preferential policy that is not based an advantage to Canada; protection to industries that deserve to be protected and particularly so regarding those which are engaged in the manufacture of Canadian natural resources; a warning that unless Toronto and Montreal changed their policy with respect to the railways, tariff and banking, the west would seek separation from the remainder of the country; and a plea for an understanding between the two major races in Canada based on goodwill and equal treatment of cinorities were the chief points of his delivery.

In the first World Series, played by the Pittsburg Nationals and the Boston Americans in 1903, Tommy Leach of the first-named team made four base hits in one game, a record that never has been eclipsed in the big series.

MEIGHEN TALKS ABOUT RAILWAY TO WESTERNERS

TO COST $3,000,000

But If Government Figure is Right, Work Cannot Be Done.

UNITY, Sask., October 5. Canadian Press. — Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, in a rear-end platform address here yesterday, told an informal gathering of citizens of this town that if the On-to-the-Bay Association was right in its estimate that the Hudson's Bay Railway could be completed for $3,000,000, then there was no reason why the work should not be compelled before another election. If on the other hand, he added, "as the government had said last session, it would take from thirty to fifty millions to complete it, it can't be done."

TOT KILLED AND THREE INJURED

Motor Cars Concerned in Two Accidents in Toronto.

ONE MAN HELD

TORONTO, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press)—Two-year-old Helen Reaume was fatally injured Saturday night when struck by a motor truck driven by Arthur Kennedy. The child died of a fractured skull. Kennedy was taken into custody on a charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Margaret Cameron, aged 35; May Simpson, aged 3, and Mary, her sister, aged 8, were seriously injured last night, when struck by a motor car driven by Hugh C. White of Orangeville, Ont.

White was not held.

MEDICINE NOW; SYRUP LATER, PREMIER SAYS

Heckler in Vancouver Brings Retort From Government Leader.

FIRST INSOLENCE

Australian Treaty Lauded and Favorable Points Outlined to Big Crowd.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Premier King addressed an audience here on Saturday night which packed the large arena to the doors.

As earlier in the day at New Westminster, the Prime Minister spoke largely on the developments of overseas trade, more particularly of trade via Pacific ports, and this phase of trade development not only echoed through all the speech, but found expression in the long series of political mottoes hung from the galleries and even in the decorations of the platform.

"Building the British Empire on the North Pacific" ran one device. "Every ship that ports in Vancouver leaves $10,000 with you," ran another; "More grain, more elevators, more work," was a third. On the platform were small sheaves of grain to remind the audience of the increasing westward flow from the prairies.

"When the Prime Minister was here last," said Hon. Mr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, "he told you that it was the policy of the Government to develop the trade of Canada, and what was the result?"

"Nothing," the heckler commented.

Laughter interrupted the proceedings. Dr. King retorted that under the present Government an unfavorable balance had been changed to a favorable balance of trade.

Premier King was speaking later when the heckler shouted:

"Tell us your policy and cut out the bull."

The interruption created an uproar.

"Across the whole continent," the Prime Minister shot back, "he is the only man insolent enough to interrupt in the way he has interrupted."

An outburst of applause greeted the retort.

The Prime Minister spoke of Mr. Meighen's policy of protection. "It's the same dead horse he rode before," he exclaimed.

"Tell us what you're going to do," persisted the heckler.

"Take your medicine now," Premier King warmly retorted. "You can take your soothing syrup later."

Subsequently he was stating that the Government could have stayed in office—

"As long as old Forke helped you," the heckler broke in.

"'Old Forke' has given us a lot of help, but he also has given us a lot of trouble," returned the Prime Minister. "We are asking for a majority large enough to enable us to govern without fear or favor from any party or individual."

Moderate Tariff.

On the railway rates, Premier King declared he could not see how Canada could be kept together except by a policy of rates applied fairly to the whole Dominion. He outlined the tariff policy of the Government as one of moderation, designed to encourage both Canadian unity and the wider British unity. He took up the Australian treaty, describing it as primarily in the interests of British Columbia, but to the interest also of the whole Dominion. He declared that if it could be shown that the treaty was injuring British Columbia, the Government would not hesitate to give six months' notice of its termination. He pictured the treaty as drawing closer the bonds of Empire. "If," he explained, "we, as Canadians, increase our trade relationships with other parts of the Empire, we are certain to become on more intimate terms with them and cannot fail to strengthen those invisible links which we, as Britishers, are all most desirous of strengthening. That, we believe, is the most practical and most sound expression of loyalty to our great league of free nations known as the British Empire."

"And yet with these Australian people," he went on, "we have hitherto had comparatively little business intercourse. Last year Canada's exports to Australia were only $13,000,000. At the same time Australia sent to Canada about $2,000,000 worth of goods. The total trade with Australia then was only about $2 per head of population. Therefore the Government had decided to try to enter into some arrangement with brother Britishers at the other side of the world."

Under the treaty Australia gave to Canada the preferential tariff on many kinds of dried or canned fish, her intermediate tariff on certain iron and steel commodities, some rubber goods and vehicles such as automobiles.

Further, Australia allowed Canadian newsprint and many kinds of printing paper to enter free. "In a word," added Mr. King, "the industries most benefited by the Australian schedules are fisheries, vehicles and our immense paper industry. You will note that here on the coast you have two of the industries, fishing and paper manufacture."

Critics might say that the arrangement would bring Australian agricultural products into direct competition with our own, but Australia had an exportable surplus of many agricultural commodities which were not produced in Canada and would not therefore compete with our products.

TRADE CONDITIONS BASES OF LIBERAL CAMPAIGN SPEECHES

YOUNG CANDIDATE

W. C. COMSTOCK
28 years old, who is Liberal candidate in Leeds.

Comparisons Made Between Administration Periods of Both Parties.

BIG CROWD THERE

Hon. G. N. Gordon Replies to Manifesto Issued by Mr. Peck.

A resume of trade conditions obtaining to the Conservative and Liberal administrations, coupled with suggested comparisons regarding immigration and the flow tide of Canadians to the United States, formed the basis of an enthusiastic meeting at the Liberal Committee Rooms on Saturday night.

The accommodations were taxed to such a degree that many were obliged to stand, remaining in that position throughout the course of the speeches.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, J. A. Dewart and R. R. Hall, K.C., were the main speakers on the programme, while J. J. Hartley, as chairman, threw the meeting open with a neat, encouraging address and sandwiched enthused comment between the statistic-crowded references of the candidate and his two supporting orators.

In his introductory words, Mr. Hartley welcomed the assembled people, and said that if such enthusiasm as was manifested by their attendance continued, then there would assuredly be a grand majority rolled up for the Liberal candidate, Hon. G. N. Gordon. He also predicted that when the returns were in on October 29, all would see the Liberal government with Mackenzie King as leader, returned with a good majority.

There were several peculiar features in this campaign, Hon. G. N. Gordon stated. Women and the younger generation were taking more interest in the issue than ever before, and this promised to provide pleasing features.

In the first campaign he did not expect that he would be elected but decided to remain in; as a result of that decision, he was sent down to

SECURITY PACT CONFERENCE IS STARTED TO-DAY

All World Must View It With Goodwill, Says Austen Chamberlain.

MEET AT LOCARNO

Formal Welcome Given Delegates by Mayor Rusca.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, October 5. — Canadian Press. — All the world must view with good will the efforts of the participants in the world war to get away from the bitterness of the past and lay the foundations for better relations in the future, the British Foreign Secretary, Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain told several hundred correspondents today before proceeding to the opening session of the security conference. Mr. Chamberlain was plainly astounded by the presence of so many newspaper men.

The inaugural meeting was formally opened shortly after 11 a.m., by Mayor Rusca. After his speech of welcome he retired as all the sessions of the conference are being held in private.

The delegates arrived promptly on the hour in automobiles, led by Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, who was followed in turn by the Italians, French and Germans.

M. Vandervelde of Belgium, however spurned the luxury of a motor car and arrived democratically on foot.

CYCLE OWNERS' REGISTRATION

Peterboro Dealers Express Opinions on Resolution Passed at Convention.

TO PREVENT THEFTS

With the object of ascertaining the views of local dealers on the resolution passed by the Canadian Bicycle Dealers' Association at the annual convention held in Hamilton last week that a 50c registration fee should be charged for bicycles, The Examiner approached three men in the industry on Saturday.

Frank W. White, Charlotte Street, who was the only Peterboro representative at the convention, enthusiastically endorsed the proposal which, he said, was entirely in the interest of cyclists, and was in no way advocated as a benefit to the dealer. The registration fee, he explained, must not be regarded as a tax. It would be merely for the purpose of defraying the expense to the municipality of registration and issuing of a metal tag as a means of identification. It would not be reasonable, he said, to expect the local body to assume the financial obligation of the scheme. This system would be an invaluable aid in the tracing of stolen bicycles.

Mr. White said he would go even further than the resolution, in favoring the institution of a system of records in which a person before selling or trading a bicycle which he had used would have to intimate his intention to the police who would look up his record, and, if everything was all right, would O.K. the deal.

In passing the resolution, said Mr. White, the Association was looking directly to the interests of the cyclists. "Anything that gave protection or assistance to the cyclist eventually had a beneficial effect on the dealers.

The proposal, he said, was strongly urged on the Association by Traffic Officer Wraxley, of Hamilton, who said that the average number of bicycles stolen in Hamilton had at times reached 7 per day. Bicycles were so similar in appearance that recovery was rendered

SALVATION ARMY WORK AMONG BOYS

LAUDS POLICE CHIEF

The preventative work of Chief of Police S. Newhall, in keeping youthful offenders on the paths of rectitude is enormous and the bulk of it has remained unknown to the general public. This tribute to Peterborough's Chief was paid by Commander Arthur J. Smith in the course of an interview on the work of the Salvation Army among the underprivileged children of this and other cities. Instead of haling the young delinquents into court for minor offences, the Chief's method, according to the Salvation Army officer, is to have them brought to the station; where he points out the folly of their conduct and its probable consequences if persisted in—mingling reproof with salutary advice and warning. In 95 per cent of the cases, said the Commander, these delinquent children give no further trouble to the police.

Self help is an ideal kept in mind by the officers of the Salvation Army in their work among the rising generation. "There is no pauperization in our boys' work," he said. "We believe in a man or boy earning the bread he eats. At our Scouts' Camp at Jacksons' Park, the boys are encouraged to earn the money to pay their way."

Commander Smith explained that long experience had taught the Salvation Army that a boy appreciated anything he had earned by his own efforts much better than what he had given to him gratis. To get to the camp this year, boys delivered milk, sold papers or did other odd jobs for weeks before the opening. The chief advantage of this method, said the commander was that it gave the boy a feeling of independence and preserved that self respect which indiscriminate charity was apt to undermine.

One of the first things done when the Army gets hold of a boy whose religious training is neglected, is to have him brought into touch with some of the junior organizations. An endeavor is made to get him interested in music and in the work of the band. If he joins the band he is given every encouragement to buy his own uniform and to contribute his mite towards the funds of the band. Sometimes, because of the financial stringency of himself or his parents a boy finds it entirely impossible to provide his uniform—in which case the Army gives him every assistance in getting his equipment. "Saved to Serve," is a motto that is inculcated in the boys as they grow up. In most towns, the Senior bands are largely recruited from the Junior organization. This is the case in Peterborough, where the majority of the members of the fine Salvationist Band have grown up in the Salvation Army. Commander Smith spoke exultingly of the thrill of gratification he experienced in returning to Kingston, Ottawa, and other cities to find the young lads who he had brought into the band, grown up into stalwart manhood, and linked up with the band of their corps. The services of the bandsmen are entirely voluntary. They receive no remuneration for playing at the Army services or for fulfilling engagements. Each man buys his uniform, pays for his music, and in addition hands in his weekly offering—his cartridge to use Salvation Army phraseology—to help in defraying current expenses. The Commander also laid stress on the fact that the bandsmen gave ungrudgingly of their time in other directions, taking part in other Army activities throughout the week.

RIFFIAN APPEAL WINS A HEARING

BORAH FAVORABLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Riff appeal for peace intervention by America occupied the attention of official Washington Friday. Senator William E. Borah urgently seconded the Riff proposal; the Administration urged that France would resent any official American overtures; the opponents of Joseph Caillaux pointed out again that the Riff war was taking French money which should be applied to war debts.

American officials take the position, however, that France would rebuff any American overture to act as intermediary, and the Administration is unwilling to risk rejection of its good offices.

"It is a singularly pathetic, a tragic thing, that neutral nations are to be prevented from lifting a voice in behalf of peace in the case of the Riffians," Senator Borah said.

"As I understand it, these people have never been conquered and are fighting now for their lives and their liberty. France is spending $1,000,000 a day in this conquest, and very likely will sink $200,000,000 or $300,000,000 before she is through trying to subdue the Riffians.

"Sidi Mohammed's appeal for peace makes a particularly deep impression upon me. It seems to me to be a very earnest and sincere appeal and it asks nothing more than fairness and justice and the right to be left in possession of the liberties these people have traditionally had.

"I would be in favor of having this Government offer intervention and if France rejects it, then at least we shall have done what we could to end this waste and struggle and France will have the responsibility for the continuation."

The cable asking intervention has been thoroughly reconsidered at the State Department, and President Coolidge has similarly given it study. He is understood to be concerned also with representations made to him that, in effect, every dollar allowed France in concessions on her debt will be used in the expensive adventure against the Riffs.

TRADE CONDITIONS

Parliament with a majority, and Mr. Gordon avowed that the returns from the coming election would be more startling than the former one.

Grain Shipments.

Mr. Peck, he said, was busily engaged in sending forward data regarding the industry of Canada. An excerpt from one manifesto stated: "Of the grain exportation to Europe and other Continental countries, three-fourths goes by the Port of New York, instead of by Montreal and our other ports. Again our laborer suffers."

Replying to this, Mr. Gordon quoted figures from the grain export records. During the period of 1922-1923, 129,871,095 bushels of Canadian grain was exported through United States ports, while 86,874,668 through Canadian exits. Accordingly 42,996,427 bushels of Canadian grain or 60 per cent was shipped to foreign countries through American ports.

In the Meighen regime of 1921-1922, 70 per cent of the export crop went out through U. S. ports, as 100009,466 bushels were exported through Canadian shipping terminals leaving 57,437,346 bushels more through U. S. ports than through Canadian.

In other words, Mr. Gordon pointed out, under Mr. Meighen there was 25 per cent more of Canada's exported grain sent by United States ports than during the term of the present government, and Mr. Meighen did nothing to stop it. The three-fifths that Mr. Peck says now goes through United States ports is less than when the government he advocates was in power.

Regarding farm implement trade for the fiscal year of 1921, the exports to all countries amounted to 12,527,373, while the imports totalled $24,450,834, while in the fiscal year of 1925 the exports were $11,342,712 against an import bill of $6,494,986, a situation which was an exact reversal, said Mr. Gordon, as while in the Meighen administration imports doubled, exports in the last year of the King government exports practically double the imports.

A certain import trade was essential, because one country cannot expect to sell goods in another country if certain purchases are not also made, although it is admittedly good business if a country can buy one-sixth, and sell six times as much.

The trade with Great Britain and the recently introduced pact between Australia and Canada were commented upon favorably, reference being made to the good certain to accrue to various Peterborough industries including flour mills, foundries and the packing house.

Favorable Balance.

As an indication of the favorable trade balance which Canada was maintaining, Mr. Gordon stated that for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924, Canada had imported goods to the value of $195,385,632 from the British Empire, but the aggregate of exports from Canada to the British Empire was valued at $436,475,719.

The tariff reduction on autos excludes U. S. manufacturers from the Australian field, hence certain value will result in the trade which the Canadian subsidiaries of the General Motors and Ford plants are assured of obtaining.

As a further indication of the favorable trade balance which the King Governmetn has been striking, Mr. Gordon recited figures from a report on the trade of Canada, in which it was shown that duties collected on dutiable imports had decreased since 1920 from $112,359,703 to $79,345,250.

Manufacturers state that when the duty is increased on raw products, there is certain to follow a corresponding increase in the production cost and the ultimate selling price. These factors continue to cut the purchasing power of the people, and when the purchasing power is depleted, conditions known as "hard times" follow.

The policy of the Liberal party included an aim to fill the open spaces of the West, and for that reason the change in the portfolio was contemplated wherein Premier King intended vesting Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, with the Cabinet appointment which would create him Minister of Immigration.

The Canadian West cries out for immigration, and with such a man as Premier Dunning at the head of the department, that need will in all likelihood be satisfied, Mr. Gordon said.

Contradictory Statements.

Mr. Gordon then taxed Mr. Meighen with being at variance with himself, as he is now the exponent of high tariff when on January 18, 1911, he is recorded as saying in regard particularly to implement duties advocating a substantial reduction in the tariff:

"The conditions of manufacture at the present time do not warrant a very material duty of any kind.

"I think I will convince the House that there is very little, if any, difference in the cost of production of these machines on this side of the border and in the United States.

"They (the manufacturers) are able under this tariff to exact a higher price than they could exact if the tariff were lower. It (the reduction of the tariff) will accord some relief to consumers and I believe it is the bounden duty of government to so afford it."

Mr. Gordon, commenting on this, stated that Mr. Meighen's views were in this, as with other matters, subject to rapid change.

The Reported Exodus.

Referring to the migration of Canadians to the States, the Liberal candidate presented the following statistics which, he said, would prove that the flow of native born Canadians over the border was no new thing, but existed in the Meighen regime as well. The figures were taken from the records

1913	128,299
1914	130,152
1915	128,602
1916	133,991
1917	149,060
1918	52,991
1919	74,712
1920	101,587
1921	83,607

The past three years show that those who have returned from the States have averaged 43,000 annually.

What Mr. Burnham Said

Mr. Gordon continued by referring to excerpts from some of Mr. Burnham's letters, which had appeared in The Examiner.

On Friday, July 16, 1920, Mr. Burnham was reported as having declared at a meeting of the West Peterborough Board of Agriculture "I will begin by making a confession; the Government at Ottawa is as bad as your roads."

"And," commented Mr. Gordon, "the roads were in a very bad state just at that time."

In a subsequent epistle, published in The Examiner, Mr. Burnham said: "It looks like a joke to read in your paper, Sir, that a lawyer got up in the National Liberal and Conservative Convention on Wednesday evening and tried to justify the holding on of power by the Meighen-Calder government by appeals to history. It is nothing better than buccaneering for any clique to step in and seize the Government without an appeal to the people. Why did not the Conservative Association officers call a business convention and give me a chance to be received by that party. Because the same tactics obtain here as there. The Conservative party was ignored and betrayed. The treatment of the Conservative party in this riding by its trusted officers is a disgrace and a shame."

"That," said Mr. Gordon, "was Mr. Burnham's opinion of Mr. Strickland and other officers of the Conservative party here."

In a letter dated January 15, 1921, Mr. Burnham stated regarding the Grand Trunk purchase:

"In the Grand Trunk purchase when Mr. Meighen introduced into the bill a clause guaranteeing common stock 4 per cent interest when it had not earned a dividend in twenty years and thus raised the price of millions of stock to be purchased by the government from 45 to nearly twice that and thus stuck Canada for millions, was I not right. It was the most barefaced transaction I ever saw. It meant that the masses of Canada were to be bled for the benefit of financial adventurers who always depend on this way of getting rich."

Mr. Meighen, added the speaker, was the same Mr. Meighen now as he was then and what Mr. Burnham stated then through the Examiner columns was just as true now and applied as aptly as it did in that first period of the Meighen administration. If he was not entitled to public confidence then why should such trust be reposed in him in this day and age?

In this campaign the Canadian National was the butt of much vituperation. Mr. Meighen has been assailing it at every angle and enlarging on the grievances such as entailed in the building of golf courses at summer resort hotels in connection with which he says nothing about the subsequent attraction which these places hold for tourists and the tourist industry is one which must not be belittled in these days.

Mr. Meighen has been heard to declare that in a certain period the Canadian people were due to be frozen out of their homes when at the same time there was more coal in the country than there had ever been before. But the harm did not stop there for the news about people being fated to freeze in Canada travelled and accordingly emigrants selected warmer climes. Mr Peck and his supporters were having a similar effect on the minds of their listeners when they spoke of the discouraging business outlook.

Canadian Trade

A summary of Canadian trade indicates the actual conditions. In 1921 there was an adverse trade balance of $29.7 millions. In 1922 the balance turned and was favorable to the extent of $6.1 millions. In the subsequent years it has been increasing until the 1925 figures show a favorable trade balance of $284.6 millions.

Whereas the Canadian dollar was worth 85 cents in the States it is now ranked above par and has held that honoured place for the past two years.

Mr. Gordon admitted that business was bad but when it was considered how the earning power of the nation was cut off by the war this factor can be accounted for and considered. A tribute was paid the western progressives when the speaker implied that the 65 men who represent that party are earnest and honest believing that they have a method of curing the countries ills.

Mr. Gordon stated that an advisory tariff board had been created of men who had had experience and could compare costs. The government also intends dealing with problems afforded by the textile industry. A favorable light is shown by the fact that the unemployment list here has remained the same instead of increasing as did that of the United States to 13 per cent under protection.

Men and women are not wearing the heavy woollens which they used to wear and a man with a few hundred dollars to invest uses it in the purchase of a car and paying monthly rents on an apartment. So in these days all that is left of the man's wages after paying for food and clothing and rent is the smell of gasoline on the highways.

Mr. Gordon gave the credit of his recent appointment largely to the city of Peterborough and said that he was now in a position such as would enable him to be of more value to the city than he had heretofore been.

All the work of building dams and tightening locks had added to the value of the city as a location for industrial enterprise. When the project under way at Lakefield is completed that place will be made to hum with activity.

The city will depend much on the Trent Canal System and as hundreds of thousands have been spent in the community by tourists any work placed uopn the system will be a good investment.

Mr. Gordon had no complaint against Mr. Peck but he declared that his opposition numbered supporters who were unacquainted with the issue.

"Notwithstanding the words of Mr. Ackerman and Mr. Denne, Peterborough will have a cabinet minister," concluded Mr. Gordon.

J. A. Dewart

"We have the best form of government which the mind of man can devise: If there has been bad government it is because of the lack of interest taken by the people. The government depends solely on the stamp of representatives sent down to Ottawa. If the country has 245 able men thoroughly conversant with world conditions the fate of Canada is in safe hands. This is the young man's country. To send down to Ottawa young men ability and integrity said J. A. Dewart open his address.

Continuing, he recounted incidents in the origin of the parties and the heritage which the present Liberal leader had given him by his grand parent, William Lyon Mackenzie.

Today each province has peculiar problems and it is up to the contending parties to work out policies which will benefit as much as possible all parts of Canada in a fairly equable manner. The merging of the Progressive party with the Liberals might be taken as a sign that the latter policy is covering the greater part of their difficulties.

Mr. Dewart said that Mr. Meighen was the worst advertisement which Canada had as he has been continually spreading wide the fact that Canada has been laboring under depression and repetition of bad times talk tends to become convincing.

Canadian exports of metals, raw hides, paper and wood advanced by millions of dollars and imports of soft coal decreased, because more was being used from the Alberta coal fields. The increased demand for raw cotton and rubber indicated that the textile and rubber manufacturing industries were becoming more active. The exodus of Canadians to the United States was 40 per cent. less than last year.

Encourage Basic Industries.

The King government adopted the attitude that Canada's four basic industries should be encouraged.

In 1921 King said he would reduce the tariff on all implements of production, and Meighen replied that it would drive out the manufacturers of Canada.

Following the subsequent lowering of the tariff lumbermen, farmers, fishermen and miners found that they could get their necessary tools cheaper than before.

In proof of this is Vincent Massey, a great implement manufacturer; who stated that there is no necessity for a higher tariff.

West Peterboro had no problem, said Mr. Dewart. For a man who could establish himself in Parliament as G. N. Gordon has done in four short years, attaining heights seldom reached by men who spend a life time there—certainly there should be no fear as to the outcome.

R. R. Hall, K.C.

One of the issues—the main issue in this election campaign, as conducted by Mr. Meighen—was the tariff, not the old National Policy, declared R. R. Hall, K.C., in his supporting address.

Mr. Hall then presented facts concerning the average rate of duty collected on merchandise entering Canada, which was subject to duty.

During the 18 years of the reign of Sir John A. Macdonald, "chief of high protection," the average rate of duty was 28.06 per cent.

Under Laurier from 1897 to 1911, there was a reduction of 1 per cent, and the average rate was 27.6 per cent.

During the regime of Borden and Meighen the collections averaged 24.28 per cent, and under King the figures show a percentage of 23.87.

PROTECTION FOR WORKERS

records he was suggesting that Mr. Peck had no record to speak of. Mr. Peck said that he (Mr. Peck) had been in Peterborough a long time. He had practiced his profession of law and had endeavored at all times to obtain justice. He had made many friends. He had also a political record. For a number of years he had served in the Council of the County of Peterborough, and for one year he had been honored with the office of Warden, of which he was very proud. For three years he had been the member for West Peterborough in the Provincial Legislature. Anyone might refer to the records of that house, said Mr. Peck, and find that one of the planks in his platform had been to get for the working men some means of protection when injured, and he had helped to put the Workmen's Compensation Act in the statutes of Ontario. He had always tried to promote the interests of working men and would not have accepted the nomination in the present election if he had not thought that he could be of assistance to the working men.

Mr. Gordon has a distorted notion of his importance, said the speaker. He is just a pawn and if the electors of West Peterborough sweep towards Mr. Meighen he will get his toes trampled and must take the consequences and shouldn't complain, while if the sweep were towards Mr. King Mr. Peck said that he would take the defeat without complaint.

Quoting further from Mr. Gordon's statement in the Examiner, "The electors of West Peterborough therefore, are justified in understanding from the Conservatives that there is no issue in this election except the question whether Conservative jealousy can turn G. N. Gordon out of office," Mr. Peck said that there were bigger issues than that. The MacKenzie King Government, said Mr. Peck, has failed, in its four years of office, to improve the condition of the country or to advance the interests of the working men, and will be judged on its record.

Mr. Peck said that he advocated a reasonable protection, and that it was of vital importance to the country that there should be protection for industry. If Mr. Peck and the Meighen Government were returned there would be some effort to improve conditions in the country, said the candidate in conclusion.

Mr. McElderry

Mr. McElderry spoke first of the debt of Canada, which he said had increased under the King Government, which had made no effort to reduce it.

Coming up the tariff next, Mr. McElderry said that it was simply a question of wages, and that without protection the workingmen were unable to get fair living wages. The Conservative party has always been the people's party, he said, in spite of the demagogues who charge it with catering to the big interests. It does not believe in stirring up class jealousies and in setting class against class to catch votes. No country can flourish if one class does and another suffers, whether it be the workmen who suffer and the capitalists who flourish, or capital which suffers while labor flourishes, as both must work together. To the south there is a country that pays big wages. In Europe the pay of the worker is much less, but his articles, made at a low rate of pay, cannot be sold in the United States. The United States imports half as much woollen goods as Canada does, he said, although there is thirteen times the population. This is not due to the fact that the Americans use less, but because goods of foreign make, produced under low wage scales, cannot compete with the home made goods after the high duty is paid.

What is needed in Canada, said the speaker, is protection for the wages earners, not a lot of immigrants who will come in while the cream of Canada's population goes to the United States, where their wages are protected. But there is a lot of missionary work to be done. The matter is everybody's business and it is up to all those present to talk of it, he concluded.

Frank Millard

The next speaker was Frank Millard, who said that he had left England a number of years ago to come to Canada where he would get some protection, as he had been tired of working part time under free trade in England.

Mr. Millard said that he had come from what had been the most industrial country in the world, Staffordshire, in the Midlands, or "Black Country" of England. Nearly twenty years ago, when he left, there had been much unemployment, with factories working part time, and now there are many of the great factories closed down, and Pittsburgh had taken the place of Staffordshire as the industrial centre of the world. He then proceeded to give instances of what had happened in his home town because of the lack of protection.

The first place he mentioned was a nut and bolt factory. At the time he left, said Mr. Millard, instead of having hundreds of men at work, as it had once had, there were only a few men and boys working, with one furnace, and bolts were being imported in carloads, [illegible] factory [illegible]

Mr. Millard said [illegible] never regretted [illegible] Canada, when properly [illegible] the finest country in [illegible] "This country," he said, [illegible] the same way as the black [illegible] if the King Government [illegible] Mr Gordon says that Ca[illegible] haven't gone to the United [illegible] said the speaker, but they have. "The people of Peterboro [illegible] take Mr. Gordon's bluff," said Mr. Millard. "Mr. Gordon may be a forcible speaker, but it is not always the biggest hen, or the one that cackles the most, that lays the biggest egg."

Mr. Strickland.

"The wail of the spoiled child of political fortune is becoming chronic," said J. F. Strickland, in commencing his address. "Apparently," he continued, "criticism must not be addressed to Hon. Mr. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker, Minister of Immigration." The people, said the speaker, are sick of being exploited. Mr. Gordon says that the country raises $300,000,000 by the tariff every year, said Mr. Strickland, whereas in 1924 she collected $108,200,000. A mistake of over $150,000,000 means nothing in his life.

Renfrew, said Mr. Strickland, has been held up as a place where the woollen industry is flourishing at the present time. In that town of some 3,700 people there are three small mills, one employing about 80 hands and the others about 100 each. They make such articles as mackinaw cloth, for which there is a demand for lumbermen and hunters. The only competition they have is from a few small waterpower mills which still exist in some villages and are usually operated by one family. They have no competition from other countries, making a product that is peculiar to Canada, said Mr. Strickland, yet the Liberals ask the people of Canada to judge the state of the woollen industry of Canada by the town of Renfrew. Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Dominion Textile Company, announced that he could no longer support the Liberal party because of the low tariff policy. Sir Charles had supported Sir Lomer Gouin in 1921, and Sir Lomer had since, being a man of honor, resigned his portfolio when he saw the results of the policy of the Mackenzie King Government. Which Gordon, asked Mr. Strickland, can we believe.

Speaking to the farmers, Mr. Strickland referred to the statement made by an officer of the egg pool that a higher price would have been received if the market in Canada were not controlled from Chicago. The lack of duty had permitted many carloads of low-grade eggs to enter Canada and be sold as Canadian eggs, to the detriment of the Canadian product. This gentleman had told the members of the pool that with proper protection on all products they would make up on eggs alone more than they would save on imported agricultural implements.

Referring to Hon. Mr. Massey, Mr. Strickland said that Mr. Gordon's opinion of the new Minister was very different from that of Frank Regan, a Liberal of long standing. Mr. Massey, Mr. Strickland said, was interested in the King Government because it had obtain for him $2,500,000 for plants in Germany and Austria. The Massey Harris plant in Batavia, New York, employs between four and five thousand employees while the Toronto plant, intended to employ 10,000, is providing work for about 800 people.

Mr. Strickland said that Mr. Gordon realized his unpopularity, but ascribed it to opposition to the big interests, whereas it was because the people expected some modesty, even from a Deputy Speaker or a Minister of the Crown. A poll among the members of the Peterboro Bar Association would reveal which of the candidates was most respected and liked by his fellow-lawyers.

Mr. Bradburn.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., urged his hearers to take no chances on what the country would do but to get out and roll up a majority for Mr. Peck in the city. He said that Mr. Gordon had said that no Conservative in Peterboro had spoken on the tariff, although every speaker had talked about it as being the main issue. Senate reform, advanced by the Liberal party, Mr. Bradburn said, would not do the workmen of Canada any good, as the whole Senate could be thrown into the Atlantic and it wouldn't make a job for one man.

Mr. Melton.

D. G. Melton was the next speaker. He said it was the duty of every one to patronize home industry, and that it was the object of the tariff to help people to do this. Words, he said, are not necessary, as the idle men walking the streets speak louder than any words. The charge that the Conservative party had made no suggestions could be disproved by Hansard, he said, as they had made suggestions which were voted down by the Liberals and Progressives. Mr. Gordon's description of the Senate as a house of irresponsibility was strange, as Mr. King considered it a worthy home for ex-Ministers and staunch party supporters, and must therefore be [illegible]

LAKE FISHERMEN SCO... THAT DEMON IS...

Claim That Monster is Much More Mysterious and Formidable.

WIGGLES ALONG TOP

Length is Estimated at More Than Twenty Feet.

KELOWNIA, B. C., October 5 — (Canadian Press).—Although J. P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries for British Columbia, declares that Lake Okanagan's mysterious "demon fish" is nothing but a big sturgeon, those who have seen the monster cavorting along the surface of this unusually deep lake swear that it is nothing of the sort. They claim it is something much more mysterious and formidable—perhaps a sort of sea serpent that has lost the way home.

James Mitchell of Summerland, for instance, declares that if it can be shown that the demon fish is just an every-day sturgeon he will eat it. There is another angle to the question.

The Retail Trade Bureau of Canada, characterizing the income tax as "the most unjust tax that was ever placed upon humanity," argues that the complete abolishing of this levy would increase the buying power of the Canadian people and create general prosperity.

The Progressive leader's solicitude for the income tax is easily understood, but it is not likely that his views will be endorsed either by the business world or by the thousands of Canadian men and women who have to work for their daily bread.

"The man who buys the article last is the fellow who pays all the taxes," points out E. M. Trowern, Secretary of the Retail Trade Bureau.

That is still another viewpoint that Mr. Forke seems to have completely missed.

THE BASIS OF CIVILIZATION.

If the greater includes the lesser, it is also true that the lesser includes the germ of the greater. John J. McGraw says that the success of organized baseball rests on discipline, and thereby he exemplifies one of the foundations of civilization; for there could not be such a thing as civilization without law and order. Obedience to authority makes for a sound social structure.

This postulate is not accepted by everybody. The anarchists are arrayed against law of every kind whatever, as well as against government. They insist that human happiness is to be found in every individual doing as he likes. They are fools. Nobody could possibly be safe in such a society, and without safety there could not be happiness—except perhaps the happiness of the absolute savage. The communist falls into a slightly higher category, because he does believe in something which might be called government; but his concept of government is a power which sees to it that the sluggard and the worker share everything in common with all other sluggards and workers. He leaves no room for the man of genius to earn a reward.

The extreme socialist, with his red flag, believes in discipline up to a certain point; but only for the class on which he puts the label of "Capitalist"—always with a capital C. For himself, he claims an exalted and peculiar freedom. In particular, he demands freedom of speech. The silent socialist is unknown. His talk is not all either unsound or untrue; but he is so far wrong on fundamentals that a socialistic society is unthinkable. Reduced to its primary elements, the main doctrines of socialism are opposed to that rigid measure of regulation which makes for law and order. A socialist would not, for example, fit into organized baseball.

Mr. McGraw gives us a glimpse of an important angle in that kind of discipline which has made organized baseball so conspicuously successful. He says that while authority must be absolute, and obedience unquestioning, it is inexpedient to treat all men alike. Temperament comes into the equation. Idiosyncrasies have to be reckoned with. There must be a glove at times for the iron hand. In a word, authority must not be senselessly autocratic and domineering. It must always be based on justice and common sense.

What has made organized baseball a shining success is what has made British law a thing entirely ...able. Obedie...e to authority is the corner ... all sound government; but it must be ...always just. No other would work ... It will seem paradoxical to ... is consistent with ...th that there ... That

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,

I accept fully Hon. G. N. Gordon's statement that the press misrepresented him. There is something else however, I would like to see cleaned up. As I came by a first class shop this morning, it was plain to me that the grapes in front were fermenting, where are the prohibitionists? But, what I want to say is this: "The Minister (Hon. G. How is Mr. Gordon himself in this matter? Mr. Peck's opinions are well-known. What are Mr. Gordon's It is an issue of this election.

A THOUGHT.

..HOW MANY FRIENDS HAVE.. YOU?

How many friends have you? It would be a source of great satisfaction for you to know just how many true friends you have. Perhaps I can help you.

First, answer these questions, and then you will be able to determine just how many real friends you have.

How many individuals in this world do you feel so friendly toward that you give them your entire confidence?

How many people do you accept with all their faults, and then forgive them for their faults without a question?

Are you generous enough to grant certain friends credit for their virtues in face of their faults?

Do you give some friends a good straight talking to right to their faces, when they go wrong, and then turn about and declare to the world that they are right?

Are you always ready to share part of your position or prosperity with certain people even at some personal sacrifice?

Are you always yourself, without any affectation, in the presence of these people?

If you will tell me the number of men and women you are absolutely true to in thought and action, you will have a line on the number of friends you deserve.

I. You cannot hope to have from others what you refuse to give to others.

This question of friendship means more than just acquaintanceship or someone you like. Friendship is a far-reaching word, and when we settle right down to the crux of the situation, we have few friends.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 536 cases, as against 3,019 cases for the same day last week, and 1,014 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending October 3, 1925, were 10,732 cases, as compared with 13,038 cases for the previous week, and 12,444 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1, 1925, to October 3, 1925, were 264,365 cases as against 295,525 for the same period of 1924. The receipts last week showed a decrease of 2,306 cases as compared with the previous one, and a decrease of 1,712 cases with the same week last year, while the total for the season to date has been 31,160 cases smaller for the same period of 1924.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending October 3, 1925, were 17,020 packages which show an increase of 107 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 18,815 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 26,181 packages in excess of the same period of 1924.

The feature of the week in the butter market was the lull in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies, owing no doubt to the very high prices now ruling here, and the fact that the demand from Germany in the English markets has decreased to some extent since the duty went into force. There was some business done over the cable during the week, but the volume was small and in consequence the trading was principally of a local character with the result that the market was quieter, but the undertone was steady.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending October 3, 1925, were 62,327 boxes which show an increase of 9,672 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 9,885 boxes with the same week last year, and the total for the season to date were 69,124 boxes larger than a year ago.

Cheese Market.

The tone of the market for cheese has continued strong since this day week, and spot prices closed with a net gain of 3-4 to 1c per lb, Western No. 1 white and colored being quoted at 24 3-4 to 25c per lb., and Eastern grades at 24 1-2 to 24 5-8c per lb., which are the highest for the season to date. A fairly active business was done, there being a good steady demand from English importers for supplies, and in consequence the competition for the offerings at country boards here was keen and prices ruled higher than a week ago.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—Lowest prices yet this season were reached today by future deliveries of wheat. The downturn accompanied news that importations of a considerable amount of Canadian wheat to Minneapolis for milling had been arranged. Wheat closed ner... us at 5-8 to 1 1-4 cents net decline, new style, December $1.34 to $1.34 3-8 and May 1.35 1-2 to $1.35 3-4, with corn 7-8 to 1 5-8 cents off; oats 3-8 to 1-2c down, and provisions varying from 55 cents decline to a rise of 17 cents.

With wheat prices at Winnipeg showing discounts that apparently made exports of United States wheat to Europe out of the question and with likelihood that visible supplies both in Canada and United States would show another substantial increase today, the wheat market here displayed weakness on Saturday right at the opening. The head of the Canadian wheat growers' pool was quoted as saying that price declines were only natural in view of the large Canadian crop. Furthermore, other advices at hand told of unusual difficulty of disposing of Canadian wheat to Europe and of good prospects for the new wheat crop in Argentina and Australia.

A heavy frost fell during Wednesday night and ice formed on receptacles containing water left out.

MANY SPEECHES AT CONVENTION

S. W. Belford, M.A., and Major Belford Were Among the Speakers.

COLBORNE, Oct. 3.—One of the chief speakers of the afternoon at the Colborne Teachers' Convention was S. W. Perry, M.A., of the College of Education, Toronto; his topic being, "The minimu Course in Art."

In opening his address he quoted Sir Arthur Currie's old motto, "Make a life, rather than make a living," and one of the most important subjects in public school to mould this ideal life is Art. He illustrated very impressively how that teaching pupils to appreciate good Art was adding much to the richness of their lives, and how that the boy's artistic abilities were so prominently shown by his outward appearance and by his love of nature.

One of the rare treats of the convention was an address by Major Belford, M.P.P., a former ...mber of the teaching profession. ... though Mr. Belford has been o... the teaching profession for a numb... of years, he was still able to recite to his fellow workers many pleasant memories of his teaching experience and although these pioneer experiences were not all sunshine, had it not been for some of these hardships his memories would not seem as dear to him, for it was the joy of overcoming these difficulties and hardships of the past that lingers in his memory.

Tracing the teaching profession from his past experience, Mr. Belford sees but very little difference except the number of subjects on the curriculum. Instead of the 3 R's being instilled into their mind to the tune of a hicory pointer, a large number of other subjects have been added, which requires more of the present-day pupil, and also a great deal more of the teacher, until a person would almost begin to wonder at the teachers, as Goldsmith did when he said:

"And still they gazed and gazed,
And wonder grew,
How such a small head,
Could carry all he knew."

Major Belford also blamed the teachers for the migration of our Canadian young men to the United States. Had a proper love for their own country been instilled into their hearts, they would never have crossed the border.

Teachers should stress upon the minds of the pupils that it was not because of the vast area of Canada nor for the large population of Canada that so many Canadian boys died in Flanders Fields, but because of their love for their country, and in so doing we shall hold our Canadian nation firm and strong.

Teachers should also impress upon the minds of the pupils the seriousness of life and what a waste of time it is for them if they are not preparing every day for the future.

Major Belford expressed his opinion that the best teachers are the teachers who go out with the intentions of making it a life profession, and in so doing by putting their full life into their profession, they are doing a better work than the minister, lawyer, doctor or any other profession and their reward of meeting their pupils in future years along the different pathways of life will be a much greater than the lowly paths of service of the other professions.

Mr. Dixon.

One of the most distinguished visitors at the Convention on Thursday was a pioneer teacher, who is now superannuated after teaching for over fifty years. This gentleman, Mr. H. Dixon, is a strong healthy man, who was never sick a day during his teaching career of 50 years, and who walked up to the platform and spoke of the times sixty years ago with the fluency of a young student just out of college.

Tracing the teaching profession for some fifty years, he has noted many interesting changes and although the work of the teacher seems to be getting heavier and heavier, there are many disadvantages disappearing also and improvements are being made rapidly, especially in our country schools.

Mr. Dixon also paid many complimentary remarks to Mr. Robert Boyes, who was his inspector for some years, even if he has been out of the profession for seven years.

In closing, he dwelt upon that miracle of Christ feeding the multitude with the five loaves and the fishes, and he bade every teacher to go forth with Christ as their example and by faithful work develop the minds of the boys and girls, so that they may go forth as that multitude did, satisfied and ready to meet the issues of life.

One of the most educational addresses of the afternoon was given by Miss E. Sweetman. Although this address was not expected till Friday afternoon, Miss Sweetman presented the topic in a most influential manner.

The subject of her address was, "Practical Hygiene," which was impressed so deeply upon her mind by her own past experiences that she thought it would be a benefit to ... ...ers.

TEACHERS MET IN CONVENTION

Wm. Wendt of Norwood is Elected President of Institute.

MANY SPEAKERS

On Thursday and Friday the Peterboro County teachers held their convention in the auditorium of the Normal School, with Inspector R. F. Downey, B.D., B.Paed., in the chair. Professor T. M. Jones, B.A., of the College of Education, gave two instructive addresses on Composition and History. A feature of the meetings was a discussion of the Entrance examination papers of last June and an explanation of what was expected in the candidates' answers by the Entrance examiners, Messrs. Lees, Lawlor, Fletcher and Miss Toye. The programme also included the following items: Report of the Ontario Educational Association by Miss Dobbin; Intelligence Tests, by Miss Bonnycastle; Teachers' Trips to New Ontario, by Miss Ivey; The New Geography Course, by Miss Bailey and Mr. Currie and an address by Rev. Wh. Allen. The meetings were enlivened at intervals by community singing, the feminine voices being in the majority, twenty-two men being present and about one hundred and twenty ladies. The following officers were elected for th ensuing year: President, Mr. Wm. Wendt of Norwood; Vice-President, Mr. Wm. J. Stacey of North Monaghan; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. Stilson; Corresponding Secretary, Mr. R. Lees, I.P.S.

"CHEW WELL TO SEE WELL."

Chew well if you would see well, urges Sir Arthur Keith, a great British anatomist. Decreased exercise of the jaws, and not eye strain, is causing short sight, he claims. Diminished use of the jaws in masticating the soft foods of modern diet, he asserts, is changing the shape of the face, lengthening the eye sockets, thus elongating the eyeballs and weakening vision.—Popular Science Monthly.

OPEN LETTER NO. 12

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Why does Canada prohibit the importation of goods made by convict labor? Is not the main reason our unwillingness to expose Canadian labor to competition of that kind?

Then why should we be willing to expose Canadian labor to the competition of goods made by child labor? The competition is just as unfair in the latter case as in the former. Towards the goods themselves, we as consumers should feel even greater repugnance. But we prohibit the one, while we actually encourage the other by the imposition of duties that are no deterrent at all!

It is notorious that the cotton mills of the Southern States, and particularly the cotton and woollen mills of England, employ large numbers of children below the age where we permit them to be employed in Canadian mills. Our manufacturers do not complain of child labor laws; on the contrary, they approve of them. But is it fair to our manufacturers to expose them to the competition of goods made by a class of cheap labor that they themselves are forbidden to employ?

Is it fair to the adult workers in the cotton and woollen mills of Canada to declare that their wages must be forever tied down by the pitiful rates of pay for which children can be hired by the cotton and woollen mills of England?

If we would scorn to profit by the labor of our own children, why should we be willing to profit by the labor of children of other countries?

Are we to protect our children, while they are children, only to acquiesce in their being broken after they are grown up?

Is the saving of a few cents, on our purchases of cottons and of woollens, a matter of greater importance to us than the preservation of the principle upon which one of our most commendable pieces of legislation is based?

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

LAKE FISHERMEN SCOUT IDEA THAT DEMON IS BIG STURGEON

Claim That Monster is Much More Mysterious and Formidable.

WIGGLES ALONG TOP

Length is Estimated at More Than Twenty Feet.

KELOWNIA, B. C., October 5 — (Canadian Press).—Although J. P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries for British Columbia, declares that Lake Okanagan's mysterious "demon fish" is nothing but a big sturgeon, those who have seen the monster cavorting along the surface of this unusually deep lake swear that it is nothing of the sort. They claim it is something much more mysterious and formidable—perhaps a sort of sea serpent that has lost the way home.

James Mitchell of Summerland, for instance, declares that if it can be shown that the demon fish is just an every-day sturgeon he will eat it. Mr. Mitchell happens to be one of the eye-witnesses of the strange fish. He has also seen sturgeons, and his insists that it is nothing like a sturgeon. He is unable to give a thorough description of the fish, because it was too far away, but he says it "wiggled" along the surface quite unlike any ordinary denizen of the lake.

Four youths, William Andrews, Allen Butler, Bob Butler and Ken. Booth, are willing to agree with Mr. Mitchell. They encountered the serpent—or whatever it is — floating on the surface, evidently asleep. It was about six feet long, they say—that is, the portion that they could actually see. When it moved the whole lake seemed to sway and waves washed over their raft. "It must have been as big as a whale," they concluded.

J. Mitchell Boyd of Equinga Landing had the scare of his life when he almost collided with the leviathan while on a fishing trip. At first he took it for a branch of a tree. Then a great head, not unlike that of a sheep, reared itself from the deep. He estimated the length at 20 to 30 feet. And Mr. Boyd declares that on that particular fishing trip he took nothing with him to drink except water.

AGREEMENT APPROVED.

German Cabinet Will Send a Commission to Moscow.

BERLIN, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—German cabinet approved in principle the signing of the Russo-German trade agreement. The commission will be sent to Moscow to frame the full text and to clear up certain points not settled in the conversations here between the German and the Soviet Foreign Ministers, Stressman and T. Chitcherin.

Diplomats At Departure German Pact Delegation First Time Since the War

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—An unusual touch was given to the departure of the German security delegation for Locarno by the appearance at the railway station of the Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Eugenic Pacalli, dean of the Diplomatic Corps and the British, French and Italian Ambassadors. It was the first time since the war that foreign diplomats had been present at the departure of a German deelgation.

SOVIET PARDONS MANY PRISONERS

Most of Those Included in Amnesty Are Soldiers or Peasants.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—(Special by United Press).—Individual amnesty has been granted to 5,694 prisoners, mostly peasants and red soldiers, in the last six months by the president of the union of the Soviet Heraldist Republics, it was announced Saturday.

Out of 36, 493 applications 4,400 sentences were modified and 2,200 were referred for new trials. Pardons were denied the remainder. So far the authorities have not announced whether general amnesty will be granted on November 7, the eighth anniversary of the revolution.

Many friends of political prisoners are expectant, while others consider the tenth anniversary a more suitable occasion for wholesale pardons.

HOLDUP MAN FOILED BY INTENDED VICTIM

DETROIT, Oct. 5—While Watson McPhee was putting his automobile in the garage at the rear of his home at 1596 Lycaste avenue, Detroit, on Sunday, he was accosted by an armed hold-up man, who ordered him to throw his hands. Instead, McPhee struck the bandit, who fired once, but the shot went wild.

McPhee then closed with his assailant and they struggled for several minutes until McPhee wrenched the revolver from the bandit, who fled. McPhee was unable to shoot at him because the gun had jammed.

REAL CAVE MAN TREATMENT FOR NEWARK WOMAN

Branded, Threatened, Beaten and Finally Hurled From Window.

WANTS ALIMONY

Says She Was Made a Virtual Beast of Burden on Farm.

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 5.—(Special by United Press).—Branded with a red hot poker, stripped and threatened with death at the point of a cavalry saber, pressed to her heart, beaten with heavy farm shoes, the butt of a revolver and hurled from a window—these are only a few of the experiences of Mrs. Alice Nowack of Ocean Port, N.J., described by her in a Newark Chancery court where she had just won alimony from Frederick R. Nowack alleged "beast husband." Mrs. Nowack is a mere toy compared with her giant husband. She weighs 108 pounds while he towers at six feet and weighs close to 200 pounds.

The trouble started, Mrs. Nowack testified, after her husband saw a motion picture called "The Branding Iron". He returned home, bared her arm and burned his initials in her flesh with a poker, saying it would teach her she belonged to him, she alleged.

When she was stripped and the saber was thrust to her heart she was so terrified, she said, that she collapsed in a faint at his feet.

She accuses him of having made her a virtual "beast of burden" compelling her to labor in the fields, deliver milk in bad weather and do other service tasks.

Nowack denies these charges, asserting she was "lazy."

CROWN PRINCESS EXPECTS CHILD

THREE NURSES

TOKIO, Oct. 5. — (Special by United Press).—Her Imperial Highness the Crown Princess of Japan will soon observe the ceremony of wearing a sash (Obi) of a particular kind, according to the custom in high places in Japan by prospective mothers.

The important event, in which the whole Japanese nation is deeply interested, is expected to take place early in November.

The Crown Princess is now in residence at the summer palace at Hayama, one of the noted seaside resorts of Japan, some forty miles south of Tokio.

The modest palace was built twenty-four years ago on the advice of physicians to the present Emperor, then the Crown Prince who was suffering from the incipient tuberculosis which of recent years has seriously affected His Majesty.

BIG CABBAGE RUINED BY RAINY WEATHER

Ambitious Gardener Just Missed Creating New Agricultural Record.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 5—When a man has established a record and reached the peak in any line of endeavor it is a difficult matter for him to repeat the performance.

James Alexander, a local gardener, raised a 24 pound cabbage last year, a vegetable that held the championship of Ontario and brought fame to Mr. Alexander"s home town.

"Excelsior," was Mr. Alexander's motto and he set out this season to produce something bigger and better as the directors of the Fall fairs are always trying to do.

Success was in sight when the biggest cabbage in his garden fell a victim ot the wet weather and burst, this calamity ending its growth. This cabbage, young as it was, was weighed in a local grocery and tipped the scales at 16 1-2 pounds, a good two pounds heavier than anything exhibited at the Fall fairs in this district.

SEVEN CHILDREN PERISH IN FIRE ON RESERVATION

HEROIC RESCUES

Boys Saved by Gallant Efforts of Sisters of Convent.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Seven children lost their lives in a fire that swept the boys' dormitory at the Catholic Mission on the Nez Perce Indian reservation, 25 miles east of here, late on Saturday night. The fire was believed to have been caused from the explosion of a lamp.

There were 31 boys in the dormitory at the time of the fire and the heroic efforts of the Sisters of St. Joseph and others at the institution were responsible for saving many of the boys' lives.

SCIENTISTS SET OUT VIEW 1926 ECLIPSE

Travel Eight Months to See Phenomenon Which Will Last Two Minutes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 — An eight months' trip half way around the world for two minutes of actual work will be the experience of a party from the Naval Observatory that has left to observe the total eclipse of the sun in January, 1926, at Sumatra, in the Dutch East Indies.

British, German and French parties also will be at Sumatra, as well as a party from Swarthmore College. The Italians will have an observation party in Eastern Africa.

The American naval group will endeavor to observe phenomena in connection with the upward curve of the sunspot cycle and will study the sun's corona as well. Motion pictures and color plate of the eclipse will be made. Special attention will be given to the sun's gases which scientists say extend as far as two million miles from the sun's rim when the moon blots out its face.

The party will travel on the naval minesweeper Bittern from Manila to Sumatra. It expects to reach its destination this month and the three months' interim before the eclipse occurs on Jan. 14—visible only from Africa to the Indian Ocean—will be spent in erecting housing and telescope tower.

MRS. CROCKER WEDS ANOTHER RUSSIAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Aimer Crocker Gouraud, who inherited ten million dollion dollars from her father, Edwin B. Crocker of San Francisco, is back from Paris with another Prince for her fifth husband. He is 25, she is 51. Mrs. Gouraud admitted to immigration authorities that Prince Vistilaw Galatzine and she were married in Paris September 22 after courtship lasting one month. Like Prince Alexander Miskulkoff whom she married in 1914 and divorced a year later, her new husband is a Russian.

Eloping with R. Porter Ashe, a horseman as a girl, the Princess has been divorced from three husbands in 24 years. Her fourth Jackson Gouraud, New York clubman died, In Paris she has been known as the "Queen of Pearls" because of her lavish display and entertainment.

Speeches Of Politicians Very Quickly Forgotten

It is very evident that political speeches do not sink very far into the lay mind. A belated traveller, who reached the public hall at Omemee yesterday just in time to learn that the meeting as over informed the Examiner that he made several attempts to ascertain the drift of Sir Henry Drayton's arguments from several of the local politicians, but with very little success. Few of them were able to give an intelligent resume of what they had heard only an hour previously. One man said Sir Henry brought out a lot of good arguments, "explaining them very clearly." Yet this same individual was unable to quote a single point in the speaker's address. No wonder politicians bank on the electorate having short memories!

MALARIA FOR INSANITY.

Thirty patients in a New York hospital, once believed hopelessly insane, are back at work leading normal lives, cured by having been infected with malaria germs. The astonishing method of curing a mental disease by inflicting the patient with another disease is meeting with marked success, according to reports issued recently from the Long Island College Hospital.—Popular Science Monthly.

TWO HOLD-UPS ARE SUCCESSFUL

ALL ESCAPED.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—Robbers, who are believed to have followed a merchant, J. Dreifus, of New York, from Minneapolis, staged a holdup a few minutes after he entered the J. A. Gerber store. Flourishing pistols the three men ordered Dreifus and the clerks to the rear of the building, where they forced them to lie face downward on the floor. They seized a grip containing stones and fled.

Payroll Taken.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 3 (Canadian Press).—A robber, wearing a handkerchief over his face, entered the wool mill of the American Woollen Company here today, and robbed Paymaster George Alexander of a payroll estimated at between ten and twelev thousand dollars, and escaped.

BURNED BY DRYER.

Electric Machine Caused the Death of Woman From Burns and Shock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4. (Canadian Press). -With a hole burned in her chest over her heart and lying across a water filled bath, Mrs. Emery Hazel, 38, was found dead at her home Friday. In her hands and still pressed to her body was an electric drying machine, on which the power was still connected. A medical examination later showed that the woman had died of burns and shock.

TEACHERS MET MADOC CHURCH

Addresses and Teaching Examples Made Up Program.

REPORTS READ

MADOC, Oct. 3.—The first session of the Teachers' Institute of Centre Hastings was held on Thursday in the United Church. The openinv exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Foster, who read from the thirteenth chapter of 1st Corinthians Th hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, and Mr. Foster led in prayer. Mr. Foster then spoke a few words of welcome to the teachers, expressing his pleasure that they are meeing in the United Church and trusting that the entire session would be both profitable and pleasing.

The president, T. Moffatt, B.A., principal of Tweed High School, presided, and the usual business vas quickly despatched. The minutes were read by Mr. Howard Connor, secretary-treasurer of the Institute, and principal of Tweed Public School.

Very interesting reports were given by the two delegates to the Ontario Educational Association, Miss Williams and Miss Marshall. Miss Williams referred to the excellent address given at the O.E.A. by Miss Armstrong of Orilla on "What the schools of Ontario should do for the feeble-minded." A large part of the criminals are mentally defective. Separate schools are recommended for the school children who are thus affected with special work, until these tendencies are overcome, when they may be allowed to return to their other classes.

Miss Marshall spoke particularly of the address given by Mr. Benson of the Windsor Rotary schools, and of the successful results being obtained by that method.

These reports were followed by a lesson in phonics taught to a class of nine wee tots by Miss Edith Harris of Madoc Public School. This lesson called forth much interest and many tributes for Miss Harris, who proved herself a very efficient primary teacher.

The afternoon session was opened with an interesting History lesson taught to a Third Book class by Mr. A. McGuire, Inspector for eCntre Hastings. Mr. McGuire held the close attention of both pupils and teachers by his story and blackboard illustration. At the close of the lesson, Mr. McGuire gave a short talk discussing some points he wished to emphasize in the teaching of History.

David Whyte, B.A., of Toronto Normal School, followed with a most helpful talk on the new Geography course. In the morning, Mr. Whyte had asked the teachers to hand in any questions they would like answered on this subject, and Mr. Whyte dealt with these in a clear concise manner, illustrating his answers on the blackboard wherever possible. Among the topics discussed were methods in using the globe and maps, longitude, latitude, eclipses and rainfall. Mr. Whyte scored the teaching of too many names in geography, advising the teacher to have a reason for teaching each river, and illustrating his meaning with a quickly drawn map of Africa.

The last paper was given on Form II Geography by Miss Marshall of Stirling Public school. Miss Marshall outlined an excellent plan for the work to be covered during each month.

Mr. Brethen was in town Thursday organizing for the coming campaign.

The English Stock Company played "A Little Bit of Fluff" to a capacity house Wednesday night.

The Young-Adams Company are billed for three nights next week, commencing on Monday.

Many attractions should bring a good crowd to the Fair on October 6th and 7th.

A Midway is advertised; School children are practising drills and choruses, and there will be races. The silver cup presented by the Bank of Commerce for cheese is on display in Tuft and Thompson's store.

A young couple recently journeyed from their home in New Zealand to Lyons, Kansas, a distane of 13,000 mile, in order that they might be married by a minister whose acquaintance they had made while he was serving as a missionary in New Zealand.

YOUNG PEOPLE HAD OPENING MEETING

Interesting Programme Was Put on by Millbrook Society.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 2. — The Young Peoples' League held its initial meeting for the fall and winter season on Monday evening, with a large number of members and visitors in attendance.

Mrs. P. Stinson, 4th vice-president, occupied the chair for the opening devotional period, after which a brief programme was given which included: piano duets by Misses Ella Elson and Estelle Hetherington; vocal solos, "The Man of the Sea," and "A Little House," by Mr. F. N. Alcorn; violin solo, by Mr. J. L. Byam, Miss May Byam accompanying her father on the piano; and a song, "In Berry Pickin' Time" (in costume) by Miss Jean Stinson and Lawrence Rowland.

The gathering was divided into five groups for the "Progressive Conversation" period, the leaders, Rev. Jos. Wilks, Misses E. Hetherington, P. Burnham, and Jean Bunham ,and Mr. Reg. Willis, giving a short talk on some experiences during the vacation months. The speakers changed groups each time the bell rang, at five-minute intervals, so there was little opportunity for the listeners to become bored, and since some holiday reminiscences were bound to be more interesting than others, no group failed to hear what each leader had to say.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed at the close of the program, ice-cream and an abundant supply of cake adding to the pleasure of this part of the evening's entertainment. It also gave opportunity for former members to welcome the newcomers and make their acquaintance, enlisting them, if possible, in the leaguers' ranks for the current season.

The annual Rally Day program will be used at the regular meeting next Monday, October 5th, at 7.45 p.m., and a cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

The local film company has secured "The Ten Commandments," and will present this series of pictures at the Town Hall on Saturday and Monday evenings, October 3 and 5, when it is expected a large audience will be present on both occasions.

WAR MEMORIAL

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The scheme for the creation of the Scottish National War Memorial on Edinburgh Castle rock, is steadily taking shape under the direction of the Duke of Atholl's committee and the architect, Sir Robert Lorimer.

The design consists of the conversion of the old disused barrack building known as "Billings Building" into a gallery of honor, and the erection of a shrine abutting the north side of this old building.

The great arch, nearly 30 feet high, that leads from the gallery into the shrine—the work of a young Edinburgh sculptor Pilkington Jackson—is with its sculpture and carving already complete.

The shrine is to contain a series of seven stained glass windows—each measuring about three feet wide by 16 feet high. In the naval window the subjects are destroyers, a camouflaged transport, the deck of a battleship and submarines. The Air Force window shows aeroplanes, airships, seaplanes and Lite balloons.

It is hoped that if the present rate of progress is maintained the structure work will be completed in the autumn of 1926.

Handcuffed to the wheel of his automobile, a St. Louis man has undertaken to drive five days, four nights, and four hours, or one hundred hours in all, without sleeping or stopping the car.

GOOD-BYE SUMMER SAY FRUITERERS

Peaches Peter Out and Plums are Fast Disappearing.

This week marks another final step in the summer's fruit harvest. A prominent fruiterer complains bitterly of the negligent attitude taken toward fruit by the average housewife. He says they want it to keep like potatoes or nuts that can be put away in the cellar and taken out when wanted. He avers strongly that there is a season for each fruit and that a lady who wants to buy huckleberries in October, when she passed them up at the time they were plentiful and cheap, is a very foolish woman. "When the store is full of fruit, they pass by, and then they look surprised a fortnight later when they come in and can't get what they want."

Peaches are petering out, and plums are on their last legs. Pears and grapes are still going strong. Peaches are selling anywhere from 95 cents to $1.50 a basket pears are $1.25 a basket for the Bartletts and 75 cents a peck for the Anjou and the Duchess. The Flemish Beauty has almost disappeared from view.

The Roger twins are in the stores—the Red and Black grapes that sell for 55 and 65 cents a basket. One dealer has green grapes at 49 cents.

New layer figs all the way from California are put up in attractive sealed packets.

Prices on nuts for this year's holiday seasons are reported to be distinctly on the up grade. An advance of nearly 50 per cent. over last year's prices is reported on first quotations to the trade. Mixed nuts that were closed last year at 25 cents a pound will sell at 35 cents, and Brazils, at 25 cents a pound, have been raised to 35 cents.

Dairy products are high also. Butter in the creamery grades has almost reached the half dollar mark and dairy butter is a close second. Eggs are away up, the extras selling at 44 cents a dozen, firsts at 42 cents and seconds at 40 cents. A double visit recently from the inspector has set the merchants tightening up on thier selling grades.

Flour is slightly lower in price, with a 25 cent decrease on the half barrel over the prices of a fortnight back. Prices for grain are down also. Alsike is commanding a higher price than was realized for last year's crop, but sweet clover is a drug on the market. Last year it sold as high as five and six dollars a bushel, but this year's quotations range from $1.50 to $1.75 only, because of the plentiful crop here and in the United States, to whom the Dominion exported a large quantity of this product last season. Red Clover, reported a small crop this year, is expected to sell at nine and ten dollars a bushel.

Potatoes are up in price, with prospects of further increase, and a reported scarcity in quantity.

'FLIVVER CAVALRY' IS TESTED BY ARMY

Light Bullet-Proof Motor-Car Designed for Speedy Cross-Country Scouting.

Instead of thrilling charges of cavalry, will future warfare see squadrons of troopers careening over rough ground in automobiles?

The U.S. Field Artillery Board recently tested a cross-country car, the vehicle that may replace the horse in battle, at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland. After the trials the Board recommended the adoption of the car for field artillery reconnaissance, finding it superior to caterpillar-tread tractors and to motorcycles for cross-country work.

The vehicle is a stripped Ford chassis with bucket seats built on. It is equipped with balloon tires. An auxiliary transmission permits the low speed of three miles an hour, necessary to accompany marching infantry. The radiator and engine are protected by a bullet-proof shield.

A new transmission was added to the regular system, giving two neutrals, six speeds ahead, and three to the rear. Two stabilizers keep the body from bouncing on rough roads or across country.

For scouting work the little car has the advantages of greater speed and less vulnerability than horse or mule. Hits on any part of the bodies of animals, excepting the ears and tail disable them; the car offers far less of a target and a far more resistant one. Poison gas is fatal to animals, but does not affect the internal mechanism of a motor car.

A horse or mule takes three years to grow to maturity, while cars may be turned out at the rate of 6,000 a day. If a horse or mule loses a leg, it is out of service for good, but a wheel or other damaged part of an automobile may be replaced within half an hour. Also, an animal must rest, while from the motor car 24-hour service is obtainable.

CASSIAR DRAWS MANY HUNTERS OF LARGE GAME

Party Coming From New Ualand to Whom Expense Is No Object.

OTHER HUNTERS

Grizzlies, Mountain Sheep and Deer Are Principal Game Sought For.

VICTORIA, B.C., October 5—(Canadian Press).—British Columbia is coming steadily more to the front as a big game country, and the gradual depletion of game animals in other sections of the continent is luring an increasing number of sportsmen here to hunt for species that are no longer to be found elsewhere.

The British Columbia Game Board, which administers the game resources of the province and issues licenses to all those desirous of going after big game, reports an unusually large number of applications this year and they come from a great many widely scattered points.

A few days ago a wealthy young New Zealander, who came to Canada with the All-Blacks rugby team, wrote to the Game Board for information regarding the big game of the Cassiar country, stating he was bringing a party of hunters this fall and that expense would be no object. The New Zealander will hunt for grizzlies, mountain sheep and deer.

George Eastman, multimillionaire kodak manufacturer, is returning this year to the Cassiar where he will hunt big game as he did last year, when he went out with an expedition of forty pack horses and guides and remained away from civilization for more than two months.

The Cariboo country will be visited by a large number of sportsmen this fall and winter, especially from the United States. Among the first to go in are William Laiblin, and H. B. Stewart, wealthy Ohioans, who will track grizzlies in the Bowron lake country, one of the most primitive regions in central British Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lippitt Clark, two of America's best known big game hunters, who have had experience with the wild life of Central Africa, are already in the north, hunting for specimens and endeavoring to get motion pictures of the rare Osborne caribou. They will spend some forty days on horseback.

The fame of the country's game is rapidly spreading and present indications are that the province will continue to be a sportsmen's mecca for many years to come. Big game is showing no signs of exhaustion, in fact, moose are reported more numerous this year than ever before.

The sport fishing resources of the province are also luring many well known fishermen to this province from the United States. Campbell river, Vancouver Island, it at present the most popular of the fishing streams. Dr. J. A. Wiborn, of New York and Catalina Island, one of the leading fishermen of California, recently hooked a 58-pound salmon off Campbell river and declares that nowhere else has he found better sport than in the waters of British Columbia. Edward Stewart White, the novelist and hunter, visits the same district almost every year.

DIPS REAP HARVEST FROM HARVESTERS

One Man Stripped of His Boots—Boyhood Friend Robs Another.

REGINA, Sask., October 3. Canadian Press. — Swarming into the city when the recent snow put a check to harvesting operations, harvesters, mostly from the east, found all the old traps spread to rob them of their earnings.

One, William Wallace, to-day in the police court, charged with drunkenness, pleaded that he had been punished enough. When found by the police he was minus even boots and hat, and he declared these had gone with a sum of $125 of which he had been robbed while helpless from the effects of drink.

Charles Gauthier, of Detroit, complained that a boyhood friend with whom he took a room, robbed him of $57 in cash and his overcoat, watch fountain pen and ticket to Windsor, Ont. He was pounded to insensibility he avers, after having been drinking with his friends.

Two now stand charged with robbery with violence in consequence of this complaint.

SAKLATVALA CASE NOW INTO UNION

Ben Riley, British Laborite, Declares His Exclusion Unfortunate.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 3 (Canadian Press). — The Saklatvala case was thrust yesterday into the otherwise peaceful proceedings of the twenty-third conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Union. Ben Riley, Labor Member of the British Parliament, brought the subject up, declaring it was unfortunate that a fellow member of the Union had been prevented from attending the conference.

NATURE LORE

By WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

This little story happened during the warmer days of summer, but it is so good that you may remember it, when the warm days come again.

I had started to-day's work, had the notes all assembled, and had gone to bed with them in that manner, expecting to proceed this morning (in August), but upon stepping into my cabin, here was the layout: one fat porcupine, scrambled like eggs, so to speak, for he was in the midst of paper, paste, string, magazines and my precious notes. He had chewed the table leg, upset the table, and eaten or chewed up half Nature Lore for six weeks.

That was not all. A saucy red squirrel was sitting on the back of my chair, my pencil rubber between his little paws, or what was left of it, I should say, the red rubber crumbs in a heap on the floor beneath him, and my! what a time he was having, cleaning his teeth with my rubber. He sat up, looked at me, seeming to say, "Well, now, Mr. Newcomer, what are you looking at me like that for? If you think this rubber is yours, you may go on thinking so, but possession is nine points of the law—ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha!"

And with that wicked squirrel laugh, he gave one leap, from the back of the chair to the window ledge and from there to a branch of a tree, a branch so slender that I am wondering yet, just how he made it hold him. It was the very tip of the branch.

The old porcupine stuck up his quills, several of which I took from him, just to make up for his disorderly conduct, but he seemed to think the bargain was squared up, for he settled down in the dark corner and I had to get a rope around him and pull him out, then spank him with the flat part of a paddle before he would even admit I had a right to my own stories.

However, if reason won't, maybe some pig-headed foolishness will. By which we mean that, since he is called a quill-pig by some folks, he may not listen to common sense, but will move if we try something silly. So we scratched our heads as to what would be the most comical bribe to offer him to depart, and what do you think we did? We toasted a marshmallow on the end of a stick. One taste and he followed me until I gave him one in the deep woods and lost him.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

NO. 4—RUSSELL SAGE, "THE DAVID HARUM" OF WALL STREET.

Russell Sage had qualities that classified him as distinctive among the very rich men of America and subjected him to much harsh criticism which he made no attempt to propitiate. He was a very careless dresser and notoriously parsimonious, but little he cared for public opinion. Money was his god.

He Clerks in a Grocery Store.

Sage was born on a farm in 1816 in Oneida County, New York. Cutting loose from his environment of poverty, he began his career in a Troy grocery store. Even as a youth he betrayed a remarkable capacity for sharp trading and by a systematic course of "swapping" he accumulated enough money to open a grocery store of his own; and at 23 he became a partner in a wholesale establishment.

He kept right on climbing. During the seven years he held the office of Alderman of Troy, and County Treasurer, he added to his reputation for shrewdness that of being extremely wise at the political and financial game.

Following in the footsteps of other rich men, he engaged in banking and lending money to railroads, several of which he foreclosed. Thus he became interested in the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, which eventually went into bankruptcy, and as he stepped out James J. Hill stepped in, and the old road, rehabilitated, became the Great Northern—eventually!

Sage, as Alderman of Troy, had tilted many a lance with Jay Gould, and Gould had a profound respect for him. Later they joined forces in the same corporations and railroad enterprises, outstanding among them the Union Pacific and its allied railroads which they controlled. Sage became a dominant power in railroads and a money lender on a huge scale.

He was a large stockholder and president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which, though already receiving a heavy subsidy from the Government for carrying mails between San Francisco and the Orient, by a brilliant manoeuvre succeeded in getting Congress to pass an act in 1872 granting an additional mail subsidy of $500,000 a year for a period of ten years.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

LOWER VITALITY MAY BE FORESTALLED.

It is bad enough to have an illness. After you have had two or three or four weeks in bed, you think you are entitled to a comfortable recovery. Certainly you should be safe after the usual symptoms and stages have passed. But alas! there are ailments which leave uncomfortable and lasting effects. Even after you have gotten back to your usual duties, there remains a danger which may prostrate and even destroy you.

One of the treacherous diseases of this sort is diphtheria. Even a mild attack may produce results which will hamper the victim for months and sometimes years.

All the contagious or infectious diseases possess the bad habit of leaving after symptoms or effects. The heart, kidneys or nervous system may suffer for a long time. The weakening produced by the disease is slow to disappear and until it does, great care must be exercised not to overdo.

I have observed serious paralysis of the muscles of the throat after a mild attack of diphtheria. In these days of serums and vaccines it is not unusual to hear somebody complain that such a paralysis came from the antitoxin. This is all nonsense. In my early practice, before antitoxins were used, these paralytic after-effects were more commonly observed than they are now.

The particular after-effect of disease which I desire to discuss is heart involvement. Almost every child who has fever will be found to have a "murmur," an abnormal sound of the heart's beating. This passes away at once and is of no consequence.

Irregular action of the heart is very common after diphtheria. Rapid heart is another effect, and this may be followed by a serious drop in the pulse rate.

There are other after results, such as Bright's disease after scarlet fever, running ear, brain and nervous system involvement.

It must be admitted that every step in our progress toward the prevention of disease is a blessing to humanity. Disregarding the broken hearts and the direct economic loss from illness, there is no doubt that the efficiency of many a person has been permanently lowered by sickness which, at the time, did not seem particularly serious.

There is little excuse these days to have diphtheria or typhoid fever. Scarlet fever appears to be another disease for which a means of prevention has been found. Smallpox and malaria have all but disappeared. Let us hope that the next decade may give us protection against other of the infectious diseases.

"An ounce of protection is worth a pound of cure!"

Answers to Health Queries.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

DONALD AND DEE HAVE CHAT WITH LITTLE NORTHERNER.

"Look, look, Dee!" cried her brother Donald, pointing to something moving in the branches of the tree over their heads. "Look at that squirrel!"

"Well, if that's a squirrel, I've never seen one so large," mused Dee. "Dear me, I wonder if he lives up in that tree?"

"No, indeed, I don't," laughed the little fellow in question. "I'll come down if you promise not to harm me."

Of course, Donald and Dee promised faithfully not to touch him, and down he came right on the grass beside them.

"I heard one of you bet I was a squirrel," laughed the little fellow. "Some folks think I look something like a squirrel when I'm up in the tree; then when I run on the ground I've had dogs chase me for a fox. Can you beat that? I don't look like a fox, I'm sure. I'm just plain Marty Martin, Mr. Marty Martin. Some folks fit the fancy name of Sable onto me, but I like Marty Martin the best. Well, Donald, do I look like a fox?"

"You're about the color of Mr. Fox," replied Donald, "but I don't think you look like one. I did think you resembled a squirrel, all right, up in the tree."

"I must say," laughed Dee, "you certainly are a pretty animal. I love the shade of dark reddish-brown like your suit. It makes the black on your tail and legs stand out. I'll bet your tail is half as long as your whole body, isn't it?"

'I Wonder If He Lives in that Tree?'

"Guess it is," chuckled Marty Martin. "But I couldn't stand a shorter tail. Sometimes I wish it was as bushy as Squiby Squirrel's. But, guess I'm better off with the kind of a tail I have handy."

"Do you make your home around here some place?" asked Dee. "You see, Donald and I have never been this far north before and it's quite a treat. I hope we can meet your wife and family if you have any."

"I sure have a wife and family, and although I'm not a very attentive father, I love my family, just the same. Some day come over and call on my wife and babies. We have five little Martins now and it keeps Mrs. Martin very busy keeping them out of mischief. I'm not a very good husband when the youngsters come. I let my wife take care of them until they are big enough to look out for themselves. We have a nice little place in a hollow tree down by the river. Come down and see us. I'm sure Mrs. Martin will be glad to know you both."

Donald and Dee promised that they would call some time. Mr. Marty Martin bid them good-by and scampered off as fast as he could run.

The children watched him until he was out of sight, then they went on with their play.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6

According to this day's sidereal mutations there may be a fair degree of liveliness and success, especially following the breaking up of long-obstructing conditions. There will be a spirit of initiative and enterprise born of the freedom from obstacle. And there will be a tendency to determination and steady progress. In affairs of heart and home there may be some singular developments, especially in regard to courtship or engagements. It might be well to be on guard against deception.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively and fairly successful year. This following the removal of a congested condition—spurring to initiative and fresh courage in new enterprises. In affairs of the heart it would be wise to guard against deceit or some singular experience. A child born on this day may be expected to be bold, enterprising and industrious. It should be fairly successful in its undertakings.

Thousands Have Banished Gray Hair with this Clean, Colorless Liquid

Make a Test of Kolor-Bak Today.

People everywhere praise Kolor-Bak for its remarkable power to banish grayness. The results are really astonishing, for no matter what the original shade was, it quickly reappears when this clean, colorless liquid is used.

According to scientists, grayness comes when age, illness, shock or disease causes a lack in the normal supply of coloring matter furnished to the hair—but whatever the cause, Kolor-Bak soon brings back the former shade, and the shade is uniform throughout—no "dyed" or streaked appearance. Results appear quickly—often in a week. Kolor-Bak is the most satisfactory substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also removes dandruff, stops itching of the scalp and keeps the hair from falling out.

If your hair has turned or is turning, do what thousands of others have done—let Kolor-Bak make your grayness a thing of the past. No need to supply samples of your hair as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Just ask for a bottle of Kolor-Bak. Money returned instantly if desired results do not appear.

YOUR GARDEN

TAKING IN THE HOUSE PLANTS FOR WINTER.

As the weather becomes cooler one's thoughts turn to providing flowering plants for the home in winter and a supply for outdoors again next season. This is an excellent time for taking cuttings of geranium, coleus, etc. Cuttings should be made of the young tips, taking about three to five inches and making the cut at right angles just below a node. These may be rooted in sand in a pot or box in a warm sunny window.

If geraniums or coleus are to be taken in they should be cut back severely, only leaving three or four inches above each crotch. Should this not be attended to the leaves will drop off and the result will be a tall plant, leafless below the tufts of leaves on long, bare stems. They will not recover readily and will be unsightly for a long time.

When potting plants from the summer flower beds it is wise to select only sturdy, healthy plants. Dig each one carefully and endeavor to secure as many as possible. A clayey soil is more difficult to handle than any other and it should be neither so wet that it is muddy and the roots cling together, nor yet so dry that it is crumbly and drops away from them. A satisfactory way is to water throughly at least five hours in advance of potting. A sandy soil is better when rather dry.

Thoroughly water the plants and stand them in a shaded position. Syringe the foliage several times a day but it will not be necessary to water the plant again until the new roots have formed. When the plants have become established in the pots gradually, bring them into the direct sunlight. In such potting operations do not use too large a pot but only one sufficient to be in proportion to the plants and hold it without any appearance of top-heaviness. Too much space is detrimental as the plant is sure to suffer from overwatering and consequent souring of the soil.

House plants that have been standing on the verandah should be left out as long as possible as the shorter the season indoors, the better it is for them. They may be placed together and covered for frost protection or brought in for the night and placed outside again for the warm part of the day.

STREET NAMES

VICTORIA AVENUE.

Her father died on January 23, 1820, and she became heiress presumptive to the throne on the accession of William IV in 1830. The latter dying without issue (June 20, 1837), she ascended the British throne and was crowned at Westminster Abbey on June 28, 1838. On February 10, 1840, she married her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Cobourg Gotha. In 1876 she assumed the title of Empress of India. Her children were nine in number, of whom the eldest, Victoria, became Empress of Germany and the second, Albert Edward, succeeded his mother on the throne. A striking feature of her reign was the rapid development and extension of the British colonies. Of the war-like events of this period the most important were the Crimean and South African wars and the Indian mutiny. This time was so marked by literary progress and political and industrial development that it is spoken of appreciatively as the Victorian era, as a counter part of the Elizabethan era. One of our most prominent latter day critics, Dean Inge, has declared the Elizabethan and Victoria reigns as the twin peaks of British literature.

The Queen's domestic life was singularly happy. Her court was a pattern of morality, comparing very favorably with those of her contemporaries. Over her family, especially her sons, she exercised rigid discipline. She died January 22, 1901.

brown like your suit. It makes the black on your tail and legs stand out. I'll bet your tail is half as long as your whole body, isn't it?"

"Guess it is," chuckled Marty Martin. "But I couldn't stand a shorter tail. Sometimes I wish it was as bushy as Squiby Squirrel's. But, guess I'm better off with the kind of a tail I have handy."

"Do you make your home around here some place?" asked Dee. "You see, Donald and I have never been this far north before and it's quite a treat. I hope we can meet your wife and family if you have any."

"I sure have a wife and family, and although I'm not a very attentive father, I love my family, just the same. Some day come over and call on my wife and babies. We have five little Martins now and it keeps Mrs. Martin very busy keeping them out of mischief. I'm not a very good husband when the youngsters come. I let my wife take care of them until they are big enough to look out for themselves. We have a nice little place in a hollow tree down by the river. Come down and see us. I'm sure Mrs. Martin will be glad to know you both."

Donald and Dee promised that they would call some time. Mr. Marty Martin bid them good-by and scampered off as fast as he could run.

The children watched him until he was out of sight, then they went on with their play.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6

According to this day's sidereal mutations there may be a fair degree of liveliness and success, especially following the breaking up of long-obstructing conditions. There will be a spirit of initiative and enterprise born of the freedom from obstacle. And there will be a tendency to determination and steady progress. In affairs of heart and home there may be some singular developments, especially in regard to courtship or engagements. It might be well to be on guard against deception.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively and fairly successful year. This following the removal of a congested condition—spurring to initiative and fresh courage in new enterprises. In affairs of the heart it would be wise to guard against deceit or some singular experience. A child born on this day may be expected to be bold, enterprising and industrious. It should be fairly successful in its undertakings.

Thousands Have Banished Gray Hair with this Clean, Colorless Liquid

Make a Test of Kolor-Bak Today.

People everywhere praise Kolor-Bak for its remarkable power to banish grayness. The results are really astonishing, for no matter what the original shade was, it quickly reappears when this clean, colorless liquid is used.

According to scientists, grayness comes when age, illness, shock or disease causes a lack in the normal supply of coloring matter furnished to the hair—but whatever the cause, Kolor-Bak soon brings back the former shade, and the shade is uniform throughout—no "dyed" or streaked appearance. Results appear quickly—often in a week. Kolor-Bak is the most satisfactory substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also removes dandruff, stops itching of the scalp and keeps the hair from falling out.

If your hair has turned or is turning, do what thousands of others have done—let Kolor-Bak make your grayness a thing of the past. No need to supply samples of your hair as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Just ask for a bottle of Kolor-Bak. Money returned instantly if desired results do not appear.

TAKING IN THE HOUSE PLANTS FOR WINTER.

As the weather becomes cooler one's thoughts turn to providing flowering plants for the home in winter and a supply for outdoors again next season. This is an excellent time for taking cuttings of geranium, coleus, etc. Cuttings should be made of the young tips, taking about three to five inches and making the cut at right angles just below a node. These may be rooted in sand in a pot or box in a warm sunny window.

If geraniums or coleus are to be taken in they should be cut back severely, only leaving three or four inches above each crotch. Should this not be attended to the leaves will drop off and the result will be a tall plant, leafless below the tufts of leaves on long, bare stems. They will not recover readily and will be unsightly for a long time.

When potting plants from the summer flower beds it is wise to select only stocky, healthy plants. Dig each one carefully and endeavor to secure as many as possible. A clayey soil is more difficult to handle than any other and it should be neither so wet that it is muddy and the roots cling together, nor yet so dry that it is crumbly and drops away from them. A satisfactory way is to water throughly at least five hours in advance of potting. A sandy soil is better when rather dry.

Thoroughly water the plants and stand them in a shaded position. Syringe the foliage several times a day but it will not be necessary to water the plant again until the new roots have formed. When the plants have become established in the pots gradually, bring them into the direct sunlight. In such potting operations do not use too large a pot but only one sufficient to be in proportion to the plants and hold it without any appearance of top-heaviness. Too much space is detrimental as the plant is sure to suffer from overwatering and consequent souring of the soil.

House plants that have been standing on the verandah should be left out, as long as possible as the shorter the season indoors, the better it is for them. They may be placed together and covered for frost protection or brought in for the night and placed outside again for the warm part of the day.

STREET NAMES

VICTORIA AVENUE.

Her father died on January 23, 1820, and she became heiress presumptive to the throne on the accession of William IV in 1830. The latter dying without issue (June 20, 1837), she ascended the British throne and was crowned at Westminster Abbey on June 28, 1838. On February 10, 1840, she married her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Cobourg Gotha. In 1876 she assumed the title of Empress of India. Her children were nine in number, of whom the eldest, Victoria, became Empress of Germany and the second, Albert Edward, succeeded his mother on the throne. A striking feature of her reign was the rapid development and extension of the British colonies. Of the war-like events of this period the most important were the Crimean and South African wars and the Indian mutiny. This time was so marked by literary progress and political and industrial development that it is spoken of appreciatively as the Victorian era, as a counter part of the Elizabethan era. One of our most prominent latter day critics, Dean Inge, has declared the Elizabethan and Victoria reigns as the twin peaks of British literature.

The Queen's domestic life was singularly happy. Her court was a pattern of morality, comparing very favorably with those of her contemporaries. Over her family, especially her sons, she exercised rigid discipline. She died January 22, 1901.

MISSION FATHER WAS AT LAKEFIELD

Thoughtful Sermons Were Preached on Three Evenings Last Week.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 5.—On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, a Holy Treduium was held in St. Paul's Church, with an novena to recently canonized "Little Flower," whose feast day fell on Wednesday, September 30th.

The missioner was Rev. Father Barry, of the Redemptorist Order, speaker of remarkable ability, who, at each of the services, brought before the people God's love for man and the opportunities provided by which man can do God's will.

On Wednesday evening he gave a very thoughtful sermon on God's love for man as demonstrated down through the ages from the time that the first man, Adam and the first woman, Eve, incurred the punishment they richly merited for their sin of disobedience, but the love of God never forsook them, and He promised them that a Saviour would come to them. God, Himself, came down from heaven, lived on earth, endured the hardships of life and suffered a cruel death on the Cross, while sinful men scoffed at Him and mocked His dying agony, borne for our sins. God's love for man was demonstraged in parables and in actual reality many a time when He pardoned the sinners and healed the sick and afflicted. We must learn to know God and to love Him and we will then serve Him better. The saints, whose names we honor were all human, even as we are, but they learned to love God and to know Him, and their service increased with their knowledge and love, till their lives were filled.

A procession of children took place in honor of St. Theresa, the Little Flower, who's feast day was Wednesday.

Rev. J. J. Garvey, parish priest, thanked the people for their devout attendance at the services and hoped that the mission would bear fruit in increased devotion to God and in greater service. He also thanked Father Barry, whose visit had been so helpful to every member of the Parish. Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore, Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. Fr. Guiry, of Peterboro, were present in the Sanctuary and assisted in the evening's service.

TEACHERS DISCUSS SCHOOL PROBLEMS

Papers Containing Valuable Suggestions Were Read in Convention at Madoc.

MADOC, Oct. 5.—The Thursday evening meeting of the Centre Hastings Teachers' Convention took place in the United Church and consisted of a musical programme, followed by a social hour with light refreshments. A piano solo was given by Miss Taft, readings by Miss Barnes, Miss Forestell and Miss Dixon, instrumental duets by Misses Caldwell and Hart and by Miss Ketcheson and Mr. Ketcheson; violin solos by Mr. Jackson, of Stirling, and Mr. Scrutton, of Madoc, vocal solos by Mrs. Jackson and Miss Vandervoort, while an orchestra, composed of Miss Mary Foote, Mr. G. Foote, Mr. Jack Foote and Mr. C. Wellington, added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

The Friday morning session began with the singing of "O Canada," followed by the reading of the twelfth chapter of Romans, by Rev. Mr. Strother, who also led in prayer.

The business of the morning comprised a number of resolutions brought in by the Resolutions Committee. First, it was moved that the Secretary send to Mr. E. T. Williams, for many years Principal of Sterling school, a letter expressing appreciation for services to the Convention during past years, and recognizing with regret his absence from Convention.

It was also moved that the vote of the members be recorded, that the four villages of the Inspectorate, Marmora, Sterling, Madoc and Tweed, be visited by the Convention in turn, meeting in Tweed next year.

The report of the nominating committee showed the officers for next year to be as follows:

Hon. President—A. W. McGuire, I.P.S.; Past President—T. Moffatt, B.A.; President—Mr. Prentice, Principal of Marmora School; Vice-President—Miss Marshall, of Stirling; Sec.-Treasurer—H. Connor, of Tweed; Executive Committee—J. B. Hough, Miss Sills, Miss Feeney.

Delegates to O.E.A.—Miss Clute and Miss Barnes; delegate for Northern Ontario—Mrs. Roberts. Auditors—Miss McGrath and Mr. Todd.

The business was followed by a very interesting and successful lesson in Supplementary Reading, taught by Miss Lillian Hart, to a class of eleven girls and boys of Second Book.

Everyone was pleased to hear Mr. Whyte, of Toronto Normal again, in a talk on primary work. Mr. Whyte discussed seat-work and made many valuable suggestions for different subjects. He outlined lessons on observations on the moon and on the local flour mill. He stressed the need for conceptions about the relations of industries, one to another. He urged the teachers to have a vision, not to be "time-servers." "The teacher" said Mr. Whyte, "who is a time-server, never gets properly in touch with his pupils." Mr. Whyte's address was inspirational, and when he finished with a beautiful quotation on "Autumn," one and all felt that they had not only gained in knowledge, but they had again caught the "vision," the ideal of service, and were ready to press on once more, with earnest endeavour, to reach the goal.

Mr. Moffatt, Principal of Tweed High school took as his topic the Entrance Grammar paper, and discussed difficult points in general, as well as those on last year's paper. His address provoked a lively and beneficial discussion.

In the afternoon, Mr. McGuire gave a few suggestions for teachers, and appealed to them for their co-operation in helping to make the schools of Centre Hastings second to none.

A clear and concise paper on Methods in Grammar was given by Miss Vera Clute. Miss Clute gave some valuable suggestions for making this subject interesting, particularly the Good English Week scheme, which is to be tried out in White Lake school, from Oct. 12th to Oct. 16.

Four very excellent papers on Arithmetic came next, Form I. taken by Mis Eva Green; Form II. by Miss N. Feeney Form III., Miss Ellen Burt and Form IV., Miss Mary McWilliams.

At the close, the teachers all felt that the two days had been brimful of suggestions and benefit, and that they could return to the year's work ahead of them with renewed courage and a wider outlook.

Among those who attended Tweed Fair from Madoc to-day were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Jewell, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Whytock and Miss Wood.

The Madoc High School Cadet Association and Cadet Corps held a dance on Thursday evening in the Armouries. Madoc orchestra assisted by two Belleville players, provided the music. There was a splendid attendance and every one reported a good time.

FROM MR. MELTON.

The Editor, Peterboro' Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I agree, in a certain measure, with the Liberal Publicity Committee when they say, "The Conservative of West Peterborough have said nothing about the Tariff, etc." Of course, the L. P. C. by this means that what the Conservatives have said is not along the L. P. C. line of thought.

If the West Peterborough Conservatives have not been guilty of a flood of spell binding rhetoric it is for no other reason than because the enforced idleness of many of our work people pays such glowing tribute to the suicidal policies expounded by the "Free Trader" and, furthermore, carries with it an argument more convincing than any expression of thought taken from our language.

Then again, the L. P. C. states: "Instead of coming out with a suggestion for the betterment of Canada, the Conservative Publicity Committee commissions some hoary party follower, etc." To all this I would respectfully suggest that they study a little more closely Hansard's official report of House of Commons Debates wherein they will find an abundance of suggestions put forward by members of the Conservative Party. However, it is not words that the idle workers want but actions—such as those put forward in the House by the supporters of a higher tariff but frustrated by the combined forces of the Liberal and Progressive Leaders.

Acta non verba—will solve our unemployment problems and this, undoubtedly, is in the minds of those Candidates whose policy is Protection for the industrial worker and farmer alike.

The L. P. C. alludes to the Senate as the "House of Irresponsibility," or, as our dictionaries would express it: "A House of Irresponsibles." If they are correct, we can only deplore the action of the Liberal Chieftain in relegating to that chamber so many of his late cabinet ministers or are we to assume that he considers them Irresposubles worthy of no better treatment. If such is the case, truly we can say that we have seen the passing of a most irresponsible Government. Yours very truly,

—D. G. Melton.

FROM E. M. MILLER.

Mr. Editor:—

Dear Sir:—I wish to enter into no political controversy, not understanding politics, but allow me to correct the Hon. G. N. Gordon's statement to the Booster Club, in which he refers to a Tory King and a Tory Chancellor of England, as being responsible for the United States of America not belonging to the British Empire. Any History of England, any Authority on History, or the Encyclopedia Brittanica will show that the Hon. Mr. Gordon is wrong. George III, was a Whig (which means Liberal) of the six governments he made or unmade during his reign, only one was Tory, that was the government of Lord North, which lasted just ten months. The Whigs were the party in England who always taxed the Overseas colonies, Lord Grenville (Whig premier) imposed the stamp tax in 1764. The Duke of Grafton (Whig premier) imposed the tax on tea in 1770. Lord Bute (Whig premier) imposed a super-tax on tea and sugar for revenue purposes in 1765. When the Tory Premier, Lord North, came into power in 1772, he abolished the stamp and tea tax, and his proclamation was on its way to America before the revolution broke out, but it took six weeks or three months for a message to reach America in those days, and the Revolution was in full swing when the ship bringing the good news arrived in America waters.

Further, history tells us that in April, 1783, America was bankrupt, tired of war, and to the disgust of her French allies, begged England for peace. The Whig premier then in power (Lord Rockingham), instead of taking advantage of the fact, gave them their Independance, to the grief and humiliation of all Britain, for all time.

I have not intended this letter to be political, but historical, and all dates and statements made can be proved by any of the valuable history books to be found in the Peterborough Public Liabrary.

Thanking you Mr. Editor,

Yours,

E. M. Miller.

TWO GIRLS LEFT HOME WITH MAN OF THE MIDWAY

Motor Party Arrested at Woodstock Fair and Brought Back to Peterboro

MAN IN JAIL

Hearing Next Friday, on Charge of Offence Against One Girl.

For two Peterborough girls, one fifteen years old and the other a school girl of thirteen, the midway of the recent Exhibition proved a long lane of disillusion and a quick turn far down its reckless path to the police station at Woodstock, whither they had gone with one of the concession men. The party was escorted back to Peterboro by a Woodstock policeman, the two girls returning to their distracted parents and the man to the county jail, where he is being detained until Friday, when he will appear in police court, charged with a serious criminal offence against one of the girls.

One of them had flirted with the Midway man, and one indiscretion led to another, until the Monday following Fair week she was persuaded by her paramour to leave home, as legions of her sisters have done, and motor to Woodstock in the wake of the carnival show with the stranger of a few nights' acquaintance.

The man hired a taxi, and in some way picked up the younger girl who had gone to school that morning. This girl's mother later discovered her disappearance, enlisted the aid of the police, who, through the aid of the taxi office, traced the motor party to Woodstock, where the Midway man was disputing the taxi fare of forty dollars at the Woodstock Fair Grounds. The rest of the story merely relates to the uneventful home-coming and the separation at the police station, the man being locked up on the hill, and the girls going back to their homes.

ARMY OF CANADIANS RETURN TO CANADA

Over 38,000 Announced Their Intention of Remaining Here Permanently.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Figures attributed to the United States Department of Labor, in a press despatch to the effect that only 2,217 Canadians returned to Canada from the United States in the last fiscal year, are sharply challenged by the Department of Immigration here.

During the fiscal year, Ottawa records show a total of 38,568 Canadian born citizens returned to Canada after a residence of six months or over in the United States, declaring their intention of remaining permanent in the country.

If to these are added the naturalized Canadians and British subjects who had acquired Canadian domicile the total Canadians returning in the twelve months of the American fiscal year is 38,173.

In twelve months, 43,000 Canadians returned from the United States collecting refund of their head tax. These are in addition to those who returned after a six months' absence.

LOCAL FREIGHT HEAVY.

C.N.R. Increase Daily Haulage to Two Trains.

C.N.R. freight business out of Peterboro has increased during the last two weeks from one to two trains daily, according to news gathered around the station. One of these trains is made up at the Quaker Oats Company, which is operating night and day, and virtually every day there are from twelve to fifteen cars more than one train length. The second train is made up partly of Quaker Oats cars, and the rest from other factories and industries. It was reported that one of the factories was bidding on a big order which, if booked, would keep that plant running at capacity for six months.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

"Be of good heart, thy sins are forgiven thee," was the text of the sermon preached at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday by Rev. J. Finn.

Elaborating his theme from the story of the cure by Christ of the man stricken by the palsy, Father Finn said that a parallel with the circumstances surrounding this miracle may be found in modern times and people. Christ knew that the scribes and Pharisees who watched Him thought evil in their hearts. They thought that He was not God, just as the world of to-day doubts the power of the Church. They thought that He blasphemed when He said: "Thy sins are forgiven thee," and so the world doubts the power bestowed by Christ on His Church to forgive sins, when He said: "whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them, and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

Christ performed a miracle to prove that His power was real, and so the Church points to miracles performed at the tombs of its saints to show the world that its powers are God-given.

Christ also manifested His power to take away the bodily affliction of the man who was suffering under the weight of his sins and so the Church has power, through the Supreme Pontiff, to remit the temporal punishment due to sin after the sin itself has been forgiven.

AIR RACE PILOTS ABANDON CRAFT

FOUR HOURS ADRIFT

DETROIT, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press). — Four of the five balloons which started late on Saturday in the first annual Detroit News balloon trophy race had been reported down here last night. One of the bags came down in Lake Erie, and the other three landed in Michigan. The Highball II., piloted by Svend A. U. Rassmussen, was reported over Jamestown, N.Y., at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and as far as known is still in the air.

Exhausted and made ill by a perilous and all-night battle with a terrific rain, thunder and wind storm and violent seas that swept Lake Erie early yesterday two of them were sighted and rescued at 7.30 a.m. two miles north-west of Middle Sister Island by the lake freighter, A. M. Byers.

They were engaged in a frantic struggle to keep afloat the small, air-filled fabric craft for which they had abandoned their balloon, the "Skylark," four hours earlier, when they decided there was more chance of weathering the perils of the sea than those of the air.

The men are W. C. Naylor, 25, pilot of the balloon, and his aide, K. W. Warren, 23, both of Detroit. They were brought to Toledo on the freighter.

Their balloon, which they constructed themselves, was entered in the distance race for $2,500 prize money and a trophy supplies by the Detroit News in connection with the aircraft manufacturers' exposition conducted by the Detroit Aviation Society.

MASSEY QUITS DIRECTORATES

LEAVES HIM FREE

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. Vincent Massey, who recently entered the Government of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, has resigned from the presidency of the Massey-Harris Company. Mr. Massey's statement follows:

"During the very short time I have been in public life I have come to believe that even at some personal sacrifice, I should resign from all directorships in corporations, so as to leave myself perfectly free to discuss and deal with public issues without having my actions or my motives subject to question.

"I have therefore sent in my resignation as president and director of the Massey-Harris Company; I have also resigned at the same time from the boards of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Mutual Life Assurance Company, although these institutions have no relation to the issue at present under public discussion."

LONDON, October 5. — Canadian Press. — The Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph sends a report received from Stockholm that a Finnish gun boat (name not given) was sunk during the manoeuvres in the Gulf of Bothnia, between Hernosand and Kaskinen.

The officers and 45 men are said to have been drowned, some of the bodies being recovered and taken to Hernosand.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How to Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays, medical men who keep up with times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet—and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. The Harris Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere have a big demand for them and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

It was a moment too spontaneous and genuine for Jane to catch the spirit of, and she remained seated at the table, glancing up between bites of cake and sneering at Bob.

"Shouldn't think anyone like you, Bob, would go into spasms over a measly little railroad job—"

Bob's glare warned Jane to go no further; while the surprised looks Caroline and Jim turned upon her made her squirm uncomfortably and return full interest to her cake.

"Why, Bob," said Jim in quick concern a moment later, "the Limited Mail has always been your ambition and now you look as though you don't give a darn!"

Bob felt himself brightening again under the interest and admiration of Caroline and Jim.

"This strikes me as a perfect ending for the happiest day we've had since you came to Crater City," Jim continued, "Bobby's birthday—all friends together," Jim touched Caroline's hand caressingly, "and now you and I to go out on the same run—"

"And me, too, Daddy Jim!" struck up Bobby, hastily downing his last bit of cake and running from the table to stand between Jim and Bob. "You promised me that on my birthday you'd take me on the train with you!"

"Yes-s-s-s!" admitted Jim dubiously, "but—oh, well—all right—we will all go on the Limited, except the girls, and it's too bad they can't come also!"

Jim looked inquiringly at Jane, now, then at Bob, and asked,

"Has Miss Gordon made any arrangements for putting up tonight?"

Jane saved Bob the trouble of referring to her. "No!" she snapped, "and I can't say I was stuck on the only hotel I saw downtown in this burg!"

Jim looked to Caroline for help, "Won't you please see it Mrs. O'Leary can make room for Bob's friend—"

Caroline's low-voiced politeness masked the underlying armed-camp air of hostility that was intermixed with the gnawing ache of her troubled heart,

"I know that Mrs. O'Leary hasn't a room to spare, but Miss Gordon is certainly welcome to spend the night with me!"

Bob suddenly realized what the vibrant intonation in Caroline's voice meant; see was extending this hospitality for his sake, and knowing the effort it cost her, the courage it required, Bob admired and loved Caroline more than ever. Harboring one who to all intents and purposes was "his other woman," when her own lips still burned from his kisses of the day before, though the divine fire of the giving had been transformed into an enduring fire of hell. Of such fibre was Caroline made!—and Bob choked with a helpless desire to pour out his soul, his story, his devotion to her.

A whisper from Jane recalled him to the unpleasant unreality of the situation. Caroline had taken Bobby off to get him ready for the high adventure of a trip with his Daddies, and Jim had slipped into the kitchen, in his miscarrying kindness, to give Bob and Jane an opportunity to be alone.

"Put me wise to all this bunk, old kid—you fooling around with a bunch of greasy railroad micks—and your old man with millions enough to buy this and every other road in the country and split the ties into toothpicks—"

"Why did you come here?" pleaded Bob angrily, "when I told you I never wanted to see or hear from you again. Why can't you go—and leave me alone?"

"Ain't you the nice one, though? So friendly like! I'll go all right, Bob, when you get your old man to come across."

"My father disowned me and you know it. I haven't a penny in the world except what I earn by honest work here—"

"Listen, the old man will listen to reason if you put it to him right. And I'm telling you now that I'm going to camp right here on your doorstep until you do."

Caroline came apologetically into the room at this moment with Bobby to give fair warning that it was time for Bob and Jim to be off. Jane glanced spitefully at her, then turned back to Bob and concluded in a low, menacing whisper.

"And, furthermore, I'll put a crimp in whatever little love game you're up to here. Oh, hell, don't start so, and pull any high and mighty innocence on me. I know what I know—when I see it!"

That was the threat Bob carried away dinning in his ears when he walked down with Jim and Bobby to the station to meet the greatest trust and task of his new working life. Not a pleasant prospect, or one to allow him full enjoyment of his night's job. Yet, with Jane's ominous words, there remained like a beckoning aura over and around all present difficulties a picture of Caroline as she had said good-bye; Caroline in her slim grace and courageous reserve.

There was no doubt in Bob's mind but that Jim loved Caroline. After all, Jim was worthier of her than he ever could be. If it would make both of them happy—Bob was content, he tried to tell himself, to do penance for his own omissions and shortcomings by encouraging and abetting their romance in every possible way.

Thus his thoughts ran during the first proud minutes of his trip, when he thrilled at the leaping response of the big Mallet to his lightest touch. Rounding the sharp curve that would take him clear of the Crater City yards, Bob looked back along the train—his train; his charge. Long, sleek, the line of every mail car and pullman bearing out the suggestion given by every line and angle and sound of the locomotive—of power without end, hoarded and guardedly leashed; of greyhound speed. On the tail end—like a rattle on a python, Bob thought with a chuckle—was a prison car, bearing the last batch of prisoners to be transferred.

Spike was in that car, Bob had learned. Strange, was it not?—in the last car, a mortal enemy; in the first mail car, a dearest friend and a child Bob loved as much as if he were his son! An odd mixture, Bob thought philosophically—the best and the worst in his life, under his hand for the whirlwind dash through the night.

The last crosstrack of the Yards was behind now, only a clear and long right of way ahead. Bob pulled the big throttle—it was fitting that a giant engine should have a giant throttle!—wide open gradually, giving the Limited a full head of steam that presently sent it pounding on the straightaway at better than fifty. The grade up toward Eagle Pass would begin soon; he must make time now, while he could, for it would never do to smudge his reputation, which had won this assignment for him, by dropping behind schedule on his section of the run. And Bob knew, as every engineer knows, that it is a constant and vigilant fight to keep within scheduled time on a long and difficult run such as this, over the mountains.

There was something soothing in the mooth exuberance, in the bellowings vigor, of the Limited; and Bob, leaning on his right elbow out of the cab window as he watched the right-of-way lights that rushed at him out of the night like green snowflakes in a streaking blizzard, was lulled into more placid reflections than he had expected would be his lot for many a weary day.

After all, it was not fair for him to decide whether Caroline should have Jim or him, or either; he had reason to believe that Caroline cared for him, so the honest thing was to go through with his plan of telling her the whole truth at the earliest possible moment—including, the truth about Jane, who and what Jane was to him, and what his plans were for unshackling the hold she had on him. Then Caroline could make her own decision, and there would be no hard feelings—on his part, at least, even if he lost out, he assured himself; for there was one thing he never would lose, come what may, and that was the inspiration of merely knowing such a fine and splendid person as Caroline.

Home-Making Helps

VALUE OF A SUMMER COTTAGE

Looking back over the past summer, we who have gone about a good deal on various week-end vacations have learned many things, among them the wisdom of the summer cottage. It is the only way to do with a family of little folks. Hotels and fashionable boarding houses are impossible for children. They are not welcome, they must be dressed for exhibition constantly, and cannot run free and get the benefit which they came to the country or beach to get. Cheap hotels or boarding houses cannot give the food children need, so the cottage is the only sane and sensible place for them.

Select the best place possible with the fewest inconveniences, good water, good plumbing and hills and sunshine.

One can buy, cook and serve just the right food at the usual hours. The children can bathe, nap and play in their regular hours. They can be dressed simply in play clothes, rompers and overalls, go barefoot or in sandals.

The furnishings of a summer cottage can be made very cheap and it may still be artistic. The beds are the principal outlay. These, however, may be of the cot type, with wire spring attached and good mattresses which are comfortable and reasonable in price. A few comfy wicker chairs are desirable. The rest of the things may be home-made or camp stuff. Just think of the few necessary things that are needed if there should be some rainy days.

Painted floors and walls do away with all fussing with paper, and they may be washed each summer when the family takes possession. Army blankets and unbleached linens will do nicely. As many paper conveniences as possible save labor. There are excellent types of oil stoves to be had.

ADVICE TO GIRLS
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have fallen in love with a girl who goes to the same school as I. As we have no mutual friends, I am uncertain as to how to get acquainted with her. Please tell me how to overcome this difficulty, and you will oblige,

UNCERTAIN.

UNCERTAIN: The only solution to your difficulty that I can see is to try and make a mutual friend somehow. If you both attend the same school, surely there is someone whom you both know. Do you think you have really fallen in love with her? You may find yourself farther along in the world by next year if you cultivated a love for other books rather than for a girl. There is a time for all things.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been going with a young man three years older than I. He acted as if he loved me and I loved him dearly. He started going about with a girl he knew I did not like. He soon got tired of her and now he wants to go out with me again. Please advise me. K. M. E.

K. M. E.: Since this young man is not engaged to you, it is his privilege to meet as many other friends as he chooses, my dear. And it certainly is not wise for you to tell this young man of your jealousy. Continue your friendship with him, but do not give up your other acquaintances. In time any little difficulty you may have now in this connection will be smoothed out. At any rate, don't brood over it!

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

About three months ago I met a young man whom I like very much. We went out together for some time, and all of a sudden he stopped taking me out. All my friends are asking me what happened, but as to that I do not know. I am nearly heart-broken and would like to hear from him. Please advise. RITTA.

RITTA: Since you were so friendly with this young man, why do you hesitate to ask him to call, Ritta? You know, this is your privilege and you really ought to take advantage of it. I suggest that you write him a brief note inviting him. If he is at all interested in you he will be happy to accept your invitation and use it as a means to resume your friendship.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man of nineteen years and I have a fancy for a young girl I meet on the street occasionally. I would like to get acquainted with her. What would you advise me to do

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY: If you have a strong enough fancy for the young lady, you shouldn't have much difficulty in meeting her, if you set your mind to it. In a town of this size, surely you know or can manage to make the acquaintance of, some mutual friend. Why not observe the young lady's companions, see if you can meet one of them in some way, then get an introduction to her. Or, if you can't do that, make a point of going home the same way, so as to meet her frequently, and she will get used to seeing you and perhaps cultivate a desire on her part to meet you. What about her spare time? Does she go to dances or card parties or does she frequent the public library? What about the movies and the chance of getting a seat beside her some night, with a mutual friend. Never worry. If you want to meet her badly enough, Fate will send some kind chance along in the near future.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY
By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE CHATS ABOUT THE INFLUENCE OF THE BUSTLE

Monsieur was having one of his maddest moments of creating. Yards of glorious velvet were heaped around him while one of the girls stood in a straight white slip before him and others with hands full of pins and several forbidding pairs of enormous shears were grouped around.

"We can not always be floating around in the sheerest of fabrics, layer upon layer of nothingness making a whole dress," he declared, as though he himself actually was accustomed to appearing in that style. "This winter one will see the heavier materials coming into their own, satins of heavy richness and velvets of plastic softness."

"Are you going to show us something quite new, Monsieur?" queried one the braver of the coterie.

"Only watch, my children, I will even show you that which is almost a bustle."

He had no need to tell us to watch, because not one of us would have stayed away if we could possibly manage to be present when Monsieur was working out his ideas on a living model. He swiftly seized a pair of shears and cut ruthlessly into a gorgeous piece of apricot velvet.

"Hold this," he said to the model. "Ah, you have very pretty shoulders. That is good for shoulders will be much in evidence this coming season."

"No trimming for the front," he continued, more to himself than to us, "except, of course, the ripples which will come almost of themselves when I draw it cunningly tight around the hips."

He chose a bit of filmy cream lace and inserted it at the top of the bodice, cutting the V of the satin even lower.

"Can I help you?" I offered, as he sometimes lets me, and I do so love doing it.

"Yes," he said, handing me more yards of material than I could possibly imagine using. "Gather this and place it so. It must hang quite free to give fulness for the dancing and graceful-ness to the moving figure." Then he fastened the material cleverly in a flare at the back. There was a subdued murmur of appreciation as we all recognized the actual outline of a possible bustle.

"Now I think flowers will do it," and he plunged his hands into a nearby box of them, finally choosing some beautiful shaded silk ones, their outer petals being almost the tint of the dress and growing deeper toward the center until they became almost cinnamon in tone.

The Keynote of This Costume Is Reserved for the Back.

"There!" he beamed on us all. "No finishing, but I will leave that to your more patient hands. I would have you note how marvelously this idea is adapted to the dance where the keynote of the whole is reserved for the back which is the center for all eyes, while the front of the costume is quite severe in its simplicity."

HELD FOWL SUPPER

Members and Friends of Benefort United Church Had Enjoyable Evening.

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 5.—The members of the Benefort United Church held their annual Fowl-Supper on Tuesday evening. The weather was ideal for the occasion, and from six-thirty until nine o'clock, large crowds assembled outside the entrance to the Sunday School hall, awaiting an opportunity to get their place at the tables within. The young men and women of the congregation served the supper, giving splendid attention to the wants of all those present.

Abundance of good things were provided in the line of fowls, salads, jellies, cakes and pies, besides other dainties such as make a meal appetising, and many made the remark that the supper was as good as anyone could want. There were plenty of provisions for all present, and at the conclusion of the entertainment it was found that there was abundance of provision to offer for sale.

A good entertainment was enjoyed in the church, provided by the George St. Union Sunday School orchestra, of Peterborough. The programme was an excellent one throughout, and almost every number was heartily encored. The pastor, Rev. Folley, acted as chairman.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to considerably over two hundred dollars.

Among those present from a distance, beside the George St. orchestra, were from Peterborough—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Duffus, Mr. Kidd, Mr. Heard, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Finnie, Mr. and Mrs. F. Finnie, Mr. and Mrs. W. Dawson; Messrs. H. Fry, R. Cuff, F. Ashe, O. Ingal, R. Deyell, J. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Misses M. Rutherford, D. Marshal, M. Storey, Miss Kidd, Dr. and Mrs. B. Marshal, Miss J. Finnie. From Millbrook, Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Harrington and Mr. W. Coombs.

Ducks Very Scarce.

Although the weather has been cooler of late, still the Autumn ducks are very scarce at Rice Lake. With the exceptions of a number of small flocks of harvest ducks, there have been very few around so far this season.

The fishing still remains good, and daily, numbers of muskinonge and pickerel are being caught.

Good Apple Crop Here.

This year apples of all kinds are a bumper crop throughout South Monaghan. Every orchard is heavily ladened with both crops of fall and winter apples, and almost all apples are an excellent quality. Many of the orchard owners found it necessary to prop the limbs of the trees to prevent them from breaking off under the weight of the heavy crop.

In some instances the owners have sold their apples for one dollar and fifty cents per barrel, and the purchaser picked and packed his own apples. But the majority of the farmers are picking and marketing their own apples.

Harvesting Buckwheat.

The farmers are now busily engaged in cutting their buckwheat, which in most cases is a good crop. If the weather continues favourable for another week, the major portion of the buckwheat harvesting, silo-filling, etc., will be finished up for this season.

Many of the farmers found it necessary to cut their corn by hand, as the recent rains and winds had caused it to fall down to such an extent that the corn binder could ont cut it.

Some farmers have already begun their fall ploughing, but as yet there is very little fall ploughing done in South Monaghan.

On Thursday afternoon, the members of the Bailieboro Union W.M.S., were invited to a quilting bee and social afternoon by the members of Group B. at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Barnard.

There was a splendid turnout of members present, and an enjoyable and profitable afternoon was spent, as four beautiful quilts were quilted for the foreign mission boxes.

The ladies of Group B, under the leadership of Mrs. W. H. Barnard, served tea to the entire organization. The W.M.S. is divided into three different groups and each group are doing all possible to raise money and to provide quilts and clothing for the mission boxes. Mrs. N. Jewison is the leader of group A; Mrs. W. Barnard, of group B; Mrs. R. Falls, of group C. The W. M.S. of Bailieboro, are a real live organization, and are continually doing great missionary work, both at home and for foreign lands.

Among those who were present at the quilting bee were, Mrs. R. Harper, Mrs. W. Bateson, Mrs. P. Barnard, Mrs. Edwin Dawson, Mrs. W. Bateman, Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. C. Dawson, Mrs. H. Barnard, Mrs. W. Dawson, Mrs. N. Jewison, Mrs. W. Barnard, Miss S. Dawson, Mrs. John Heaslip, Mrs. I. Dawson, Mrs. John White, Mrs. Jas. Byers, of Rochester, Mrs. Edmun Dawson, Mrs. W. The Secrets Of Charm
By Lucrezia Bori

When you were a young child and played about indoors and out with your little friends, did not you often take a keen pleasure in outdoing your playmates in some feat that called for physical strength, or at least a certain skill and dexterity?

There is nothing more excellent to develop muscles and tone them properly, and it is a pity that most of us outgrow any desire to show our physical skill as we grow older. Stunts of this kind bring unused muscles into play and make us more eager to go on and perform other physical feats which are good for our development.

By this I do not mean to try and pic out unusually difficult exercises which try us unduly, for an exercise that may be easy for one person to perform, is difficult for another to do. The best we can do is to try exercise that will tax us too much, and in this way we build up our reserve energy.

Reserve energy, as you doubtless know, is a test of real strength. Many people can be well and happy when all goes smoothly and there is no undue call upon their physical strength. It is the person who can meet an illness or can nurse another's illness without going to pieces who comes out ahead in time of real stress.

Now, here is an exercise which is difficult to do, and which will undoubtedly take you some time to master perfectly. Do not overstrain the first time you try it. If you cannot do it perfectly at first, work up to it gradually. I like an exercise of this type occasionally, because the fact that it is not easy adds zest to the game.

The exercise is as follows:

Sit flat on the floor, with both your legs straight out in front of you.

This Exercise Will Make Your Arms Supple.

Have them far enough apart so you can place your hands on the floor between your legs. Let your palms point forward, your fingers going in the same direction as your legs.

Now, with your hands and the strength of your arms, try to raise yourself completely off the floor, so that no part of your hands rests on the floor.

Lower yourself slowly and repeat.

You will doubtless find, at first, that your hands give way under a strain. But they will gain strength with practice, and you will find that gradually they will become strong enough to sustain the weight of your body.

This exercise will be splendid work for your whole body, and your arms, in particular, will respond to the call for strength.

Women's Lives

are relieved of a great hygienic handicap in this way

THERE is now a new way in woman's hygiene. A way scientific and exquisite that ends the uncertainty of old-time "sanitary pads."

You wear sheer frocks and gowns without a second thought, any time, anywhere. You meet every day, every business or social demand unhandicapped.

It is called "KOTEX." Eight in every 10 better-class women have adopted it.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, it banishes danger of mishaps.

Deodorizes, too. And thus ends ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You obtain it simply by saying "KOTEX." Women thus ask for it without hesitancy. Costs only a few cents at drug or department stores. Proves old ways a folly.

TORONTO LADIES WON FAST GAME BY GOOD SCORE

FAST RUNNERS

Visitors Ran Away From the Peterboro Girls in Relay Race

The Rani Ghar Grotto team of the Canadian Ladies 'A.C. came to Peterborough and defeated the Peterborough Ladies by the score of 17-11 in a good game of softball. The visitors also gave an exhibition of hurdling and running.

The somewhat involved name of the visitors is due to the fact that the players are members of the Canadian Ladies' A.C., and the team is backed by the Rani Ghar Grotto, a Masonic society. Included in the club are a number of the girls who represented Canada in the International Ladies' Games at Stamford Bridge during the past summer. Three of these ladies, Misses Grace and 'Tony' Conacher, and Miss Molly Trinnel, were on the team on Saturday. Misses Myrtle Cook and Kay Flanagan expected to be here but were unable to make the trip.

The game was won by superior hitting. The Peterborough girls were outhit 23 to 11, although a number of hits secured by the visitors went through short, where Misses Todd and Langton, both outfielders, were unable to successfully replace Miss Greenhalgh, who was sick. The local infielders were caught flat footed on a number of bunts, although Miss Vincent threw out seven visitors on taps to the box.

Miss Crews of the visitors and Miss Forsythe of the locals were the home run hitters of the day, while several others contributed extra base blows. Every girl of the visiting team secured at least one safety, except Miss Craindi, who batted only twice. Miss Evans of the Peterborough girls went hitless, although she came through with a sacrifice hit to scure Miss Taylor and break a tie in the fourth.

In the field both teams were about even. The locals were rather outguessed, as the Toronto girls would lean on the pill when a bunt was expected and get safe on a little tap when the locals were playing deep.

At baserunning there was again little to choose. The visitors made more bases on their hits, but were left behind at stealing bases. They lost a run in one inning when Miss I. Hanley forgot to touch second on her way to score on Miss Trinnell's triple.

The game started as if it would be a walkover for the homesters. The visitors were held scoreless in the first while the home team piled up five runs. The locals kept the lead until the fourth, when it was tied at six all. In the last of the fourth Peterborough went ahead for the last time, scoring a run. In the fifth the visitors forged ahead, and retained a lead of at least two runs all the rest of the game. In the sixth they counted five, and when this lead was threatened, being reduced to three runs in the eighth, they went out in the ninth and scored four, while their opponents were able to secure only two, a homer by Miss Forsythe, with Miss Mortimer on base, counting the pair.

Summary—Two base hits—I. Hanley, J. Allen, D. Mortimer. Three base hits—M. Trinnell, C. Taylor. Home runs—N. Crews, U. Forsythe. Sacrifice hits—A. Evans, E. Hanley. Stolen bases—V. Langton 2, G. Conacher, E. Moffatt, E. Hanley, C. Taylor, A. Evans, D. Mortimer, M. Vincent, M. Todd. Struck out—by Miss Conacher 9, by Miss Vincent 7. Bases on balls—off Miss Conacher 2, off Miss Vincent 1. Wild pitches—Miss Conacher 3, Miss Vincent 1. Passed balls—Miss Moffatt 1, Miss Mortimer 1. Left on bases—Toronto 10, Peterborough 6. Umpires—E. LeBarr at the plate, J. Coursey on bases.

After the game Miss Grace Conacher gave an exhibition of hurdling. She cleared the sticks gracefully and made good time at the hundred yards. A team composed of Misses Grace and Tony Conacher, Miss Moffatt, and Miss Trinnell beat a team made up of Misses Taylor, Todd, Mortimer and Langton of the Peterborough team without any difficulty. It had been intended to have an exhibition of throwing the javelin and discus but the visitors failed to bring either of these articles and neither was to be had in Peterborough.

The visitors were late in arriving. One car had trouble on the road and then they tried to make up lost time and they were stopped by a highway traffic officer.

After the day's exercises the visitors did justice to a supper provided for them in Hopper's grill room. They were officially welcomed to the city by Mayor Turner, who in an apt speech referred to the benefit to be derived from sports in building up body and character. His Worship congratulated the girls who were overseas on the shooting which they had made against competitors from all over Europe. Miss Ray of Toronto, and Messrs. Nelson, Philips and Colton of the local club also spoke. J. O'Brien was chairman.

RECORD OF WORLD'S SERIES CONTENTIONS

The so-called world's series for the baseball championship series beginning in the year 1884, when three games were played between Providence, the National League pennant winner, and the Metropolitans of New York, who had won the American Association championship. Providence won all three of the games. The post-season series between the winners in the National League and the American Association continued until 1890. In 1894 a new series was inaugurated between the first and second teams of the National League for a cup presented by W. C. Temple of Pittsburgh.

The present world's championship series between the pennant winners in the National and American leagues dates from 1903, when the Pittsburgh Nationals were beaten by the Boston Americans. The following year the New York Nationals declined to play Boston, but in 1905 the series was resumed and has ever since been played without interruption. The winners of the various series follow:

Yankee First Baseman Won Latest Style Golf Match

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 — Armed with the appurtenances of their chosen sports, a golfer, a ball player, an archer and a surf fisherman played nine holes of "golf" at the Bellecliaire Golf and Country Club, Bayside, Long Island, and the ball player, Lou Gehrig, Yankee first-baseman, won.

He finished one stroke ahead of Leo Diegel, Canadian open golf champion, and Dr. Paul W. Crouse, archery champion. Edwin F. Harkins, Elizabeth, N.J., surf fisherman, was eleven "strokes" behind the winner.

Gehrig, throwing a baseball around the course, was required to hit a yard-wide tub to hole out. Dr. Crouse had to hit the bull's eye of a target at each hole, and Harkins was required to cast into a 36-inch hoop.

Tigers Open Rugby Season With Win Over Argonauts

HAMILTON, Oct. 4. Canadian Press. — In a close but loosely played game Hamilton Tigers opened the Interprovincial Rugby season here yesterday with a victory over the Toronto Argonauts. The score was 14-11. Mild weather, a light wind and a fast field made the day ideal for Rugby and attracted a big crowd from both cities.

FLYING START.

Ottawa Senators Register a Fine Win in Opening Rugby Game.

OTTAWA, Oct., Oct. 4 (Canadian Press)—Ottawa Senators got away to a flying start in the interprovincial Rugby Union schedule, when they won their opening game against M.A.A.A. here yesterday by the decisive score of 17 to 1. While the score shows a real difference between the two teams, it was not so marked in the actual play. The locals pulled away in the last period to win away off, and the team as a whole seemed to improve as the game progressed, but for three periods it was an even battle with Ottawa being favored with the only break of the game which resulted in a touchdown for them.

Before the war, football was almost unknown in Spain. The recent progress of the sport in the land of the Dons is illustrated by the fact that a Madrid football club is now touring England and holding its own against Britain's best.

The 1925 baseball season appears to have produced a new "miracle man" in the person of "Butch" Wetzel, who pitched Topeka to the championship of the Western League pennant. When Wetzel took charge of the Senators only a month or so before the season closed, they were in last place.

DELORO LOST IN O.B.A.A. REPLAY

Ottawa St. Anthony's Won Sudden Death Game in Kingston—To Meet Goodyear

DELORO, October 5—In a sudden death game to decide the championship of Eastern Ontario in the Intermediate series of the O.B.A.A., Ottawa St. Anthony's defeated Deloro 6-4. The game was played in Kingston at the Cricket Field. The diamond was inches deep in mud, despite the use of saw dust, from an all night rain and a heavy downpour for an hour preceding the game.

Both teams were defeated by Brockville in the playoffs but when the Island City team was suspended the two teams were ordered to play a sudden death game for the right to replace Brockville in the finals against Goodycars of Toronto.

CAN. PACKING WON BRADBURN SOCCER CUP TIE

Both Goalkeepers Gave a Very Clever Exhibition in Goal.

SCORE 2 TO 1

Mitchell and James Scored for the Winners—Ward for De Laval.

Ideal weather prevailed on Saturday afternoon for the Bradburn Soccer Cup game that took place on King Edward Park before a good crowd of spectators, when the C.P.C. won by two goals to one in a real cup-tie match. Both goal-keepers gave a clever exhibition, and the winners got the breaks.

Opening Fast.

There was no advantage in winning the toss, but Cross broke away on the right, to make Frick save in the opening minutes. Dyer relieved the pressure to give Lindsay the opportunity to beat along the line and Ward sending pass from close range. The centre-forwards harrassed the defence of each team time and again, but they never faltered against the desperate attacks that were made on the citadels of Frick and Montgomery.

Montgomery Brilliant.

On mid-field play, Ward gained possession to carry the ball into C.P.C. territory, where Evans beat through the defence, then slipped across to Hanson, who let drive like a rocket into goal, but the outstretched arm of the C.P.C. custodian diverted the sphere past for an unsuccessful corner-kick that Carmichael transferred to his left wing. The De Laval prevented anything happening, but Foster made up for his previous poor shooting, a few minutes later, when he went inside the defence to gain a flag-kick that was sent past. A clear opening at last let Lindsay out in on goal and with nobody but the goal-keeper in front of him to defeat, he missed the upright by inches. Three time in succession he repeated the same performance.

Fricked Picked Them Up.

A counter attack that prevailed for a long period by the C.P.C. let Mitchell have an opening, but he was a little bit of the "bull," the ball being picked up by De Laval goal keeper in masterly fashion when in dangerous positions as the attacking forwards rushed in. These tactics were prominent until Abraham initiated a piece of strategy against the stalwart defence he opposed. He dribbled past three men in succession, then picked the far corner of the goal, but the goal-keeper nullified his success. A break away by the C.P.C. forwards was stopped by the announcement of half-time. No scoring.

HALF TIME

When the teams lined up again in the second half, they faced off as in the first portion. The opening brush favored the De Laval, but a foul decision against them let Halliday send up to mid-field. Buchan trapped nicely, to send James away with the ball, the De Laval defence closed in upon him to prevent possessor having a free shot. They relieved the pressure when Evans broke through the half-backs, to test his opponent goal keeper, who deserved a better reward of his splendid effort.

C.P.C. half backs now dominated the situation with their anticipation of play, which proved deteriorating to De Laval forwards. They broke up quickly the attacks, then fed their forwards likewise.

Mitchell Opened Scoring.

On this movement, Cross was the fortunate player to put the spectacular hit into the tussle when he slashed the sphere across the goal. Hensby covered James but Dyer failed to prevent the centre-forward besting De Laval custodian when he connected with a left footer a few yards out, after eight minutes play.

Encouraged by their success, the C.P.C. controlled the play to their advantage, but this brought out an excellent defence during the seige. No matter what they initiated, the De Laval responded with just as good visits upon goal. After Frick had repelled shots by Buchan and Foster, it was noticeable that Dyer was trying to play the one-back game that was successful for a while but it proved disastrous later on.

James' Spectacular Goal.

On a visit to C.P.C. goal, Halliday frustrated a dangerous attack and punted over the heads of the opposing full backs, who were down at the half field line. They reverted back to close, but they were bewildered when James gained possession on the run while the defence was helpless. Frick awaited the outcome very coolly but the C.P.C. inside forward made no mistake with his parting shot. The De Laval custodian spread both legs across the goal in his endeavor to save the situation, but the ball rolled through a few inches past his foot. It was nice football on every participator's part. This sudden reverse found the losers wake up and they did, without doubt, what they regretted the same tactics as the successful goal-getters. Clever combination between the De Laval forwards found the opposing defence for a while, but the ball never would go past Montgomery, who was giving a clever exhibition of goal keeping. Truth to tell, mostly everybody connected with the game had the way when Hanson's corner kick hit the side of the cross bar to be returned against the upright, just as Carmichael's steady foot cleared to the touch. A little later, a pass from Evans went across the goal mouth looking for a foe to convert, but it struck Grant's in transit, to be diverted to the other end where both Buchan and Foster had Frick making all kinds of brilliant saves, and fruitless flag kicks.

Scored From Penalty.

Three times, Evans on a solo run made play interesting in C.P.C. goal area that ultimately awarded De Laval a penalty which Ward sent inside the uprights for a counter. The remaining fifteen minutes were the best of the whole tussle, because the Black and Yellow stripe sweater boys delivered a bombardment that C.P.C. retaliated with greater vim. There was no further scoring in a well contested game.

C.P.C., 2; De Laval, 1.

Goal scorers—Mitchell and James for C.P.C.; Ward for De Laval.

The Teams.

De Laval—Frick, goal; Dyer and Hensby, backs; Smith, Ward and Harvey, half backs; Lindsa, Jones, Evans, Abraham and Hanson, forwards.

C.P.C.—Montgomery, goal; Grant and Halliday, backs; J. Montgomery, Buchan and Carmichael, half backs; Cross, James, Mitchell, Billingsley and Foster, forwards.

Referee—George Blowers.

BALTIMORE WIN OVER LOULSVILLE

Clubs Now Tied With Two Games Won and Two Lost.

THOMAS ACTIVE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Canadian Press. — Baltimore won the fourth game of the junior world's series with Louisville on Saturday 7 to 5, and tied the American Association Club with two games w and two lost.

Ogden failed in his second attempt to subdue the Colonels, but Thomas stepped to the box at the start of the fourth inning and stopped the Louisville sluggers in their tracks. He gave up three hits, two in the ninth counting for one run, and fanned seven men, five of them in a row in the fourth and fifth innings.

Three Louisville pitchers toiled against the International Leaguers, but Tincup was the victim in one of the big inning which gave the Birds five runs. Score:

U. S. FISHERMEN SEND CHALLENGE TO HALIFAX BOAT

Telegram Despatched on Learning No Canadian Entry in International Contest

NO RACE LAST YEAR

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 5 (Canadian Press) — The United States fishermen's race committee has voted unanimously to send a challenge to Halifax for an international race this fall. This action followed receipt of a letter early last week from the owners of the schooner Columbia saying they were ready to meet a Canadian vessel either here or off Halifax.

A telegram sent last night to the Halifax race committee read in part:

"Advices received from Halifax race committee lead to the belief that a Canadian entry cannot be expected for the international fishermen's race due to be sailed off Gloucester this year, and such being the case the American fishermen's race committee unanimously voted to challenge the winner of the Canadian fishermens race.

"The committee would much prefer that such a contest be held off Gloucester, but if your committee finds this impossible we are in favor of a race to be sailed off Halifax."

The international fishermen's trophy has been held by the donor in Halifax since the calling off of the 1923 competition after a dispute over the legality of one of the races. There was no race last year.

TIGERS WIN TWO

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. — Canadian Press. — The White Sox closed the American League season in Chicago on Saturday, by defeating Cleveland, 10 to 8, and making a clean sweep of the three game series. CAVAN PERSONALS.

CAVAN, Sept. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hunter motored to Lindsay on Saturday and attended the fair.

Mr. Jas. Paul was at Lindsay during the entire fair time and occupied his old position—calling the different classes and races.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Tinney attended Lindsay Fair on Saturday.

Miss Alma Perrin, Lindsay, came home on Wednesday on account of the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Perrin, South Monaghan.

Mrs. Perrin had resided in Cavan for several years with her son, Mr. J. W. Perrin. She was buried from the residence of here son, John Perrin, South Monaghan, on Thursday afternoon. Interment took place in the Little Lake Ce[illegible]

Mr. [illegible]tchett and Mr. J. Swain attended Lindsay Fair on Friday. While there Mr. Swain received a hurried phone call that his house was on fire. However, before he reached home the fire had been checked and the buildings suffered only slight injury.

Mrs. Reynolds, nurse, had her tonsils removed at Dr. Turner's Hospital last week and is recuperating nicely.

Mr. L. Hutchison was a visitor at Lindsay for a few days this week.

Mrs. Ida Keegan is visiting her sister, Mrs. Coulter, Lindsay.

The Ladies' Aid of Cavan United Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Archie Kennedy on Thursday afternoon, October 8, instead of the first.

Mr. George Wadsellt, Toronto, has been the guest of his aunt, Mrs. R. Matchett, for the past week.

Mrs. Howell, Montreal, is the guest of her brother, Mr. J. W. and Mrs. Perrin.

Notes from Mr. Peck's Committee Rooms

WHAT A LOW TARIFF OR NO TARIFF WILL ACCOMPLISH

A Side Light on England's Unemployment.

The attention of those who advocate letting our tariff on industrial productions remain as it is, might digest the following statements made by a man who comes from the famous Black Shires of England, the one time home of the iron and steel industries. The lesson to us is obvious, and every supporter of Mr. King and Mr. Gordon will do well to ponder, before he casts his vote in support of either, or both.

Speaking at the Liberal-Conservative rally on Saturday night, Mr. Frank Millard, in part, said that he was an Englishman, born and bred in Staffordshire. He had experience both in the Home Country and Canada. Left England fifteen years ago. In Darlington, the firm he was employed with closed its doors because of the outside and excessive competition of countries paying poor wages and working long hours and underselling the home-made product. The goods turned out were nuts and bolts.

The Swedish and German manufacturers were able, owing to conditions in those countries to lay down at Darlington, immense quantities of these products for very much less than they could be produced in England. All efforts were made to meet this competition and hold the home market, and the trade in foreign exports previously held, but nothing availed. He had passed the factory, after it had closed, and saw hundreds of tons of nuts and bolts, shipped in boxes, received at the factory, and re-packed and shipped out by the firm in boxes carrying its brands, with only two or three men employed for the purpose, where hundreds had previously been in service. The firm able to import these goods and re-sell cheaper than they could make them.

Hundreds of men worked for some years on three days a week, and even that short time employment ceased eventually. He was one of these men, and he got out and came to Canada, where there was some protection for the businesses. In 1906, nearly 20 years ago, the crippling of England's iron industries began. The Kruppe, in Germany received orders from England for thousands of tons of billets and bars, for railway supplies, and the factories making such products closed down or worked only part time. Rolling mills were idle, smelters blown out and cold, collieries discharged men for want of orders for coal, and very serious unemployment. This is what Free Trade has done for the Black County of Staffordshire.

Canada was the finest country in the world, if properly governed. This, Mr. King was not doing, and Mr. Gordon was helping Mr. King. The working men would be poorly advised to help continue a state of affairs that meant low wages, crippling competition and unemployment. His father had been employed in the Staffordshire works for 47 years, and when a man of 70 years, found his employment gone and was now sweeping out places as a janitor, rather than take the dole.

His advice to working men was to help put on a reasonable protection, employ the people, pay the wages and do it all at home. Don't send your money out of the country. Every workingman should, in his own interests, vote for Mr. Peck.

Read What a Life-long Liberal says.

The President of the Garment Manufacturers Association of Canada, Mr. R. P. Sparks, of Ottawa, a life-long liberal, writes to the press, discussing the policy of Mr. King. He says, "I have reached the conclusion that the whole industrial future of Canada is threatened by the return of the King government, and though I have always been associated with the Liberal Party, I propose to take as active a part as I can in the defeat of the present administration."

After discussing the causes he affirms that so strong is the local competition, so energetic the work to gain orders, so little the opportunity to reduce working costs, that even a small lowering of the tariff would be disastrous. He then adds, "The only other alternative would be a general reduction in wages, which, for the same class of work, are from two to four times as high as in the European countries from which a flood of merchandise is now pouring into Canada. There had been reductions in wages in the garment industry in the last three years, but a point had been reached below which wages could not be and should not be reduced, and maintain a standard of living to which Canadian workers were entitled."

WORKERS—You see what is ahead of you if the King Government is retained in power. And Mr. Gordon proposes to do all he can to keep the King government where it is, or better its numerical standing in parliament.

Notes from The Saturday Night Rally.

Referring to claims put forward that so many things would be done in the interest of the returned soldier, and which left, by implication, the impression that Mr. Peck was silent on this matter, Mr. Peck said:—

"He had spoken of his interest in the affairs and the condition of the working man. All his life he had been a friend, and aided in the betterment of those who worked for a living, as all men should honestly do.

"Ten years ago we had a notable class of workmen, in thousands, who went out to work for their country and gave all they could give, even their lives, for the British flag. Those who returned are entitled to our best consideration. He had amongst his supporters many of these veterans. He could assure those veterans that their interests were his, and he, if elected, would carefully look after their interests, but in voting they should carefully consider what is in the best interests of the country. Mr. Gordon has been making special appeals to ex-soldiers. It is open to any man to do so. The appeal he (Mr. Peck) would make, was that the ex-soldier, now back in civil life, and a part of our industrial population, should view the conditions of his employment and consider if going on in the way we have been doing has brought in the last few years to him, the best of conditions, and permanent employment, and he would realize that things are not satisfactory. If the returned man had claims that were tenable, as his representative such might confidently be left in his hands to look after, confident that the same Mr. Peck, who had been in association with the people of this city for the last sixty years, would not be unmindful."

Mr. Melton, of the Canadian Woollens Company, spoke of conditions in the textile industries, locally and in the province. So long as the idea prevailed, as inculcated by the King government, that it did not pay to make anything that could be bought cheaper from abroad, just so long would our woollen industries languish. It was a real fight to maintain business. Conditions of employment were bad, in many lines of trade, and would be much worse if men, despairing of getting work at home, moved across the lines. The ravages caused by the policies of the King government were apparent in the woollen business. People are buying and using imported fabrics coming from countries where wages are low, hours long, and living conditions insufficient. The claims of the industries for protection should not be ignored. Protection would infallibly be the means of increasing wages, and in turn, men and women, earning, would have money to expend on living necessaries and comforts. All would be benefited.

Here is something for Mr. Gordon to consider, and in the unemployment arena. Mr. Bradburn, speaking at the Saturday night rally, said that the day before, Auctioneer Hancock had offered for sale and disposed of the household effects of four families, the heads of which had gotten tired of little or no employment in Peterborough, and gone across the border. Four families in one week. Consider what this drain really meant.

And Auctioneer Hancock at once said that the same thing came along, week after week.

BRETHEN SPEAKS AT 40 MEETINGS

Off to North Hastings for Addresses on Thursday.

G. A. Brethen, M.P., Progressive candidate in Peterboro - Hastings, will invade the far north of the eastern section of the new riding on Thursday, and will stump the country districts until next Wednesday. He will rest on Saturday at Coe Hill, and during the trip will speak in Bancroft, the home town of his Conservative adversary, Dr. A. T. Embury, Maynooth, and other northern hamlets are on his itinerary.

To-morrow night Mr. Brethen will speak at Westwood, and will be assisted by Mrs. McCaffrey of Madoc. On Wednesday night they will address a Progressive meeting at Warsaw. Mr. Brethen has scheduled forty meetings in the campaign which opens in earnest Tuesday night, and will continue with but little rest until the eve of election day.

In accordance with time-honored custom, the King and Queen attended the annual athletic games of the Braemar Royal Highland Society, during their recent stay at Balmoral. The contestants at these sports are in kilts, and the game performed are those which were popular in the Highlands hundreds of years ago. They include putting the heavy stone, throwing the 22-pound hammer, and tossing a huge tree trunk called a caber.

Canadian Storms Effect Price Of Chicago Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—Stormy weather in Canada likely to delay threshing had quick stimulating effect on the wheat market today. A material upturn in values took place, helped also by Liverpool advices that the European continental demand is of larger volume than expected, that the movement of wheat to Russian points is slow, and that the Russian crop has been over-estimated. Reports were also current that Minneapolis mills have enough orders on hand to keep the mills running for months. Opening prices 3-8 to 1-2c higher, new style December $1.35 to $1.35 3-4, and May $1.36 1-2 to $1.36 3-4 were followed soon by moderate further gains.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. After opening 1-8 to 5-8c up, December 77 7-8 to 78c, the corn market underwent something of a reaction, but then rose higher than before. Oats started at 1-4 to 1-2c advance, December 39 3-8 to 39 1-2 and held near to initial figures.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

Trading In Mines Heavy Several Big Advances

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press)—Trading was conducted on a heavy scale on the Standard Mining Exchange today, the market holding generally firm. One of the strongest stocks was Vipond, which advanced three at 105. Lake Shore gained two at 797, and Kirkland Lake one at 37; none of these being among the active leaders. Crown Reserve was the feature of the session, advancing two and a quarter points at 19 1-2. Castle Trethewey also prominent, advanced two to 281.

Strong Tone In Toronto Brazilian Again Active

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press) — A uniformly strong tone was displayed on the Toronto stock exchange this morning with Brazilian an active leader and Smelters also prominent. Smelters rose during the session to within an eighth of 135 but eased slightly at the close to 133 3-4, a net gain of three and three quarter points. Brazilian advanced a full point at 73 1-2. Sales Book was marked up six points at 69. Canada Bread advanced one and a half points and Abitibi one, as did Canadian Canners preferred. British Columbia Fishing and Fr. N. Burt each strengthened five eighths and Brompton a quarter. Nova Scotia featured the active bank section by advancing two points at 281.

Calling Of Loans Sent Some Stock Prices Down

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press) — Conflicting price movements characterized today's stock market. Rectification of the deficit in reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement through calling of loans on stock collateral was reflected in heavy liquidation of a broad variety of industrial issues, a number of which fell back 3 to 6 points. Pool activities continued, however, in merchandising and mail order shares and a number of specialties. Nash Motors showed an extreme gain of 32 points at 188 and and Woolworth crossed 180 for a gain of 10 points on buying predicated on the belief that another stock dividend was in prospect.

Foundation Company touched a new record high in anticipation of increased earnings on the new Greek Vardar River contract, work on which is to start immediately. American Smelting, American International Corporation and Fairbanks Morse also developed special strength but weakness cropped out in a number of motors, foods and other standard industrials. Movements in rails were indecisive.

ASK SINGLE GAME

Kingston Would Stake All on Sudden Death Encounter.

KINGSTON, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the lateness of the season, Kingston Seniors, conquerors of the Oslers, are asking the O.B.A.A. for a sudden death game with Niagara Falls instead of a game here on Wednesday and a return game at the Falls on Saturday. If this concession cannot be secured, the local team intends to default to Niagara Falls.

TARKINGTON STORY

Wrote "The Man Who Found Himself" Especially for Tom Meighan

About five years ago Booth Tarkington, world-famous novelist, was induced by Paramount to have one of his books transferred to the screen. The result of that experiment was one of that season's finest pictures, "The Conquest of Canaan."

The star of the picture was Thomas Meighan, who comes to the screen at the Capitol Theatre today, in another story by the same author, "The Man Who Found Himself," another prison tale written especially for the "good luck" star by Mr. Tarkington. Alfred E. Green, who directed Meighan in "The Bachelor Daddy," "Back Home and Broke," "Pied Piper Malone" and other just as successful pictures, made this one. Tom Geraghty, who supervises all of the star's productions, wrote the screen play. Virginia Valli, Frank Morgan, John Harrington, Norman Trevor, Charles Stevenson, Julia Hoyt and Lynn Fontanne are but a few of the big names which appear in the strong supporting cast.

"The Man Who Found Himself" is a semi-serious tale of a happy-go-lucky son of a small town banker, who shoulders the blame when his younger brother loses heavily in Wall Street and then borrows bank funds to "cover up." The result is a sojourn in Sing-Sing.

When he once more faces the light of freedom, Tom's outlook on life has been completely changed. His father is dead. Everpone turns his back on him. Even the girl who said she would wait, has married his business rival. He's dead set against everything and everybody.

Things look black. He falters from the straight and narrow path. Then—he becomes a realist—THE MAN WHO FOUND HIMSELF. If you like Meighan (and who does not?), see his latest.

AT THE ROYAL.

"WILDFIRE," RACING CLASSIC AT ROYAL

"Wildfire," the classic of all racing dramas that years ago featured the beautiful Lillian Russell, is at the Royal to-night in photoplay form.

Not only does Vitagraph's picture play of the famous racing melodrama "Wildfire" boast of a real all-star array but the name that plays the name part is a genuine racer. She is Theresa Gough, bought several years ago and is a full sister of Nellie Gough, that surprised race-goers at Miami by winning a race at the juicy odds of thirty to one. Theresa Gough was used right on the studio stage and was not one whit annoyed by the crowd, the lights, or the noise. She was playful as a kitten and developed a fondness for Aileen Pringle that made her follow the colorful star all around the stage nosing and nickering for sugar. The mare was also taken to Havana and actually ran in the race that is the big punch of the picture. "Wildfire" is being shown at the Royal Theatre.

ROMANCE—THRILLS — MYSTERY! IN "GREATER THAN A CROWN"

New William Fox Picture Starring Edmund Lowe, Colorful Tale of Kings and Intrigue.

Romance—thrills—mystery — love and adventure!—all are contained in "Greater Than a Crown," the William Fox picture starring Edmund Lowe, which opens today for a 3 days' engagement at the Regent Theatre.

It is a picture that has everything which goes to make perfect screen entertainment. Mr. Lowe is excellently cast as the dashing and hard-hitting young American in love with a princess of Lidavia, a mythical kingdom of Europe. And no wonder he is in love, for the object of his adoration is delectable young Dolores Costello, whose father, Maurice, long reigned as favorite. Miss Costello, playing her first leading part gives promise of even greater things to come.

Another scintillant personality of the cast is Margaret Livingston, who is fast taking first rank among the "sirens" of the films. Miss Livingstone invests her characterizations with fine feeling and sympathy; in this picture she plays less of a vampire role and more of a second heroine.

Paul Panzer, one of the best of Hollywood's "heavies," is the vindictive and menacing Marquis Ferasti of the story and he give a most colorful performance.

The picture was directed by Roy Neill and was adapted from the play and novel, "The Lady from Longacre," by Victor Bridges.

AT THE GRAND

"BLOSSOM TIME."

With some of the great composer's finest melodies as the basis for its most entracing score and its story founded on the life of the immortal Franz Schubert, "Blossom Time," as presented at the Grand Saturday proved one of the most artistic and delightful productions that Peterboro play-goers have ever seen. Here was a musical comedy of the old school depending upon the tunefulness of its score, the ability of its singers and the cleverness of its actors for success. The nudity and jazz and slapstick comedy and vaudeville features of the 1925 style of musical comedy were happily all missing, but in their place were a score of unmitigated charm, a company of artists who could not only sing but who could act as well, a wealth of rich colors enhanced by superb lighting effects, and all in all a presentation that for sheer beauty from all viewpoints has not been surpassed by anything that has been staged at the Grand.

The music of "Blossom Time" was entrancing. The melodies of Schubert have been adapted most effectively, strains of his famous "unfinished symphony" being heard in the most popular number of all, "The Song of Love," while the equally celebrated "Serenade" was used in the first act. Schubert's "Marche Militaire" was the finale of the first act and the melody of his "Ave Marie" was heard in the beautiful "Lovely Hearts" number in the last act. It was a score that while it was easily appreciated and enjoyed by those who make no claim to be students of classical music, called for artistry on the part of the cast, for in the hands of inferior players, disaster might easily result.

The company seen here Saturday was fully equal to the exacting demands made upon it. Principals and chorus alike knew how to bring out the last sparkling bit of beauty from the melodious score, and the result was a performance that will linger long in the memory of the audience.

Arthur Huson as Franz Schubert not only sang his part most effectively, developing a rich baritone, but his pitcure of the great composer was most deftly etched. With less skilful handling the pathos of some sections of the play would have developed into bathos, but Mr. Huson has a sure touch at all times, and his work was always convincing. He shared honours with Warren Proctor, whose Baron Schober was a delightful piece of acting and a fine exhibition of singing, his delightful tenor being most effectively shown in several numbers. The female cast contained two outstanding artists in Mary Powell as Mitzi, and Lillian Wagner as Bella Bruna. Miss Powell's skill as a comedian was balanced by her splendid singing, her voice being heard to finest advantage in "The Song of Love" number. Miss Wagner's conception of her role was never overdrawn while her vocal numbers evidenced not only a fine voice but a true realisation of the finer points of the score. Particularly effective was she in the number "Keep it Dark," in which her male associates were of invaluable assistance.

The chief comedy was furnished by William Sellery, whose work as Mr. Krauz showed him to be a comedian of the old and better school who knew how to get laughs without being profane or vulgar.

The other parts were well looked after, the chorus sang and danced delightfully and an augmented orchestra in charge of Carlton Kelsey was of great assistance.

"Blossom Time" has set a new standard of excellence by which all future musical comedies are likely to be measured.—F. D. C.

ACTION AGAINST THE CAMPBELL FLOUR MILLS COMPANY PLANNED BY COLONIAL WEAVING CO., LTD.

Council Asked For Leave To Use Its Name in Suit For $20,700.

FOR POWER USED.

Meter at Flour Mills Said to Have Failed in Power Registration.

Announcement of the intention of the Colonial Weaving Company Limited to sue the Campbell Flour Mills Limited for the sum of $20,760 alleged to be due the city through the Utilities Commission for electric power which a faulty meter failed to register, was placed before the Council last night in a letter from R. H. Fortye, secretary of the Colonial Weaving Company, who asks for permission to use the name of the Council in launching the action. The letter was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council for consideration.

As a preliminary to the threatened action it was learned that the Colonial Weaving Company through its solicitor, Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., has made demand on the Campbell Flour Mills Company for the payment to the city of the said sum of $20,760.

The communication to the Council last night follows:

To His Worship the Mayor and the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough:

We hereby apply for leave to use the name of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough in an action to be brought against the Campbell Flour Mills Company Limited and the Peterborough Utilities Commission to enforce the payment of the following claim against the Campbell Flour Mills Company Limited, that is to say:

December 31st, 1919—To 390 h.p. connected with and supplied to the Campbell Flour Mills Company Limited by the said Commission from the 1st March 1919 to the 31st day of December 1919 at $22.50 per h.p. amounting to the sum of.....$7306.10
Less the sum of..... 2464.40
paid on account thereof from time to time by the said Company to the said Commission leaving balance due and owing by the said Company to the said Commission of the sum of.....$4839.76 together with interest thereon at the rate of 5% per annum from the 1st day of January A.D. 1920.

December 31st, 1920—To 390 h.p. connected with and supplied to the Campbell Flour Mills Company Limited by the said Commission from the 1st of January 1920 to the 31st December 1920) at $22.50 per h.p. amounting to the sum of....$8765.00
less the sum of.....$2750.87
paid on account thereof from time to time by the said Company to the said Commission leaving balance due and owing by the said Company to the said Commission of the sum of.....$6014.13
together with interest thereon at the rate of 5% per annum from the 1st day of January 1921.

December 31st, 1921—To 300 h.p.

Armored Driller Stops Fire Put Explosive At Base

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 6.—(United Press.)—To save a field of oil derricks from destruction, a Caddo driller yesterday donned a suit of armour and carried a charge of nitroglycerine into the heart of a towering blaze over a gusher. After placing the charge where an electrical contact would explode, he retreated uninjured. The explosion, set off after the driller's retreat, put out the fire.

Neither the driller nor friends would reveal his name.

STATES FIGHT WATER STEAL

PERMIT NOT VALID.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—New forces were injected yesterday into the fight being made by Wisconsin to prevent the further diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago.

Minnesota, Ohio and Pennsylvania joined in asking the Supreme Court to make them parties to the suit which Wisconsin had brought against the Chicago Sanitary District and the State of Illinois. The motion was taken under advisement.

Counsel for the Sanitary District and for Illinois asked that they be given six months to prepare an answer, but Chief Justice Taft indicated that no such time would be allowed.

It is the intention of the four states to contend that only Congress has authority to permit the diversion of water from the lakes, and that the permit issued by the Secretary of War is not valid. Michigan also has given notice through her Attorney-General that she intends soon to join in the fight, taking the position that Congress cannot authorize diversion of water from navigable streams when it injuriously affects navigation.

Where Do All the Judges Go When Court Is Not Sitting?

MONTREAL, Que., October 6. — Canadian Press. — "Was the accused under the influence of liquor?" Jos. Cohen, counsel for P. Cunningham, a taxi driver, charged with driving while intoxicated, asked a witness in the court of sessions, during Cunningham's trial to-day.

"No," answered the witness, "he was as sober as a judge."

"Thank you," broke in Judge Monet; "I suppose you mean as sober as a judge in the bench?"

The witness replied that he did, while the court roared.

CHINA DECLINES TO NAME JURISTS INQUIRY NO USE

Pekin Government States Position in Reply to Diplomatic Corps Communcation.

COMPLICATE ISSUE.

British Desired To Investigate Shooting of Chinese in May.

PEKING, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Chinese Government yesterday reiterated its unwillingness to participate in a judicial inquiry regarding the Shanghai incident of May 30, in which several Chinese were shot by police of the international settlement while participating in a demonstration of sympathy with Chinese workers.

The Peking Government stated its position in a reply to a diplomatic corps communication which notified China of the Powers' decision to appoint jurists for such an inquiry.

The reply cites China's note of September 22, dealing with a British communication on the same subject, and reiterates the opinion expressed in that note that holding such an inquiry would only serve to complicate the issue.

FRENCH CONQUER DRUSE TRIBESMEN

Report Says Rebellion Crushed—Leader Gave Himself Up Unconditionally.

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—The rebellion of the Jebel Druse tribesmen against the French mandate in Syria was practically brought to an end yesterday, it is asserted in official circles here, when Hassad Bey Atrashe, one of the leaders of the rising, surrendered unconditionally to General Gamelin, the French commander.

From this time, it is asserted, the French troops in Syria will be engaged no longer in military operations, but will devote their energies to pacifying the country.

WON'T GET DRUNK FOR NEXT TEN DAYS

Man Fined and Imprisoned For Driving While Intoxicated—First Jail Sentence.

LINDSAY, Oct. 6.—The first jail sentence to be imposed on an intoxicated auto driver in this county was handed out by Police Magistrate Bradford at Kinmount on Saturday, when a man named Austin was fined $50.00 and costs on the charge of intoxication, and also received a sentence of ten days in jail for driving a car while under the influence of liquor. An appeal has been entered against the judgment of the court in the latter case.

BIG REDUCTION IN CANADIANS ENTERING STATES

Department of Immigration Says Large Numbers Returning to Canada

5,000 LAST MONTH.

1,800 Immigrants Came Here From United States During September.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6. Canadian Press —The following statement was handed out yesterday by the Department of Immigration:

"Canadians continue to return to Canada from the United States in large numbers. Although September returns are not yet complete it is estimated that in that month alone 5000 canadians who had been resident in the United States for more than six months returned to Canada declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country.

"In the same period about 1800 persons entered Canada from the United States as immigrants, largely of the agricultural class and bringing with them cash and effects to enable them to begin farm operations in Canada.

"Some idea of the traffic in tourist and non-immigrant classes is gained from the fact that it is estimated that in September two million persons of these classes entered Canada from the United States.

"While the movement to Canada is increasing, the movement of Canadians to the United States is falling off very sharply. At one of the principal boundary ports, the Canadians, both native born and naturalized, admitted to the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, numbered 71,390. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, the number of Canadians admitted to the United States at the same port, numbered 14,708—a falling off of practically 80 per cent."

FOUR DIE WHEN HOME IS BURNED

Mother and Three Children Were Victims—One Boy Escaped.

BADLY BURNED.

GLADSTONE, Mich., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Oscar Sundling, 45; two daughters, Jewel, 7, and Mildred, 5, and a month old son were burned to death in the fire that destroyed the farm home near Isabella, 22 miles north-east of Gladstone, according to word reaching here yesterday.

One boy, John, 9, was awakened by the smoke and escaped through the front door of the house. His mother, clasping the baby in her arms, attempted to reach the door, but was overcome and fell against it, the weight of her body holding it closed except for a small wedge. The little fellow's frantic attempts to push the door open far enough to drag her through were of no avail, and he was found crying for help and reaching through the crack, trying to brush off the live coals that fell on her body. His hands were burned badly. The two children, it is believed, were overcome by smoke and never awakened.

CORED BY BULL.

Farmer Seriously Injured When Knocked Down By Animal on His Farm.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—While attempting to drive a bull into a field, Ferdinand Charette, farmer, of Gatineau Point, was seriously injured on his farm on Sunday. The animal turned on him, knocked him down, broke his shoulder and commenced goring him when its attention was attracted elsewhere. Charette is expected to recover.

Calls From Sea Picked Up—Radio Broadcasting Ordered Ceased.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Distress calls from a ship at sea were picked up here last night by radio operators, and all radio broadcasting was ordered halted while efforts were made to ascertain the name and position of the disabled vessel.

UNION SPEAKERS SUGGEST CURES FOR WORLD WOES

German Delegate to Inter-Parliamentary Conference Urges Removal of Customs Barriers.

CONSTITUTE MENACE.

British Representative Advocates Establishment of Demilitarized Zones to Reduce Armaments.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Various remedies for economic, commercial and other world worries, including limitation of armaments on a universal scale, were presented yesterday to the Inter-Parliamentary Union in conference here.

The debate began with the opening of the morning session and continued without break late into the night. It centred in the main upon resolutions calling for abolition of economic customs barriers, creation of demilitarized zones for prevention of wars and limitation of armament, and upon amendments offered from the floor.

The resolutions were presented to the conference by its official reporters on the questions concerned, Adolf Braun of Germany and Brig.-General E. L. Spears, of Great Britain.

The Braun motion declared economic barriers now divided the peoples of Europe, obstructed prosperity and constituted a permanent threat of conflicts. To remedy this situation, he proposed a customs understanding among European nations aimed at existing barriers in trade affairs, relief from unemployment, reduction of production costs and general freedom in trade.

General Spears wanted the world powers to agree upon a system of demilitarized zones that would reduce armaments, protect exposed frontiers and create contacts between [illegible] and transmitted to the various Governments with a view to the conclusion of treaties between them providing for the establishment of demilitarized zones along their borders.

Australian Archbishop Not Wanted In North Ireland

BELFAST, Oct. 6.—The Ulster Government has decided not to allow Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix, of Melbourne, Australia, to enter Ulster territory. The Archbishop, who now is in Dublin, has been scheduled to speak in Belfast Thursday.

The Government decided that he should be classed with Eamon de Valera and other noted Irish Republicans who are barred from Northern Ireland.

DENIES REPORT THAT HE WOULD CONTEST SEAT

Hon. Andre Fauteux Says He Will Not Accept Conservative Nomination.

ENDS A RUMOR.

Cannot Explain How the Report Originated—Message to French Newspaper.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press). Hon. Andre Fauteaux, former Solicitor-General, is quoted in Monday's French-language newspaper "La Presse" as "denying categorically" his reported acceptance of the Conservative nomination in Nicolet.

Hon. Mr. Fauteaux is unable to explain the source of the telephonic despatch published in "La Presse" several days ago to the effect that he would stand in that constituency, and he wishes an end put to "the rumor."

The French-language afternoon newspapers here last Friday announced that the former Solicitor-General had agreed to enter the election fight in Nicolet. Previously his name had been mentioned in connection with the Conservative nomination of Laval-Two Mountains but this was given to Albert Gervais.

COLLEGE STUDENTS NOT WELL EQUIPPED

Principal of McGill Says Large Numbers Begin Career Ill Prepared.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—Many students begin college careers at McGill University "with nothing like the mental equipment which they need," states Sir Arthur Currie, principal, in his annual report, issued today. The preparatory school, say Sir Arthur, must play its part by aiding to a certain extent to eliminate unsuitable students and in raising the standard of those who are destined for a University career.

COUNCIL POSTPONES ACTION ON REQUEST FOR $386'000 TO BUILD EXTENSION TO THE COLLEGIATE

Vote of 7-3 Against Motion Endorsing Requistion From Board of Education.

TO BE DISCUSSED.

Aldermen Unready to Commit City to Expenditure Without Further Thought.

With all the facts before them the City Council last night deferred for consideration at a special meeting the request from the Board of Education for the provision of the sum of $386,000 for the erection of the proposed combination Vocational and High School.

Ald. Fife's motion, seconded by Ald. Meyers recommending that the requisition of the Board of Education be formally endorsed by a by-law to be prepared by City Solicitor Joseph Wearing was rejected with only Mayor Turner supporting them, while Alderman Denne's amendment seconded by Ald. Greene postponing action until the project was further discussed by the Council at special meeting to be called by the Mayor was adopted with the approval of Aldermen Denne, Greene, Hancock, McIntyre, Crowe, Jones and Phelan.

Ald. Turner was not present.

The Board of Education's petition was advocated by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Dr. J. J. Craig, members of the Board, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie who joined them later in the session but did not address the Council.

Copies of the comprehensive statement of Peterboro's secondary educational problem prepared by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, and recently distributed among the Aldermen, and previous conferences and discussions within the last two years had acquainted the members of the Council with the general features of the undertaking which the Board of Education has advanced to the stage at which they are prepared to begin work as soon as the funds

RAIN SATURATED LIST OF VOTERS

Electors Should Call Either Committee Rooms to Ensure Vote.

Rain and wind over the week-end considerably nullified the work of the registrars as posted throughout the city on Saturday. Sections of the lists were nailed to fences and posts over notices of the sittings of Judge Hoyrke for the final revision of the names of electors compiled for voting reference. Some of the lists appeared to have been torn down. Many of them were missing this morning, but copies received from the registrars are on file at the committee rooms of the two candidates whose assistants are now busily engaged in ascertaining whether the names of any of their partisans have been omitted. Electors, however, should make this enquiry a personal duty, and may telephone or call at either of the committee rooms to make sure that they have been listed.

DURANT MOTORS UP $337,000 FIRST 7 MONTHS

Substantial Improvement in Canadian Company's Position to End of July —Output Over 6,500 Cars For Period, a Substantial Gain —New 6-Cylinder Car Next Year.

TORONTO, Oct. 6—Favorable progress made by Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, during the first seven months of 1925 is indicated in the balance sheet of the company, as of July 31, 1925. Additions to surplus amounted to $337,023, compared with $63,000 during the corresponding period of last year, and with a deficit of $30,823, as of Dec. 31, 1924.

While highly gratified with the definite improvement shown, officials point out that the closing months of the year are usually relatively slack and shareholders cannot expect the rate of earnings experienced earlier in the year to be fully maintained. The net surplus as of July 31, 1925, was $306,799. It is noteworthy that the company owes nothing on its plants.

Net Working Capital, $1,800,544

Substantial improvement in the company's liquid position is also revealed. Current assets stood at $2,179,874, as against current liabilities of $379,330, making he net working capital $1,800,544, an increase of $621,511 during the seven months under review. The cash position in August showed a further improvement over July of approximately $50,000.

Notable changes in current accounts included an increase in the cash holdings to $375,250, while notes and accounts receivable weer $498,163, a marked growth since the close of 1924, when the total was $82,147. Inventories showed a reduction of $80,089, the total being $1,135,241. Real estate, plant and equipment aggregated $1,722,877, less reserve for depreciation of $213,942, making net fixed assets $1,508,935, compared with $1,544,413 in December last.

Issued Capital, $2,840,070

The liabilities side of the statement also indicates improvement. Accounts payable to allied companies were reduced from $205,263 to $48,833, as a result of payments made to the parent company on accounts owing. The issued capital amounts to $2,840,070, while stock subscribed for but not issued is $159,930, making a total of $3,000,000.

Important Alterations

The management will make important alterations in the plant this fall, and while the installation is under way the plant will have to be closed down. Lacquaroid equipment will supersede the present enamelling process. Body plant equipment will be enlarged to take care of the assembly of closed cars, as well as the open cars now constructed. Provision will also be made for the assembling of motor car frames, in addition to the chassis assembled heretofore. These alterations will serve to increase the operations of the company and should result in a growth of profits. The number of cars produced from January 1 to July 31 this year was 6,522, a considerable gain over the corresponding period of last year.

New Light "Six" Car

The improveemnt thus shown is attributable to the present management, who have put into practice highly efficient operating and sales methods.

The outlook of the company for the coming year is considered definitely favorable, and prospects for shareholders are brighter.

The company is making preparations to place on the market next spring a new light "six" motor car to compete with the Essex and Overland models.

Motion that the following orders be drawn on the treasurer:

Geo. Ireland, $10; John Warren, 80c; A. E. Bottum, $52.36; Bobcaygeon Independent, $56.99; Arthur Bolton, $10; Henry Parker, $7.50.

On motion the meeting adjourned to meet again at Hall's Bridge on Saturday, October 31st.

WEDDING BELLS.

HAMILTON—FAIRBAIRN.

In St. Andrew's Church, King street, Toronto, on Saturday, October 3rd, at eleven o'clock, very quietly, the marriage took place of Isabel Roger, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. R. Fairbairn, Montreal, to Mr. Miles Beresford Hamilton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Miles Hamilton, Auburn, Peterboro, the Rev. Stuart Parker officiating. The handsome bride, who was unattended, and who was given away by her father, wore a smart and becoming frock of blond satin crepe with appliqued bands of mink, and one of the new folded velvet toques, en suite. Her corsage bouquet was of butterfly roses and lilies-of-the-vallep. The best man was Mr. Robert Barker Hamilton, brother of the groom. After a wedding breakfast for the immediate families, in the Blue drawing-room of the King Edward, the bride and groom left on a trip to the West, the former wearing an ensemble of blue broadcloth, trimmed with mink, and hat to match. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will live in Toronto.

HOUSE—CARNRITE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized Saturday, Sept. 26, at 12 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, when Gladys Margaret, second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carnrite of Seymour Township, and Clifford Sidney, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. House, 152 Hiawatha road, Toronto, were united in matrimony. The bride wore a stunning dress of powder blue georgette, trimmed with gold lace, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Carnrite, wore a blue brocaded satin dress. Mr. Stanley Carnrite, brother of the bride, acted as best man. After the ceremony luncheon was served, and latter the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a blonde suit, with shoes, stockings and hat to match. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

TRENT CANAL USED AS DUMPING GROUND

All Kinds of Litter Discovered When Section Was Repaired.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6. — Cheese shipped from here on Saturday brought 24½ cents a pound, the same as that paid on the Belleville board, and the highest price that has been received by the local shippers for over three years. What makes the high price all the more remarkable is the fact that the weekly shipments are as heavy as at any time since the opening of the season. Owing to the wet weather there has been no falling off as yet in the supply of milking going to the factories. It has certainly been a bonanza year for the dairy farmers in Northumberland County.

There were over 400 boxes graded by J. L. Idvin, the Government official, and shipped from the Campbellford Station Saturday. At the usual average of 90 pounds to the box, this means a total of 36,000 pounds, worth $8,820, at the prevailing price. The Empire factory, one of the largest in the district, shipped 86 boxes, valued at $1,896.30. Besides this cheese that was graded there a considerable number of boxes were shipped for inspection at Belleville, so that the total receipts for cheese would not be far short of $12,000. And shipments as large have been made every Saturday since the opening of the season.

Canal Repairs.

The water in the reach of the Trent Canada, between Locks 10 and 11, was drained off Sunday to permit of some repairs being made in Power House No. 10. The bottom of the Canal which follows the bed of the river for the distance referred to, was exposed to view excepting the narrow strip in the centre which forms the canal proper; the banks of this channel being walled by stones. The draining of the water revealed the fact that the residents on both sides are in the habit of dumping all sorts of discarded household and other articles into the water, as the rocky bottom was covered with broken dishes, cans, bottles, pots and pans, boots and shoes, auto tires, and the like. A large number of fish and eels were left stranded on the bottom and many a good catch was made by local fishermen using various weapons such as spears and pitchforks.

While the water was off in the canal from early morning until evening, there was a failure of the town supply in the houses. It is necessary every year or two to drain the water from different reaches in the canal in order to make repairs.

Nothing suggestive of tragedy was found in tht bottom of the canal and it was given out that the work was not done in the hope of discovering anything of the kind.

Improvements on C.N.R.

The branch of the C.N.R. from Midland to Belleville, and which passes through Peterborough and Campbellford, has been equipped so as to be in a position to do its share in moving the big Western wheat crop to the seaboard. Last Spring the bridges on this branch were strengthened so as to make them safe for the passage of heavier engines that could draw long train loads of grain. The old rails have been replaced from Belleville to near Peterborough with new steel, as heavy as any in use except in the mountain districts. These new rails will be put down the entire length of the branch. Passengers using the line notice that the coaches pass more smoothly over the heavier steel.

Two new freight engines have recently been added to the equipment, the self-feedng type on which the fireman is spared the labor of shoveling coal into the firebox, as this is done by an automatic feeder.

The new engines may not be fast but they are powerful and can haul more cars of wheat than any locomotive that ever worked on the line before them.

Improving the Fair.

Learning from the experience of last week, the directors of the Campbellford Fair, are already planning for next year's exhibition. It was realized on Friday that some of the buildings are still inadequate and these will be improved. For one thing, more hog and sheep pens are required. The new horse barn has proved one of the best investments that the Board has ever made. Large as it is, the well-appointed poultry house had no room to spare last Friday.

Charles H. Davidson, the garage man, established a feature of his own when he exhibited in the open air six beautiful types of his car which interested auto owners and prospective buyers alike, Campbellford business men could easily stage a respectable exhibition of their own if they were provided with a buildng.

Jack Ward, tihe Peterborough sprinter, who won the foot race here at the Fair, said the Campbellford track is about the fastest on which he has ever run, and that he would not be afraid to undertake to lower his record for long or short distance on it. Leo. Bush, who lost to Mr. Ward, and the latter are already talking of another race. Mr. Bush has won the five mile race held here every Fall three years in succession, and prefers long distance races to sprinting contests.

Big Show of Horses.

Dr. G. A. Hay, who has been on the circuit this year judging light horses at the fairs says that at Carp, a small village near Ottawa, he saw last week the best turn out of heavy horses, there being over 260 first class animals in the ring.

Thresherman Busy.

George Barnum and A. C. Connor, local threshermen, say that the work in this district is not over half completed, and that it is likely to last for another month. Mr. Barnum says that while there is more straw in the country than there was in 1924, he does not think that there will be a greater yield of grain.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. James Allan have returned from a visit to their son in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien of Edmonton are visiting their old home town and renewing acquaintances with Campbellford friends.

TWO QUAKES REGISTERED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press). — Two severe earthquakes were registered Sunday night at the Dominion Observatory here. The first occurred at 11.15, and the distance to the epicentre was 3,450 kilometers, or 2,140 miles. The second 'quake, from a different epicentre, was registered at 11.17 from a distance of 1,870 miles. The combined records continued for more than two hours.

MISUNDERSTANDING ABOUT C.N.R. BRANCH LINE BETWEEN RAILWAY AND COUNCIL OF CAMPBELLFORD

Railway Says That Lots Will Be Advertised For For Sale.

LOTS BUILT ON.

Will Give Quit Claim to Town For Line on Market Square.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6—Some time ago the Town Council offered the C.N.R. $300 for the several lots which comprise the company's right of way for part of the spur line which has been abandoned. At the October meeting of the Council last night Town Solicitor Lynch reported that he had informed by the railway people that they could not entertain the town's proposition as they have already been offered $1000 for different lots. The communication stated that the company would advertise the property for sale.

Deputy Reeve Palliser said that there was evidently a misunderstanding somewhere as the plan of the property as prepared and circulated by the company showed that several lots on which residences have been built are the property of the C. N. R. The attention of the company had been called to this apparent error but so far nothing has been heard from them with regard to this phase of the matter.

The Council will take no further action until the lots are advertised for sale. Part of the spur is built on Market Square, town property and the C.N.R. agrees to give the municipality a quit claim deed for this part of the line in order that the Market Street road may be improved.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Palliser Town Solicitor Lynch was instructed to write the company an acceptance of the offer the question of removing the rails to be decided later.

No Cells Purchased Yet

The representative of a firm in Toronto offered to sell the town two steel cells for the detention of prisoners, these to be joined together and the cost of them $525. Each cell is seven feet high, seven feet long and four and one-half feet wide and each is provided with a bunk.

There is in the building called by courtesy the town jail no place in which prisoners can be kept; and the providing of cells has been before the Council for over a year. Parties awaiting trial were formerly lodged in the police office but this meant that an officer had to remain with them to prevent their escape.

The members of the Council agreed that some improvement was needed, the Mayor calling attention to the fact that the last prisoner who fell into the hands of the police had to be taken to Warkworth for detention. The cells offered the Council last night could be set up in any room. The bill would not be presented until next year.

The agent was obliged to content himself with the assurance that his goods were satisfactory and that the matter would be considered further some time in the future.

Wants System Re-Vamped

R. W. Scott, engineer for the Water and Light Commission, wrote to say that the light on the post office site and the one in front of the jail, had been ordered and would be installed as requested by the Council. Mr. Scott suggested in his communication that the civic lighting system be re-vamped so as to give better service and improve the appearance of the town in the business section. This latter was placed on file.

To Trim Shade Trees

The Bell Telephone Company was given permission to trim shade trees where these interefere with their lines. If any such trees grow on private property the company will consult the owners before any trimming is done. The company offered to pay the wages of a man to be appointed by the Council, to oversee the work. J. R. Wilkinson was seelcted for that position on motion of Councillors Cole and Kingston.

A Question of Right of Way

The lane north of the Queen's Hotel, the property of Mrs. P. J. Kelly, is the only avenue to the space along the canal and business man on Front Street desire that a thoroughfare be established in the rear of these premises, to facilitate the delivery of fuel and packages of goods. Town Solicitor Lynch and Councillor Kingston were appointed a committee to see Mrs. Kelly with regard to the matter and last night Mr. Lynch reported that Mrs. Kelly had offered to rent the lane for $75 a year, the town to pay the taxes. The lane, which is really a vacant lot, has a frontage of 12 feet, with an assessed value of $420 at the prevailing rate for that district of $35 a foot. The actual value, the councillors placed at $600 when it was suggested that the property be purchased.

D. A. Montgomery, manager for Mackintosh Bros., who was present, stated that his company was willing to pay $12 a year toward the rental of the land or a percentage of the cost if the property were purchased.

The special committee was instructed to investigate further and it is possible that another opening to the canal bank will be secured.

To Build Machine Shed.

On motion of Councillor Wiggins, Clerk McGregor was instructed to advertise for tenders for the erection of a corrugated iron building, 50 x 25 in which to house the steam roller and other road machinery.

Councillor Cole, chairman of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, reported that he had ascertained that such a building would cost in the neighborhood of $400.

No More Sewer Work.

W. W. Rutherford and other residents who petitioned for a continuation of the Second street sewer to that point of the thoroughfare opposite their residences, were finally told that no more sewer work would be done until next spring.

James Clarke, Henry Redden and others, were given permission to tap water mains, they to do the excavation and the town to furnish the pipe.

Part of First street will be gravelled and a light put up on that thoroughfare.

All the members of the Council were in attendance.

MORE BOXES NEEDED BY FRUIT GROWERS

Huge Apple Crop Bring With It Difficult Problem of Packing.

BRIGHTON, Oct. 6.—The fruit growers of this district are becoming alarmed over the prospect that they will be unable to save their apples for the lack of containers in which to send them to market. Where they ordered their boxes and barrels early in the season they made provision for a normal crop of fruit. As it has turned out, the yield of apples will be between two and three hundred per cent. above the average, and there is a scarcity of containers to take care of the yield.

The barrel and box factory at Trenton is running to capacity night and day and cannot begin to keep up with the orders. To make matters more serious the supply of Canadian raw material is running short and the manufacturers are bringing in everything that they can obtain from the United States.

An abnoral crop of any produce creates new problems for the farmer. It is estimated that the Central Ontario fruit growing district will this year produce as many apples as the entire remainder of Canada. The quality of fruit is so high that the local growers will be able to compete in any market, but the price will depend entirely upon conditions in Europe.

The giant doors of the great hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., where the airship Los Angeles is kept, are so heavy that they take half an hour to open or close. They work by powerful motors and it costs $150 to open them.

DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

Roads and Culverts Damaged —Farmers Unable to Work on Soft Ground.

KING'S WHARF, Oct. 6.—The terrible storm that passed over here last Friday night was the worst ever witnessed by the old settlers. Culverts were torn out and washed away, also deep trenches were dug in the road by the terrible torrents of rain. Farmers are unable to get their silos filled or their buckwheat in. The ground is so soft in places it is impossible to drive the binder to cut the buckwheat.

Mr. Thos. Perdue of Detroit, Mich., spent a few days here the guest of his brothers and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Neill were business visitors to Lindsay Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue spent Saturday in Peterboro the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue.

Mrs. Agnes McArdle has returned home after a pleasant visit with her brother and sisters in Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Morrissey and family were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Morrissey.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cavanagh of Ennismore spent the week end the guests of Mr. Michael Fitzpatrick and family.

Mr. Leo. Winn of Detroit, Mich., is at present on a visit with friends here and is trying to dispose of his farm.

Born—In Lindsay, Monday, September 28, at Miss O'Neill's Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. P. Perdue of this place, twins, girls.

The stork also called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guiry on Wednesday, September 23, and left a fine baby boy.

LONDON'S EXPERIENCE.

London is one Canadian city in which fire prevention work has been tackled in a progressive manner by means of an organization of business men and civic heads known as the Fire Chief's Cabinet, which has been doing splendid things in making London safer from a fire standpoint.

Between Jan. 20 and March 18 of this year the Cabinet had 1,317 premises inspected, of which 612 were to be found in good condition.

In 705 cases orders and instructions were served on owners or occupants requiring hazardous conditions to be remedied, and subsequent inspection proved the instructions were being carried out.

The inspection work was only a starting point. A thorough survey was made of the community's fire alarms, water distribution and fire fighting systems and recommendations made to the Council.

As a result of what has already been accomplished London, which had a bad fire record, is becoming rapidly "fire safe."

"BLOSSOM TIME."

So long as such productions as "Blossom Time," which visited Peterboro on Saturday, are to be seen the legitimate stage need not fear the competition of the motion picture or the radio.

Here was a presentation of such sheer charm in the quality of its music, the beauty of the stage settings and the artistry of its players that playgoers were entranced.

Clean, wholesome, free from vulgarity, "Blossom Time" lived up to the best traditions of musical comedy, and if the present theatrical season produced nothing more than this one gem it would be well worth while.

Strange to say, the attendance, particularly of Peterboro citizens, was by no means in proportion to the merit of the attraction.

Many in the audience came from out of town, some travelling a long distance to hear this outstanding musical play.

They realized, if our local people did not, that they were being offered an unusual opportunity in the visit of "Blossom Time," and they did not fail to take advantage of the chance, thereby showing themselves more discriminating than Peterboro playgoers.

POLITICAL SPEECHES.

The value of political speeches, questioned by a news item in the Examiner last evening, has always been more or less problematical, bringing to mind the story of the man who on leaving a political meeting declared: "That fellow in there is making a great speech," but when asked what the orator was talking about, remarked: "He didn't say."

That such addresses are not as effective as they might be is in a measure due to the Canadian fault noticeable in Parliament, as well as on the hustings of making our speeches too long.

It is a failing common to many politicians of all shades of politics.

A snappy half-hour's address in which three or four points are dealt with crisply and vigorously usually makes a better and more lasting impression than a marathon speech in which the orator attempts to cover fifteen points and consumes a couple of hours and the patience of his audience in doing so.

The truth of this contention seems to be more thoroughly realized by Old Country speakers who rarely indulge in long addresses, and who usually endeavour to touch upon a new point or two in each speech, so that their remarks are always "news" and will be treated so by the press generally.

MR. FORKE AND THE INCOME TAX.

Notwithstanding Mr. Forke's enthusiasm for the income tax, the Examiner believes that the retailers of Canada who are urging the abolition of the levy and the Canadian Tax Conference which advocates a reduction in the tax are on much fiemer ground than is the Progressive leader.

It stands to reason that the buying power of the wage-earner is reduced by the application of this tax, because, as was pointed out in these columns last night, the employee does not escape.

He of all people in Canada is compelled to pay—and inevitably, of course, his ability to buy is cut by the amount of his tax.

The income tax is open to attack on two main points—first, that it is impossible to collect it equitably so that everybody has to pay his fair share, and second, that the purchasing power of the Canadian people is diminished.

One of the best contributions that could be made to Canadian prosperity would be the reduction of national expenditure to such a point that the revenue now furnished by the income tax would be no longer needed, and that levy could be scrapped for good.

Mr. Forke's viewpoint may be acceptable to his followers, but it will find little favour among a very large percentage of the people of this country.

ENGLISH OF THE ISLAND.

No intelligent American visiting England would have any real difficulty in mastering the different vocabulary. He would soon find himself calling an elevator a "lift" and speaking of the "cinema" instead of the movies. If he went over the border into Scotland, he would learn to call the mountain ash the "rowan," remembering that it was the red-orange berries of that tree which adorned the hair of Babbie when she first met and bewitched the Little Minister. But where he would find himself at fault would be in the English words which sound exactly like American words—and mean something else. If a London stock broker says that the market is "flat," he means flat in the sense of stale soda water. If a New York stock broker called the market flat, he would mean something very different. Stocks would be lying about the floor, with little ability to pick themselves up.

A good example was offered, quite unconsciously, by Sir Henry Rew before the British Association, recently meeting at Southampton. The following sentence might well be unintelligible to a western farmer.

"Fifty years ago corn crops occupied 55 per cent. of the arable land and 42 per cent. of the corn crop was wheat."

His audience would have thoroughly understood him if he had gone on to describe the part of the "corn crop" which was oats, or even barley. But if he had used the word "corn" in the sense we use it his audience would not have known what he meant. It would have been necessary to refer specifically to maize, or even mealies.

Don't condemn Sir Henry too hastily. The Bible uses the word in exactly the same way, to include all edible grain of the kinds known to the people of Palestine and the adjacent countries. The Boer farmer in South Africa would not know what you meant if you spoke of "corn" unless you had learned and could supply the word used there and in India—mealies. The Boer would take you as meaning Kaffir corn, a grain introduced by South Africa to this country, usefully able to take care of itself where other grains suffer from drought. When the Scotsman talks of "meat" he means food. Oatmeal porridge is meat. The Bible says, "Thou givest them their meat in due season." But when we speak of "meat" we think of the packers. The importance of these distinctions lies in the interpretation of news from Great Britain. If it is carefully and intelligently scrutinized by someone who really knows both languages, with allowances for the habitual understatement of the English, it will be found to bear a widely different interpretation from that which it sometimes receives in the editorials of American newspapers.—Barron's.

THE FRENCH-CANADIAN LANGUAGE.

When, a few years ago, the late M. Viviani electrified his hearers in the House of Commons at Ottawa with an address that for its passion and emotional power will long be remembered, a distinguished English-speaking member, who rather prides himself on his knowledge of the French language, turned to a French-Canadian member and in a burst of enthusiasm exclaimed: "Ah! that is how French should be spoken." The French-Canadian agreed that the oratory of the distinguished visitor was magnifique, "but," he added, to the astonishment of his English confrere, "we speak purer French in Quebec."

More recently, a celebrated French poet visited Canada to deliver a series of addresses in the Province of Quebec. After he had recited some of his own pieces along with samples of French folk-lore, he was invited by a French-Canadian gentleman of literary taste to visit several of the older counties, go among the habitants and listen to their chansons. He did so, and was amazed, remarking to his cicerone, after one rendering, "that is how my grandmother sang."

These incidents are recalled to emphasize a point which is not generally known or appreciated, but which has been strikingly confirmed by French newspaper comment upon the speeches at Geneva of Hon. Raoul Dandurand, the able and cultured French-Canadian Senator, whose appointment to the presidency of the League of Nations assembly has evoked so much flattering commendation.

"It was not without emotion," writes a correspondent of "Le Petit Parisien," a widely read French newspaper.

"That I heard a Canadian speaking French. It is the purest French, the most authentic and the clearest of all French spoken. He (Mr. Dandurand) speaks a French that has not changed. It is our own language in France that has been evaporated little by little, and which has become more or less sophisticated by the invasion of foreign words and argot. In Canada the French language remains unchangeable and without promiscuity."

This is a notable tribute, not alone to Senator Dandurand, but to the language as "she is spoke" in the Province of Quebec, a language that is too little understood by the majority of Canadians, and much too often misrepresented by ignorant writers and speakers at home and abroad. The custom is, and always has been, to regard the language of the French-Canadians as a patois or kind of dialect as distinctive in form as, say, the idiom of Yorkshire is in England. It is a widely entertained delusion which it is well to have exposed, not only in the interests of philological truth, but because it does injustice to a race whose loyalty to tradition is one of its outstanding qualities.

In his opening address at Geneva, Senator Dandurand drew an inspiring picture of the British Empire. "History," he declared, "has never hitherto furnished an example of six countries, equal among themselves, possessing autonomous political institutions, and all functioning through their respective Governments, with one and the same King, in whose name they speak and act both in internal and external affairs."

Voltaire scoffed at Canada as "a few acres of snow," but, probably, he would have formed a different opinion of the country had he known that those of his countrymen who inhabited it, and their successors, were to be the true guardians of the language which, in its unadulterated form, he loved and wrote so well.

The suggestions of the French journalist that some of his countrymen, particularly writers and politicians, might be sent "to take a cure in good language in the land of "Maria Chapdelaine" is not without point. Perhaps, too, the example might not be lost upon many of the English-speaking population of Canada, whose loyalty to their mother tongue is not always marked by their pure and undefiled use of it.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If you are not yet on the voters' list, the revision by Judge Huycke gives you your chance. Don't let it slip by.

The politicians are expected to refrain from making inflammable speeches during Fire Prevention Week.

"Clean-up" is the keynote of the fire prevention campaign so far as individual citizens are concerned. Every householder in Peterboro can do much to make the effort successful.

Remember, you have to pay your share of the fire loss even if your property has been spared from the flames.

Political speeches are being broadcasted, so listeners-in have other troubles beside static to contend with these October evenings.

A toupe that will turn grey in harmony with a man's hair is one of the crying needs of the times. —Bert Moses.

A THOUGHT.

TRY THIS ONE.

When the weather is dull and your spirits mull—when the skies are dreary and your heart is weary—when troubles are nagging and your hopes are sagging — when things go wrong and you can think of no song, try this one:

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels noblest, acts the best."

CHEESE MARKET

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 5—At the United Dairymen Co-operative Auction Sale of Belleville Cheese held at the Board of Trade yesterday the offerings amounted to 2,178 boxes No. 1 White with 24 1-2c per lb. asked, and 24 5-16c per lb. was bid for 943 boxes No. 1 Colored with 24 1-2c per lb. asked, f.o.b. Belleville for shipment to Montreal. Although these prices bid were 11-16c to 3-4c per lb. higher than a week ago they were refused.

BUTTER MARKET

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 5—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society Auction Sale of butter held at the Board of Trade yesterday there were 1,150 packages offered of which 400 packages No. 1 Creamery sold at 44 1-8c per lb. which price was 3-8c per lb. lower than the previous week, and 44c per lb. was bid for 750 packages No. 1 Pasteurized Creamery with 43 1-8c per lb. asked.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—Wheat values went sharply upward today, strengthened by reports that winter weather is impeding threshers in Canada and that indications pointed to rain or snow and much colder weather in the Dakotas. The wheat market closed firm, 1 5-8 to 2 7-8 cents net higher, new style December $1.36 5-8 to $1.36 7-8 and May $1.37 3-8 to $1.37 5-8, with corn unchanged to 5-8c off, oats 3-8 to 3-8 at 1-2c up, and provisions varying from 37 cents decline to 7 cents gain.

Upturns in the price of wheat withstood the test of adverse news in the shape of announcement that the United States visible supply total had been enlarged 4,549,000 bushels since a week ago. Word of this increase had only a temporary bearish effect, and the market closed at nearly the day's top figures. Earlier, the advancing tendency of prices here received an impetus from unlooked for gains in wheat quotations at Liverpool and from reports that deliveries of wheat at country points in Canada had fallen off to a material extent. Besides, estimates were current that the Canadian wheat growers' pool has already shipped to Europe 30,000 bushels of wheat.

Sentiment favorable to higher prices were stirred, too, by Omaha reports of active demand for all kinds of milling wheat, notwithstanding a daily advance of premiums. In this connection, there were also assertions that Minneapolis mills have on hand enough orders to keep the mills running for months. Some notice was likewise taken of Liverpool advices that European continental demand for wheat to Russian ports is slow, and that the Russian crop has been over-estimated.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 5—Sterling demand, $4.83 1-2; Sterling Cables, $4.84.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—With further shortages of fish supplies at western points a 1 cent increase in prices to country shippers is noted today in Winnipeg and Edmonton. A further advance is also reported from Vancouver.

Toronto—Jobbing, fresh specials 52, extras 50, firsts 44, storage extras 44, firsts 41, seconds 35. Country shippers are paying, extras 42 to 43, firsts 38, seconds 26 to 28, and making sales, extras 48, firsts 42, seconds 32 f.o.b., cases returned.

Montreal — Egg market is unchanged. Poultry is quoted at 12 to 20c according to weight. There is some demand for dressed geese with quotations ranging from 15 to 18 cents. Demand for turkeys is good with practically nothing available.

Winnipeg—Egg receipts show a decrease for the week with the market firmer. Dealers paying, country points, extras 33, firsts 31, seconds 27. Fresh jobbing extras 41 to 42, firsts 37 to 38, seconds 1 to 32. Poultry receipts are light with spring 12 to 18, fowl 7 to 15, roosters 7.

Calgary — Conditions on the egg market are unchanged, with receipts negligible. Dealers quoting country points, extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 24. Poultry receipts light. Springers 14, light fowl 7, heavy fowl 11 to 13. The impassable conditions of the roads are interfering with all produce receipts.

Edmonton — Egg market is firm, with fresh eggs very scarce. Dealers quoting country shippings, delivered, extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 22. Jobbing, fresh extras 40, firsts 35, second 30. Dealers quoting to shippers, springers 15, fowl 12, live weight.

Regina—The egg situation is unchanged, with withdrawals from storage necessary to meet local demands. The poultry market is brisker with the chief movement in fowl and springs. Five pound quotations are eliminated and shippers are offering top prices on four pound birds.

Vancouver—Egg market is firmer with dealers paying country points, extras 49, firsts 47. Live poultry market is easy. Light hens 14, heavy 22.

St. John—Jobbing, fresh extras 45 to 46, firsts 42, seconds 36, storage extras 44, firsts 40, seconds 35.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—According to Winnipeg advices there were fair acceptances of wheat over the week-end by United Kingdom and Continenetal buyers, and as a result there was a much better demand for cash wheat in the Winnipeg market, but as the offerings were not heavy a stronger feeling developed and prices for contract grades closed with a net gain for the day. The only change in the premiums was an advance of 1-4c per bushel.

"We sell the 'catch' —by telephone!"

"The telephone has been the most important factor in building up the fresh fish business." Fishing is Canada's second basic industry.

"Impossible without Long Distance"

"Now we get reports every evening from captains of trawlers perhaps 120 miles out, stating how many pounds of each kind of fish have been caught. When the catch is sufficient we order the boats in."

"Hours before the streak of smoke appears on the horizon, we have given the crew instructions for packing. When the trawler reaches the dock everything is ready for the express train. In 48 hours the fish are delivered to the retailer as far west as Toronto—and 36 hours later in Winnipeg. Without Long Distance this would be impossible."

"THE telephone, wireless, and express refrigerator service have made the fresh fish business possible"—says the President of our leading Canadian fisheries.

"Long Distance brings all the buyers of the continent right into our offices and we can speak familiarly and personally with them. Within an hour or so most of the 'catch' is sold."

Long Distance has reduced the cost of distributing practically all food products.

Are you using the telephone to reduce costly delays? Your telephone message travels at the rate of 186,000 miles a second—and brings you an immediate answer.

HOME SECRETARY OF BRITAIN APPROVES OF ORGANIZATION TO SERVE IF STRIKE OCCURS

Attitude of Sir William Joynson-Hicks Critcizied By Ramsay MacDonald.

IN LETTER TO TIMES.

Communist Firebrands Silent Since Question Raised of Bringing Them to Trial.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Lord Derby, in presiding at a luncheon given in honor of Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, in the Liverpool Conservative Club yesterday, declared that the Baldwin Government, when elected, had a mandate to smash Communism and he asked what had been done in this connection.

The Home Secretary referred to the partial blessing which he had given the organization recently formed for the maintenance of supplies, foodstuffs, etc., in the event of a general strike developing from the present industrial troubles in Great Britain, the "partial blessing" being contained in a letter to a correspondent whom the Home Secretary advised to join the organization as a patriotic duty, and alluded to criticisms of the new organization, notably the criticism of Ramsay MacDonald in a letter in the Times yesterday.

("Mr. MacDonald, in his contribution to the Times, declares that Sir William Joynson-Hicks' letter with regard to the organization is likely to have an unfortunate effect, its publication not merely being inopportune but provocative, and he says the country ought to know whether the letter is a declaration of the Government's considered decision or not. If the efforts which were approved by the recent Labor Party conference to secure and conduct the essential public services when threatened with dislocation are to be thwarted by some Ministers who belong to the class of reactionaries who are more revolutionary than the professed revolutionaries," Mr. MacDonald says in the Times letter, "the public should know upon whose shoulders the blame lies.")

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, notwithstanding Mr. MacDonald's letter in the Times, said he wanted to convince the whole country that there was quite definitely an attempt being made to destroy constitutional government by the Communist party which was small but powerful and definitely allied with Russia.

The Home Secretary explained that he had told the organization for the maintenance of supplies that it would not be allowed any military status whatever, but if this or any other organization was prepared to hand in to his classified lists of names of men eligible to act as special constables, engineers or transport drivers in case of need, he would be a fool not to accept such lists on behalf of the Government.

Sir William referred to recent speeches made by the Indian Communist member of the House of Commons for North Battersea, Shapurji Saklatvala, who was barred by the United States from attending the Inter-Parliamentary Union meeting in Washington, and speeches made by Tom Mann, former president of the International Transport Workers' Federation, and vice-president of the Workers' Union, which speeches were regarded as of a seditious nature.

The Home Secretary said he had consulted the Attorney-General and Public Prosecutor with regard to these speeches. They decided that a jury would probably hold that the utterances in question were seditious but that it would be better to wait and see if their next public speeches would not make the case against them conclusive.

This decision was published, the Home Secretary said, and since then neither Saklatvala nor Mann had opened his mouth in public.

CHIEF JUSTICE WANTS CHANGE

Sixty Per Cent of Prisoners in Province Serving Under Act.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 6. (Canadian Press).—With Chief Justice Meredith on the bench, the Fall Assizes for the district of Sudbury opened at one o'clock Monday afternoon at the Court-House. There were four civil actions and one criminal case on the docket. In his address to the Grand Jury, His Lordship referred to the recent change in the O.T.A. "I hope that the new legislation will remedy the present state of affairs, and if it doesn't other legislation should be brought into effect," he said.

"From statutory statistics, I am told," he proceeded, "that about sixty per cent. of prison inmates in Ontario are there for infringements against the O.T.A., and aside from that are personally respectable. This cannot be satisfactory, and I am hoping for a change."

20 BUSHELS TO ACRE IS AVERAGE YIELD

Estimates of This Year's Wheat Crop Issued By Dealers' Association.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press). — Western Canada's 1925 wheat crop is placed at 400,385,000 bushels in an estimate released here today by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association. This figure is based on an estimate average of 20.1 bushels to the acre on 19,865,500 acres.

By provinces, the production is estimated as follows:

Manitoba, 38,634,000 bushels; Saskatchewan, 226,513,000 bushels; Alberta, 135,238,000 bushels.

The aggregate estimate for oats is 392,653,000 bushels; barley, 65,355,000 bushels; rye, 9,220,000 bushels, and flax 6,395,000 bushels.

A little higher in price, but—what a wonderful difference just a few cents make.

Compares Value of Stocks During Last Years of Office of Two Parties.

BEST BAROMETER.

Less Imports Now Than During Final 12 Months of Meighen's Rule.

OAKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Citing comparative figures to illustrate the condition of the country in the last year of the Conservative administration under Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1925, Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, speaking here last night, declared the best barometer of Canadian industrial and financial conditions was to be noted in the respective values of stocks during the closing years of both administrations.

"Dominion Textiles stock," he said, "was worth, in 1921, 142. Today it is worth 255. This is the industry our opponents say we have ruined. Penman's stock was quoted at 89 in 1921, and it is worth 158 now. For Canadian Cottons the figures are 85 and 119 respectively. Sherman Williams' Paint Co., stock has gone up from 88 in 1921 to 130 to-day; Canada Cement from 67 to 112."

Quoting from the statistics covering financial institutions, Mr. Low declared Bank of Montreal stock in 1921 was at 215, and at 256 at the present time; Royal Bank stock had likewise risen, he said from 205 to 239 in the same period; and Bank of Commerce stock had gone up from 194 to 218.

Mr. Low contended that at the end of the Meighen administration the country faced a deficit of $75,000,000, and that $92,000,000 had been added to the national debt in 1921, while the records for the last fiscal year showed that under the King Government $75,000,000 less had been collected from the people of Canada in taxes. In other words, he said, only $3 had been collected for the fiscal year ended March, 1925, for every $4 taken from the people during the last year of the Meighen regime. He added that not one dollar had been added to the national debt during the four years of the King administration, but that on the contrary the debt had been reduced by about $5,000,000.

Contrasting the relative values of the Canadian dollar in the years 1921 and 1923, Mr. Low said it was worth 85 cents in the former year, and was above par to-day. He declared further that Canadian bonds, backed by all the resources of the country, were selling at 90 cents in the dollar in 1921, as against $104 for $100 bonds to-day, or a premium of 4 per cent.

The Minister of Commerce cited the trade balance in 1921 as being an adverse one of $25,000,000, while last year, he said, it had changed to a favorable one of $204,000,000, or an improvement of $819,000,000.

"For the year ended March, 1923," said Mr. Low, "Canada's exports totalled $753,000,000. For the year ended March, 1925, they were $1,081,000,000, an increase of $325,000,000. Sir Henry Drayton has criticized the Government, and declared the country is importing too much. He has from different platforms made the statement that last year we imported to the valued of $800,000,000 goods that might have been made in Canada. Yet in the final year of Mr. Meighen's power Canada imported $1,250,000,000 worth."

The Minister of Trade and Commerce charged Mr. Meighen with having frequently criticized the Government for allowing too much raw material to be exported, despite that, according to Mr. Low, $75,000,000 worth more had been exported in 1921 than in 1924.

SELF DEFENCE PLEA IN MURDER CHARGE

Man Says Slain Brother-in-Law Tried to Choke Him.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).— Charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Richard Schroder, on June 6 last, Charles William Wise appeared for trial yesterday afternoon in the Court of King's Bench and pleaded self defence. The prisoner told the court that he fired the fatal shot while his brother-in-law was trying to choke him, following an argument concerning the reputation of Mrs. Wise. Schroeder was a boarder at the home of Wise and his wife at the time of the shooting and, according to evidence, had come home under the influence of liquor, which statement was substantiated by the Morgue physician, Dr. Deroma, who testified that he was drunk when shot.

LINDSAY WOMAN BADLY INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP

Car Motoring to Peterboro Collides With Buggy—Both Vehicles Upset.

LEG FRACTURED.

Former City Resident Escaped With Slight Cut — Went Through Windshield.

LINDSAY, Oct. 6. — A serious automobile accident has occurred here, and as a result Miss Eileen James, of this town, is now in the Ross Hospital, suffering from a badly fractured leg, bruises and shock. Miss James, in company with Mr. Percy Patterson, formerly of Peterboro, was motoring to Peterboro in a coupe to attend the funeral of a relative of the latter. While on Lindsay Street South, the auto struck the hind wheel of a buggy belonging to Mr. Harvey Windrum. Both vehicles overturned. Mr. Patterson went through the windshield and escaped with a slight cut, but Miss James was pinned beneath the badly damaged car. Mr. Windrum was thrown from the buggy and sustained an injured shoulder.

HEROISM AT SEA RESCUER REWARDED

Brave Deed Done Last Year Was Fittingly Recognized Yesterday.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—For the part he played in the rescue of eight men from a wrecked steamer last year, Burnal Schmeisser was yesterday presented with a pair of binoculars at the Board of Trade on behalf of the British Government. The presentation was made by Robert W. Reford, president of the Shipping Federation of Canada, before a large gathering of business and shipping men, to whom he told the story of Schmeisser's bravery.

On May 25, 1924, the steam trawler "Mikado," of Grimsby, was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia. Nine of the crew perished, but on the following day eight hands were rescued by the salvage tug "Ocean Eagle," belonging to the St. John Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company, Limited, of St. John, N.B. The rescue was effected by means of the heroic handling of a small boat from the tug, under the command alternately of the captain, Alonso Lord Greenlaw, and the mate, Burnal Schmeisser. The former was recently honored at St. John.

The Nights were Torment

Now, thanks to Tanlac, Mrs. Bradley "really and truly" feels like a brand new woman!

Mrs. M. J. Bradley had come to the point where she could scarcely do her housework. Two years of suffering from indigestion had shattered her health. What little she ate caused stomach fermentation, gas bloating and pain. She lay awake through the long hours of the night and was tired out through the day.

"That four bottles of Tanlac should correct my troubles when all other attempts had failed makes it seem altogether wonderful to me. Now I enjoy a fine appetite, good digestion and really and truly feel like a new woman. It is the ideal tonic."

*Authentic statement; address on request.

You don't have to wait long to see the results from Tanlac. That's the wonderful thing about this great tonic. It works fast.

Like a flash it goes to the seat of trouble. It cleans the blood and drives out the poisons that are tearing down your health. It tones up the stomach and aids digestion—gives you a real appetite for wholesome food.

Don't drag on from day to day putting off the time of reckoning. Start taking Tanlac this very day. Your druggist can supply you.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7.

According to the lunar transits, as well as an important solar figure, this may be a lively day, but attended by unsettling and hazardous situations. There may be sudden or abrupt upheavals in business, and there is a portentous sign governing finances, speculation and all risk of money should be avoided, although new enterprises are encouraged. Advantages or preferment are promised those in the employment of others. It is a good time for making contracts, providing speculative risks be shunned.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and interesting year, but one in which there may be dangers in the speculative use of money. Also changes may come abruptly and these should be wisely handled. It is a year of opportunity, especially for those in the employment of others, who should push for promotion or recognition. A child born on this day should be talented and lively, but may meet with losses through speculation or lending money. It should keep in the employment of others.

TROOPERS KILLED IN CROSSING SMASH

Train Travelling Over Eight Miles an Hour Crashed into Automobile.

GENEVA, N.Y., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Two state troopers were killed and the lives of three hundred passengers endangered on the crack Black Diamond express on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, shortly after six o'clock last night, when the train crashed into the troopers' automobile on the Outlet crossing. The dead are Ernest Rudd, 30, of Rome, and Thomas Scahlon, 25, of Hamilton.

The train was travelling between 80 and 90 miles an hour when the crash came. Eight coaches of the train were derailed.

Found—
The Secret of Speed in Electric Range Cooking

A quart of water raised to boiling point in 8 minutes on an electric range! And everything cold—range and water—at the start!

Doesn't a fast worker like that appeal to you. That's the new Beach Electric Range.

It's a great range—a range you'll enjoy using every day in the week, every week in the year. It was designed to be "the Best"—to make housewives' work easier, their cooking better, their kitchens prettier.

Let Us Explain Its Quick Heat!

There are so many fine features in the Beach Electric that we hesitate to tell you about one and ignore others.

It uses the open element. That is, the heat comes directly from the white-hot coils to your cooking utensils. There is no covering in between to waste valuable heat and to check the flow of direct heat.

Every bit of heat generated in the coils is focussed directly on your cooking utensils. That is a big thing! In most electric ranges the coils have a large percentage of contact with the porcelain plate. Now porcelain absorbs heat. The result is, there's a lot of heat wasted, and it takes a long time to get the coils up to their proper heat, in addition to using up a lot more current than is necessary.

In the Beach, one coil in eleven in the element touches the porcelain, and then only at two points. The result is that waste heat is cut down to an absolute minimum.

One Coil in Eleven Touches!

Porcelain absorbs heat. Every coil that touches it means less speed in cooking. Only one coil in eleven touches porcelain in the Beach.

Ask a Beach Dealer

But you'll only fully appreciate the Beach by inspecting one at your nearest Beach dealer's.

When you do, notice what a sturdy, handsome range it is, with its embossed steel, its burners set in recesses at top and bottom of the oven to give you lots of room, its double action oven door spring, the convex edges of the cooking top, its easily reached switches and fuses, its big-grip door handles — its many other striking features!

Ask your Beach dealer to show you a Beach Electric, or write direct for full information and prices.

Quickest Heat at Less Cost

AN OPEN LETTER TO HON. VINCENT MASSEY

So much has been exploited in the Reform press over the economic conversion of Hon. Vincent Massey to the doctrine of Low Tariff (or no Tariff at all), that the electorate are asked to read and earnestly consider this rejoinder. All will agree that the statements herein made throw a belated light on the situation and flatten out the claims made that a New Apostle of Free Trade has arisen in our midst.

To Hon. Vincent Massey:

Dear Sir.—You are reported to have said at Port Hope: "I have never been a believer in high protection. My lack of belief in that doctrine is not due to any sudden conversion, but due to my approaching the problem many years ago as a student, and also to my relations today. As a man of business I think it is wrong." May I ask was it the necessities of your business alone that took you and your representative to Ottawa in August, 1924, to arrange for higher duties than those offered by the King Government? Were you acting contrary to your economic belief when you allowed yourself and your representative to go to Ottawa on such a mission? Did you go to Ottawa on that occasion as a business man or as a university economic student? I have yet to meet one practical business man conversant with the facts that are studied in the costing department of any business, who believes that Canada can survive on a free trade policy such as is taught in English universities where you were educated. Without dealing in all the nebulous theories of free trade, may I ask you a few practical question that directly bear upon Canada's economics.

1. Do you credit Americans with reasonable intelligence in fixing the rates of duty necessary for the protection of their wages.

2. Do you admit that the United States tariff is two or three times as high as that of Canada?

3. Do you believe that Canadians enjoy superior ability or superior means of production that enables them with success to expose their wages and production to competition from European wages, one-quarter to one-half our rates, and against which the American tariff wall has been raised?

4. Do you approve of American eggs being sold in Port Hope and paying only 3c per dozen duty, while if a Durham farmer wishes to sell his eggs in Buffalo he is faced with 8c per dozen duty?

5. You say that the world pendulum is swinging against protection. When you say that, are you aware of the actual fact that 63 countries have raised their tariff since the war?

6. Do you admit that free trade England, with 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 unemployed, has recently adopted certain protective measures?

7. Do you admit that France has raised her tariff enormously and that there are no unemployed in France who are willing to work?

8. Do not these two instances upset your theory that Canada's depression has come from the burden of war debt? I think you will admit that France is not free of war debt.

9. Do you admit that Canada has public and outside debts amounting to $8,000,000,000 and that the war accounts for only $2,000,000,000 of such debts?

10. If unemployment has been worse in the United States than in Canada as you say it has, how is it that United States factories have absorbed and kept over 600,000 of our people within the last three years?

An immigration policy that does not supply good jobs at good pay is like pouring some expensive liquid, say champagne, into a pail that has a hundred holes in the bottom.

I wish to say with entire personal respect, and in no unkind way, that had your university years been spent in the Massey Harris Company's costing department, your views would be very different from what they are, and would please better those who have a practical and constructive conception of the necessities of this country, including many shareholders in the Massey Harris Company.

Sincerely yours,
WALTER R. MORSON.

OUTSTANDING MUSICIANS

Three outstanding musicians were guests of the Canadian National Exhibition directors at the Music Day luncheon: H. A. Fricker, conductor of the Exhibition Chorus of 1,500 voices; Dr. Albert Ham and Dr. A. S. Vogt, each of whom gave interesting talks on some phase of music.

CUT DOWN ON LUNCH

Suggestion Made Passed at Meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 5.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute for the month of October was held on Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Ella Brown, with twenty-two members and eight visitors present. The President, Mrs. J. A. Brown, was in charge.

The meeting opened in the usual way with singing the "Maple Leaf" followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. Their adoption was moved by Mrs. Nichol.

Mrs. Dovey reported that the Agricultural Society would be glad of any assistance in regard to a rest tent for mothers and children on the fair ground a Mrs. Brown also reported that she had given the special prize donated by the Branch into the hands of the vice-President for the fair.

There was considerable discussion on the lunch served at the conclusion of the meetings, and it was thought best to make a motion that they are not carried on so elaborately in future. There was also a motion that any of the members on reaching the age of seventy years be not asked to give a meeting or to pay any fees, but be considered as honorary members.

A letter was read from the ladies of the Penelia Church, asking for the rent of the silverware for the serving of meals on Fair Day.

A card of invitation was read from one of the esteemed elder members, Mrs. Mary Brown, asking the ladies to call on her at her home on the afternoon of October 10th, it being the anniversary of her 80th birthday.

Two splendid papers were given—one by Mrs. Ingham on "Women of the Bible," which had been given time and careful study, and another by Mrs. Halstead on "Winter Vegetables"—how to grow, store and cook them. This paper was full of valuable information, with a touch of her personal experiences.

A community song was the next item after which Mrs. Andrew Brown gave a humorous reading entitled, "Before the Meeting," and which also included some good household hints.

Mrs. A Nill (District President) was present, although not officially, and gave an interesting address telling of some visits she had made to the other Branches.

Mrs. Dovey and Mrs. Nichol, whose names were on the programme cards for a demonstration of candy making, passed their candy around and also gave the recipes. The candy was very much enjoyed and appreciated by all.

Mrs. Nichol and Mrs. Halstead moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, while Mrs. D. Brisbin and Mrs. R. Mouncey moved a vote of thanks to the candy makers.

The meeting closed in the usual way with the national anthem after which the hostess served refreshments.

The following is the standing of the Junior Room of the Roseneath Public School for the month of September, names in order of merit.

Sr. II.—Elaine Carew, Joy Morrison, Glen Brisbin, Avis Gowns, Stewart Nichol, Evelyn Robins.

Jr. II.—Marie Mouncey, Irene Sherwin, Jessie Mouncey, Harold Coyle, Lloyd Nichol, Charlie Hogg, Lois Galling, Ruby Blodgett, Earl Radley, Billy Halstead, Cecil Robins.

Sr. I.—Allan Pacey, Carl Simpson, Archie Blodgett.

Sr. Primer.—Harold Mouncey, Elsie Sherwin, Olive George, Herbie Sherwin, Oswald Covert, Thelma Blodgett.

Jr. Primer.—Marjorie Carew, Luella Tinslin, Marian Towns, Ernest Hall, Olive Linton, Clarke Mouncey, Myrtle Hogg, Marjorie Sherwin.

Bertha A. Clarke, teacher.

Personals.

Dr. A. G. Armstrong has sold his practice and residence here to Dr. Hershey, of Camerons, and accompanied by his wife and daughter, Doreen, has moved to Detroit, where he will resume his profession. We wish him success in his new home. He will be missed in the community, not only professionally, but in other ways. He was a director of the local Agricultural Board, and an active official as well as player of the local baseball team, having held the position of president for the past two years.

Mrs. P. Vance is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Cousins at Grimsby.

The members of the local fair board are very busy these days repairing their building in preparation for the big fair on October the 15th and 16th. It promises to be bigger and better than ever this year, there being over $700 offered in special prizes.

Mr. Wm. Montgomery has purchased Dr. Armstrong's cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Braithwaite and Mr. Thomas Ingham left this week on a motor trip to St. Catharines, Strathroy and other points in Western Ontario.

The local registers for the coming election are all busy this week preparing their lists.

Mr. George Turner, Calgary spent the week end at his home here.

Mr. Elton Turner has returned to Kingston, after a few days holidays with his mother and friends in the village.

Mr. Ed. Harvey has purchased a new car. It is a Ford.

Miss Sol. Lamb, Seattle, spent the week end in the village.

Next Sunday is our anniversary in the United Church. We hope to have a large attendance.

Mrs. Kent Towns, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Armstrong.

Miss Shields was friends of Toronto, who have been visiting at Mr. Cecil Radley's returned to Cobourg on Sunday last.

Mrs. Armstrong, Wadsworth is visiting her son, Dr. A. G. Armstrong.

Miss Annie Brown has gone to Toronto for medical treatment. We wish her a speedy recovery.

The shower and dance on Friday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. Baxter was a grand success, and showed how highly esteemed they are among their many friends.

The many friends of Rev. McCord are sorry to learn of the serious illness of his son, Tom.

Rumors say we are about to loose Dr. A. G. Armstrong from our midst, he having secured a better position elsewhere. We wish him every success.

Don't forget that Roseneath Fair this month, Oct. 15 and 16th. It is already known to be the best in the county.

The W.M.S. of the Anglican church held their last meeting at the home of Mrs. Jos. Robbins, with a goodly attendance. They are planning for a fowl supper to take place in November, also the dedication of a new hall, which will be erected soon.

We understand that Mrs. Walter Mason is resigning her position as telephone operator after several years of faithful service.

Messrs. F. J. Slade and M. E. Maybee, have been calling on their friends in the village and neighborhood, in interest of the coming election.

Mr. Cecil Radley motored to Toronto on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Dawe have returned from their honeymoon. We extend hearty congratulations.

R-33 REPAIRED AND ON FLIGHT WITH OLD CREW

Airship Was Fitted With New Nose After April Accident.

TO OBTAIN DATA.

Carries Scientists Who Will Study Aerodynamic Forces.

LONDON, Oct. 6. (Canadian Press).—Great Britain's big airship, R-33, started out last night on its first trip since undergoing repairs made necessary by the damage sustained in a gale last April when it was torn from a mooring mast and driven out over the North Sea.

At a cost of several thousand pounds, the airship has been fitted with a new metal nose, and about 60 feet of her forward frame has been rebuilt. When the aircraft left the station at Pulham, the weather was warm and calm. The plan was to maintain a flight of about twenty-four hours. During the night the dirigible was in radio communication with Pulham and early this morning it was cruising successfully over the mouth of the Thames. Major Scott, who navigated the R-34 to the United states in 1919 is in command of the R-33. He is aided, among others, by Lieut. Booth, who was in command during the April misadventure. The airship has aboard the entire crew as was swept out to sea during the blow. Also on board is a staff of scientists to record aerodynamic forces encountered and to make various technical experiments for the purpose of obtaining data for guidance in the building of the two new air giants contemplated.

The R-33 has been fitted with tackle to enable her to carry an airplane which is to be released during the flight.

The black opal has been adopted as the national stone of Australia.

Since the war England has provided 37,178 artificial limbs to ex-service men.

ONTARIO CROP STATISTICS

The following statistics of the principal field crops of Ontario for 1925 show the acreage as compiled from individual returns made by farmers. The schedules were distributed and collected by the Public School teachers, and compiled by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The yields were estimated by a large and experienced staff of correspondents who give probable yields according to conditions on August 22.

Fall Wheat:—747,101 acres will produce 22,893,913 bushels or 30.4 per acre as against 722,360 acres, 21,396,021 bushels or 29.6 in 1924 and 16,599,067 bushels in 1923. The annual average for the 43 years 1882-1924 was 21.7.

Spring Wheat:—113,328 acres, 2,437,067 bushels or 21.5 per acre as against 101,407 acres 1,946,853 bushels or 19.2 per acre in 1924 and 1,937,957 bushels in 1923. The annual average 6.3.

Barley—436,383 acres, 14,803,210 bushels or 33.9 per acre as against 379,477 acres, 14,816,403 bushels or 39.1 per acre in 1924, and 13,533,549 bushels in 1923. The annual average 28.6.

Oats:—2,857,308 acres, 116,644,197 bushels or 40.1 per acre as against 2,-991,990 acres, 114,289,179 bushels or 38.5 per acre in 1924 and 108,685,642 bushels in 1923. The annual average 35.9.

Rye:—98,652 acres, 1,790,849 bushels or 18.2 per acre as against 126,641 acres, 2,299,545 bushels or 18.2 per acre in 1924 and 2,011,325 bushels in 1923. The annual average 16.5.

Peas:—135,434 acres, 2,731,400 bushels or 20.5 per acre as against 130,989 acres, 2,456,164 bushels or 18.8 per acre in 1924 and 2,030,850 bushels in 1923. The annual average 19.1.

Beans:—61,080 acres 1,121,572 bushels or 18.4 per acre as against 52,047 acres, 856,860 bushels or 16.3 per acre in 1924 and 633,713 bushels in 1923. The annual average 16.1.

Hay and Clover:—(Including alsike and sweet clover)—3,544,003 acres, 4,-888,577 tons or 1.38 per acre, as against 3,543,856 acres, 5,615,238 tons or 1.58 per acre in 1924 and 3,799,422 tons in 1923. The annual average 1.45.

The acreages in other crops for which no estimates as to yield have been made at this date, are as follows:—Buckwheat 237,932 as against 240,532 in 1924; flax 9,789 against 6,619; mixed grains 681,624 against 645,622; corn for husking 207,767 against 263,615; fodder corn 373,133 against 403,060; alfalfa 350,645 against 381,258; cleared pasture 3,193,941 against 3,317,532; potatoes 163,790 against 169,145; turnips 73,318 against 70,110; Mangels 35,385 against 35,958; sugar beets 37,718 against 36,080; carrots 1,833 against 2,128; summer fallow 162,649 against 170,527; orchard 223,343 against 229,708; small fruits 27,890 including strawberries and vineyard, against 27,-315; tobacco 12,719 against 12,399; rape 20,374 against 20,149.

In 1925 there were 177,382 acres in alsike, 344,114 sweet clover, 7,185 strawberries and 6,538 vineyard.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DONALD AND DEE MAKE A NEW FRIEND.

"Watch out, Donald," Dee cried, pointing to the ground. "Better watch out. I saw a leaf move on the ground right under your feet. May be a snake or something dreadful."

"Seeing things again," snorted her brother Donald. "That's the way with you girls, always looking for trouble."

Just then another leaf moved and it was so noticeable that Donald jumped away and up on to a log.

"You just jumped in time," cried Dee, clambering up beside her brother on the log. "There is something under that leaf."

The brown leaf moved again and a tiny little nose peeked out and wiggled.

"Oh, come on down, folks, and don't be frightened," squeaked a tiny voice, "I wouldn't harm you for the world," and the dearest little creature Donald and Dee had ever seen crawled out from under the leaf where he had been hding. "I'm Daddy Long-tailed Shrew. Have you ever seen a Long-tailed Shrew before?" he asked. Then when the children shook their heads he invited them to take a good look. "Now you'll know me when you see me the next time."

He was a tiny mite, not more than three inches long from the tip of his nose to the tip-end of his long, long tail. His body was slender and he had short legs and feet, just like Jimmy Mousie. His soft, fine fur coat was brownish above and grayish underneath. He had a funny, long, pointed head, on the end of which wiggled his funny little nose. His ears and eyes were so small, Donald and Dee couldn't find them until their owner pointed them out.

"I may have feet like my cousin, Jimmy Mousie," he squeaked, "but my head doesn't look like his, does it?"

"Goodness me," laughed Dee. "But how in the world can you see with such small eyes?"

"Well, I don't depend much on my eyes," drawled Mr. Long-tailed Shrew. "My nose directs me almost everywhere I go. Then, too, I very seldom show myself out in the day time, unless it is on a cloudy day like today. I nearly always pick out moonlight nights to run around."

"I should think you'd be afraid of the meadow folks eating you," suggested Donald.

"And I guess they would, if I didn't have an unpleasant scent for my enemies," chuckled Long-tailed Shrew. "But old Night Hawk and Mr. Wise Owl don't mind that, and would catch me in a second if they caught sight of me, but I run along under the leaves so folks won't spy me. I saw you and Dee long before Dee spotted me."

"I'm sure glad you peeked out before I stepped on the leaf," breathed Donald. "I might have hurt you."

"I'm glad you didn't step on me," laughed Mr. Long-tailed Shrew, "but if I don't get home soon with——" And before Donald and Dee could ask any questions, he scooted away under the leaves and the children couldn't find him any more that day.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DON'T WAIT TO BE ILL TO SEE A DOCTOR.

More and more, people are considering health and planning for its improvement. In the old days health or disease was accepted as a matter of course. There was a certain fatalism, or so-called Christian resignation, which resulted in meek submission to the "inevitable."

Of course, it is difficult to distinguish between the inevitable and our passive assistance in bringing about the things which happen. I am a firm believer that God expects us to help ourselves all we possibly can. I do not believe He will do for us what we can do for ourselves.

There can be no doubt that we have it in our own hands to decide whether we will be strong or weak, healthy or diseased. If we can help and don't, it seems to me like flying in the face of Providence.

To me it is as clear as day that it is our duty in life to resist disease, to do the things which make for good health, and to face the influences which destroy vitality with determination to defeat them. I take no stock in "meek submission." When wrongs are to be righted, or evil to be dealt with, it seems to me natural and proper to use all the honest human means which can be commanded to win victory.

Most of the diseases commonly known as "incurable conditions" become incurable through neglect. The neglect may not be wilful—it may be founded on ignorance. But the neglect has continued until the disease has such a foothold that cure is impossible.

A few days ago a very dear friend of my family came to me in great distress to ask about a little swelling in her neck. It was nothing of consequence, only a protesting gland, swollen because of a disturbed tooth, but important in that it was a warning from Nature that something should be done for the teeth.

When I explained this to our friend she appeared relieved and said: "My mother died of cancer. She called all her children to her bedside a few days before the end and said, 'Never neglect any lump or swelling. I would not be dy[illegible]w if somebody had told me t[illegible]

[illegible]rue this is! It is neglect—de[illegible]tting off for a more convenient time—[illegible]r procrastination from pure fear—this is the way which leads to incurability and early death.

Make your doctor your friend. Consult him when you are well. Don't wait to get sick. An occasional overhauling will prevent trouble.

In closing, let me warn you against self-consciousness and worry over your body. Fear will undermine your resistance and prepare the way for illness. The reason I advise you to consult your doctor is to permit him to reassure you and to give you the comfortable feeling that all is well with you.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. C. S. Q.—What would you suggest for a person who suffers from a habit of grouchiness, refusing to speak for days at a time?

A.—This is probably due to some nervous condition or indigestion. Have your doctor advise you after examination.

* * *

MRS. J. L. M. Q.—What causes a continuous whizzing in the ears and what do you suggest as treatment?

A.—This is probably due to a catarrhal condition. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

J. A. Z. Q.—What do you advise for indigestion?

A.—You should eat the simplest kind of food, and avoid any tendency to constipation. Send a self addressed, stamped envelope, for full particulars and repeat your question.

* * *

A READER. Q.—Can eczema be cured?

A.—In some cases it can. This may be due to a blood condition, or your diet may be at fault. Send self-addressed envelope for full particulars, and repeat your question.

* * *

B. I. M. Q.—What causes dark circles under the eyes?

A.—This is usually due to constipation, eye-strain, biliousness, lack of sleep, etc. Try and locate the cause, and be advised by your doctor as to the proper treatment.

* * *

MRS. J. B. Q.—What causes shortness of the breath?

A.—Usually heart or lung trouble.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both. Solution will appear in tomorrow's paper.

CANADIAN MOVIE STAR

Norma Shearer, the new Canadian movie star, as she appears in her latest picture.

Miss Doreen Greenwall, with whom he is shown above. The first public announcement of the breaking of his engagement to Miss Grace came on the same day that his wedding was announced.

ANOTHER ROYAL ENGAGEMENT?

BARONESS ORCZY IN CANADA

Baroness Orczy and her husband, M. O. Barstow, who recently reached Canada aboard the C.P.R. liner Montnairn, are making their first trip to the American continent. The baroness is seeking local color to embody in a new romance of Canada which she is to write. As indicative of the reverses of many an author, it is interesting to recall what is now her most widely-read book—The Scarlet Pimpernel—was refused by no less than twelve publishing houses before it was finally printed. In visiting Canada, Baroness Orczy has been especially interested in a study of the influence of the new world conditions upon European races.

GLOOMY DEAN SPEAKS

Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, speaking from the modernist standpoint at a conference of modern churchmen at Oxford, said: "We are not a well-drilled army and have no party program, no official syllabus of opinion to defend. We are agreed that the spirit of truth is blessed by honest euquiry. The Bible of the race is still being written. We have discarded the infallible church and infallible book."

Antonio, the mystic old hermit, with his wild and white haired head and green hunting shirt, had kept Jean and Mary Burns safe from the autumn storms.

Yes, it is true, he made their father wait, far below, in the cold night, for him until up to the hut was too difficult in the dark—but he was good to them, wait, far below, in the cold night, for gave them some warm supper and here the story he told them about how the fairy Godmother of the birds hides them in winter.

"You know, little girls," said the hermit, "I could see you getting lost, because you had such bright dresses, and I could see the storm coming, dangerous, and the dark too, so I just watched over you, until, from away up here on the cliff, I saw you sit down. I knew danger was near, and that is how you are here. It is just like that with the birdland fairies.

"You see, little girls, the birds have their dresses too, and there are so many dangers through the winter, when the birds are far from their Canadian homes, that some of them may need the help of the fairies to keep safe from harm. So the fairies do not say anything, they just watch from away off, then when danger starts to come, the magic changes in their dresses are made by the fairy Godmothers.

You remember, little girls, how bright and yellow the wild canary, the Goldfinch, is in summer? And how lovely and black his wings are? And how dull yellow green his wife is?"

"Yes, I remember," said Jean, "don't you remember, Mary?"

"No, I don't remember even the way home—Oh, yes, I remember the Bobolink, spink-spank-spink—do you think we will get spanked?" said Mary, with a far away look.

"Well, anyway, little girls," went on Antonio, in an effort to comfort them. "Bobolink has a fairy Godmother too, but we will tell about that next. But what do you think happens to Goldfinch? The fairies fool everybody. They change his coat, making him put on his wife's dress. Then they make a new greyer dress for her. And everybody wonders all winter, where the pretty Goldfinches are. Of course they are down south, but all changed."

What happens to Bobolink, appear o-morrow.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE FIRST APPEARED

The first picture of the Virgin which is preserved in the church of Guadalupe is not only an object of reverential regard, but the figure is further enhanced by the legend that has been told from generation to generation.

In the country of Mexico, where many of the Indians were converted to the white man's religion during the sixteenth century there was among the converts one Juan Diego. The record says that at three different times the Virgin just as she had appeared to Juan Diego was outlined upon the garment.

Then the cloth was built and the picture hung upon its walls. Archbishop Carrigal, in describing the mysterious picture, wrote this about it: "The material on which the image is formed is a coarse product of the maguey plant such as is still used by the Indians for their wraps and for other domestic purposes. The image is painted on this rough canvas without any sizing or preparation. In fact the canvas is transparent, the same image showing on both sides. Four distinct kinds of paintings are discernible in different portions of the canvas, and in addition to this, the gilding which appears in the stars with which it or the garments of Our Lady as well as on the rays of light which issue from the figure is not applied according to any known process and seems rather to have been woven and painted upon it."

STREET NAMES

SHERBROOKE STREET.

Sir John Coape Sherbrooke was the son of William Coape, a Justice of the Peace in Derbyshire, who had taken the additional surname of Sherbrooke on his marriage to Sarah Sherbrooke an heiress to a fair sized fortune.

Following this story, he becomes in due time captain in the 33rd Regiment, stationed at Nova Scotia. An incident in his life known as the Wyvern ghost, occurred while he was stationed at Cape Breton in 1784. He did a fallow officer, Lieutenant Tyrrell, while stationed together in a room, saw, or were supposed to see a figure pass in front of them which Wyvern recognized as that of his brother who (as the afterwards learned), died in England at this time. A singular feature of the case was that it was the latter, not Wyvern, who first saw and drew attention to the figure.

Leaving Canada in 1788, Sherbrooke travelled up the steep ladder until he reached the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and had experience of service in the Netherlands and Germany. Service in India followed and the wars between Britain and France led him to India, Egypt, Sicily and eventually to Spain under Wellington in the Peninsular war. He was second in command to Wellington in the campaign of 1809 and carried out his arduous duties with distinction. His health never strong, broke down in 1810 and he returned to England, only to leave in the following year for Nova Scotia, on his appointment as Lieutenant-Governor of that colony. At the outbreak of the war in 1812 with the United States he established energetic measures for the defence of the territory and acted with commendable judgment and promptitude.

On January 29, 1816, he was appointed Captain General and Governor in Chief of Canada. Although his position as a buffer between British Protestants and French Roman Catholics was a difficult one, he succeeded in winning the personal esteem of both parties. The strain of the situation told on his highly-strung temperament, and in 1818 he had a paralytic stroke, which caused him to send in his resignation. He left Quebec on the twelfth of August, returning to his home at Celbridge, Northamptonshire, England, where he died in 1830. A county and city in the province of Quebec are named after Sherbrooke.

Clean off the Old Stock

Copyright, 1925, Wayne Boon.

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Movie Rose, is a presentation of this story by Wayne Boon, Florence, Ont.

Bye and bye, as he urged the roaring iron meteor of the rails on its flight, the intensity of Bob's reflections upon his personal fortunes mingled so closely with the routine thoughts necessary for the skilful operation of his engine that slowly and insensibly fell into a reverie of such depth and intensity that it was akin to self-hypnotism.

Seeing the green tower light of Rise Ravine Junction station—the last station until the hard score or more miles of single track to the summit of Eagle Pass was completed—some little distance ahead of him, Bob was minded to look at his watch; no more to see the time and ascertain how closely he was running, keeping to schedule than to feast his eyes upon the small snapshot of Caroline that he had carried in his watchcase since he begged it from her, several days ago.

At this very moment in the Rise Ravine junction station the telegraph operator was snapped out of a drowsy interest in a satisfying novel by a brassy clicking instrument from his neighbour at the Summit Station, many miles above—

Freight . . . ported . . . taking . . . siding . . . last . . . half . . . eastbound . . . passe . . . Limited . . . and . . . Rise . . . Ravine . . .

The eerie whistle of the Limited split the lonely air. It was on the last half-mile precautionary approach to the station, and nothing was ahead. The station agent looked over his desk in his capacious to be ready for the signal lever. Jason.

Bob, still holding the watch in his hand, had looked out before accordion the warning of approach to the Rise Ravine station: the light in the signal tower shone green; and on the way up the steep ascent to the Pass, but as he relaxed his hold on the whistle cord the watch, which he had pointed in that hand, slipped out of it to the floor of the cab. Bob withdrew his head into the cab and leaned down to recover the watch at the selfsame instant that the frantic operator in the station threw the signal tower light from green to red.

A soft oath over the fractured crystal of his watch changed to a whisper of love, exalted into a smile of devotion, as Bob met the smiling eyes of the photographs turned up to him from the floor. He covertly touched the pictured likeness of Caroline to his lips, glancing down first to make sure that the fireman was busy with his gauges and his pewter rod and not watching him.

Then he returned both picture and damaged watch to his pocket, and leaned out to meet the cool rush of the night air against his cheeks once more. The Rise Ravine station had dropped two hundred yards behind us now; ahead of him was only the dreary way of black miles that would require all his alert skill to get over in the technical style and speed that a crack flyer like the Limited should.

Back in the station, though Bob could not know it, a terrified agent acted on the platform, watching the tail-lights of the Limited disappear suddenly, dizzying and reeling.

"My God, he just right past the red light—and was coming by almost like a fast freight or a mile behind—and he got here! Nothing can save the Limited now!"

Whereupon the agent shivered, the pads and dampness of his fear to the sure the best way of getting the message to the rushed head to his top and frantically called a call for hospital station, for doctors, and nurses. That much he could do, and even while Bob was racing his cabin up the mountainside twelve hundred feet, old was getting under way for the disaster and the carnival of the wreck that was yet to happen.

In the cab, Bob stood with one hand pressed tightly against the watch that held her picture.

In the first mad rac. Bob opened his throttle and gave it freely a shot of what remained of the steaming water. His pressure, when they at the first step they would run up to the top and give a chance to take to Bloody Bob. Perhaps they might even ask him to accept the congratulations of the road on the terror of all the Rockies, a ride in the cab, though Jim, thinking it over seriously with Bobby on his knee spent the afternoon all pictures with him, reasoned that perhaps it would be better if Bob would not ride the mountainside for his own sake only a consideration that we added to the list of the reasons Limited himself by Jim, stirred by an unconscious movement of pressing the pictured likeness of Caroline to his lips, and the old engineer's throttle hand to his face, down

Bob saw the lurching blackness of the runaway freight the instant it shot within the furthermost reaches of the Limited's searchlight—saw it, while fingers of ice seized his heart; saw it, and reached for his airbrake and his throttle simultaneously pulling down on the one with all his strength and cutting off the flow of forward power with the other.

All too late, and to no earthly avail.

Ten seconds later, Limited and freight were piled up and jumbled on the tracks in an indiscriminate welter of steam and splinters, bodies and twisted steel.

Bob, when he came to, found himself unhampered of movement in the midst of a steaming, tortured mass of iron through which he was able to scramble with comparative ease and drop to the safety of the ground, unhurt but for the shock.

In the horror of the moment his predominating thought was for his friends in the first mail car. That had been reduced to kindling wood, literally, and was afire. A brakeman, divining Bob's intention, tried to halt him but Bob shook him off and plunged hysterically into the wreckage, searching for Jim and Bobby.

He found them, after a time. Bobby, held in Jim's arms and but lightly caught by the debris, was crying, trying to rouse his father. Jim was still, white—his eyes closed. Bob shrieked aloud as he saw that Jim was stone dead.

The flames were eating their all-consuming pathway directly toward the spot, so Bob, placing Bobby aside in safety, worked frantically to extricate Jim's body from this last, crowning despoliation. But it was not to be.

Bob gave up, however, only when the flames licked close to Bobby, who was screaming in fear and grief.

RUSSIA SEEKS AGREEMENT WITH POLAND AND FRANCE TO PERMIT GIVING ATTENTION TO FAR EAST

Swift Headway is Being Made in Clarifying Relations.

FINANCIAL TROUBLES

French Rivalry With Britain is Driving Force Behind Agreement.

By FREDERICK KUH.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6.—(United Press).—The Soviet Government is making swift headway in clarifying its relations to Poland and France.

The recent journey of Polish foreign Minister Skrzynski to America meant a suspension of negotiations which were proceeding between Moscow and Warsaw. Now that Skrzynski has returned, the conversations between the Soviet and Poland have been resumed.

This does not mean that a Polish-Soviet alliance is impending, or anything of the sort. It does signify, however, that the commercial relations of both countries will soon be placed on a firm basis and that this will dispel much of the hostile suspicion hovering over the Soviet-Polish frontier.

Since Moscow's relations with Poland run parallel to Moscow's relations with France, a genuine reconciliation with Warsaw can not be effected until agreement has been reached in Paris.

French rivalry with Britain on the European continent is the driving force behind a Franco-Russian agreement. France realizes the profound conflict between the Soviet and Britain in almost every corner of the globe and is prepared to make common cause with Moscow in many vital issues, once the impending Franco-Russian differences have been settled. And it must be remembered that these differences are not territorial, but largely financial.

Although a solution of the problem of Russia's debts to France is still beyond reach, progress has undoubtedly been made towards a settlement. At least, the demands of each have been crystalized. Moscow demands not only a drastic reduction of the sum of these debts and a prolonged moratorium, but also the extension of French credits to the Soviet Government. It is not unlikely that France will accept the demands for reduction and moratorium, but the Soviet's insistence upon credits has met with a blunt French refusal.

"I asked the Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Chicherin, whether he does not believe that Washington would be willing to the extension of French credits to Moscow, since these might reduce France's capacity to meet her obligations to the United States.

"Quite possible," Chicherin replied, "need not be extended by the French Government, but could be tendered by French private banks and would be in the form of 'good credits.' America could scarcely protest the export of French industrial products to the Soviet Union."

Another obstacle to Franco-Russian agreement is the French fear of Soviet encouragement to independence movements in the French colonies. Indeed, I learned that France recently protested officially in Moscow against the tone of the Soviet press regarding the Moroccan rebellion. But in such cases, a wink from official quarters is sufficient to temper the zeal of the revolutionary journalist in Moscow. In this connection, the Soviet Government would go far toward conciliating France.

The other principal issue at stake between Paris and Moscow is the fate of the Russian warships, once employed as General Wrangel's navy and now interned in the French port of Bizerta. The Soviet demands the immediate return of these warcraft. I understand that agreement has been attained on this point and the return of the ships to the Soviet is imminent.

France's adherence to the proposed European security pact might easily be counteracted, in Moscow's opinion, by a settlement of the outstanding accounts between Moscow and Paris. But the conviction is deeply rooted in Soviet circles that the security pact is, above all, a British move to draw Germany away from Russia and pave the road to an eventual military attack upon Moscow through Germany and Poland. Hence, Moscow's warmer tone toward Warsaw. Hence also, Soviet reminders to Germany of the markets at stake for German finance and industry on Soviet territory.

But the conclusion of the security pact itself and Germany's entry into the League of Nations are not considered foregone conclusions in Moscow. It is realized that the pressure upon Germany toward both these moves is very strong. And the Soviet believes that Germany will yield to that pressure if the Locarno Government Government retains power. But a change of government in Germany, say Soviet authorities, might delay or thwart both pact and entry into the League. The strengthening of the nationalists in the Berlin Cabinet is regarded as the only chance to prevent the success of the British project.

But even if the pact materializes and Germany's name is added to the League's membership list, the Soviet hopes to parry this threat by coming to terms with Poland and France. And once this is accomplished, Moscow and Paris will be doubled vigor to the creation of an Asiatic "security pact," with Russia, China and Japan as the participants.

ELECTROCUTED FIXING UP RADIO

Robert Young, 16, Was Arranging For Sick Chum to Hear World's Series.

OTHERS HURT.

WELLAND, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press)—Robert Young, 16, son of John Young, manager of the Volta Manufacturing Co., was electrocuted here yesterday afternoon when installing a radio in order that one of his Sunday School companions, Stewart Kirk, who is confined to Welland County Hospital might listen in on the world's series. His companions, Herbert McCuaig and Hugh McMillan, were so badly burned that they were removed to the hospital. The condition of the matter is critical. James Maudsley escaped with slight shock.

The boys, who had been given permission by the Matron, Miss Hutton, were in the act of erecting an aerial when the wire came in contact with the Hydro 4,000 volts.

LESS CLOTHING; BETTER HEALTH

London Doctor Says to Wear Enough to Escape Arrest

ALL OVER DRESS

LONDON, Oct. 6. — (United Press).—Just enough clothing to escape arrest is plenty, according to Dr. C. S. Thomson, Health Officer of London district. He spoke of men as well as of women.

"The only sensible women are those who wear short skirts and just enough on their backs to escape arrest."

Dr. Thomson said in a lecture Sunday: "We all over-dress. Women seen in doctors' offices are those wearing the old-fashioned flannels, high-necked dresses and long skirts. Doctors seldom see women with short skirts, low necks and nothing much in between. They do not need medical attention.

"Men's stiff collars," Dr. Thomson added, 'and heavy underclothes are a death trap. Men ought to wear as little as possible compatible with decency, instead of their present air-tight garb."

DISCUSSED CHANGES ARISING FROM UNION

Cobourg Presbytery Held Meeting in Welcome—65 Delegates Attended.

WELCOME, Oct. 6.—A meeting of great interest to the future work of the United Church of the Cobourg Presbytery was held in the Welcome Church on Thursday, October 1st, when the adjusting committee of that Presbytery met a number of representatives from the different circuits to discuss changes in the circuits resulting from Union.

There were about sixty-five present, one circuit sending as many as ten delegates.

In the morning the committee listened to the suggestions and opinions of the delegates with regard to certain changes. At one o'clock the committee met and after careful consideration, drew up a plan of readjustment which seemed to be the best. This will be presented to the Bay of Quinte Conference on October 13th in Peterboro.

Their report was given later to the delegates and further discussed. The circuits which were most affected were Grafton, Centreton, Baltimore, Camborne and Canton.

The ladies of Welcome congregation served a chicken pie dinner in the basement. The appreciation of the delegates was voiced by Rev. Mr. Lane, of Canton, and seconded by Rev. Mr. Higgs, of Port Perry, who said Welcome was living up to its name.

Personals.

Mrs. Bunner, with Miss Gladys Bunner, of Bowmanville, visited her daughter, Mrs. Clare Symons, and participated in the birthday celebrations of her two grandchildren.

Mrs. Staples and Mrs. Runnals have been on the sick list this week.

Miss Gertrude Lewis is still absent attending the Fall Fairs. She has been successful in securing substantial prizes for driving and riding at Orono, Blackstock and Millbrook this week.

Among the visitors from here at Millbrook Fair were Miss H. McConnell, Messrs. Jones, Albert Lewis, Chas. Lewis, Misses George Lewis and Wesley Clare.

The school children have enjoyed a couple of extra holidays this week on account of the teachers' convention.

Misses R. Woodger and Hazel Bamsay motored to Cobourg to attend the teachers' convention.

The farmers are busy reaping the results of their summer's labors. Corn-cutting, silo-filling, apple packing and tomato drawing are the prominent activities of the day.

Once Sunday was a day of rest; now we spend all the others days of the week resting after Sunday.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

The congregations of Park Sweet have been increasing steadily since the close of the holiday season, yesterday being the largest audiences of any, the evening congregation being exceptionally good. In the morning the pastor spoke of "The Man Who Was Bold Enough to Talk Back to God," basing his message on the story of Abraham, in Genesis 18. He showed that when Abraham's moral nature was shocked at God's proposal to destroy Sodom and Gomorrot he went and talked to God about it; and further, as he talked back to God his faith, and consequently his prayers, enlarged with the diminishing number of righteous men. The truth pressed home was that we should not stop asking since God does not stop giving.

In the evening hour to a large congregation the pastor spoke of the endearing name of Jesus.

The prayer retreat begun in the Park Street Baptist Church, and which was successful in bringing a real blessing, will be continued each night this week at 8.00, except on Thursday and Friday, when the meeting will begin at 7.30.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

The Harvest Thanksgiving services were continued in St. George's church, on Sunday, with good congregations present at all services.

Rev. George J. Bousfield, of St. Luke's church, who addressed the children at their service at 10 o'clock officiated at the 11 o'clock Eucharist, and preached an excellent sermon from the words: "Thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth."

Evensong was rendered after the manner usual in St. George's, fully choral. Rev. J. L. Hughes preached from the words of the one hundredth Psalm: "Enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise; serve the Lord with gladness and bless His name." The choir members acquitted themselves ably in the singing of the anthem, "Break forth into joy." The solo parts were sung by Miss Dorothy Butler and Rev. J. L. Hughes. Mr. Bruce Quinn presided at the organ in his usual efficient manner.

ENGINEER KILLED AS TRAINS COLLIDE

Fireman Is Missing and Eight Passengers Are Hurt.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 6—(Canadian Press)—Engineer W. J. Smith of Southern Pacific passenger train No. 5 was killed, his fireman is missing, and eight passengers are reported injured in a collision between the passenger and a freight train near Sparks, Nevada, at 6:45 o'clock last night.

BIRDS FORETELL LONG, HARD WINTER

Southern Flight of Migratory Fowl is Unusually Early.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press)—Migratory birds have received an inkling that an early, long and severe winter is coming, says State Ornithologist Forbush. Reports coming to him from the northeast show an unusually early and heavy southward flight of birds.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blackheads and pimples. There is one simple, quick and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of peroxide powder (sometimes called peroxidine) from any druggist, and apply a little on a wet, fine soft cloth. Briskly rub the blackheads for a few moments, until the pores and waxy plugs disappear, and your entire skin has a beautiful, velvety texture. Larger pores and even scars are greatly diminished by this treatment. Make the application and peroxide powder and your blackheads will be gone. Get rid of them and leave the skin and pores in their natural condition.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my 'teens and am deeply in love with a young man a few years my senior, out of town. He writes to me and says he likes me but never says he loves me. I have met a few other young men who I like very much. Is this the reason why? Thanking you for any information you may give me.

Thanking you again,

A LOVER.

A LOVER: I am not just sure what you mean by saying is this the reason why? Do you mean that you can only like the other young men while you are uncertain as to your absent friend's feeling for you? The only thing you can do is bide your time. You can't force the young man to love you, especially when you only hear from him by letter. Why not cultivate patience and a belief in a kind Providence who will probably send you what you want in the long run. Dont neglect your other friends in town for an absent suitor who probably is enjoying himself with other young ladies, and quite reasonably, too, as he is not engaged to you.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY HOLDS DISTRICT CONVENTION

Four City Churches and Many in District Are Represented.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

Mrs. J. K. Moore Re-elected Superintendent—Membership Increased in Year.

A district convention of the Womens Missionary Society was held in George street church on Friday last, with an attendance of about one hundred and fifty ladies, representative of the four churches of the city: George street, Trinity, Mark street and St. James, and from Bensfort, Bethany, Fairmount, Lakefield, Warsaw, Bridgenorth and Millbrook.

The devotional exercises of the morning session, which opened at ten o'clock, were conducted by Mrs. J. N. Welbourn and Miss Might. Mrs. J. K. Moore, district superintendent, presided over the convention.

Mrs. Moore gave a brief address, reporting a very successful year just ended, and that the auxiliaries who had adopted the group system reported greater enthusiasm.

Mrs. Moore spoke in great praise of the splendid service rendered the cause by a former member, Mrs. James Kendry, and also spoke of the work done by Mrs. A. R. Campbell.

Peterborough District this year forwarded the Branch Treasurer $4,552, an increase over the previous year of $587.

Reports Given.

Reports from auxiliaries, circles and bands showed an increase in membership and amounts received for missions.

A well-rendered solo by Miss Daisy Murray was much enjoyed by her audience.

Mrs. Graystock of Warsaw gave an interesting paper on "The Value of Prayer", emphasizing the necessity of constant, persistent, sleepless prayer, to avoid the snares of Satan, to obtain favors from God and to follow the examples of the apostles who regarded prayer as the most important business of their lives. "The placing of ourselves at God's disposal, opening our lives to God's influence and guidance makes prayer the strongest force for the acomplishment of God's work on earth. It is our stubborn resistance that often makes our prayers and our lives of little avail. But true prayer opens the door to the will of God.... Prayer is our strongest weapon."

Words of welcome extended by Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, on behalf of George street church, were responded to by Mrs. R. J. Kidd of Trinity church. Kindly greetings were extended by the sister societies of Knox church, voiced by Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, and of St. Andrew's church, by Mrs. J. W. Gordon.

Afternoon Session.

After luncheon was served in the basement of the church by the W.M.S. of George street church, the afternoon session was opened by prayer offered by Mesdames J. Stubbs and Batten.

Interesting and instructive talks on Band work were given by Mesdames Rowe, Stinson and Lane. The following points were emphasized by Mrs. W. A. Morton (rst) The Band Superintendent should supervise the treasurers' quarterly report slips and remittance before being sent. (2nd) Quarterly Report Form Books must be used and may be obtained from the Branch Treasurer, Mrs. Morley A. Day, 233 Foster avenue, Belleville, to whom the remittance must be sent, accompanied by quarterly report slips. These are sent in July, October, January and April. (3rd) Reports to the Branch Circle and Band Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Amelissburg, Ontario, are to be sent exactly the same as reported to treasurer.

Address on Circles.

Mrs. Wagar, Lock street, spoke on the work of the Circles, which she said had been organized to bridge the gap between the Mission Band and the Auxiliary. The chief essential of a good Circle, she asserted, was a good leader, and the requisite of good leadership were humility, faithfulness, courage, and industry. Love also was required, to overlook faults in others, tact, cheerfulness, good nature, patience and self-control. Attractive programmes should be presented, followed by a social half hour, and the group system was advocated, with automatic graduations yearly by older Band members into the Circle.

Mrs. Wagar warned against the poison of critics in a Circle, as having a clogging effect on the wheels of its progress.

Miss Daisy Murray again favored the ladies with a vocal solo, and the president read an interesting letter from Miss Luella Rorke, missionary in Japan, who has returned to her duties in Karnisawa.

"News from China" was given by Mrs. Coon. Miss Marian Coon received her first call in Mission Band work. For the last few years the eyes of the world have been turned to China because of the turbulent state of this country with its population of four hundred million. It is thirty-six or thirty-seven years since missionary work started in China, and the field opened is tremendous. Mrs. Coon spoke of the crowded and unsanitary condition of the country, and of the dissatisfaction caused amongst the natives by the fact that business men go there not to Christianize, but to exploit the Chinese. She spoke also of the routine work of the missionaries, and of the wonderful fancy work done by the Japanese girls. In a letter from Miss Coon she states that everything at present is quiet.

"How best to reach our Objective" was the title of an address by Mrs. (Rev.) Foley, who stated that the real objective of the work was the obeying of the Master's call, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." The missions form the central thought of the United Church. The mottoes, "Pray, Study, Give" are the abutments of the great bridge. Although we are now enabled to add many more foreign missions to our list, there are many mission fields in Canada which need workers, not only alonbst the foreigners, but among the English-speaking people as well. We hear of white men; politicians, lawyers and business men, taking advantage of others by bribing, etc. If we could man the great North West with Christian teachers, it would be great help. When we realize that the woman mentioned in Miss Rorkes' letter who had lived for ten years in Regina and who had never heard the name of Jesus, we realize there is a great work still to be done."

Paper On "Stewardship"

Mrs. Hanbidge, R.R. No. 11, Ida, spoke on "Stewardship," as applied to time and money, emphasizing the recognition of our responsibility to God as stewards of everything we are and have—life, time, talents, possessions and spiritual resources....This recognition is fundamental to a wholesome Christian faith and experience. "Stewardship is primarily spiritual. Its great objective is character."

The speaker elaborated the various elements in her address, and finished with a comparison of a dollar spent for a lunch, which lasts five hours, for wearing apparel, lasting for weeks, for an automobile, lasting for years, for waterpower or railroad grade, lasting for generations, but for the service of God, it lasts for eternity.

An eloquent tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. James Kendry was made by Mrs. S. R. Armstrong. In memory of Mrs. Kendry a Memorial Fund, named the Elizabeth Kendry Memorial Fund, has been started. Anyone desiring to subscribe to this fund is welcome to do so.

Officers Elected.

Mrs. J. K. Moore remains superintendent of the district for the ensuing year. Mrs. Seymour is assistant superintendent and Mrs. W. H. Morton secretary.

The meeting closed with a quiet Half Hour led by Rev. J. E. Todd.

NEGLECTED HUSBANDS.

Women Dying Give Evidence of Disrespect For Bread Winners.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct, 6 (Canadian Press).—Two women recently left wills disposing of fairly large estates—over $27,000 and over $13,000 respectively, in which the sum of one dollar "and no more" was left to the husband in each case.

Recollection is the only paradise from which we cannot be turned out.

HOTESSES TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR

During the past week his honor the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Cockshutt of Ontario have been host of Mrs. Walter Nicol and Miss Maraquita Nicol, wife and daughter of Lieutenant-governor Walter Nicol of British Columbia. They returned to Victoria last week, and while in Toronto were interested visitors at Woodbine Park.

ONCE UPON A TIME SNOW-WHITE AND ROSE-RED. by W. J. ENRIGHT.

Northwest Rebellion of 1885; Ald. Crowe Tells Reminiscences

The following is the first instalment of a series of articles written by Alderman Joseph Crowe, dealing with his personal experiences as a member of the company from Peterborough, that formed part of one of the regiments that went to the West in 1885 to aid in the suppression of the North West Rebellion of that year.

When the rebellion broke out orders arrived that the 57th Regiment were required to send a company of 42 men, officered, which would be one captain, two lieutenants, 45 all told.

The names of those who went, with place of residence is as follows:—

Peterborough—Sergt. Miles, Pt. W. Reynolds, Pte. Wm. Cook, Pte. Wm. Despard, Pte. Silas Parkes, Pte. Wm. Brown, Pte. John Beach, Pte. Jas. Hannah, Pte. A. Crowter, Pte. Geo. Crowter, Pte. Jack Roberts, Pte. Thos. Billings, Pte. Edd. Dalley, Pte. Bell, Pte. Matheson.

Ashburnham—Pte. T. Graham, Pte. Jos. Crowe, Pte. Segt. Tyler, Pte. Geo. Tanner, Pte. Alf. Rogers, Pte. John Cochrane, Pte. Burt Downer.

Keene—Pt. Marsh Weir, Pte. Wm. Wedlock, Pte. Duncan McIntyre, Pte. Jas. McFee, Pte. Ross, Sergt. Marks, Pte. Angus Phillips.

Norwood—Capt. Burke, lieut. Brennan, Corp. Hendron, Pte. M. Leery, Pte. H. Hill, Pte. Woods, Pte. H. Hogan, Pte. Jessie Cummings.

Hastings—Pte. Jos. Thomson, Pte. Mat. Breckenridge, Pte. M. Lynch, Pte. T. Anderson, Pte. M. H. Biggs.

Our first fall-in sounded on the 28th of March and we marched to the C.P.R. station to give the Toronto troops a send-off as they passed through, enroute for the scene of action. On the 31st of March orders were received to be prepared to leave on April 1st. The bugle sounded the fall-in on that morning at 6 a.m. and many of us had no trouble in getting up, as few of us went to bed, but the writer was just a shade late, but caught on at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, marching down to the G.T.R. station. The citizens were out en masse and the band was out in full force, the writer being a member. The music sounded beautiful so early in the morning. We finally got started, going via Ashburn and Ashburnham. We had refreshments at the latter place, which had a reputation in those days of being very generous to the boys in red, as our Colonel was one of their number. It was a common occurrence for the ladies to serve refreshments to all three companies when we had a march-out those nights. All aboard and we were off for Kingston, where we were to form a part of as fine a regiment as ever donned a uniform in this or any other country. This regiment contained companies from the following places:—15th Regiment, of Belleville; 40th, of Northumberland; 45th, of Lindsay; 46th, two companies; 47th, of Frontenac; 49th, of Hastings County; 57th of Peterborough County, 8 companies in all. All wore the red coat, except the 49th, which were a rifle corps. The right strength was about 400 men, rank and file. Now, each company takes precedence according to their numbers. Belleville city being 15th, they were called A. Company; next was 40th; B Company, 45th, Lindsay, C Company and so on, so you can easily see where the 57th stood, though through no fault of their's. But, as the 49th wore black coats, they placed them in the rear, which gave us the privilege of not being last.

ALD. JOSEPH CROWE

An Incident.

The train was soon on its way, and we took a long look at the disappearing city, when an incident happened which is worth recording. The locomotive blew loud and long, as if something were on the track. Every window was soon hoisted and heads were crowed to look out to see what the matter was. A drove of cattle were alongside the track and one of them had fallen into a large culvert. We could just see her about one foot higher than the ties on the track. The train soon came to a stop and several went out to see the cow taken out of the culvert. There were a deal of arguing as to how the animal could be taken out, some suggesting lifting her bodily out, but enough could not get a hold to do the trick, but Alf. Rogers sized up the situation, and at once took up a position and got the best hold there was on the animal. He got her by the tail and he raised that cow half way out of where she was. When the soldiers saw how he lifted her they very soon got down and lifted the beast to a place of safety.

At Kingston.

We arrived in Kingston and quartered in Lee De Pont Barracks. We were quickly ordered to fall in to be inspected by some officials, and to arrange for clothing, etc. The clothing we had on was as poor a fit as you could imagine, and some of the men never drilled before, and knew nothing of order or discipline, one place also to make matters worse, the most of them had been smelling the cork and the result was that quite a few had to be put in the guard room for the night. We were next day issued with brand new uniforms from head to foot. The shoes were of red leather. We had following: A scarf or muffler, and leggings made of strips of cloth about 4 inches wide which we circled around our pants, up to the knees, which gave the men a natty appearance. Each man was served out with the knapsack with a canteen on top of it; a new rifle. It was a mistake to issue Glengarry caps, for a trip of this kind as they were of very little use as far as protection from the elements went. An oil cloth blanket a very large overcoat which was folded very neatly on the back of the knapsack. This knapsack when the whole equipment was in it and overcoat strapped on it weighed about 25 pounds.

Looked Like Prison.

The barracks at Kingston reminded us of a large prison. We were placed in a very large room on the hard floor. The men were hard to control, owing to a great number of them never being under military rule, and order was out of the question. I remember an officer going to his rounds at lights out and he received a severe blow from a boot which some one threw in the dark at him, which called for an investigation, which made none the wiser. But no officer came looking for any more trouble while we were here.

The rations were fair but the most of the men were not accustomed to soldier diet. The canteen did a rushing business. The canteen is the bar or liquor refreshment booth of the barracks. This place appeared to me as some men never left it for the six days that we were here. The quenching of their thirst seemed to be all that troubled them. We were in receipt of orders to proceed at shortest notice to march out. But a heavy snow storm set in for four days, blocking all the railway trains. It was the sixth of April, before we got away. We entrained on the Kingston-Pembroke road and were off for the West. No excitement was in evidence in that city as they had no love for the soldier. We arrived at Mattawa on the C.P.R. next morning at five o'clock for breakfast. This place appeared to be a barren one and very cold. We were to get breakfast here, but only about 100 were successful, the remainder could eat snow or boughs of trees. All aboard again for a short time which gave us chance to fill up and get acquainted with a food or biscuit called hard tack. The name was very appropriate; it certainly was hard. It was composed of flour and water and a little salt. These biscuits were about circular, six inches in diameter and one-half inch thick. This formed our staple food. We ate them with a relish at first and thought they were all right but we soon tired of them and it would be through sheer hunger that we would eat them. The canned beef was also relished at first. We soon reached the end of the new road which was being built in sections all along the north shore of Lake Superior. We were soon to be initiated into our first taste of hardship, and real soldier life. Now to fully understand the circumstances from this point on our journey until we reached Fort William it will be necessary to state, that, owing to the serious turn affairs had taken and reports coming constantly in of the Indians rising and of the defeat of the mounted police at Batoche, made the hurrying of troops to the scene as quickly as possible, the whole cry.

The troops who were in advance of us were the Governor-General's Foot Guards of Ottawa, Queen's Own and Royal Grenadiers of Toronto, the 9th Voltigiers of Quebec and the 65th Victoria Rifles of Montreal. The 65th were only one day ahead of us. This left no time for the construction camps to cook a supply ahead for us. Imagine a small shanty about 30 ft. square with a cook or two inside who found it hard enough to provide for those ahead, only to find that another crowd was on them. Those regiments who had four or five days between them did not fare badly as we did following so close on the Frenchmen who practically left nothing only a bad name. The men were very pronounced in their condemnation of military tactics and would assemble on top of the roof of the shanties and deliver speeches of high order what they would do when they got back again. But the "hard tack" would be the substitute that would put them in good humor. We would occasionally strike a piece of railroad for 10 miles or so, then get off and walk the gap to the next piece. Eventually horses and sleighs secured by the government from the contractors on the road, conveyed our knapsacks and blankets to the next stopping place.

I remember the first night we spent in the woods. It was a cold, clear, starry night. We gathered logs and brush together which made a large pot fire, usually in as low a place as possible. All gathered around and many smoked the pipe of peace, but the greater number were out for war and kept looking for it everywhere. Then, as it became late, the men being tired, made an attempt to go to sleep by spreading their rubber blanket on the crystallized snow.

For in that part of the country the snow was turned to hail as large as peas and very hard to walk in, being from three to four feet deep it was impossible to make a beaten path in it. They placed their woollen blanket on it with another over them, and lay down all in a heap with feet to the fire; I slept very little. Some slept sound, only to be awakened when the rubber blanket had slid down the raise or incline with its occupant towards the fire. But with some of them with their feet inside their shoes became so hot, that they would jump up more asleep than awake and tear open the laces in their shoes to get them off. In some cases the soles of the shoes formed into large cracks.

Some officers having thermometers with them stated that they registered ten degrees below zero. It was the coldest night that we had to sleep out on the trip. Another night we arrived at Jack Fish Bay, and took our quarters in a sunken schooner, everyone crawling through a hole in the stern. She appeared to be a vessel that had stranded, being half full of ice. But with a plentiful supply of hay we soon made ourselves comfortable inside. There was one great fear among us as well we thought of it. Fire! Should any thought less person strike a match and drop it in the hay not a man could have got out of that hulk. Now as all were aware of the danger and that any person attempting to smoke would at once have been harshly dealt with. A peculiar thing about it, not an officer thought of the danger, but it was the men who took the precaution. It was certainly a step well taken as it was a large fire trap. There were a couple of holes in the deck, but they were too high to get out at without a ladder. The whole regiment with the exception of the officers found quarters for the night. The space allotted to each man was about eighteen square inches, but some slung their blankets from the deck, and caused some amusement as just as soon as they would get nicely asleep some one would cut them down and, down the occupant would come, head first, amid a shower of oaths from both parties, above and below.

It was very dark in that hull but, after many a row over space, the men began to quiet down. There were numerous songs sung and stories told, but some individual struck up an appropiate song entitled "Texas Rangers" which was sung with as good a voice as I ever heard. It was a splendid song well sung. One part of it I remember was—the chorus thus—

We saw those Indians coming,
We heard them give the yell,
My feeling at that moment,
No longer tongue could tell.
Our captain, he commanding,
Spoke up because he thought it right,
Before you reach next station,
Brave boys you'll have to fight.

The song had about twenty verses in it and was well received, and before it was finished everybody that could sing joined in the chorus. That song put the climax on the singing for the night, and all slept soundly until morning, when each took a couple of hard-tack (biscuits) in our hands and started on the longest march across that portion of the route, 26 miles across a bay on Lake Superior. The walking was very bad owing to the snow that had fallen lately, becoming soft and slushy.

The Belleville boys had rubber boots, issued to them by that city when they were leaving. And we envied them, we had very short shoes, but at the end of the journey a greater number of them had scalded feet. All our feet were as if they were par-boiled, but they seemed to suffer most.

End of Walk.

When we got to the end of our journey on foot we boarded a train of flat cars and rode about five miles, then took shelter in abandoned shanties and were soon fast asleep in our wet clothing, all completely tired out, and very hungry. This hard work was beginning to tell on the men.

Next morning a number had sore throats and powders were freely used.

More hard-tack and corn beef and snow water. Then we rode 20 miles on railway flat cars on which we huddled close together to keep warm.

Breakfast over we took the trail again, part of the time we would be on land then cut across a bay on the ice and so on until night came on, when we espied a light, it appeared to be the headlight of a locomotive and it soon spread abroad that that was our train, waiting for us, with cosches attached to carry us into Fort William.

Judging, as we did, from that size of the head light that the train could not be any more than four or five miles away. All felt that we could easily make it in an hour or so. So with that end in view, you may talk of fast walking. Those Belleville chaps struck up a terrific pace as they were in the lead. Quite a few succumbed to the task and fell behind to be picked up by the teams following. We walked fully five hours before we reached that train, and instead of the headlight as we at first thought, the fire was made by having an immense log heap burning, and the few miles proved to be twenty or more, but the walking was of the best on a thin crust of snow on ice. Needless to say we got into those cars without delay and were soon dead to all about us. We knew nothing of distance by rail until we reached Port Arthur, as Fort William in those days was nowhere on the map. Port Arthur proved to be a very small place. We stopped to have breakfast and were soon on our way to Winnipeg. Very few but slept all th way, night and day alike.

Winnipeg reached, we received orders to disembark and go into camp there. When on the way to do so we got orders to entrain further west, but before doing so received a good breakfas first for over two weeks. Winnipeg was not much of a city then, it having passed through the land boom and was practically in a comatose state.

The regiment was photographed at the station, although quite a number were absent, your humble servant being one of them, and came near missing the train with many others. Here we dropped three men: Private J. Kelly, M. Weir and T. Anderson, who were pronounced not fit to go any further.

All aboard for Swift Current, 510 miles west of Winnipeg and passed through a nice lot of country and reached Brandon, where we were met by the citizens of that place and treated to the very best.

Now, remember this was no easy matter for Brandon to serve lunch to a regiment and those people had catered to the regiments in advance, in the same sumptuous manner. A number of our Brandon friends came from Millbrook and vicinity. They wished us God speed and amid waving of hats, and handkerchiefs we were off for Swift Current, where we went under canvas for the first time as a regiment.

We were tolled off so many men to a tent. In the tent half I was in we were 13 in all, supposed to be an unlucky number, but we all survived. The names of the thirteen were: Sergt. Miles, Ptes. McFee, Ross, Thomson, Breckenridge, Parks, Brown, Beach, Graham, Reynolds, Daly, Crowe and Bell. They proved to be a very agreeable lot of fellows, considering that we were all practically strangers to each other. But there is something peculiar about tent life, I know of no place you can study human nature and get such a good idea of the personal characteristics of the man than just to rough it together, crowded in small space with limited means. It is there you can soon arrive at what is most prominent in a man's nature. We gradually became well acquainted with each other and began to pick our chums, two by two. It was my lot to have a very nice fellow, Daly by name, from Napanee, a brother of Wilfred A. Daly, who was a highly respected resident of our city for years. I can assure you we had very little room to spare and were too crowded to be cold. It was quite cool all the time we were here, even having quite a snow fall about the 26th of April.

Wheat was up about one inch and produced a green shade on the fields. We stayed five or six days here and got a chance to get rested.

Swift Current had two or three general stores and a hotel, and a C.P.R. roundhouse for the end of the division and the Government experimental farm. The farming country was poor owing to an alkali bed. However, the stores did a thriving business. We principally did trading. We would trade all the hard tack and canned beef we could get our hands on, for various kinds of delicacies. We also scoured the country for milk, eggs and butter. I only remember of one cow, two hens and a rooster being there. The residents of this vicinity began to take advantage of the demand for delicacies and wanted exorbitant prices; for instance, 25 cents for a quart of milk. That one cow brought in more revenue than a whole herd of thoroughbreds.

When we went up for a quart of milk the lady who owned the cow would say she did not know if she could oblige us, but she would see, and no matter how often we went she would be able to supply us with something with a likeness to milk. Several times I secured the quantity, but there was a great chance for a milk inspector to get a conviction, for the milk was over half water. I concluded that the poor cow must be fed on ice. The stores came near being looted, as they carried it too far. They actually wanted 25 cents for a small loaf of bread. But they were glad to be reasonable before we left. No troops but the Midland Battalion had been this far west on the C.P.R. Here the right half of the battalion got orders to proceed to the front on the line of battle, as very discouraging reports were coming in. This left four companies behind and a great deal of kicking was done by them.

The right half marched across to the South Saskatchewan River and took the steamboat down to Batoche. The boat being small, it could not take all of us. It was too bad to break up the Battalion but we were assured that we would be right after them in a day or so.

The next place entrained for was Maple Creek, 100 miles further west, which proved to be a beautiful place. The Dixon Bros., of this city had a general store, which was the only one. The Mounted Police have a large barracks here. We all had a splendid time here for eight days when we moved back to swift current and then took the trails.

Next, orders were received to entrain to follow our right half who were in advance now about ten days. We walked across to the South Saskatchewan, about twenty-five miles. It was a fine large river from one mile to three miles wide, with a current seven miles an hour. It was full of sand bars and islands. Through the ages the river wore the bed away until it was twelve hundred feet below the prairie.

While here, we constructed a dozen barges which are large, flat boats with a large oar at each end to guide it by. These barges were an important factor in transportation, but proved to be a bad thing for us, for we had a great deal of hardship on this trip through them.

Other regiments all travelled by steamboats, but it was up to us to get there on water either to swim, walk or float, so we decided to float. There were twelve of these barges built, which would carry from ten to twenty-five tons a piece.

We put up our tents and began to realize that we would soon be on "easy street or water," as the saying is. We kept wondering when we would get orders to set sail and enjoy a trip down that magnificent river. We had gone so far as to have all plans arranged as to who was to be captain, pilot, oarsmen, etc. We thought that the boats were built to carry us alone down to Batoche.

But our anticipation received a shock when one morning teams and wagons began to arrive by the dozen, all loaded heavily with supplies, such as hay, oats, flour, pork, hard-tack, canned meats and a great number of boxes. In fact all the supplies sent out by the different cities, towns and villages of Ontario, who had sent their quota quota to the front. Toronto sent three car loads to their two regiments, and all other regiments fared equally as well. One well-known lady (now deceased) of this city sent a suit of underwear for every local man. These supplies included everything that was good, and was of the best that could be procured to make the boys comfortable. We learned to our sorrow that all this had to go on the barges, and we were elected to put it on.

We also were deprived of the men who knew the river and who were engaged to pilot us. As some difficulty arose as to remuneration, it proved a difficult job for us.

We were divided off, about eighteen men to a barge, under the command of Col. Deacon, of Lindsay, who had about two hundred under him. We were quite reconciled and willing to show that we could man a barge or boat just as well as did the men of whom Col. Wolsley on the Red River expedition in 1870 had said were the the best material that were produced for all-around conditions

The orders were issued that all barges were to keep together, and all were to go down the river with a current seven miles an hour. We were supposed to wait for each other. The first barge only went a short distance when it ran aground. Inside of two hours very large was stuck for a short or long term. Tom Billings, our pilot, said he knew all about channels of rivers, only he wanted a chance to demonstrate. So Tom made good only to keep away from where any other barge was stuck. Finally he ran us into a bay where we had to get out into the water and pull the barge with twenty tons of merchandise back half a mile to get to the channel. Unnecessary to say Tom lost his position and his fame as a navigator for the remainder of the trip. Someone else would take charge until he ran foul and so on down the line.

I can safely say that as far as we were concerned, we saw none of the other barges after the first day and did not know whether they were ahead or behi d. We were all lost to each other. It was well that the Indians were at thei reserves, as they could have easily picked us off from the banks of the river.

When night would overtake us we usually tied up to the bank but on one occasion we ran aground on a sand bar and could not get off. So we had to stay for the night on the boat.

That night no man slept. The cause of it was that we heard breaking of limbs and falling of trees splashing of water and in fact thought we heard whispering. Some had to be restrained from firing at what their imagination led them to believe was the enemy stealing toward them. Every man felt that his scalp was getting loose as the hair was in a standing position many times dur ng the long weary hours of night. The work on shore still went on until day break, when all was silence and scarcely any hiding, for an enemy was in sight. We became suspicious that perhaps it was all a myth. Some of the men determined to find what was going on and swam over only to find that beavers had been busy making dams during the night.

When they arrived back and reported what they had discovered all felt like staying another night so as to get even with them.

A bad feature in loading these barges was that no provision was made should we get separated, so only by chance did we have a variety of eatables. We had tons of pork, a few bags of flour, hay and oats, several tons of supplies belonging to the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto. Lots of hard tack, but no tea or sugar which would have been counted a luxury. This hardtack proposition we were sick of, so some one had an idea and secured some baking powder, which we could get no one to explain, why they sent it out, and mixed it into some flour and beat it up, then fried some pork and dropped the batter into the pan. When we first tried it the pan was not large enough, but we soon got on to it.

As soon as Lieut. Brennan tasted these pancakes we could not cook them fast enough for him. It was lucky for the Government that all the men had not the appetite that he had. We finally cut him out and started in to look out for our own end of the game. But owing to having no vegetables and bad water, scurvy was beginning to make itself known. It was due to eating so much salt pork without a change.

Our greatest difficulty was to keep in the channel, on account of so many sand bars or shifting islands. We had very often to get out into the cold water and pull and shove and often unload part of our cargo on to the nearest dry spot before we could get it off.

The longer we were fast the deeper it would go. So we had to keep moving or we would sink in the quick-sand. The men had to get out so often, and only having one pair of pants, it proved better judgment to go in without them and keep them dry, for when they came out as the water was cold and very murky, it was anything but an easy task for, as soon as the barge got loose the current being strong, it was hard to hold until we loaded up again. This produced a lot of grumbling and dissatisfaction, often wishing we had never taken the shilling. It is a well-known fact that soldiers generally are "grumblers and does it," as the old saying is. I was one of the first that rebelled against taking those cold baths, and refused to go in any more. I did not have long to wait until I had company. Lieutenant Brennan was alert to the situation and at once summoned us up into a corner of the boat and at once read the riot act on the militia act, stating how we by our action were liable to be tried by court martial, and no doubt would be shot for a criminal offence.

However, it had the desired effect, and out we had to get amid the jeers and laughter of the rest. The river got better as we went lower down besides, we were getting experts at choosing the channel and were beginning to make quite a distance each day. When night would come we would pull in to shore, keep very quiet, make a fire and cook pancakes and pork, go to sleep on the barge, and would be as fresh in the morning as ever.

There were no fish in this river on account of the water being so murky.

We very often came across wild geese on those sand islands where they make their nests and hatch their eggs. We were in hopes of getting the eggs to cook, but we were too late to be able to make use of them.

I was surprised to see the geese, how slow they were to raise themselves off the ground. They would fly fully a quarter of a mile before they would be fifty feet off the ground in height.

We got stormbound once, and had to lay to for a day, when three of us took advantage of the opportunity to spy out the land. We took our rifles along with us to be ready for any emergency. We were about a mile from camp when we noticed several ducks down on a pond. We were very anxious to get a shot so we crawled along a buffalo path. (These buffalo paths were fully 18 inches deep and were nearly all leading towards the water.) Soon we were within a short distance of them.

Each one picked his duck and counted one, two, three, and fired. There was a flutter, a short fly around. We all believed we had wounded our game, for they made no effort to fly even when we rushed down close to them. We loaded up again and fired. This time the ducks disappeared for a few minutes, and would be up again. We soon got tired of shooting at them, and we were bound to get those ducks, no matter how. They were to be taken dead or alive.

So we could see nothing else for it but undress and take the water for them. We were sure they would either have to drown or take the land for it. In the latter case we would have an easy prey and would only have to drive them into camp. The battle began fast and furious, for when we would get them in close quarters they would dive, and we actually could see them hanging on to the grass by their beaks at the bottom.

Those ponds were numerous and were very shallow, not any more than from one to four feet deep.

After keeping this up for about an hour Silas Parks came to our rescue by telling us to withdraw, as we were only wasting our time, ammunition and energy, as those ducks were known as hell-divers, that a bullet would glance off them and it was impossible to shoot them.

We had to acknowledge defeat and admit that whoever called them that name had some experience similar to ours. We arrived at the camp very tired after our experience.

Next day we were on board our barge again, tugging at the oars to guide it from running aground or ashore. When we espied another duck just ahead of us and eager to get even I picked up my rifle, slipped a cartridge nto it, took a rest on the side of the boat and fired.

That was the last shot made to my knowledge, in the Northwest uprising. The duck was mine. It gave a little flutter and began to float.

Lieutenant Brennan started in to reprimand me, when his attention was drawn to the fact that I had shot the duck. He felt pleased to have such a marksman on board and rather complimented me instead.

An accident very nearly happened over this incident. Corporal Hendron being anxious to display his swimming abilities, undressed, sprang into the water and swam to get the duck, but as we had passed it a considerable distance, he had quite a struggle. The swift current was against him and he had to make for land, because of his exhausted condition. All hands could see that he was in difficulty and would need aid at once. Several were stripped and ready to go to his assistance, when Lieut. Brennan forbade any man to do so, as he would under take the dangerous task if it were necessary. We hurriedly pulled our barge ashore and ran up the river to the rescue. By this time Hendron had managed to get ashore, more dead than alive. He had taken cramps and was carried on board where he received a thorough rubbing down and in a day or two was all right again.

Now, as we were several days together on water with all kinds of experiences, we became more familiar with each other, acting much in the same manner as would a family. Everybody was sober quite a while by this time, as no liquors were allowed to be sold outside the Province of Manitoba in those days. It afforded an opportunity for each one to study each other in a true light and how wonderfully well it was done.

The man whom you would regard as despotic, selfish, etc., at first, proved to be the opposite, and vice versa, in many cases. Soldier life is a great field to study human nature.

We arrived at Clark's Crossing, where is situate the first house to be met with on our trip down this river. Here we purchased milk, bread and butter, paying 25 cents a quart for milk, and the same for a small loaf of bread. We also secured some fine cattle, which were killed, making the first fresh meat that we had issued to us during the trip.

We learned that our barges had passed down the river a couple of days ahead of us. So we lost no time but were soon on our way once more, rejoicing. The rest of the journey was pretty fair sailing as the river narrowed, consequently deeper water. We were about two days making Saskatoon from this point. We had no idea of such a place whatever being on the river, but noticed an object which seemed to be a man moving stealthily among scrubby bushes on shore. This caused every man to crane his neck to ascertain if there were any of the enemy lurking around. When Lieut. Brennan whispered to Ptes. Wm. Reynolds, Browne and myself to each slip a cartridge in our rifles and drop down in a position to be ready should there be any signs of fight. But there was no reason to be alarmed for, before he had gone a mile or so, we saw that we were approaching a village of tents which of course we thought must be Batoche, the place which we looked upon as being the terminus of our voyage.

But when we pulled in we were received and given a warm reception by all soldiers. We were also surprised to learn that Batoche was forty miles further down the river, and that the fight had been fought two days before and that the wounded of the enemy—who were taken prisoners—along with our wounded were in these tents to the number of about ten in all. One wounded man to each tent. We also learned that we were the last of the twelve barges that left together, to get down the river, but it was very satisfactory to learn that we were the only crew that carried their load to its destination. Distance covered, 350 miles; time elapsed, 11 days. The others discarded tons of their cargo, some even running down with half their load.

We went no further down the river for the 49th Rifles and 57th got orders to cross the river with our barges, and all the transport that had previously arrived was over there waiting our arrival which we had to carry up a steep bank and load on to fully one hundred and fifty teams who carried it across a point of land which lay between the two rivers. The distance was short not more than fifteen miles, to Telegraph Cooley on the North Saskatchewan river, which is a much larger body of water than the south. We stacked the supplies and waited for ten or twelve days for a steamboat to take us up the river to Battleford, where the Queen's Own Rifles, the 10th Royal Grenadiers and the six companies of the Midland Battalion had been dispatched after the Battle of Batoche. Every day we were expecting the arrival of our boat for to convey us, and the supplies forwarded. But we were disappointed for we had to wait ten days here and amused ourselves as best we could on a million acre farm. We had noticed a brand new keg, labelled Hospital Stores, and many anxious eyes were cast at it with remarks which would appeal to the ordinary individual such as—"Is it wine, brandy or squirrel whiskey," but how to get it was the problem to solve. There was caucas after caucas and groups of three and four would be seen talking in an undertone and it was easy to surmise that the keg was the cause of it all. It must be remembered that always a strong guard was mounted to protect all supplies and patrolled on beat night and day, as all the supplies sent out by the friends of the men at home were under our care, and to be delivered in proper order. The guard carried ball ammunition. They knew what their duty was and would not fail to do it. So one very dark night a couple of men of the 49th ran the risk successfully. They went down a steep bank to the river then one crawled up very cautiously while the guard was up at the other end of his beat. He felt for his prize, seized it and let it roll down, the bank into the river while he laid quiet. His chum made good down below, floating with it for some distance to safety. The guard heard the noise and raised an alarm, and called—"guards turn out," but as there was no sound of anything about, everything quieted down. Next morning they came into our tent and told us of their experience and success. So we arranged to go with them. They led us down to where they had hid it, but no keg was to be found and, maybe, there was not a big row. A few of us never let up until we located it and, when found, never left it out of our sight until we had it fully a mile from the camp, each one carrying it turn about.

The names of those who distinguished themselves on this memorable occasion, and were known afterwards as the forlorn hope, were Edward Daly, Michael Seery, Wm. Brown and the writer. The keg and ourselves being considered at safe distance, the charge was made, drove in the centre bung, and as we had a canteen or tin along, began to pour out the nectar. Sampling it, it was pronounced good enough for us.

We at once hid it, and took up a position on an elevation where we could watch the advance of an enemy, as we expected that they would be on our trail with out delay, as the men at the camp would be quick to suspect what was up when we were absent.

However, we pledged each other that we would only wet our lips a couple of times, which would mean having it last us a long time; in fact we looked ahead for it to last the remainder of the trip. By the way, I had a flute which I brought along so we could have some music, but the boys insisted on me that it would sound much beteer if it were wet often, and as I was appointed grog boss I had the privilege, so I wet it several times and furnished inspiring music for all. Now, anything else that happened only appears as a dream to me, I dimly remember seeing Daly and Seery engaged in a tug of war with each other's shirts, Brown laughing, applauding and urging on the contest. While I rolled down the hill to the bottom, a distance of fifty feet, where I remained in an unconscious state until the enemy had located us and awakened me. When I realized what was up I could see Tom Billings running for all he was worth down a ravine.

I appeared to be the only one left of the party so I took up the chase, which led in the direction of the camp, and arrived there at nightfall.

The rumor was rampant that we were to be courtmartialed next morning. But we heard nothing further of it.

A Day or Two Later.

We decided to take another chance, so Thomas Graham, Edward Daly, Wm. Reynolds, Wm. Brown and myself agreed to go over to a farmer's house, about three miles distant, taking some canned meat and hard tack to trade, if he had any of those qualities.

As we approached we noticed that the farmer and hired man (who were working near his house), were watching us closely, and when they realized we were in uniform we were received most cordially. Both quit work immediately and brought us to the house.

We were assured everything was ours. He told us he had sent his wife home for fear of the Indians. He lost no time in telling us all about her good qualities, how he got her, that she was a school marm and he loved her very dearly, even going so far in his devotions as to bring from a small room her apparel. The shoes she wore were the cause of remark: "How small her feet must be." Some one of the party made bold enough to remark that it was really too bad that she was not home, as we would have been delighted to have made her acquaintance.

We all made ourselves at home on the invitation extended us. I told the farmer that I could cook. The others volunteered to put in a few days in helping him. He appeared to be pleased, we gave up our canned meat, etc., to him.

I took on the responsibility of the household, and got busy with a churning that was ready, which netted about 10 lbs. of butter, which we didn't do a thing with. The others made no effort to go to work that day, the farmer staying in with his guests.

On invitation we stayed all night, although the farmer would have been just as well pleased if we had not accepted. As he drew our attention to the circumstances he was in, scarce of room, and not much provisions on hand, and no place within two hundred miles to get more. That we would have to put up with what we could get for one night.

That night was spent with Daly at the organ and Browne singing "I am waiting my Darling for Thee." Slept well on couches, beds, and shake downs. Morning came, I got breakfast ready, and became familiar with the provisions which proved to be in more abundance than we were led to believe. The farmer led the way to work, but alas, he was alone. The others failing to live up to contract, and would not leave me of the organ alone; dinner time arrived and they had the nerve to go out and call him and his man to dinner. While at dinner it was apparent to all that the farmer had undergone a change in his manner, scarcely speaking.

(To be Continued To-morrow.)

SAYS THIRD PARTY IS NOT NEEDED

E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway (centre), accompanied by Grant Hall, first vice-president (left), and A. S. MacTier, vice-president of eastern lines (right), and several C.P.R. directors, was the principal speaker at an Exhibition luncheon. Mr. Beatty declared that the intervention of a third party was not necessary to carry out the policy of co-ordination announced by Premier King. Mr. Beatty also expressed the opinion that railway policies evolved and discussed in the cross currents and hectic atmosphere of a general election, would not receive the sober consideration they deserve.

CHINA WANTS LADIES.

Message States Improved Conditions—Asked About Lady Missionaries.

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—In response to a cable sent from the Toronto office of the China Inland Mission, making inquiry as to the advisability of sending out a party of seventeen lady missionaries to China on October 15, a message was received from Shanghai, which read: "Send party, conditions improving."

COUNCIL POSTPONES

have been supplied; but the majority opinion of the Council was opposed to committing the city to the proposed expenditure without the careful deliberation they desired to give it at a later meeting.

Ald. Jones said he had just returned to the city, and had not had time to study Mr. Kenner's letter. Ald. Crowe was not satisfied that the question had been sufficiently pondered by himself and by the Council as a whole for an immediate decision. Every ratepayer should have the opportunity of expressing his opinion on the project Ald. Greene contended. Ald. Phelan suggested a referendum at the municipal elections in January.

On the other hand Ald. Fife argued that the Board of Education had deliberated upon all phases of the undertaking and should be assisted in their plans to provide greater facilities for the education of Peterboro's youth. Ald. Meyers stressed the fact that the Government's grant toward the cost of building would reduce the city's obligation to $270,000. But the weight of the Council's opinion was definitely for a postponement of decision until a special meeting had threshed out its details.

Accommodation Needed.

Dr. Craig first addressed the Council. As chairman of the Board of Education, he said, it was his duty to see that the school properties were kept in good shape. With the opening of the present term the Collegiate Institute was so overcrowded that 206 students had to be transferred to the old South Central School, which had been condemned several years ago as unfit for school purposes. It was now pressed into service as a makeshift accommodation for the Commercial department of the Collegiate.

"We spent $900 last summer for decorations to the interior merely to make it habitable" said Dr. Craig. "There are five furnaces in the building, but their condition was such that if they were taken down for repairs the furnace men couldn't put them together again, because they had been patched up from year to year. The basement can hardly be described, and the place is little less than a fire trap. It is a great responsibility and anxiety upon us to go to work every day realizing that before the close of the day there may be a catastrophe resting upon our shoulders. That is the burden we bear every day as trustees. Besides you can't expect that children will receive the best education under the conditions down there. The children have to sit on chairs and we have to use all kinds of makeshifts. I ordered twelve more desks and four typewriter desks yesterday. If we had the proper building the Government would pay half the cost of these desks. We put in twenty-four new ones and have to pay for all of them ourselves, whereas we should have had twelve of them paid for by the Department.

Gentlemen you may delay with other necessities, the paving of streets or building buildings, but you cannot delay with children's lives. Time flies, and if children do not receive in their due time the education to which they are entitled they are likely to go through life handicapped."

Dr. Craig referred to the scope of vocational work, and said that in Winnipeg where he formerly lived there was an excellent technical school in 1914.

Need Is Understood.

Mayor Turner said the need of the proposed addition to the Collegiate Institute had been definitely placed before the Council. The sum of $385,000 asked for included the share the Government would pay, leaving the actual cost to the city $270,000.

Replying to Mr. Denne, Mrs. Morris said tenders had been called for and the actual figures obtained from contractors. It was felt that if work could be commenced this month money would be spent here and shop work would be going on in the winter months.

Ald. Greene's Argument.

"I am in sympathy with the situation the Board of Education finds itself in," said Ald. Greene. "It is a big undertaking for a comparatively small city. Certainly there is no comparison with Winnipeg. As to the present business situation we are not over the hill yet. Business conditions are worse than they have ever been, and the men in the centre of the city realize that a great deal more so than others. In regard to the old South Central School last year I asked the Principal what he thought of it and he said his father had taught many years in a school no better than that. Of course I know that it is not in proper condition for housing several hundred students."

Quoting statistics obtaining January 1st last Ald. Greene said that the school tax per capita in Peterboro was the third highest among ten cities in the province. This year's maintenance of the Collegiate costing $64,000 was the fifth highest, and the cost per pupil was second highest. The cost for each pupil here was $116, while the highest of the ten cities was $125 and the lowest $68.

In one city the cost for maintenance was $48,854 for 719 pupils, or $16,000 less than Peterboro's, and a little more than half the cost per pupil at the Collegiate.

"There must be a reason for this," Mr. Greene proceeded, "and it seems to me the ratepayers should have a voice in saying whether this great additional cost should be put on or not. In Peterboro only 57% of the householders are home owners while in Stratford the home owners are 76%, in Kitchener 74% and in London 85%. In this regard we are the second lowest on the list. For those reasons it seems to me beyond us to take the responsibility of throwing the obligation on the people without giving them of voicing their opinion by ballot. I believe I would vote for it, but I believe every other ratepayer should have that opportunity."

Only Property Owner Vote.

Mrs. Morris had raised the point that on a money by-law only property owners were entitled to vote, and that other parents who were tenants could not express their wishes if a vote were taken on an extension to the Collegiate which would provide the educational facilities their children needed.

Ald. Fife said he was interested in the hundred per cent. of the population and not merely the property owners.

City Clerk Armstrong ascertained that the percentage of property owners was 38; hence 62% would be excluded from voting on the school by-law.

"The question is whether the 38% would be broad enough to endorse the expenditure for those who have no vote" remarked Mayor Turner.

Mrs. Morris emphasized the fact that the city would receive about $7,000 from the Government toward the cost of the salaries of the teachers of the South Central whereas this item was now costing the city about $14,000. She also pointed out more revenue would be obtained from the children from the county. Mrs. Morris said the Board would be only too happy to refer the by-law to the people as a whole.

Ald. Phelan remarked that the Council could take a referendum on the question. He did not consider it a fair test of public opinion if the question was put only to the property owners. The Council could get the expression of the people's opinion and could govern themselves accordingly.

FIVE PRISONERS ESCAPED FROM MANITOBA JAIL

ATTACKED JAILOR.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—John Stanton, awaiting trial for the murder of John Penny, and four other prisoners, escaped from the Provincial jail here early to-day.

The other men who escaped are: Alex Shupeniuk, held in connection with a murder at Inwood, Man.; G. Labodiuk, charged with shooting and attempted hold-up in St. Boniface; Archie McKenzie, held for robbery, and A. T. Blake, charged with false pretences.

The men escaping apparently had saws concealed about their person, and had each sawed two bars off each cell. This let them out on the common corridor of the east wing of the ground floor of the jail.

As the jailor was making his rounds the men rushed from their cells and overpowered him. They then bound and gagged him and secured his keys with which they were able to open the front entrance doors. They escaped in an automobile, it had been parked in front of the jail with engine running.

Labodiuk is said to have had a revolver.

KING SPEAKING AT EDMONTON

Immigration Into Peace River District is Discussed.

RAILWAY QUESTION.

EDMONTON, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Premier King last night defined the Peace River development as the spear-head of the Government's immigration policy. In immigration, he thought quality quite as important as quantity. The aim of the Government was to encourage settlement on the land, not drifting of people to cities. "I think," he pursued, "that we should have regard to the conditions of the country whether the railroads are already constructed or not and try to encourage settlement where there are railroads. But every government must have an objective—some point which can be pointed to as the spear-head of the rest, and we are turning to the Peace River as the spear-head. We hope as we develop that vast area of Peace River to work out a suitable outlet for its products to the Pacific coast."

He charged Mr. Meighen with laying the way for the amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. "Do you notice," said Mr. King, "Hon. Mr. Meighen speaks of amalgamation. He says he does not favor it, but he goes on to say that if more money is put into the national road, amalgamation might come. That means he is getting ready to talk amalgamation later on, for he knows that more money will have to go in. That's his ingenious way of putting—'perhaps it will come.' He is laying the way for future amalgamation of the two systems."

When speaking of the Australian Treaty, Mr. King declared that if it were found to be injuring Canada's dairying industry, the Government would not hesitate to amend the treaty or to abolish it.

The mean person, who always saves for a rainy day, seems to expect a flood.

CAN. WOOLLENS DROP LEAGUE; THISTLE WIN

They Notified Association By Letter Last Evening of Their Action.

INTERNATIONAL GAME.

Junior League Standing Will Be Settled By a Replay.

If attendance is any criterion of soccer enthusiasm in the city, it was evident at the Junior Association meeting held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce when the place was filled to the limit and the following discussions brought news from many angles. The result ended as follows.

League Standing Replay.

On the motion of Mr. Chard, seconded by Mr. S. Calladine "That a replay game be played so as to decide the League standing", and an amendment, moved by Mr. Lowe, seconded by Mr. Campbell "That the rule be strictly adhered too." The vote went on even basis and Charle Lloyd, President of the Junior Association gave his deciding vote in favoring the motion for a replay and stated "I have much pleasure in so doing."

Protest Held Over.

After two weeks dilatory methods of the protest lodged by the Canadian Packing team against Sullivan who played for the Masseys while still a signed man for the Packers brought out many discussions pro and con. The question now is placed thus "That the certificate of the said player be produced" but will be done at the next meeting when an amicable settlement will be made. The player stated that he never signed a form while it is vice versus by others.

Dummer Has Withdrawn.

Official notification was received from Dummer stating that they have withdrawn from the Peterboro Junior League which altered the league standing.

Woollens Has Withdrawn.

The following letter received from the Canadian Woollens speaks for itself. After many views expressed, the players had no alternative but to hand in their notification as usual because they had only six players. According to senior football, no player can take part in any senior game for the rest of the season but can play in any game outside their jurisdiction.

Peterboro, Oct. 5, 1925.

Mr. J. Cridland,
Secretary P. & D.F.A.,
Peterboro, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

We, the Committee of the Canadian Woollens Football Club have decided to tender the resignation of the above club from this date.

Yours truly,
G. D. MELTON,
Secretary.

The action of the Canadian Woollens has now automatically given the league to the Thistle F.C. which will require to be verified by the executive.

International Game Saturday.

It was arranged that an International Game be played on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval between England and Scotland for the benefit of the Injured Players Fund.

On the motion of the executive, they allocated the choosing of the two teams to Hugh Richmond for the Scotch eleven and George Blowers for the English eleven.

English Team—Curtis, goal; F. Wade and S. Maker, full backs; H. Mann, R. Dawson and Blowers, half-backs; Ward, Clark, James, T. Williams and Browell, forwards. Reserves, A. Maker and Halliday.

Scotch Team—Brown, goal; Grant and Anderson, full-backs; Carmichael, Scott and Buchan, half-backs; J. Mitchell, Hutton, A. Mitchell, Richmond and Burgess, forwards. Reserves, Lindsay and W. Hutton.

Mr. Frank McKinley will be the referee and J. Wylie and T. Stewart, linesmen.

Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

All players are requested to bring their own pants, stocking and boots. English team will wear blue and white stripe sweaters (Quaker Oats). Scotch team will wear all blue sweaters (Thistle).

Everett Scott, shortstop of the Washington Senators, this year ties the major league record by playing in as many as six World Series.

Club Swamped By Demands For World's Series Tickets

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—The Pittsburgh club disclosed today that the unprecedented demand for world's series reserved seat tickets had so far exceeded the supply that $500,000 had been returned on orders which it was impossible to fill for the first, second and sixth games scheduled here. More than 200,000 ticket applications altogether were received, five times the seating capacity of Forbes Field.

WORLD'S SERIES PITCHING FEATS

Coombs Was Never Defeated in Classic— Reulbach's One Hit Game.

OTHER RECORDS.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—(Associated Press).—Three pitchers this year have an opportunity to equal the World's Series record of Jack Coombs, the mound marvel who came out of Colby College to aid materially in lifting Connie Mack's might Athletics to the highest plane in baseball over a decade ago. Two of them may surpass it.

Coombs participated in three world's series, two as a Mack moundsman and one as a Brooklyn hurler in the series of 1916 against the Boston Red Sox. He won five games and lost none to establish his record. Babe Adams of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Stanley Coveleskie of the Washington Senators each has won three games in a series without defeat and Tom Zachary of the Senators two.

Adams gained his honors when the Pirates conquered the Detroit Tigers in 1909. He is now 44 years old. Covelskie won three while pitching for Cleveland against Brooklyn in 1920 and Zachary captured two for Washington from the Giants last season.

But matching of the record established by Christy (Big Six) Mathewson, pitching for the New York Giants in 1905 against the Philadelphia Americans, is another matter indeed, for the great Matty, now president of the Boston Braves, scored three shutouts that year.

Oustanding facts on world's series pitching follow:

Ed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs allowed the "hitless wonders" the White Sox of 1906, only one hit.

There have been five two-hit games, pitched by Ed Walsh of the White Sox, Mordecai Brown of the Cubs, Eddie Plank of the Athletics Bill James of the Braves and Waite Hoyt of the Yankees.

Chief Bender holds the mark for most victories—six. And the famous Athletics moundsman of the past struck out 59 men in five series. But the famous Indian also tasted several defeats.

Walter Johnson of the Senators in 1924 equalled Ed Walsh's 1906 record for strikeouts in one game, with twelve on the opening day of the Giants-Senators series, a 12-inning battle.

Jack Coombs issued fourteen passes in the 1910 series, nine of them in one game.

Art Nehf of the Giants has allowed 31 bases on balls in the four series in which he has appeared.

The late Wild Bill Donovan hit three batsmen in the series of 1907 between the Tigers and Cubs.

Four pitchers have suffered five defeats in the baseball classics, Plank, Mathewson, Rube Marquard and Joe Bush.

Charles Phillippe of the old Pirates pitched the largest number of innings in a series—44 against the Boston Americans, led by Jimmy Collins, in 1903. Johnson pitched 24 for Washington last year.

Mathewson holds the record for all-time world's series mound work—103 2-3 innings in four series.

Babe Ruth, home run slugger of the Yankees, has a world's series record aside from his efforts as a batsman. He left-handed through 29 scoreless innings for the Red Sox in 1916 and 1916.

RIVAL MANAGERS SELECT TEAMS FOR WEDNESDAY

Weather Conditions Will Decide Choice Between Meadows and Aldridge.

HARRIS CONFIDENT

But Recognizes Senators Are Up Against Very Stiff Proposition.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—Back in the baseball sun after a lapse of sixteen years, Pittsburgh fandom stirred itself today to a feverish pitch of excitement and their favorites, the brilliant National League championship crew of Pirates, prepared to meet the invasion of Washington's title-holding forces in the first battle of the annual world's series on Wednesday.

The threatening confidence of this Pirates' den, however, seemed to hold no terrors for Bucky Harris and his band of Senators who arrived tonight ,and went to their quarters in a secluded apartment to rest in preparation for a final tuning up tomorrow on Forbes Field, scene of the first two conflicts of the series and also the sixth and seventh, if hostilities last that long.

Harris lost no time in announcing, as he stepped off the train, that Walter Johnson would pitch the opening game and that he would have his full strength on the field at the start, thus believing definitely the prospect that the Senators might be handicapped by disabilities which have hit Harris himself, Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran shortstop, and Stanley Coveleskie, right-handed pitching veteran who is counted upon to share the twirling burden with Johnson. Coveleskie will take the mound for the second game, Harris intimated.

While Harris and his men are confident they will successfully defend their championship crown, the 28-year-old pilot of the Senators does not underestimate his rivals.

"Any team good enough to win the National League pennant is as good as ours," Harris commented cryptically, when asked his opinion of the Pirates.

Harris surprised his listeners, incidentally, with the assertion that he banks upon Dutch Ruether, seasoned southpaw, to share the mound burden with Johnson and Coveleskie, in spite of general belief that the Pirates are "sure death" against portsiders.

The arrival of the Senators and disclosure of their opening plans of battle followed a brisk workout for the Pirates, who, in spic and span new uniforms, went through a sparkling drill at Forbes Field under the watchful eye of Manager Bill McKechnie.

McKechnie, keen and nervous as he plans for the fulfillment of his greatest ambition, was not as outspoken as Harris, although he indicated that Lee Meadows, 31-year-old bespectacled right-handed, will twirl the opening game.

"Meadows is my logical choice," McKechnie admitted. "He is in good condition and the most experienced of my best bets. But the weather conditions Wednesday will have something to do with my final choice."

The Pirate manager intimated that Meadows will draw the assignment if the prediction of clear and warm weather is fulfilled. If it is overcast, however, Vic Aldridge, another seasoned right-handed, obtained from the Cubs this year, may be the opening selection.

McKechnie settled definitely, however, the only other mooted question about his line-up, by asserting Eddie Moore would be at second base and George Grantham at first, in preference to Stuffy McInnis, veteran, who is entering his sixth series.

"That was our strongest combination during the season," said McKechnie, "and that's how we'll start against the Senators."

While their full strength will take the field, the Senators, it was indicated, may be somewhat handicapped in the way of injuries. Harris himself displayed a badly swollen middle finger on his throwing hand, the result of a spike gash. Coveleskie has suffered from a back strain which may affect his staying qualities, while Peckinpaugh's ankle again has shown signs of weakness that forced him out of the series twice last year.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Boxing Exhibition Postponed the Bouts To Be Staged Next Monday

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—The program of boxing exhibitions scheduled for the Polo Grounds last night in which Paul Berlenbach, world's light heavyweight champion, was matched to fight King Solomon, of Panama, in the 15-round headliner, was postponed until next Monday afternoon, Columbus Day, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The New York Athletic Commission sanctioned the postponement at a special meeting today after it was assured that the field was in no condition for the match.

Elks Visited Golf Green Got Full Privileges Of Course

BANFF, Alta., Oct. 6. Canadian Press. — Seventy-five elk put a quick end to a golf match here on Sunday. They stampeded across the 13th green while a young bull more daring than the rest, charged a party of the players.

H. A. Courley, the local golf champion, and his friends, sought safety in nearby trees. Spruce gum on trouser legs corroborated the story.

DEMPSEY AND WILLS IN TRAINING SOON

Each Given $25,000 For Expenses—Camps Not Picked Yet.

BULLETIN.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2.—Harry Wills, colored challenger for Dempsey's title, was examined here today for accident insurance. He is being examined at the request of insurance company on an application made by Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the Dempsey-Wills match. Dempsey will be examined in Chicago Sunday. Fitzsimmons is seeking $130,000 insurance on each of the fighters.

BY FRED A HAYNER.

Now that Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey have signed for a ring battle to be held next summer somewhere in Michigan or Indiana, the question of where the two big fellows will do their training and when it will start and what will be the nature of it is being discussed by them and their associates and the fight fans generally.

Kid Howard, who operates the Arcade gymnasium in West Madison street, told the writer several weeks ago that Dempsey intended to do part of his work in his place. This, of course, will be only toward the finish of the long grind of conditioning a larger part of which will unquestionably be done by both men in some camp in the woods, far way from the crowds and annoyances of West Madison streets and Broadways.

Dempsey is expected by some to do much of his heavy work on the Pacific coast while Wills may do quite a bit down east along the Atlantic where he trained for Firpo.

Each was given $25,000 for training expenses at the signing of articles and the posting of forfeits over in Niles, Mich. Tuesday. Fitz, inasmuch as the middle west gets the bout, may insist on the training being done in Indiana or Michigan.

Referee Question Later.

The final signing of articles and the punch of the notary that took place in the office of Frederick N. Bonine, an oculist in Niles, Mich., provided for that.

Bonine is a friend of Floyd Fitzsimmons, who is promoting the match.

Here Dempsey and his party, including Mr. and Mrs. Weisburg, Floyd Fitzsimmons, and a crowd of newspaper men, Harry Wills, Paddy Mullins Lon Raymond and others rode post haste from South Bend after agreeing on a solution of the referee question which threatened at one time to wreck the match.

The referee question is to be decided by Dempsey, as his own manager, and Paddy Mullins, manager for Harry Wills. In case they cannot agree six months before the fight, a board consisting of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Weisburg and Judge Farabough of South Bend will select the officials.

Dempsey went on to Cleveland after the signing, to give a boxing exhibition. Harry Wills and Paddy Mullins returned to Chicago.

I asked Wills his hand shook when he signed so formidable a set of articles.

"No." He laughed. "I never think of anything when I sign articles. You know I am a kind of public toy and not supposed to have nerves."

I asked Jack Dempsey how it felt to manage himself for his first big fight.

"I have been my own manager for six months and I am already in for a big fight," said Jack. "Think that is going pretty good. I've got a couple of men to handle details as the fight draws near."

Kearns Cagey Put In.

There was fear of Jack Kearns expressed in a clause in the articles which state that in event of Kearns making trouble the articles could be rewritten. Jack studiously avoided any friendly chat with Wills at the signing, preferring apparently to seem a trifle "upstage."

"There is Harry over there all by his lonesome," said a newspaper man to Jack.

"Oh, he's all right," said Jack, and turned to the business of signing, which he did first.

Dr. Bonine a Michigan varsity track man in '96, was surgeon for the crack 1912 Olympic team. He has a dumbbell design for doorknobs in his office.

It was a happy crowd of promoters and boxers as they left town. Floyd Fitzsimmons was one of the happiest for having put over a match which many thought impossible. The forfeits will go up in the First National bank here.

Each Gets $25,000 for Training.

Paddy Mullins denied Wills was given at $50,000 guaranty for signing.

"Both Harry and Jack Dempsey get $25,000 for training expenses and both fighters get a percentage of the gate receipts," said Mullins last night.

Census takers have a hard time of it in the Kenya Colony in Africa, where the natives strenuously object to the enumeration of the population because they think it is unlucky to count themselves or their wives.

RUGBY PLAYERS IN THE CAPITAL DRILLING DAILY

In Preparation For Battle With Argonauts on Saturday.

STAR RETURNS.

Gilhooley Turned Out to Practice—May Yet Be Back in Game.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press)—Ottawa Senators returned to practice this afternoon, and added strength was the feature of the work out. Harold Starr, one of the best of last season's squad, made his initial appearance and was going in splendid style. He has been on the shelf for some weeks with a sore foot.

Shefford, a Montreal man, aspiring for a middle wing berth, was also in uniform and looked good. If the locals lahd Monahan, they will have a front line that will compare with any, as Starr will likely be used at right outside with Young, who made such a splendid debut Saturday, covering the other flank.

The team was kept out of formations today and went through a bit of interference drill. Casualties were light in the victory over M.A.A.A., and Cote and Connell were the only men to report for medical attention each with a light ailment. The entire squad was on hand with the exception of Captain Joe Tubman, Tommy Herbert and Jess Ketchum. They will all be in uniform for another drill today, which will mark the opening of the grind for the Argonaut tussle in Toronto Saturday next.

Walter Gilhooley, former Ottawa and Argonaut star was also out today, booting the ball around, and he may yet be back in the game.

for No. 3 grade to 4 3-4c per bushel under the October option.

The trade in Ontario and Quebec oats was quiet for local account, but as the offerings were small prices ruled firm with No. 2 white quoted at 50 1-2c, No. 3 white at 49 1-2 to 49c, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47c per bushel, ex-track.

A steadier tone prevailed in the local flour market, but prices were practically the same. There were no new developments in the market for winter wheat flour.

The millfeed market was easier with prices about the same. There was some business done in rolled oats for export account, and the movement for domestic consumption was reported steady. Prices were unchanged.

A steady trade in a wholesale jobbing way continues to be done in eggs for domestic consumption and the market was fairly active with a firm undertone. An easier feeling developed in the butter market, and prices of all grades were reduced a half-cent per pound. There was no change in the cheese market.

The exports of eggs from Montreal last week amounted to 6,025 cases, an increase of 252 cases, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 925 cases with the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 2,585 cases less than the same period for 1924.

A good steady trade in a wholesale jobbing way continues to be done in eggs for domestic consumption, and the market was fairly active with a firm undertone.

There was no change in the market for potatoes. Supplies coming forward continue small on account of the mild weather.

The exports of butter from Montreal last week were 7,882 packages, a decrease of 8,077 packages, compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 22,403 packages with the same week last year. But the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 140,865 packages in excess of the same period for 1924.

The receipts of butter here today were 835 packages, as compared with 1,138 for the same day last week and 3,026 for the corresponding day a year ago. An easier feeling developed and prices of all grades were reduced 1-2c per lb. This was attributed to the continued indifferent demand from foreign buyers and the fact that local dealers were not disposed to operate to any extent at present prices.

The exports of cheese from Montreal last week were 60,405 boxes, a decrease of 26,503 boxes, compared with the previous week, but an increase of 1,641 boxes over the same week last year, while the total shipments for the season to date have been 144,280 boxes, more than a year ago.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal today were 8,910 boxes, as against 14,440 for the same day a year ago. There was no change in the condition of the market, prices being well maintained with some business passing in most directions, but the volume was not large. On spot Western No. 1 whits and colored were quoted at 24 3-4 to 25c per lb., and Eastern grades at 24 1-2 to 24 5-8c per lb.

LARGE CROWD HEARD SPEAKERS EXPOUND PROGRESSIVE AIMS M'NIVEN'S CAMPAIGN OPENED

Orators at Omemee Replied to Points Raised By Sir Henry Drayton.

MUST REFORM SENATE.

Quote Instances of Manufacturing Concerns Whose Stocks Have Risen in Value.

OMEMEE, October 6. — On Saturday evening the first political meeting in the interests of the Progressive candidate, Bruce McNevin, was held in Coronation Hall. There was a splendid attendance and the speakers received a good hearing from the mixed audience present.

Through illness, Mr. Newman, of Lorneville, was unable to be present to act as chairman, but the chair was ably filled by F. G. Sandy.

Mr. Harry Lindsay, gave a vocal solo with banjo accomplishment followed by a few brief remarks.

Mr. Sandy, who did not expect to be on the platform, gave a few reasons why he was on the Progressive platform. He referred to the wars of Napoleon, where after they had ceased the farmers got big prices for everything, but as soon as the war ended a slump followed. An embargo was put on to prevent food stuff coming to Great Britain, and it being a manufacturing centre much food had to come from abroad.

Through time the Corn Laws were repealed and things were bettered.

Sir Thamos Crawford was prevented from bringing cattle to Great Britain when they developed pneumonia, which is not a contagious disease, but a farce to keep them out. In truth it was to get a better market for English cattle. Former governments had appealed to the minister in the old land to take the embargo off, but of no avail, and a long time elapsed before it was removed. During this time the common people suffered, as they could not get cheap food stuff, and we are passing through the same difficulty at the present time. They were the grip of the farmers, while we are now in the grip of the manufacturers.

Under Sir John A. Macdonald in 1878, a protective tariff was put on so that the manufacturers could grow up and get strong and thereby the interests of Canada would be bettered. "Do you suppose the manufacturing concerns will ever feel they are able to throw this off?" Mr. Smith asked. "Protective tariff is a burden." If they are ready they can charge a little more and we will have to pay it, and until the time comes when we can throw this burden off, the most absurd things are being spoken of.

Mr. Thurston.

Mr. Thurston, the ex-M.P., for N. Victoria, was the next speaker. Four years ago he had been a candidate, and whether through his own ability, his workers, or for the sake of the country in general he had been chosen as the people's representative, "an honor which I shall not forget, being the first representative in the constituency," said Mr. Thurston. The work had been a joy, but for personal reasons he had decided to drop out if any one else whom the Progressives placed confidence in, was ready to go into the campaign.

This was the first occasion that Mr. Thurston had addressed a gathering in Omemee since 1921, which is a fault the people should have changed. A true report should be given to the electors after each session, as this cannot be got at election time. A summary of conclusions arrived at, after spending four years at Ottawa, was given by the speaker.

"After having voted Conservative, Liberal and lastly U.F.O., with no politics, I went to Ottawa in that frame of mind," he said.

Canada was then the second heaviest taxed nation in the world, with the national debt climbing up; when the census was completed in 1921 it showed that Canada had 1½ half a million people, not counting the men who had lost their lives overseas. It was no nice position to face. If it viewed to continue to go on the day was coming when Canada would be sold to the highest bidder. The cry of the Conservative party at this time is that Canadians are flocking to the United States. As you see, this has always been so, and whether the population is sinking or not, will not be known until the next census will be taken in 1931.

What is the record of the Canadian people? Canadians will secure employment ahead of any other country, and we are recorded as a successful, effective race of people, and were we to reason out and conduct our public business as carefully as we do our private business, success would be assured, not only individually but collectively. After reading and listening to debates, the Conservatives have the ideal of building the Conservative party, and the Liberals the same. "No man can serve two masters." We, the people, have elected representatives, not to legislate for one party or the other, but for the Dominion of Canada. Canada has lost and suffered. Policies should be put aside. Party should not be held above country, and anyone looking with an unbiased viewpoint is not working for the best interests of the country.

In reply to some of the statements made by Sir Henry Drayton at Bobcaygeon, Mr. Thurston said, no arguments were advanced, but he stated that Canada must have higher protection. He quoted France as a glowing success, with Great Britain as a miserable failure of free trade. There is no unemployment in France, while England has 1,400,000 people idle, in poor circumstances.

"This may be so. I claim for any true citizen to compare France with Great Britain, who has paid every dollar with interest as it falls due. We have reason to be proud of Great Britain and her record."

The Progressive party had been accused as being there as camouflage "Grits" at Ottawa. "We had voted with the government when we did not agree, when the Conservatives did not vote at all. Which is better—to poll your vote or to stay in the lobby, and save the government?"

The Bank Act.

The Bank Act was up for revision. All banks revised their charters and while we had fought hard for government inspection we received no hearing, but after the Home Bank failure, the Government did appoint inspectors. This was due to the Progressive organization the year before. Whether or not this is the best for the country remains to be seen, but if it is conducted thoroughly it is sure to be a success.

He related the Home Bank failure, and after having heard the evidence of Sir Thomas White said it is now the duty of all Canadians to reimburse all Canadians for their loss. A resolution had been introduced into the House of Commons as to why the failure had occurred. Sir Henry Drayton fought it and the Conservative party opposed the investigation as to the cause of failure. They did not oppose the reimbursement but did oppose the resolution to investigate.

The railway system was touched upon.

In the Canadian National Railway the Canadian people should be proud but we must consider the cost to the Dominion of Canada. The C. N. R. should be given a chance and an opportunity to be made a success of. Public ownership is on trial today, and the railways should be kept up in the best possible way so that if the day comes we may make a ready sale, he said.

Mr. Meighen considers Senate Reform as a joke. These senators are chosen and appointed for life. Several are now old and are in no shape or form responsible to the people who pay them, but they can kill any bill that the Commons pass, no matter how worthy it is. They have done some things that the people should consider were no joke. The people should have some control over an irresponsible body, "the Senate," and it is absolutely necessary that we send enough Progressives to Ottawa to jog Mr. King so as he won't dodge the Senate. We do not mean to abolish it yet but we could do with a much less body. Mr. Thurston made reference to the Canteen Bill which the Senate held back and as a result the widows and orphans had to go six months without pay.

Tariff Tax

The Tariff tax is a tax on commodities placed when passing the line from foreign countries into our own country. If we want to be loyal to our country, we must buy foreign-made goods because the tax goes into the Federal treasury but if not it will go to the pocket of Canadian manufacturer. The average duty of leather goods into Canada is 31.27 on every one dollar's worth and after quoting and studying the exact figures the only conclusion arrived at is: "Tariff is taxes." If you want to give the Canadian manufacturer more revenue, vote for higher protection and if not, vote for someone opposed to higher tariff. In conclusion, he made reference to the personality of the candidate, Mr. McNevin, and as he had deemed it an honor four years ago to be opposed by Mr. T. Stinson, it was just as much an honor with the present candidate to oppose him. "My belief is an independent candidate, free to support any measure," said Mr. Thurston in closing.

Mr. Hardy contributed a banjo selection at this juncture.

The Candidate

The candidate was called upon and needed no introduction, being a resident of this vicinity. He had spoken several times before but always in the interests of someone else. In opening he touched upon a few genialities. All loyalty is not contained in one party and the Progressives are just as loyal as any party. He considered it from a business standpoint and pointed out that all are ready to receive the high price. The Government is being criticized for paying Sir Henry Thornton but whereas two Presidents used to be engaged they were now saving money by employing one at a large salary.

He briefly referred to the Senate and is in favor of a measure making that body of men responsible to the people as much good legislation has been thrown out heretofore and the Canadian people have suffered.

Mr. McNevin briefly referred to the Conservatives greed by engaging both large halls in Lindsay for their political meetings. The Kiwanis and the other always engaged by the Liberals and further stated to Lindsay authorities that if there were 100 all the Progressives want is one.

The speaker had an authorized list of many manufacturing industries whose stocks had risen substantially, among them being: the Canadian Smelting Company, Canadian Steel Co., Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Bank of Commerce, Dominion Textile Co., etc. We have heard so much of Tinker Tariff placed on the statute books by the King Government urged on by the Progressive movement. With high tariffs many industries cannot exist. He made reference to Great Britain who allows raw material to be imported free, and by the elimination of the high tariff and by importing and manufacturing of raw cotton she has reduced the high cost of living and now stands upon a firm foundation. There is no comparison between Great Britain and France.

Hurts Farming

The Agricultural industry is being injured by "Protection," and when we injure agriculture every industry in the country is injured. "Do you think that Canada can grow up and prosper with agriculture tied hand and foot?" said Mr. McNiven. "The tide has turned toward prosperity. Do you think it wise to check it now?"

The candidate spoke at some length on the Tariff question but his time was limited owing to the late hour.

He referred to Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen who wishes to satisfy the Western people and the miners and fishermen of the East by fixing the freight rates for both. If we are going to preserve Confederation, a Canadian nation cannot have a policy for East or West but a policy for the whole of Canada and build a nation upon it. Economics mean prosperity for Canada.

In conclusion Mr. McNiven made an appeal not for his personality, but as a candidate who is endeavoring to carry on a campaign honest, upright and square and at the end of a political career, can look every one in the face and say: "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

FASCISTI FIGHT WITH MASONS

Three Men Killed in Riots in Florence on Saturday.

ANOTHER WOUNDED.

FLORENCE, Italy, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press)—Adherents of Fascism and members of the Masonic Order have been at grips in Florence, and Roberto Farinacci, secretary-general of the Fascist party, has come here to restore order as far as possible.

The most sensational of many disorders occurred Saturday night when Cavalier Luperini, a member of the Fascist party directorate, was shot and killed by Giovanni Benciolini. Benciolini was seized by a mob and beaten to death. Other reprisals led to the killing of Advocate Gustavo Consolo, a member of the staff of the newspaper Avanti, while a former Socialist deputy, Gaetano Pilati, was wounded.

A prize of six hundred dollars has been offered by the French Academy of Colonial Science for the best suggestions for the development of the Sahara.

KINGSTON QUITS O.B.A.A. PLAYOFF

Wish For Sudden Death Game Could Not Be Granted.

DEFAULTED GAMES.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press) — President W. J. Snyder of the O.B.A.A. notified the Niagara Falls baseball club last evening that Kingston Ponies had defaulted the final series for the championship owing to the fact that their wish for a sudden death game could not be granted.

The local club felt that it would be unfair to the fans of both cities to decide the series by a sudden death game. Also it is not fair to the clubs as there is too much at stake to be decided in one contest.

Fans in this district were looking forward to the coming series and next Saturday's game at the Bridge Street grounds would have been attended by the largest crowd that has ever been present at a ball game in this district.

The Cataracts are also disappointed at Kingston being unable to go through with the series as arranged.

250 Domestics and Widows Greet Commissioner Lamb and Wife.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Delightful with its spirit of good fellowship, the "Hallelujah" reception tendered commissioner and Mrs. David C. Lamb, of the Salvation Army, Eng., at Immanuel Baptist church was particularly interesting in the attendance of more than 250 women who have come to Canada as domestics and widows.

WAR FLAME ONLY SMOULDERS ON FRANCO-GERMAN BORDERS DECLARES HECTOR C. BYWATER

Warns England That an Alliance With France May Draw Her Into Conflict.

RECIPROCAL HATRED.

Skeptical of Fatherland's Intention of Staying Out of the Sun.

(By Keith Jones, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Germany's insistence upon a footing of equality at the Security Pact Conference has renewed the apprehension of military experts here, who believe that the future peace of Europe rests solely on the Fatherland's permanent abandonment of militarism. In the present demonstration of the Central Powers' new nationalism, Hector C. Bywater, famous military authority sees the revival of the old German militarism. In an exclusive interview with the United Press, Bywater is frankly skeptical of the Fatherland's intention of burying all hopes of one more seeking a place in the sun by force of arms.

"It is only too clear," he said, "that the century-old feud between Teuton and Gaul has survived the war, and that the younger generation on each side of the Rhine is growing up in an atmosphere of reciprocal hatred.

Would Be Drawn In.

"Sooner or later it seems to me, the quarrel will blaze up again. "If Britain enters into a pact with these Powers, she will find herself in a difficult position, and it is doubtful whether the most skillful statesmanship would avail to save her from being drawn into the quarrel.

The only hope for the future lies in the cultivation of good will between France and Germany, and if the most influential men in each country worked to bring this about, they would accomplish far more to ensure the peace than all the arts of diplomacy. But of this there is no sign, and that is why, if I were a British statesman, I would think twice before committing my country to the pact."

The war spirit still exists in Germany, according to Bywater, especially among the class which holds the reins of power. Intensive propoganda is being spread throughout the country, he declared, to revive the peoples' former pride in their "invincible army."

If either France or Germany, Bywater said, were resolved on peace as in Britain, the British, in combination with the other peaceful powers, could keep Europe free from war. But neither France nor Germany, he believes is thus resolved.

BOAT SEIZED BY U.S. OFFICIALS AT CANADIAN DOCK

Naylo Was Cut Loose and Taken Over to Buffalo.

LAW VIOLATED.

It is Believed That Boat Will Be Surrendered to Owners.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6 (Canadina Press)—Robert R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs and Excise, yesterday received from Customs Collector F. T. Pattison at Bridgeburg a report on the seizure last Friday at Erie Beach of the Canadian motor boat Naylo by United States revenue cruisers.

"There is no doubt," says Collector Pattison, in his report to the Department, "that the Naylo was tied up at the dock at Erie Beach, and that she was cut loose from that dock by United States officers and towed to Buffalo." Such seizure of a Canadian vessel in a Canadian port by United States officers is held here to be clearly in violation of International law.

W. M. German, ex-M.P. of Welland, is active in the interests of the boat owners to recover it. It is believed here that the Naylo will eventually be surrendered by the United States officers at Buffalo.

EVEN MONEY ON WORLD'S SERIES

Only a Few Wagers Offered at 6-5 Odds on Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—With the coming of the vanguard of baseball fans for the world series, Pittsburgh became interested in betting to-day, and almost any quantity of money was available for wagers in favor of either team. While odds of 6 to 5 on a Pittsburgh victory were to be had in a few instances, the majority of the bets were made at even money.

CONTRACT PENALTY NOT TO BE APPLIED

Completion of Sewage Plant Pipe Line in Few Days.

The Council declined last night to impose the penalty clause in the contract for the construction of the sewage disposal plant's pipe line. Ald. Phelan said the time limit on this part of the contract has been exceeded, and he wondered whether the Council intended to exact the penalty of $40 a day.

"We've paid $45,000 now on the contract," he said, "and I mention this just to get the opinion of the Council. Few local men were employed on the work, and they hired farmers' teams. Most of the local teams are working on the Provincial Highway."

Mayor Turner: I can't see that they should be penalized. We haven't suffered any. They may be taking a few more days to finish the work than was specified in the contract.

Ald. Phelan said the company had not "done right" by Peterboro labor.

City Engineer Parsons informed the Council that only the back filling over the pipe line remained. The company was going ahead with it and would complete it in a week.

Ald. Greene: They have given us a good job. I don't think we should be too severe.

APOLOGY FROM AUSTRIA DOESN'T SATISFY ITALY

Regrets For Insulting Remarks of Deputy Are Not Enough.

ITALY WANTS MORE.

Italians Would Waive Immunity and Have Member Punished.

ROME, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Italian Government has declared its dissatisfaction with Austria's apology for an attack aimed at Italy by the Socialist Deputy Ellenbogan, recently in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies.

After the incident the Italian Minister at Vienna protested to the Austrian Foreign Minister, who sent his representative to the Italian Legation to express regret for the ill-advised remarks of the deputy.

Premier Mussolini is not satisfied with this, and political circles are behind him. It is pointed out that the standing orders of the Italian Chamber provide that when a member insults the head of a foreign nation or offends a friendly or allied nation, the Chamber has the right to waive parliamentary immunity and grant authorization for the trial of such a member in order that he may be punished and due satisfaction rendered to the nation offended.

GORDON GRATEFUL.

To City Council For Their Congratulations.

Hon. G. N. Gordon's appreciation of the City Council's felicitation upon his appointment as Minister of Immigration and Colonization was expressed to the Council last night in the following letter:

"I desire to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of a resolution passed by the Council of the City of Peterborough upon by appointment as a Cabinet Minister.

"I remember with considerable interest my period of service in the City Council and I thank the Mayor and the members of the Council for their kind interest in my progress.

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

SUNDAY BATHING VOTE PROPOSED

People Also to Express Opinion at Polls on Daylight Saving.

Daylight saving and Sunday bathing will be referred to the people at the January elections, according to the resolution approved by the Council last night, on Ald. Phelan's motion, seconded by Ald. Jones, authorizing City Solicitor Wearing to prepare by-laws embodying the proposals.

Ald. Phelan said both these questions came up every year for the Council's decision and invariably stirred up contention without any accurate knowledge of the public's wishes.

September Fire Report.

Fire loss of $250 during September was reported by Assistant Chief Ward. There were 19 fires, 8 of which were reported by telephone. The apparatus travelled 33 miles in going to the fires, and 156 inspections of property were made.

Fluctuations In Value On New York Exchange

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized today's stock market, which was again featured by the buoyancy of specialties believed to be under pool domination. Business news was largely favorable. It included the announcement of large shipments of gold to this country from England, the raising of the American Smelting's dividend from $6 to $7 annually and reports of large current earnings in several stocks, particularly in the mail order, chain store and packing groups. Calling of loans in connection with the marking up of the renewal rate on call money to 5½ per cent. caused the liquidation of some weakened marginal accounts around midday. Mack Trucks breaking 6 points below last night's close and a number of other prominent industrials and rails falling back one to three points.

Wheat Moves Upward Right After Opening

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press)—With unfavorable weather both in Canada and the spring wheat states of the north west, wheat values scored a fresh upturn today as soon as the market opened. Besides, advices at hand indicated that European stocks were low and that a drought prevailed in parts of India and Australia. Commission houses buying here showed an increase and there was also purchasing on the part of previous sellers.

The opening: 7-8 to 1 7-8c higher, new style, December $1.37 7-8 to $1.38 and May $1.38 7-8 to $1.39 1-4 was followed by further material gains, December touching $1.39 1-2 and May $1.40.

Corn and oats responded to the action of wheat, and likewise reflected the influence of adverse weather. After opening 1-4 to 5-8c higher, December 77 3-8 to 77 1-2c. Corn continued to advance.

Oats started 1-4 to 1-2c gain, December 40c, and later held near to initial figures. Provisions lacked support.

Gold Shares Show Loss While Silver Advances

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press)—With trading continuing on a heavy scale on the Standard Mining Exchange, the market showed a slight tendency to easier levels, particularly some of the golds. Argonaut dropped a point at 22 and Barry Hollinger sold a point lower at 19 1-2 while Premier was marked down three points.

Silver was active and firm, Beaver advancing a point, Castle Trethewey a further four points at 129 and Everett five eighths at 6 3-8.

Firm Tone At Toronto Brazilian Again Leads

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—A firm tone was maintained on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with Brazilian and British Columbia Fishing the active leaders in a moderately active session. British Columbia Fishing advanced to 51, from which it eased a quarter at the close for a net gain of one and a quarter points, and Brazilian, after selling to 74, eased down a half point for a net loss of three-eighths. F. N. Burt sold a point higher at 65 and Canadian Canners Preferred five-eighths, the Common strengthening a quarter. Dominion Stores eased a point at 69, and Smelters, after touching 133, sold unchanged at the close at 132.

TWO KILLED ON RAILWAY TRACK

Truck Crossing Line Was Struck By Fast Train.

SIGNAL OPERATED.

GUELPH, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Two men were fatally injured about 9.30 this morning when a two and a half ton truck with driver and helper was hit by the C.P.R. Chicago flyer at Puslinch crossing, ten miles from here. The truck was approaching the track from the Hamilton direction, and the driver failed to see any train approaching, the view of the track being somewhat obscured by buildings at that point. The wig-wag at the crossing was said to be operating perfectly. The names of the men could not be learned nor where they belong, though enquiries were made at Toronto and elsewhere. One died on the way to Guelph General Hospital, and the other a few minutes after being admitted. The truck was smashed to pieces.

Bootlegs In Synthetic Gin Give That Old Time Flavor

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 10. United News.—Ralph Cournoyer of New Bedford, Mass. may not have found the "lost blend" that "O. Henry" wrote about, but he does claim credit for discovering what he said to be a new way to to give synthetic gin the old time flavor.

Apparently in a talkative mood after his arrest on a rum running charge, Cournoyer told police he always dropped a few bed bugs into his synthetic product. After which even the old timers could not tell it from the real thing. The bed bugs, he explained, gave the juniper taste, and can be strained out and used again and again.

MEIGHEN NOW IN WEST KOOTENAY

Asks Progressives What the Government Did For Fruit Protection.

HAMPER PROGRESS.

REVELSTOKE, B.C., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—"Ask your Protectionist - Progressive candidate what is the attitude of the Government to protection on fruit," Right Hon. Arthur Meighen admonished the electors of West Kootenay at a meeting here yesterday. L. W. Humphrey, Independent Progressive member in the last House, was in favor of a duty on fruit, no doubt, but had other Progressives who, like him, supported the Government in the last four years been anything but dead against protection on fruit; and Premier King, he said, had gone to these Progressives on the prairie and told them that their interests were identical with himself.

The Government's instruction to the Board of Railway Commissioners concerning the equalization of freight rates Mr. Meighen characterized as "eye-wash." The same instruction had been given originally many ages ago, and renewed by the Meighen Government in 1920. He accused the King Government of hampering progress toward the solution of the freight problem of usurping the functions of the Railway Commission, which "in exercise of its functions should be left alone, should not be made part of political propaganda."

IN POLICE COURT.

WAIT FOR EVIDENCE

In the police court session yesterday afternoon, a young man was remanded one week in order that evidence might be gathered in a seduction case.

REMOVED CEMENT CAPS

The boys concerned in the removal of the cement caps from fence posts on the property of St. James Church, were allowed to go on suspended sentence, paying the costs of the court. Rev. J. D. Richardson, pastor of St. James Church, was present, and asked for considerate treatment of the youths concerned. The church requested no sum for damage.

LOG ON STREET RAILWAY

Two youths concerned in the placing of a tie on the rails of the Peterboro Radial Railway were acquainted with the serious nature of their offence by Magistrate O. A. Langley, who depicted vividly the damage and possible loss of life which might have followed such a thoughtless act.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, in his defence, pleaded on the grounds that the boys were at the irresponsible age, where the gang instinct holds sway and when suggestion is usually followed with action. The motorman on the car should have seen the obstruction, Mr. Gordon stated, as the lights on the street cars were of sufficient power.

He admitted the grave nature of the offence, and suggested that, as a charge had not been laid in the church case at the time, they were in fact, first offenders and as such should be treated with leniency.

He suggested that some method of reporting to police officials should be adopted rather than the drastic punishment of incarceration.

The boys were remanded for a week, and proper bonds will be fixed.

TOLD HIS STORY

The man who did not want to tell where he got his liquor yesterday and was left in the cells to deliberate as to the advisability of disclosing the information appeared before the magistrate this morning, with his mind made up, and resolved to tell all.

According to his story, an old friend from Toronto, en route for Ottawa, dropped off to see Peterboro and incidentally met up with his acquaintance in this city.

They fraternized and celebrated the reunion by drinking three bottles of ale, which the Toronto man had brought with him. The prisoner did not pay for it.

J. A. O'Brien, counsel for the defence, sumitted that the incident was the natural result of the convivial feelings which would be aroused by such a meeting, and when questioned by the magistrate was of the opinion that the story told by the prisoner was true in every respect.

Crown Attorney O. W. Hatton, K.C., was inclined to believe that the information divulged by the defendant was a fabrication, but as there was no proof to the contrary, his testimony was accepted.

Twenty-five dollars and costs was the price paid by the guest of the out-of-town friend.

The exteriors were made in Cuba, the racing scenes in Oriental Park, Havana, where for three months daily racing is held. With the rich and colorfully dressed crowds of merrymakers, the madly running horses, the whole forms a glittering setting.

Some of the big scenes include the society bazaar, the fire in the stables, and the race.

It has plenty of original humor, thrills and a sympathetic love story and we feel sure you'll like it.

VIVID SCREEN DRAMA BASED ON REAL EVENTS

"Lilies Of The Streets" Again Proves Old Adage.

The old adage that "Truth is Stranger than fiction" is once more proved in "Lilies of the Streets", the picture showing at the Royal Theatre Thursday.

While the story was written expressly for the screen by Elizabeth J. Monroe, it was based on actual experiences of Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, New York's first and famous policewoman. Practically every happening in the picture was culled from some case that has come under investigation of the New York police, and the whole has been deft ly welded into a motion picture drama that for strength of story, virility and drama, vividness of characterization and all around interest has seldom been equalled.

There are very few of us in this everyday world that would believe the things told in this story actually happen. It's hard to believe that there are men and women so vile as to conceive plots so cruel, so far reaching in their evil effects, as are shown in this picture. Yet here they are, before our eyes, their authenticity guaranteed by actual statistics.

Another thing this story proves is that for women or girls to be foolish, is sometimes more dangerous than to be criminal. Two women in this picture, a girl and her mother—both of them good at heart—find themselves perilously near the rocks of mental and moral disaster because they are foolish.

A splendid cast, headed by Johnnie Walker and Virginia Lee Corbin, has been engaged to portray the various roles in the picture. Joseph Levering directed.

THOMAS MEIGHAN IN "THE MAN WHO FOUND HIMSELF"

The always popular Thomas Meighan is at the Capitol this week in the stellar role of "The Man Who Found Himself," screened from the story by Booth Tarkington. It is one of those tales that seem to be a favorite with the "good luck" star, the type of story that shows the gentleman with the pleasant expression and the wavy hair bearing the brunt of another man's sins and struggling along the path back to happiness. It is wholesome and entertaining, with the right people coming out on top after a series of misadventures that seem to be calculated to dishearten them entirely.

Anyone who saw Thomas Meigan in the "Miracle Man" and looks at him now in the roles which he has either picked out for himself or else had assigned to him, cannot help wondering just why he doesn't try a change once in a while and act the villain's part. In "The Man Who Found Himself" there is one small episode, the one where Tom Macaulay, the hero, is bent on revenge and induces his erstwhile prison partners to help him rob a safe, where the good-natured star flames into a sort of vivid action that recalls traces of old-time fire in his pictures. Possibly his present popularity in the type of picture that shows his struggling against adverse odds keeps him chained to this sort of production, but at least one of his admirers would like to see him essay a more virile role once in a while.

The likeable star is the central figure in a tale that centers about the embezzling of bank funds by his brother, for which he takes the blame. Then his sweetheart marries the man who has helped to frame him into Sing Sing prison, and Tom, escaping from the penitentiary, arrives too late to prevent the wedding by telling the truth about himself. Later, when he gets out of prison, he puts over a scheme of revenge that flattens out just a bit in the doing, and then regains his sweetheart, after the death of her husband, and his own place in the community. Virginia Valli is the leading lady of this picture, cast as Nora Brooks.

The comedy is a Harry Langdon feature, "Boobs in the Wood," with the unsmiling comedian as the central figure in a hilarious mixture of farcical situations. The small reels are as good as usual and there is a new and novel additional to the introductory films in the cartoon presentations of fairy tales. "Jack the Giant Killer" is the choice this week.—Jeanette.

No Drift Across Pole Maud Comes From North

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Captain Roald Amundsen's exploration schooner Maud, which sailed from Seattle, June 3, 1923, with high hopes of drifting in the Arctic ice across the North Pole, returned last night, her long career of adventure over—perhaps for ever.
Although the Maud drifted and shouldered her way about 9,500 miles west of Nome, the currents carried her but little in a northerly direction. It was for this reason that Amundsen ordered the expedition abandoned.

ILLNESS CAUSED RUMORS ABOUT POISON ATTEMPT

Dr. Stresemann's Indisposition Was Laid to Political Enemies.

WINE POISONED?

German Statesman Was Able to Attend To-day's Conference Session.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Rumors filled Locarno to-day to the effect that Dr. Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, was not ill from a fever caused by the change in climate, as announced, but rather as the result of the administration of poison by political enemies.

Among rumors current was one to the effect that the police had seized a bottle of chianti, part of the contents of which Dr. Stresemann drank Sunday.

Foreign Minister Briand of France was the first to hasten to the German statesman's bedside, and he returned for another visit. Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium and the delegates of other countries followed.

Dr. Stresemann insisted upon attending to-day's session of the Security Conference, which was postponed from morning to afternoon because of his indisposition.

Unconfirmed reports from German sources are to the effect that the German-Polish and German-Czecho-Slovakian arbitration treaties will be postponed for another conference to prevent endangering the successful negotiation of the Rhine pact. Mr. Chamberlain, however, is on record as holding that the task of the Locarno conference cannot be concluded without Germany's eastern neighbors.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Queen Alexandra Branch Awards Prize For Gathering Papers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, October 5th, the president, Mrs. H. G. Walker, in the chair. Routine business was attended to.

The picture donated for the largest collection of papers during the season was awarded to Junior Third, Miss Wall's room, as this room headed all the collections. Another plan of award was adopted for the fall season.

It was decided to present certificates to the entrance pupils on Friday morning, October 16th.

Mrs. Robert Reid accepted the offices of refreshment convenor, Mrs. R. C. Flitton retiring.

The musical programme, which followed the business session was featured by two selections by a budding organization, composed of young pupils of Queen Alexandra School, a quartette entitled "The Big Four," with the following members: Max Parnell, pianist; Eric Westlake, cornet; "Bob" Curtis and Ray Reardon, violins. Vocal solos were given by Mr. Kenneth Jarvis, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Kenneth Jarvis, and instrumental selections by Miss Isabel McKee.

The sum of $36 was donated toward school sports.

The banner was won by Junior Third, Miss Eagleson's room. Several new members were added to the roll.

GIRLS: There's no thrill on earth to equal self-respect. See "Lillies of the Streets" Royal, Thursday.

SOVIET RUSSIA IS WATCHING SECOND SESSION OF CONFERENCE FRANCE AND EASTERN ALLIES

Quelling French Fear of Aggression is Difficult Problem.

ITALIAN INFLUENCE.

German Says the Most Difficult Work Still to Be Done.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press). — Germany and the Allies yesterday took up for discussion in the second session of the Security Conference the thorny points of the Rhine Pact of Guarantees. Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, was present, looking pallid after his stroke of illness.

The more difficult questions include the problem of satisfying France and her allies, Poland and Czechoslovakia, on the matter of French military support to those countries in the event of aggression against them. The Covenant of the League of Nations already covers the possibility of troops, for punitive purposes, crossing German territory, as it does the soil of any other signatory, in the operation imposing penalties against an aggressor state, as authorized by the Council.

Hence, France and her Eastern friends will enjoy protection generally in Europe once Germany subscribes to the Pact, and the Germans were not slow to point this out yesterday. But France wants to make a special guarantee which will supplement and reaffirm the general protection now afforded by the covenant.

The conversations turned on whether such a guarantee could best be attached to the Rhine pact or made a feature of the arbitration treaties between Germany and Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Both Dr. Stresemann and M. Briand emerged from the conference expressing contentment over the day's work, though the French Foreign Minister was less radiant than the German, who exclaimed in bubbling tones: "Things are going on famously."

Dr. Stresemann added: "We are now in the position of school boys who are entering the most difficult part of their curriculum."

M. Briand said: "Now, don't expect a sensational concrete fact nightly, as the discussion has only begun."

No settlement has been reached on the problem of how, or whether, France can guarantee that Poland and Czechoslovakia shall not become victims of aggressive wars.

The Italians are beginning to exercise influence on the conference. They seem to be disinterested in a guarantee for the Brenner frontier unless Austria should later be annexed to Germany, though they may be disposed to guarantee the Rhine with England. Just what machinery shall determine the aggressor remains to be fixed.

From English sources comes the opinion that Germany cannot rightfully too loudly object to France's desire to stand by her Eastern allies because she was forced to make security alliances with them after the failure of the Wilson tripartite pact for the protection of France.

That Soviet Russia is keeping an eye on the Locarno discussion is shown by the arrival at Stresa, on Lago Maggiore, not far from Locarno, of M. Kergenzieff, counselor of the Soviet Embassy at Rome. It is claimed that from this frontier city it is maintaining close communication with agents at Locarno.

It is understood that the Security Pact, as far as at present arranged, provides for operation only after Germany enters the League of Nations.

Jewel Salesman Lost Gems Found Them at Police Station

NEWARK, N.J., October 7.—Canadian Press. — When Sidney Eichler, a jewelry salesman, discovered his automobile containing $1000 worth of gems, had been stolen, he immediately rushed to the police headquarters to report the theft. The robbers beat him to it, however, and when the salesman arrived at the station house his car and jewelry were already there. The officers had arrested the bandit as they started away with the car.

UNITY OF CANADA IS STRESSED BY PREMIER SPEAKING IN WEST AS HE HOLDS OUT FELLOWSHIP

Larger Voice From Prairies Would Make For United Canada.

MANY SPEECHES.

Government Needs Representation of Great Basic Industry of Country.

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., (Canadian Press).—Urgently pleading for liberal support from the West, Premier King last night again pressed his cause in Saskatchewan. "I hold out my hand in fellowship for the East," he exclaimed, "and I ask you to clasp it. I plead with you for a larger voice from the West in the government of our Dominion because I want to make Canada."

On his way to Edmonton, Mr. King spoke from the rear of his car at three different points. He declared that the only chance Conservatives had of getting elected in the West was by a three-cornered fight. And he declared that if the situation was reversed, if the Progressives had candidates running throughout the Dominion," he would be the first to want to get out rather than that the Conservatives should get into power.

The Government needed Western support, said he, because the West represented more distinctly than any part of the Dominion, the great basic industry of agriculture.

J. B. McLachlan Runs as Labour Candidate in Three-Cornered Contest at South Cape Breton—Straight Fights in All Other Nova Scotia Ridings.

SEVENTEEN SITTING MEMBERS.

Prominent Men in Provincial Politics Seek Election to Dominion Parliament—Two Former New Brunswick Premiers Enter Federal Lists.

HALIFAX, N. S., October 7.—Canadian Press. — With the nomination day little more than a fortnight away, 51 candidates had been nominated to contest the 29 seats at issue in the Dominion general election October 29, in the Maritime provinces. Of these 51 candidates 22 carried the Conservative banner, 23 the Liberal, one the Laborite, and one the Independent Liberal-Progressive.

In Prince Edward Island, four Liberals and four Conservatives were contesting the four seats.

In Nova Scotia, the line up was 13 Liberals, 13 Conservatives and one Laborite.

In New Brunswick six Liberals, 9 Conservatives and one independent Liberal-Progressive had been nominated.

To-day the Conservatives will close their ranks in Nova Scotia by nominating a candidate for Cape Breton South and later the Liberals will repeat by nominating a candidate in Colchester.

All indications pointed to but one three-cornered contest in Nova Scotia—that in Cape Breton South where J. B. McLachlan has entered the lists as a Labor candidate.

In New Brunswick both Liberals and Conservatives have yet to nominate candidates for the two seats, St. John-Albert.

In addition the Liberals have yet to nominate candidates in the constituencies of Charlotte and York-Sunbury, in both of which Conservative candidates are already in the field.

Of the 51 candidates already formally chosen, 17 were members of the last Parliament. — Nova Scotia sends Liberals and one Conservative are seeking re-election; in New Brunswick two Liberals, three Conservatives and one Independent; in Prince Edward Island, one Liberal. With the exception of A. Dewitt Foster, Conservative candidate in Kings-Hants, N.S., who was elected over the late Sir Frederick Borden in the 1911 election, all the remaining candidates are new to the Federal arena. Of this residue, however several have achieved prominence in the provincial field. Hon. J. A. Macdonald, Minister of Public Works, in the present Conservative administration, is opposing J. J. Johnstone, of Prince Edward Island in a former Liberal Government, in the Constituency of Kings, P.E.I. In New Brunswick two former premiers, J. K. Flemming and Hon. W. E. Foster, recently taken into the cabinet as Secretary of State, will contest the election of ex-Premier Flemming in Carleton-Victoria, and the present secretary of state it is believed, in St. John-Albert.

NAVAL LIMITATION.

Japanese Delegate Says His Country Would Take Part in Deliberations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—While the Inter-Parliamentary Union resolved yesterday to sponsor movements for world disarmament and protection of troublesome national borderlands, spokesmen from the British and Japanese groups declared their Governments were ready to join with others in a concerted action for further reduction of armaments.

The resolution on armaments reduction, reported by Dr. P. Munch, of Denmark, expressed regret that expenditures for armaments by "most countries" showed a "serious increase"; stated the necessity of giving nations a feeling of security, and called for a thorough examination by a special sub-committee of methods for reducing armaments, including the drafting of a technical scheme to bring this about. It was adopted without dissent.

The demilitarized zone resolution, presented by Brigadier-General E. L. Spears, of Great Britain, placed the union's committee on reduction of armaments at the disposal of national groups participating in the conference "with a view to the conclusion of treaties providing for the establishment of demilitarized zones along their frontiers." In annexes attached, nations were urged not to neglect "this great possibility for peace."

The two resolutions were voted after Fusanosuke Mayeda, member of the Japanese Diet, had made known his Government's willingness to join hands with the world powers in an effort to rid itself of the armaments problem. He was followed quickly by R. S. Hudson, British parliamentarian, who asserted that Great Britain would join in any conference of world powers called for a further limitation of naval armaments or a reduction of land armaments. Mr. Hudson believed, in this connection, that such a conference should be initiated by the United States, asserting its achievement in assembling the Washington Arms Conference four years ago had inspired great confidence among the peoples of the world and particularly those of the British Empire.

What a Pleasant Way To Execute a Traitor

TANGIER, Morocco, Oct. 7.—Advices received here from the fighting zone report that Si Mohammed Zeziane, Foreign Minister in Abd-el-Krim's Government, was bound to the muzzle of a cannon recently and blown to pieces. He was accused of betraying the Riffian cause. Several of the leaders of the Beccys and Ben Urriguel tribes have also been executed.

CONSIGNMENT OF BRITISH GOLD UNDER WAY TO NEW YORK TO-DAY FIRST SUBSTANTIAL EXPORT Four Million Dollars Will Be Deposited in Three American Banks.

SHIPPED ON HOMERIC.

Bankers Say Shipment Will Have Little Effect on Credit Position.

NEW YORK, October 7. — Canadian Press. — The first substantial export movement of gold from London to New York since Great Britain's return to the gold standard last spring, is now under way. Engagements for approximately $4,000,000 of British gold was announced to-day by three New York banks, which found it profitable to buy the metal through their London correspondents in foreign exchange transactions. Most of the gold it is expected will be shipped on the Homeric, which sails from Southampton to-day.

Additional shipments will depend on the fluctuations of sterling exchange, which recently has been quoted below the gold export point. Following to-day's announcement that between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000 had been withdrawn from the Bank of England for export to the United States and the continent, sterling quickly strengthened and local bankers expressed doubts that a profitable margin could be long maintained.

Bankers expressed the opinion that New York would be able to absorb considerable gold without any effect on its credit position, but held the effect in Great Britain, where the market is more sensitive to such movements, would be a slight stiffening of the money rates.

Netherlands Representative Suggests Submission to a Future Conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press) — Resolutions calling for the removal of international tariff and economic barriers, alteration of commercial treaties and for studies of the world's parliamentary systems were placed before the Interparliamentary Union conferences final session here today.

Baron Wittert Van Hooglans of the Netherlands opened the debate in support of the customs resolution which requested the Conference committee on economic and financial questions to draw up concrete proposals for the creation of a customs understanding and for their submission to a future conference of European States.

HALT SPECULATION.

French Government May Use Loan to Keep Up Value.

PARIS, October 7. — Canadian Press. — A warning that the French government may use the second Morgan loan of $100,000,000 to halt the speculation in the franc, was issued to-day from the Minister of Finance. The fall of the franc, the War Ministry's statement says is due entirely to speculation.

Rich Discovery Of Gold and Other Minerals Made On Farm Eighteen Miles North Of Gananoque

GANANOQUE, Ont., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press) — What is thought to be a rich find of silver and other minerals that go with it has been discovered on the farm of Dave Townsend at Longpoint, about eighteen miles north of here. John Townsend, brother of the owner, who made the find is confident that the commercial value of the ore will warrant development of the mine. He intends sending the samples to Queen's University, Kingston Mining School to have them assayed.

Russia Rejoices As Liquor Shops Re-Open Doors Thirst Of Eleven Long Years Must Be Quenched

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—For three days the Russian people have been celebrating with unabated rejoicing and conviviality the country's return to alcohol. After eleven years of partial prohibition, Russia let down the restrictions on strong liquors on Sunday last. In Moscow alone nearly 100,000 quarts of the new 40 per cent vodka was sold, and a correspondingly heavy sale was reported throughout Russia.

From early in the morning lines of eager Russians four deep, extending for a whole city block, waited patiently outside the wine shops for their share of the popular beverage. Some of them carried gallon tins, basins, water pails and even tea kettles.

WARNING!

The statement made in posters distributed on the billboards of the city by the Conservative propagandists, saying Canada is the most highly taxed country, is absolutely untrue.

The facts as given by the Chancellor of the British Exchequer, an unimpeachable source, are:

	Per capita taxation 1923-1924. £ s. d.
United Kingdom	15 19 6
New Zealand	12 7 3
Australia	8 1 9
Canada	7 19 6
United States	6 14 10
South Africa	3 9 11

During the administration of the present government in Canada the amount of tax imposed by Mr. Meighen, when Finance Minister, has been reduced by 25 per cent.

PRISONERS SAWED BARS OF CELLS AND GAINED FREEDOM FROM JAIL

Two Murder Suspects and Three Other Men Broke Loose.

GUARDS OVERCOME.

Inmate of Prison Hospital Intimidated Trustee With Revolver and Escaped.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—City and provincial police today combed the province in a futile attempt to locate the five prisoners who made a sensational escape from the provincial jail early yesterday.

Last night squads of police were investigating reports that the fleeing men had been seen in various parts of the province while the detective force of the city police was busy running down reports that the men still remained hidden in the city.

Investigations now under way are said to have shown that a widespread conspiracy was responsible for the jail break in which John Stanton, a murder suspect, Alex Shupeniuk, also charged with murder, and three other prisoners, Arthur T. Blake, George Labodiuk, and Arthur Mackenzie, charged with lesser offenses, gained their freedom. Four of the men sawed the bars of their cells, overpowered the jail guards and are believed to have been carried away in automobiles waiting outside the prison.

The investigation is said to have revealed that prisoners confined above the 3rd block in which the five were held had been busily sawing throughout the past three or four nights. This is thought to have covered the noise made by the men sawing through the bars of their cells.

It has also been established that several of the prisoners knew of the intended escape and refused to join it. One of the escaped prisoners, Labodiuk, is known to have been armed. He was confined in the prison hospital. When strolling in the cell corridor indicated a break was being made he produced a revolver, intimidated a hospital trustee, and joined the escaping prisoners.

WEATHER

Another shower with much cooler conditions came last night. This morning showed a temperature of almost touching the freezing point. At the present time the prairie provinces and the northern states are covered with from two to six inches of snow. Those who were outdoors last evening about 5.30, saw, when they looked westward, one of the most beautiful and gorgeous sunsets they ever witnessed, which brought forth exclamations from all. It would have made a fitting subject for Turner, the landscape artist.—W.P.

WOMEN HEAR POLICIES TOLD BY CITY'S LIBERAL LEADERS

Miss L. Jobbitt Presided at Liberal Women's Committee Rooms.

ON PROHIBITION.

Hon. G. N. Gordon Tells Mr. Meighen's Failure in Office.

There was a well-attended meeting of women in the Liberal Women's Committee Rooms last evening, with Miss L. Jobbitt presiding and interesting talks on election topics given by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Minister of Immigration, R. R. Hall, K.C. and John R. Marshall, sales manager of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company. During the evening vocal solos were rendered in excellent voice by Mrs. J. Dwyer, accompanied by Mrs. N. Buchanan.

In his opening address, Mr. Gordon referred to the request made by Mr. Burnham through the press that Mr. Gordon state his views on prohibition. "Well, there is no doubt about Mr. Burnham's views on the subject anyway. They are well known," said Mr. Gordon, smiling, and going on to say that he was strongly opposed personally to any restoration of the liquor traffic and also to the issuance of licences to brewers and distilleries, no matter where located.

Mr. Gordon alluded to the importance of the women's vote in present-day elections, and pointed to the fact that Mr. Gus Porter, when defeated in Belleville, actually polled more votes than when he was elected, his defeat suffered even with such a large total of votes, being due to the fact that the women got out and registered their dislike of the

Mr. Gordon spoke of the assertions made by Mr. Meighen with regard to the keeping out of American products from Canada and his utter failure to live up to such assertions when he held the reins of power. "When Mr. Meighen was in power, there were more goods coming into the country than there are now. At the present time, we have more manufactured goods exported from this country than we are bringing in, and that is always a sign of prosperity. The Canadian dollar, which was worth only 82 cents at one time, is now higher than the American dollar is value."

Trade Balance.

"In 1921, according to the Canada Year Book, our trade balance was thirty million dollars on the wrong side. In 1924, after three years of Liberal administration, we had changed that to an export of goods valued at one hundred and sixty millions more than was imported, and up to September 1st of this year, we had two hundred and eighty-five millions more sent out of the country, making a very favorable trade balance."

Mr. Gordon referred to the fact that every dollar of the two and one-half billions of war debt was spent from borrowed money, that war profiteers of the time were not taxed to pay their share of the burden, while their fellows were risking their lives for $1.10 a day, and that Mr. Meighen also had a law passed making one billion six hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of war bonds free of income tax, so that all the war profiteer had to do was to invest his money in these bonds and be freed from any income tax payment on them.

"The Conservatives might say: What has Mr. Gordon done? But what did Mr. Peck do in the four years he was in the Provincial House? Not a solitary soul in Peterboro ever heard of him doing anything."

Mr. Gordon spoke of the benefits deriving to the Canadian General Electric Company and their letters of gratitude for the same, when he helped to put through a million-dollar bounty to encourage the smelter industry with particular relation to copper, preventing a tax on the C.G.E. raw material; and to the advantages accruing to the Quaker Oats Company by having their products rendered free of sales tax. He referred also to the fact that the Quaker Oats Company is working full-time shifts, to the picking up of the wheels of industry throughout the Province, and to the general improvement in conditions in the city since the Liberals came into power.

Mr. Marshall's Address.

Mr. Marshall gave figures from various financial reports, quoting Wood, Gundy and Company and the Canadian Bank of Commerce, showing exceptionally encouraging returns from natural resources. He also said that the Liberals believed in a reasonable tariff protection on goods, but quoted banking interests and farmers and manufacturers in the Eastern States at present as laboring under the disadvantages imposed on United States financial interests by the Fordney tariff in that country.

He spoke of the high record in character enjoyed by the Liberal nominees throughout the country and alluded to the previous misdemeanors committed by several of the Conservative nominees. DeWitt Foster in Nova Scotia was a man who was driven from Parliament by Sir Robert Borden in connection with his share in selling broken down horses to the Government in war time; Garland in Carlton had been connected with a sale of narcotic drugs scandal; and J. K. Fleming, also of the Maritimes, had been discredited on account of a stumpage robbery, he said. Mr. Marshall also spoke of the unenviable record of Messrs. Patenaude and Lavergne in Quebec.

R. R. Hall, K.C.

Mr. Hall explained in concise fashion several of the more important questions of the campaign. He gave figures proving that the revenue from the natural resources of Canada in one recent year alone was sufficient to pay off the entire national debt, and asked, in the face of that, why Mr. Meighen should be allowed to go about damning his country in the eyes of the world? "Soon the lamentations of Arthur Meighen will surpass the Scriptural lamentations of Jeremiah. We have Scriptural authority too for the statement that a man without hope is as good as dead. If Mr. Meighen, the man without hope is in that condition, why Minister?"

Mr. Hall also quoted figures showing the large increase in public expenditures during the Conservative regime, "a period of extravagance and national waste in everything," and to the contrast in the administration of the Liberals, with a lowered debt and taxes reduced in the ratio of four to three. He referred to the favorable trade balance now enjoyed by Canada, to the increase in industrial works and to the increase in the operating surplus enjoyed by the National railways, and spoke of the necessity of a sane immigration policy, which would make examination of immigrants strict enough to make them the proper material for a country like Canada.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. The Editor of The Examiner:
City.

Dear Sir,—Regarding the letter of Mr. R. M. Miller, in last night's Examiner, it takes considerable stretch of imagination to believe the Whigs, at the end of their term of office, were Liberal. Charles Townshend, who introduced a measure to impose taxation upon the thirteen colonies, defied his leader, Pitt, who had ceased to be the leader of the Liberal movement, but had become almost wholly reactionary in his politics.

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

HASTINGS GIRLS WON TWO CUPS

Both Trophies at Campbellford School Field Day Were Taken.

THREE THIS YEAR.

HASTINGS, Oct. 7.—Miss Ada Bonds of Hastings, a student of Campbellford High School, has had the honor of winning the Field Day Cup given yearly. This cup becomes the winner's permanent property when won three years in succession. Miss Marion Clapper, also of Hastings, a student at the same school, won the Junior Cup. This makes three cups won by Hasting athletes this year, the other being the Clarke Cup, won by the baseball team.

ANNIVERSARY OF BURNBRAE CHURCH

Good Attendance at Both Services—Rev. Mr. Grier Preached.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 7. — Fine weather and good roads favored the anniversary services at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday. The attendance was good, the building being well filled at both services. The preacher of the day was Rev. Mr. Grier of St. Andrew's Campbellford. The text of his morning's discourse was I. Kings, 21:3, "The Lord forbid it me, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee." At the evening service he spoke from Luke 7:40, "Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee, and he said unto Him, 'Say on'."

The most pleasing feature of the services was the splendid singing of the male quartette from St. Andrew's Church, Belleville. These four gentlemen, Messrs. Kerr, Mouck, Fleming and Murray, provided a class of music seldom heard in this community, and it was enjoyed by everyone present.

A free-will offering reached the unprecedented total of $872.00, setting a mark which will be difficult to maintain in future years.

Visitors were present from Rylstone, Wellman's Corners, Campbellford and Stirling. The morning service at the Stirling Church was withdrawn to permit that congregation to attend Burnbrae services. Next Sunday the Burnbrae morning service will be withdrawn on the occasion of Stirling anniversary.

Attended Fair.

Large numbers of Burnbrae people attended Campbellford Fair last Friday and some few were exhibitors as well. The Bume herd of Ayrshires is always an attraction at Campbellford, and did not fail this year. Mr. Alf. Bennett was in the ring again with his heavy draught team, getting third money, while Mrs. W. S. Milne and Harold were winners in the home cooking and poultry departments.

ORDER ATTENDED HAVELOCK CHURCH

Eastern Star Lodge Heard Good Sermon By Rev. J. Lennox.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 7.—Every society has some great historic person, place or name which it has for its foundation, said the Rev. John Lennox in addressing the members of the Eastern Star Order in attendance at the evening service at Knox Presbyterian Church, and although not sufficiently acquainted with the history of the society to go into details, he knew that Adah, Esther, Martha, Ruth and the Elect Lady were the great Bible examples on which the order was based, and while any one would form a basis for a long sermon, he chose the first name, "Adah," as the subject of his sermon.

The name "Adah" goes as far back as the 4th chapter of Genesis, where Adah, the wife of Lamech, is spoken of as the mother of Jabal, and he was the father of such as dwell in tents. There was nothing of importance known in connection with the life of Adah save that she had a son who was the founder of a certain kind of civilisation, namely dwellers in tents and possessors of cattle.

The main part of the address was taken from 11th chapter of Judges, dealing with Jephthah's vow to God that if he was victorious in the battle against the Ammonites whoever came forth first out of his house to meet him on his return should be offered to God as a sacrifice. On his return he is met by his only child, his daughter, and although her name is not mentioned, she is called Adah by the Eastern Star.

Stress was laid on the importance of keeping vows and how in ancient times a vow was considered very seriously; so much so that Jephthah was willing to sacrifice his daughter rather than break his vow to God.

Attention was drawn to the attitude of the daughter which was one of willingness to comply with her father's vow.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the morning service. Preceding the administration of the Sacrament, four new members were received into the church.

AUSTRALIA TO HAVE BIG ARMY

Plans of Premier Bruce Call For Full Army Corps.

LARGER NAVY.

LONDON, Oct. 6. — Canadian Press. — Great interest is being shown here in military circles at Premier Bruce's cabled announcement of the proposals of his government if returned to power, for Australian national defence.

The navy programe, including the cruiser and submarine construction, has been outlined before, but the military programme, providing the formation of regiment amounting to an army corps, with auxiliary forces, and two divisions of cavalry, is new. The five infantry divisions proposed, with their complement of artillery and air service and cavalry, would give Australia a standing army equal to the entire Australian force under arms at the armistice.

DEPUTATION GOES WITH MISSION SHIP

Ladies of the Women's Auxiliary to Inspect Territory.

VANCOUVER, B.C. Oct. 6 (Canadian Press)—The mission ship Columbia, which has been in port lately in connection with the triennial meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, left with a deputation of the ladies of that body to visit the district covered by the Columbia Coast Mission. The ship proceeded to Rock Bay for an inspection of St. Michael's Hospital, established there by the mission twenty years ago. Alert Bay was the next stop, where the new hospital was visited. This hospital is of special interest, as the Women's Auxiliary gave several thousand dollars towards its furnishing. The well-equipped operating room was the gift of the W. A. of the Ottawa diocese. The little chapel from the plans of Mr. S. M. Eveleigh, who also designed the hospital building, specially interested the deputation. The money for this building was given by Mrs. Patterson Hall of Montreal. The industrial schools of the Indian Mission were also visited. Departing from Alert Bay, the party will visit the emergency hospital at O'Brian Bay, MacKensie Sound. This little hospital has been placed on boats and a ward for women has been added which will greatly increase its usefulness.

ANNIVERSARY OF FALLIS CHURCH

Rev. A. H. McConnachie of Springville Was the Preacher.

IMPRESSIVE SERMON

"The most criticized institution in the world today is the society of the church of Jesus Christ. For at least one thousand years it has been spoken of as a decaying institution and adverse prophecy has been decreeing that it would soon be wiped out altogether."

In a most impressive sermon, based on the text, "The church of God, which He purchased with His own blood", (Acts 20:28), Rev. A. H. McConnachie, of Springville, held the close attention of the Sunday afternoon congregation at the Fallis' Line United Church, the occasion being the annual anniversary service at this appointment.

Continuing the speaker said, "By its very nature the church provokes unfriendly criticism. Its high profession leads to keen attacks upon its creed and doctrine, humorists, cynics, athiests, men in every condition of life apparently considering it fair game to all.

"I sometime think that medical men and surgeons put the ministry of the church to shame, for they are ever diligent in their earnest and persistent labor for the cure of the body, while we are so mightily occupied with the machinery of the church we have little time for ts one great business, the cure of souls.

"It would seem that the world has overflowed into the church—there is no distinct line of demarcation between believers and unbelievers. Yet the church should shine with its great, and glorious, and God-given light, overflowing into the world to evangelize it. The world has no right to direct the affairs of the church of God.

Criticism from within, the speaker believed, with a view to the church's betterment, is friendly and constructive, and since some radical change is necessary, involving a new start and a fresh beginning, the question arises, how is this to be brought about? "I am inclined to think that it would be a good thing to make a bonfire of all the roll-books, and rules of membership, of the church because it is so often true that there are members who are a discredit to Jesus Christ, and the church disgraces the uniform it wears.

"Better twenty men devoted to God, than one hundred merely conventional and respectable church members. Judgment should begin at the house of God, for if we do not judge ourselves God will fall upon us, and if the righteous scarcely shall stand, where shall the sinner and ungodly appear?"

"Reconstructing from the foundation, it will be necessary to have new rules, and new tests applied, making these very simple as in the Apostolic Church. 'Have you a simple saving faith in Jesus Christ that gives assurance of forgiveness of sin?' 'Have you learned to love Him as your personal Saviour—not merely place Him at the end of a long list of friends as one whom you respect and feel a casual regard for?' Loyalty and service were the other two points mentioned as absolutely essential. "Make the call to Christ's service heroic, and people will respond as they did to the nation's call in war-time. Placing trifling and paltry ends before full-blooded young men will call forth but indifference and neglect.

"It has been a great mistake that we have transferred the term 'church' from the congregation to the building itself, the latter, consecrated by prayer, is the house of God, but not His church, which is treasure. Think of Paul's description, 'the church of God, which He purchased with His own blood'; a company of spiritually-minded men and women, believing and saved, and become God's peculiar what kind of society should that be?

"I have known men of doubtful moral character who were the main support of some churches, keeping the doors open with their money, paying for literary preaching such as suited their preference. Such an institution is a dishonor to Christ. Making the church a respectable, social club, or a mere family clique, is putting it on a poor, dead level, for neither education, nor society, will ever save a soul—that is the work of the Holy Spirit through the ministry, and service of the church.

"It is a vain thing to expect an absolutely pure communion so long as the church remains in the world. There will always be betrayers and black sheep in the fold, but our business is to aim at purity as those who have been purchased by the precious blood of Christ.

"In the great Harvest Home, when the angel reapers appear at their task, the tares will be destroyed, and the wheat garnered in the granary of God. Pray for a revival—it must come if the church is to be saved. We earnestly desire that this United Church, in the first year of its history, shall have the seal of God's Spirit as being of His most gracious creation."

The Millbrook United Church withdrew its evening service on Sunday, on account of the anniversary at Fallis' Line, the organist, Miss Estelle Hetherington, playing both afternoon and evening at the latter charge, and members from the choir providing music, the selections including the anthem, "My Soul is filled with singing," and a solo, 'Beautiful Garden of Prayer", by F. N. Alcorn, at the first service, and, at night, the anthem, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple", and a duet, "The King of Love my Shpherd Is", by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

"Individual Experience of Salvation", was the subject of Rev. Mr. McConnachie's evening sermon.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT BETHANY CHURCH

Good Congregations at All Services — Church Decorated.

BETHANY, Oct. 7.—The congregation of St. Paul's Anglican church held its annual harvest home and thanksgiving service on Sunday, October 4. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers, etc. The service was in charge of the rector, Rev. Fierheller and a good congregation was in attendance.

Rev. Mr. Swain of Prince Albert was in charge of the service in the United church Sunday evening as the pastor, Rev. Poulter was taking anniversary services on the Prince Albert circuit.

HARVEST FESTIVALS

Annual Services Held on Morning and Evening of Last Sunday.

WESTWOOD, Oct. 7.—The annual harvest-home was observed in the Anglican Church on Sunday evening. Rev. O'Connor Fenton very ably conducted the service, and Mrs. Everette Birdsall rendered a solo in her usual pleasing manner. The church was appropriately decorated for the occasion with flowers, fruits and vegetables.

Rev. T. M. Wesley, B.A., of Norwood, conducted the service in the United Church on Sunday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. Archibald, who was conducting anniversary services at South Dummer.

The farmers in the surrounding country are very busy filling silos. The corn crop is unusually good this year.

Service will be held on Sunday evening in the United Church. Rev. J. Archibald will preach and will present a number of lantern slides on Gospel hymns.

MR. BRAUND'S REQUEST.

The request made by Mr. R. C. Braund that the roadway be widened at the juncture of Park street and Rubidge street in order to better take care of the volume of traffic at this point and to conform with the improvements made across the street by the Canadian General Electric Company, is one that should commend itself to the Aldermen.

The present bottle-neck condition is neither sightly nor convenient, and there is no doubt of the fact that the improvement suggested by Mr. Braund would be appreciated by motorists and drivers generally, while the appearance of the street would be materially bettered.

The C.G.E. Company has carried out extensive alterations at the west side of the street, giving a very much improved appearance to the neighborhood, and were the proposed widening to be undertaken by the City Council the result would be well worth the expenditure involved in the work.

Those who know the conditions at this point are in favour of the plan, believing that it would be a material improvement.

THE VOTERS' LIST.

While the desirability of making the voters' lists easily accessible to the public so that voters may examine them for themselves is admitted, the method adopted on this occasion of affixing the lists to telegraph poles and at the mercy of the wind and rain has its drawbacks.

The voters in any particular subdivision do not, in the first place, know just where the lists have been posted.

They may run across them or they may not—it's merely a matter of chance.

And if they do locate the lists, they are likely to find that a page has blown away.

For the benefit of electors who have been unable to find out whether or not their names are listed, the Examiner would suggest that they get into touch with the committee rooms of one or other of the two candidates.

Both organizations have been provided with copies of the lists, and the information will be readily forthcoming in answer to all queries.

It is a responsibility that each elector should look after on his own account in order that the chance of having errors or omissions corrected in the final revision by Judge Huycke may not be missed.

PEOPLE WILL DECIDE.

The City Council has acted wisely in deciding to let the people of Peterboro decide by their votes at the municipal election whether or not they want daylight saving and Sunday bathing in this city next summer.

The controversy over these two questions during the past summer indicated the necessity of having a definite test made of public opinion in regard to these matters.

By announcing at this stage that the questions are to be submitted to the electorate the Council has given ample time for a discussion of the issues, and neither one side or the other will be in a position to say that a snap verdict has decided the issue.

The fact that these subjects will be voted on at the municipal election will, the Examiner is sure, result in a much larger vote being polled than is usually registered.

Many people who have not concerned themselves very much with municipal matters have strong views in regard to one or other of these questions, and they are not likely to let slip an opportunity of endorsing there views by their ballots.

Another advantage is that the issues of daylight saving and Sunday bathing will be definitely settled for 1926 at least, and Peterboro will be spared the controversy that featured this year.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS.

It is recalled in connection with Fire Prevention Week that this is the fifty-fourth anniversary of Chicago's great fire, which was caused by a cow kicking over a lantern in a barn.

Mrs. O'Leary's cow may be considered symbolic of the every-day carelessness of today, which costs Canada $100,000,000 every year, in addition to taking its toll of valuable lives.

Most fires are positively preventable.

Ordinary care, ordinary common sense would avert 75 per cent. of them.

That is the idea that Fire Prevention Week is designed to drive home.

The thoughtless citizen perhaps fails to realize why he should be concerned about fire.

"My house and property are insured," he declares.

And his butcher and baker and grocer and everybody from whom he buys also carry insurance on their stores and stocks and goods.

That means that everything he purchases is insured in every step of its route from producer to consumer.

In the price of a suit of clothes, a pound of meat or a loaf of bread is concealed a tax which is his share of what is paid to replace what fire destroys.

Fire prevention is therefore everybody's business.

WHAT LABOUR CREATES.

In the unreason of communism the socialist seems almost conservative, says Barron's. It is interesting to record the socialist secretary of the British General Federation of Trade Unions, in discussing "Economics and Ethics in Relation to Welfare," as conceding that labour does not create everything. He says that labour is not the cause of wealth, but only one of the factors making wealth measurable and consumable. He says the other factors are in the earth, the sea and the air and, "to an extent not generally admitted, in the efforts and applications of individual intelligence." He goes on to say that the syndicalists took an untenable position when they demanded that the mines should be turned over to the miners. He denies that the miner has any more right in them than the people of the country in which the mines exist. This is a large concession, even if it implies nationalization of the mines.

No real case for such socialization is made out. But for the intelligence and knowledge, won by self-denial, which originally discovered the mines, found a market for their product, showed people how to utilize that product for heating, steam, gas and coke and all the derivatives of coal tar; found the capital to support labour before the profits came in and even when the mine did not prove productive to any profitable extent, the miner would be working at something else. In fact, tracing the problem back to its origin, he would be scraping a bare living out of the soil with a bent stick. His labour is not worth any more now than it was then. His claim that he shall confiscate the whole rewards of intelligence, learning and self-denial is preposterous and only a little more preposterous than that the whole community shall dispose of the results at its pleasure. Intelligence is essentially stimulated by reward, whether that reward is in power, in cash or its equivalent, or in a degree of freedom unfettered by responsibility for earning daily bread or by accountability to socialistic officials. It will never develop in a communism which implies nothing more than the equality of common destitution.

THE RAILWAYS' CENTENNIAL.

One hundred years ago, in 1825, George Stephenson piloted the first passenger train over the little Stockton and Darlington Railway in the north of England. Thus the growth of this great transportation agency has been compassed within a century. 1828 the Baltimore and Ohio began the building of the first great American railway system. Between 1830 and 1860 the mileage of the railroads in the United States increased from 23 miles to over 30,000 miles. By 1880 it had leaped to 93,000 miles and by 1890 to 167,000 miles. Today it is over 250,000 miles.

Railway building in Canada came somewhat later, for the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes, supplemented by canals, provided a natural water route which served the scattered settlements up to about 1850. But railways were required to extend settlement inland, and, starting with a short line in Quebec, Canadian building was equally rapid. Canada now has some 50,000 miles.

This expansion was possible only through the investment of large capital. The roads were an economic success, and paid dividends, and their securities have for a long time ranked second to public obligations. Investment Counsel, published by McKinley and Morris, New York, points out that in spite of great economic and financial changes, railroad securities have on the whole stood their ground. Regarding the present situation, it says:

"From 1870 on in this country there was a gradual downward trend of prices which continued until 1896; for twenty-six years prices fell. Yet during this period the amount which the railroads received for hauling a ton of freight a mile fell more rapidly than prices. From 1896 prices rose and continued to rise until the outbreak of the war in 1914. At the outbreak of the war prices were 50 per cent. higher than they were in 1896, but freight rates were no higher. In 1914 freight rates were even lower in many cases than they were in 1896. Rates did not rise until 1918. Today they stand in about the same relation to other prices as they did in 1913.

"How did the railroads manage to do this? Simply by increasing their efficiency. In 1924 the railroads transported 50 per cent. more ton miles than they did twenty-four years ago. The only industry which exceeded the railroads during this period in the increase of output of service per man employed was the electrical industry.

"But this increase in efficiency in relation to man power and capital employed was matched by an equally great improvement in the attitude of the public and the Government toward railroads generally, an improvement which has been particularly marked in the past ten years.

"The United States, we have every reason to believe, is entering upon a new phase of its economic history, a phase which will be based to a great extent upon the new position of dominance it has taken in world trade and finance since 1914. The profits of this new era should increase the earning power of our transportation system. This effect should be increased materially by the improvement we look for in the position of the railroads themselves.

"But while this new era in railroad history will undoubtedly offer exceptional opportunities for profit, it will still take a seeing eye and an informed intelligence to exploit these opportunities. The profits will accrue only to those who know best how to take them. Action will have to be based not only upon exact knowledge and long experience, but upon knowledge and experience linked to a highly skilled intelligence. It will still be necessary to know, before it will be safe to act. In the rapid changes which must take place in the whole railroad situation in the next few years, the only safe guides will be, in most cases, the skill and knowedge of past conditions and present tendencies which only come from long experience and a high degree of specialization."

The absorption of one-half of the Canadian railway mileage into the national system reduces the scope for investment of private capital in this country, while the other half is almost entirely in the Canadian Pacific system. The Canadian Pacific is internationally known as an investment, and is getting attention at the present time. Financial Service, Ltd., Montreal, in an analysis of the security, says:

"It is not often that an investment with the history and standing of Canadian Pacific Railway acquires special speculative merits, but the shares are selling now at a price to yield 7 per cent. We call attention to this stock now because we believe that it will show appreciation between now and the close of the year. While the dividend record of 10 per cent. per annum has been unbroken for many years, the stock has varied widely in price, reaching a high in 1912 of 281 3-4 and a low in 1921 of 101. Notwithstanding this price range of 167 3-4 in less than a decade, C.P.R. has never been subject to violent fluctuations, its course between extreme levels having been gradual.

"C.P.R. is selling well under the low point of 1924, doubtless, because gross and net earnings during the first half of 1924 showed a decline. Gross earnings amounted to $75,155,819, a decrease of $9,501,097, while net earnings were $7,797,646, a decrease of $2,592,437, as compared with the first six months of 1924."—Monetary Times.

A THOUGHT.

"Life is sweet because of the friends
we have made,
And the things which in common
we share,
We want to live on, not because of ourselves,
But because of the people who care.

It's giving and doing for somebody else,
On that life's splendour depends.
And the joy of this world, when you've summed it all up,
Is found in the making of friends."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. This step is taken to protect the candidates from anonymous attacks and to assure Examiner readers of the legitimacy of the expressions of opinion in the communications.

NOTE WELL

Owing to space limitations no letter can be published that contains more than 300 words.

FROM Mr. MATHER

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I hold no briefs for Mr. Gordon, I probably have met him twice at the most, and I very much doubt, were he to see me on the streets of Peterborough, that he would even recognize me.

It is also not within my province to presume to make any comparison regarding the merits or demerits of the gentleman opposing him. To me the question at issue should be, has Mr. Gordon served his country, and his Peterborough constituents in particular, in a manner that deserves commendation?

I respectfully claim there can be only one answer to that question, and that if service and ability count for anything at all, then Mr. Gordon should feel certain that he will be returned again to Parliament with a greatly augmented majority.

MATHER,
476 Monaghan Rd.

October 5, 1925.

FROM MR. WARD.

In both reading about and attending the political meetings on both sides of the question I wonder what conclusion is the honest voter going to arrive at. When, for example, a Conservative lawyer and a Liberal make the difference of one billion dollars in their facts and figures so called about our national debt. Now a billion dollars is far beyond the grasp of ordinary mortals so vast is such a sum of money. Yet one lawyer remarked that his learned friend may have regarded the difference in those two sums as being a small matter. Now what opinion are we supposed to form about the learned lawyer of this day and generation?

We are at least reminded of the following story that we heard told by an American lecturer in Massey Hall, Toronto, several years ago.

Two would be smart lawyers out horse back riding overtook an old preacher who was a circuit rider in his day. Riding up one on each side, they decided to have a joke at this peculiar old fellow's expense. The old lawyer commenced with the remark, "Hello, Old Kruger, do you ever make any mistakes when you are preaching?" Kruger admitted that he did sometimes make occasional mistakes. "Do you correct them?" he was asked. Kruger replied that is depended on whether it was a small or great mistake. "For example," said he, "I was preaching from the text 'No liars shall inherit the Kingdom of God,' but I made a small mistake and said 'No lawyers' instead, and in that case I did not think it necessary to make any correction." "Say, are you a knave or a fool?" broke in the younger lawyer, and Kruger being in the center, replied "Young man, I reckon I am betwixt and between."

R.R. 8, Peterboro.

FROM MR. LILLICRAP

To The Editor, Examiner,
Peterboro.

Sir.—I have just read from your paper, of the 3rd inst., the Hon. G. N. Gordon's letter, replying to mine of the 27th ult.

Mr. Gordon says, in part: "That the preservation of the water levels is an important factor in the industrial life of Lakefield and the City of Peterboro, and that he has not lost faith in the plan of developing the Trent Canal."

This is all in a measure correct, but it has little of any bearing on the question of a new lock at Young's Point. Anyone having but a superficial knowledge of hydraulics will understand this, and know that water powers were developed at Lakefield, Young's Point, Nassau and Peterboro before the Canal was built; in other words, the construction of a new lock at Young's Point is not for the purpose of keeping the water at a proper level or for power development—the several dams were built for this purpose.

It is true that there is a leakage at all canal locks, but is it not a fact that even in the dry season water is continually passing over all the dams and that it only requires one lock of water to pass a vessel from Balsam Lake to the Bay of Quinte? The writer's contention is simply that the lock at Young's Point can be repaired for a few thousand dollars as compared with a proposed expenditure of $175,000 to $200,000.

The canal is not yet completed and the Government have refused further construction under the plea of economy, or until the finances of the country will permit.

It has been suggested to the writer by a Government supporter, that if the money has been provided for this work that even if it is not necessary, let them spend it here; in other words, if the money is wasted let it be here, and not in Quebec or at some other point—but is this a proper standard of political economy? The writer thinks not.

Yours etc.,
J. F. LILLICRAP.

Lakefield, October 5, 1925.

FROM MR. SCOTT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: As one coming from the north of England, where there is strong talk at election times, I was prepared to hear heckling and bitter words between the speakers and the candidates in your elections out here, but I was surprised to read Hon. Gordon's speech, when he spoke so highly of himself in comparison to Mr. Peck, but I was still more dumbfounded to read Mr. Peck's speech, praising himself.

Now, I had intended to vote, but not now, because if that is all there is to it I will not bother. At home that talk would be made fun of in the comics and howled down. It explains why this country is so backward.

EXCAVATED MOUND.

Skeletons Discovered Surrounded By Thousands of Decomposed Pearls.

(By C. B. Yorke, United Press Correspondent.)

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, Oct ober 6.—The discovery of a piece of colored cloth, presumably a shroud or robe, has given the scientific world one of the richest proofs of the advanced state of civilization of the ancient Ohio mound builders.

The discovery was made by Prof. H. C. Shetrone, Curator of the Ohio Archeological Museum during the excavation of the largest mound in the Seip group near here.

There are other smaller mounds in the group, all of which were once surrounded by an earthern wall.

Parts of the wall, eight feet in height, are still standing. The wall extended for miles.

The skeletons of four mound builders have been found in the Seip mound, the only one that has been opened. They were surrounded by thousands of pearls; some of them were as large as the end of a man's thumb. The pearls were decomposed.

"The manner of burial indicates these persons were of royal lineage," Professor Shetrone said.

Four large ceremonial pipes, tortoise shell ornaments and implements of meteoric iron were also found.

The piece of cloth has been preserved in its original colors through the ages, having been placed between two copper breast plates. The colors are maroon, tan and black, evidence of the use of colors by prehistoric man.

How many skeletons remain in the heart of the mound, only a fourth of which has been excavated, Prof. Shetrone, with a scientist's reserve, refuses to speculate. The possibilities are rich, he admitted.

The Seip mound is one of nearly six thousand mounds in Ohio. Work of excavation was begun on August 10. Professor Shetrone is now preparing to close the mound for the winter. Because of lack of funds work cannot be continued although the season would permit work for two more months. Work will be resumed in June, Shetrone said.

Shetrone accounts for the presence of so many bodies in one grave by the "Feast of the Dead." This tribe of mound builders hung the bodies of their dead on tree limbs as they died during the year. Once a year there was a burial and with much ceremony the notables of the tribe were laid together in the enduring sepulchre.

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—Wheat took a big upward swing in price yesterday, largely as a result of storms that stopped threshing and that aroused fresh anxiety relative to possible shortage of United States wheat supplies east of the Rockies. Final quotations on wheat were strong, at the topmost figures of the day 3 3-4 to 5 1-8c a bushel net advance; December $1.41 1-2 to $1.41 3-4, and May $1.41 3-8 to $1.41 1-2, new style contracts for both months. Corn finished 1 to 1 1-2 cents up; oats at 3-8 to 3-4 cent gain, and provisions varying from 32 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

In connection with unusual threshing delays, it was pointed out that nearly 31,000,000 bushels of wheat have been exported from the United States since July 1, and that notwithstanding the total is much smaller than at this time last year the proportion is surprising in contrast with the relatively small surplus for 1925. Under such circumstances, reports of continued unfavorable weather both in Canada and in the spring wheat states, northwest, sent the wheat market kiting. New estimates that Canada has raised more than 400,000,000 bushels in the Prairie Provinces this season as against 235,000,000 bushels last year failed entirely to check the upward sweep of values.

It was estimated that 40 to 50 per cent of threshing remains to be done in parts of the spring wheat belt each side of the Canadian boundary, and that with winter setting in, much of the wheat would be lost.

Lack of sunshine to dry out new corn did a good deal to send corn and oats up with wheat.

Provisions tended lower, in line with hog values.

STERLING EXCHANGE

Sterling demand $4,83 1-2.
Sterling cables 4.84.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—The volume of business transacted in the local grain market over the cable showed no improvement today. Foreign buyers did not respond to the higher prices asked by exporters overnight and re-sellers were offering at low figures in the English markets. There was some demand from local exporters for Manitoba wheat to complete old contracts and sales of odd loads of No. 1 Northern were made at 1 3-7 and 14 per bushel over the Winnipeg October option now loading at Buffalo, c.i.f. Montreal, and millers took several loads of No. 3 Northern at .06 1-2 per bushel over c.i.f. here.

The domestic trade in coarse grains was slow and the market quiet, but the undertone was very firm for oats on account of the advance in prices in the Winnipeg market, and sales of odd cars of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white were made at 50 1-2 to 51c; No. 3 white at 48 1-2 to 49c, and No. 4 white at 46 1-2 to 47c per bushel, ex-track.

A firm feeling prevailed in the flour market, but there was no actual change in prices. The trade in winter wheat flour also showed some improvement, but was without a feature.

There was no change in the condition of the wheat to-WUU-GECTo tion of the wheat market for baled hay, nor were there any changes in the prices for millfeed.

The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady.

Weakness developed in the butter market, and prices were further reduced 1-4 to 1-2c per pound. The tone of the cheese market was strong with prices advancing 1-8 to 3-8c per pound. A very firm feeling prevailed in the local egg situation, and prices for all grades were firmly maintained.

Beans were quoted at from $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A very firm feeling continues to prevail in the local egg situation and prices for all grades were firmly maintained. The volume of business was fairly good, there being a steady demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies to meet immediate wants and the market was moderately active.

The trade in potatoes was fairly active, there being an improved demand for supplies for both immediate and future requirements and as the receipts were none too large the tone of the market remained steady.

BUTTER MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—The receipts of butter were 1,638 packages as against 1,798 for the same day last week, and 6,781 for the corrgsponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued lull in the demand from foreign buyers and the fact that the movement on spot was also small, the market displayed further weakness and prices were again reduced another 1-4 to 1-2c per lb.

CHEESE MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—The receipts of cheese were 10,339 boxes, as compared with 9,166 for the same day last week, and 12,712 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was stronger and prices on spot were advanced 1-8 to 3-8c per lb, which was attributed to the increased demand from English importers for supplies at advanced figures.

On the local curb market yesterday there were 500 packages creamery butter and 2,500 boxes of cheese offered.

DOWNEYVILLE PERSONALS

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gosselin (nee Mary Carroll), of Rochester, N.Y., spent the week end the guests of friends in the village.

Mrs. M. Gilliece, of Toronto, is at present the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ed. Hoolihan.

Messrs. Wm. Carroll and Peter Murray, of Rochester, N.Y., motored over and spent Sunday the guests of their parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carroll and family are back home again. They spent the summer in St. Catharines.

Mrs. Ed. Hoolihan and Miss Katie were business visitors to Lindsay, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McAuliffe, of Ennismore spent the week end, the guest of the latter's mother, Mrs. Hickey, here.

WEDDING BELLS.

GOSSELIN—CARROLL.

St. Mary's Church, Rochester, N.Y., was the scene of a pretty wedding, Saturday, Sept. 12, when Miss Mary, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carroll, Downeyville, was united in marriage to Wilfred Gosselin, youngest son of Mrs. Alice Gosselin, also of Downeyville.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzsimmons, while Miss Cora Scott presided at the organ. During the signing of the register, Miss Olive Spall sang Gounod's "Ave Maria."

The bride was gowned in pencil blue georgette, with silver lace trimmings, and wore hat, shoes and stockings to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily-of the-valley, and wore a white gold wrist watch, the gift of the groom.

Miss May Gosselin, sister of the groom attended the bride and wore a gown of pansy georgette over coral taffeta.

Mr. Basil Carroll, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. The groom's gift to the brides-maid was a silver mesh bag, and to the groom's man, gold cuff links.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breadfast was served at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. H. E. Bayer. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Gosselin left on a motor trip to St. Catharines. On their return they will reside in Rochester, N.Y. Both bride and groom resided here in Downeyville till about a year ago, when they went to Rochester to reside.

Mr. Jas. Carroll, Sr. has returned home after a delightful visit with his sons in Rochester, N.Y.

KEENE NEWS AND PERSONAL NOTES

Fair Directors Busy Preparing Grounds To Receive Exhibits.

TO BE OCTOBER 6-7.

KEENE, Oct. 6.—Miss Annie Burley spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burley.

Mrs. Barnes, of Millbrook, spent the week end at the Victoria House.

Miss Hazel Browne, of Peterborough, was home over the week end.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Nicholson returned home to St. Catharines, after spending the past week at the Serpent Mounds, shooting and fishing. They took home their full quota of fish.

Mr. Wm. McNevan has purchased a new team of horses.

Mrs. Arthur Newman returned to her home in Belleville on Saturday, after spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burley.

The Golden Jubilee anniversary of Keene Methodist Church will be held on Sunday, Nov. 1st, followed by a fowl supper on Monday evening, Nov. 2nd. The Rev. L. S. Wight, of Belleville will be the preacher at the Sunday services on that date, and further announcements will be made later in regard to the programme for Monday. Preparations are being made to make this a memorable occasion in the annals of church work here.

The services in the United Methodist Church in Keene will be withdrawn on Sunday, Oct. 11th, on account of the anniversary services at Bethel United Methodist Church on that day.

Miss Mina Henderson was visiting her uncle, Mr. Jas. Henderson, over the week end.

The directors of the Otonabee Agricultural Fair have been busy the past week preparing the grounds for their Annual Fair on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6th and 7th.

Mrs. Lorne Burley had a quilting bee on Friday. Tea was served after the quilting and an enjoyable time was spent by all present.

The W.M.S. will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry McLachlan on Thursday, Oct. 8th, at 2 o'clock.

A large congregation heard an inspiring sermon by Rev. Mr. Wesley, of Norwood, in the United Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

A meeting of the Young People will be held in the United Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening, Oct. 8th.

Miss Rose Gillett spent a few days in Toronto during last week.

About sixty people attended the W.M.S. quilting last week at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Howson. After the quilting, tea was served, followed by a social hour enjoyed by all those present.

Miss Ellis of the High School and Miss Nelson, of the Public School, Keene, and Miss Bolin of Lang Public School, attended the Teachers' Convention held in Peterborough last week.

Miss Lillian Moore was home over the week end, after being a delegate to the Teachers' Convention in Peterborough.

Mr. Zed. Renwick has installed a new furnace in his home.

Dr. Walsh left last week for a few holidays after his strenuous work during the past year.

Drs. Yelland and Howson are attending to his patients during his absence.

CRAWL STROKE FOR MOTORBOATS.

The Australian crawl principle that produces some of our fastest swimmers now has been applied to motorboats. A new propeller invented in Australia resembles a pair of double fins mounted on a horizontal shaft in the same position as a screw propeller. These do not rotate, however, but oscillate, suggestive of the kick stroke of the crawl. The new propellers are said to save fuel, conserve power, and increase speed.—Popular Science Monthly.

AIR FORCE DOES VALUABLE WORK IN PREVENTION OF FOREST FIRES

Has Also Been of Considerable Benefit to Fishing Industries.

ASSETS CUSTOMS.

Interesting Address at Ottawa By Group Commander to Engineering Institute.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press) — The Royal Canadian Air Force and its development along the lines of civil aviation was the theme of an interesting address before the Ottawa branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, today by group commander, Capt. J. Stanley Scott, M.C., A.F.C., D.C. He said it was the particular function of the force to develop the air power of Canada, by the spread of commercial aviation and the cultivation of a sound ultimate air power.

Among the industries that have been considerably helped by the air force in Canada is the saimon fisheries on the Pacific Coast, he said. The airmen patrol for the suppression of illegal fishing, and see that no improper or unlawful nets are used. The officers flying in this service are all sworn in as fishery inspectors. Wireless communication is maintained from the air craft to the stations.

The air machines are also used in the prevention of smuggling. The officers assist the customs department in preventing the illicit importation of drugs, on incoming ships. The ships are kept under observation in order to detect any attempt to dispose of cargo while in the narrows, or just before reaching port.

But perhaps the most valuable contribution of the air force to the commercial life of the nation is its work in forest fire protection, carried on for the lumbering industries. Fires when seen are reported by wireless on receiving sets in the care of the fire rangers.

Capt. Scott outlined the particular work carried on at the government stations from Vancouver across the country to Quebec and showed the air force to be contributing a valuable piece of work to the general well being of the nation.

More Than a Million Pupils Entered In New York Schools

More than 1,000,000 pupils are enrolled in the public schools of New York City, according to registration reports. It is the first time the million mark has been reached although the enrollment total for last year was within a few thousand of that figure. Increased facilities is enabling the Board of Education to care for 62,171 additional pupils, thus reducing the number compelled to attend part-time sessions.

SAFER GLASS FOR WINDSHIELDS.

A new plate glass for automobile windshields is reinforced by fine wires running parallel to each other at intervals of two inches. Recent tests showed that such material would minimize the danger of injury from flying glass in case of acident. It stood both shock and impact without shattering, although it cracked when a metal block weighing 3 3-4 pounds was thrown against it at close range.—Popular Science Monthly.

UNCLE SAM BREEDS BUGS.

In a strange nursery on the banks of the Potomac the United States Government keeps a host of fleas, mosquitoes, mites, and flies. When fully grown, they serve to test poisons that are sold throughout the country for extermination of insects, says Popular Science Monthly. Among the most valued assistants on the bug farm are four dogs, two cats, and 125 chickens, which produce bumper crops of fleas and mites for the tests.

PETAIN'S SUCCESSFUL STRATEGY BRINGS CAMPAIGN NEARER CLOSE FRENCH AND SPANIARDS MEET

Experts Say Marshal's Tactics Will Be Models For Future African Wars.

ANCIENT METHODS.

Percentage of Casualties 50 P.C. Less Than in South African War.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—Actual contact in the eastern Moroccan sector between the French who have advanced north of Kifane and the Spanish coming down from the Mediterranean coast became an accomplished fact yesterday, following a rapid thrust of the Spanish to Cyah northeast of Kifane.

The mathematically timed movements of the French troops on this front have been concluded, according to Marshal Petain's schedule just as the rainy season has set in. With their forces spread out fanfashion west, north and east of Kifane, the extreme northward limit of their outposts being 16 miles above that place in the direction of Ajdir, Abd-El-Krim's former capital, the French now control all the strategical bases they have sought and cannot be disturbed by counter-attacks of the Moors during the coming winter.

French experts agree that the campaign just brought to a close in Morocco will go down in military textbooks as a model for tactics in African warfare. Operating in a country in which all modern methods of transportation by rail or water are non-existent, Marshal Petain was forced to go back more than twenty centuries and adopt methods for revictualing his army such as those used by Hannibal against the Romans. Mules have been more instrumental in bringing up the food and ammunition necessary to defeat the Moors than motor transport.

The percentage of French casualties is said to have been much lower than in any war ever waged on the African continent, being fully 50 per cent less than in the Boer War.

OIL FLAME BURNS IN WATER

Submerged in water, an oil flame, invented by a Belgian scientist, Oscar Brunler, will burn for weeks without going out it is claimed, and so avoid most of the heat of an ordinary boiler. A device similar to a carburetor blows a spray of crude oil mixed with air into the burner under pressure. Water is kept out of the burner until the flame is well started, then allowed to rise around the flame and cover it.—Popular Science Monthly.

Above, Marion Kathleen Cameron, Alton, Ont., a pupil at the Orangeville high school, and Robert Gray, a pupil at the Univerity of Toronto schools, awarded the "attainment" prizes of $500 each as the boy and girl best fitted to sign messages to the King and Queen on behalf of the youth of Canada upon the occasion of the opening Monday by their Majesties of Canada Building in Trafalgar Square. Below Leon B. Leppard Toronto, of Harboard Collegiate, and Faith Trumbull Warren, Toronto, of the junior Havergal, in Rosedale, were awarded prizes of $100 each for writing the most suitable messages of greeting to the King and Queen.

PEDAGOGUES JAM TRAINING SCHOOL

One Hundred Would Be Teachers Forced to Stay at Home.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— Nearly a hundred would-be school teachers who wish to enter Normal school this fall for their teacher-training work will have to stay at home or do something else, for there will not be room for them at either the Camrose or Calgary schools. An unprecedentedly large number of applications for Normal entrance is reported by the department of education, and even with both schools crowded to the limit of their capacity there is not enough available accommodation to take them all. Between 75 and 100 applicants will be crowded out. The unexpectedly large number of students taking and passing the September supplementals caused this rush for Normal training.

POLISH MAID WOULD TAKE SPOONS HOME

Found With Number of Food Lifters in Her Possession.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—A Polish girl of twenty-one, appeared in court, with evidence against her of eight spoons in her possession, stamped with the names of lunch rooms in the city. The witness was asked if she knew anything about them. She confessed that she had taken them from cafes in which she had been employed. In extenuation, she added that she had not taken them from the cutlery baskets, but from the floor. In this she said that she only followed the example of the women who swept the cafe in the morning.

Farmer Carries On Work Despite Fractured Neck

OWOSSO, Michigan, October 7.—Despite the fact that his neck was broken, George Sanderson, Saginaw County, farmer, has been doing his work as usual since last Sunday when a cow kicked him in the neck while he was milking.

Sanderson says that he suffered some pain, but believed that it would subside. He came to the Memorial Hospital here and an X-ray revealed a fracture of the third cervical. His neck was at once put in a brace and he was put to bed.

SEA TO ENRICH PALESTINE.

Riches in the Dead Sea soon may make Palestine a land of plenty. Rights of exploitation of the vast quantities of chemicals in it recently were offered for sale, says Popular Science Monthly. The supply of potash in the waters is considered inexhaustible. Common salt would be obtained in such tremendous quantities that the problem would be how to get rid of it. The salts will be extracted by a system of rapid evaporation and crystallization.

ENORMOUS AREA SET ASIDE FOR BUILDING ROADS

Allowances in Prairie Provinces Form Greater Area Than P.E.I.

3,000,000 ACRES.

One-Third Has Been Cut From Original Allowance at That.

Motor traffic has focused so much attention in recent years upon roadway surfacing that but little thought has been given to other features of this system of communication. The study of a road map of Canada necessarily attracts attention to the enormous amount of land that has to be reserved in each of the Provinces to provide the network of highways.

In a recently issued pamphlet on the Natural Resources of the Prairie Provinces, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior gives some interesting figures concerning the subdivision of the surveyed areas of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Of the total area already surveyed 3,734,000 acres have been set aside for road purposes, or an area two and one-half times the total area of Canada's smallest Province, Prince Edward Island, which contains 1,397,760 acres.

All original surveys in the Prairie Provinces are made by the Department of the Interior, under the authorization of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Interior. In the first system of surveys used in the Western Provinces, the width of road allowances was established at 99 feet. Later this was found to be excessive, and the road allowance was reduced to 66 feet, roadways being provided at every mile, east and west and north and south. Later it was found of advantage to restrict the road allowances east and west to every two miles. When applied to the area surveyed since this system was adopted it represents an enormous addition to the possible cultivable areas. It had the further advantage in reducing the cost of upkeep of highways. The cutting of weeds on the wide road allowances entailed heavy expense, and for that reason much weed cutting was neglected. These road allowances consequently became prolific weed seed distributors over the neighboring farms. The 66-foot roads have been found in every way satisfactory from the transportation standpoint, and throughout the Prairie Provinces crops are now being grown on what under the older systems of survey would be unnecessary road allowances.

BROKEN PROPELLER REPLACED AT SEA

Ingenious Caisson Device Used by Cruising Repair Shop to Mend Destroyer.

During the recent naval manoeuvres in the Pacific, there was performed on the U. S. destroyer McCormick one of the rarest and most difficult operations of modern seamanship—changing a damaged propeller while on the high seas. In 4 1-2 hours the old propeller had been removed, a new one put in its place, and the destroyer had been made ready to proceed on its way.

This extraordinary feat was made possible by a special type of caisson invented recently by Lieut. O'Neill at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Damage to propellers is not infrequent among the smaller vessels of the navy. On both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans there are cruising repair shops for destroyers and battleships. If one of these happens to be within radio calling distance, it will bring a new propeller and caisson, and the work can be done at sea.

The repair shop draws up alongside the destroyer and lowers the caisson at the stern of the destroyer by means of leading and guy wires. The caisson is about 12 feet deep and long enough to contain the propeller and a short section of the propeller shaft.

The submerged caisson slips under the propeller from the stern, and is brought up so that the upper edge is about three feet out of water. The propeller shaft slips halfway down the box in a slot that curves at the bottom to fit the shaft. After the box is in position, a door slides down the slot, filling the opening. A diver then descends into the box and calks the crack between the shaft, caisson and door, so that the box becomes watertight.

All the water then is pumped out of the caisson, and one or two men remove the damaged propeller.

A nut and locknut hold the propeller on the shaft. These are covered with a point of light metal. These parts are removed by means of a sledge hammer and iron bar, and the propeller is driven off. The weight of the propeller is supported by a line from the repair ship.

It is easier to slip the new propeller into place than to remove the damaged one. Some destroyer propellers are not welded in one piece, but have separate blades. In such cases it is necessary only to replace the blades that have been damaged.

SCIENCE MINES THE OCEANS FOR GOLD

Neptune Beckons Hardy Venturers to Greatest Test of Human Ingenuity.

Five-sevenths of the world's surface never has been explored. Hidden millions of mysteries have beckoned to man for centuries from this vast area covered by the waters of the oceans.

Now, however, spirited adventurers in the fields of science are reading the secrets of the sea. They are finding, not only new methods of locating sunken treasure, but also how to prospect for new resources that can be turned to the use of mankind.

One scientist says he has found a way to sift pure gold from the salt waters. As an eager prospector would search along quartz hills, this scientist—Prof. Fritz Haber, of the University of Berlin—literally is following veins of gold, silver, and other precious metals running through the oceans. And in this venture he is enlisting the co-operation of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

It has been found that water from the Atlantic Ocean contains from .015 to .267 part of gold to each million parts of liquid. Water from certain parts of the ocean contains nearly twice as much gold as the lowest grade land gold deposits profitable to operate.

Captain F. B. Bassett, hydrographer of the U. S. Navy, is authority for the recent statement that billions of tons of gold are dissolved in ocean waters in a concentration of from half a grain to one grain to every tone of water. This represents about $10 worth of gold in every 250 to 500 tons of ocean waters.

The vast expanses of water also are saturated with valuable salts and minerals. And they literally are swarming with living things, both plants and animals, far outnumbering the life of the land. Strewn over the ocean floor, too, are countless carcasses of wrecked ships that have gone to their doom laden with rich cargoes.

Cognizant of these immense possibilities, Uncle Sam's Navy is embarking on a far-reaching program of ocean research. As a first step, the U. S. S. Rainbow is being fitted out for an expedition to the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea.

One of the most fascinating efforts of the expedition is toward the location of oil fields in the vast realm under the great blanket of water. The navy already has located and charted places in the Gulf of Mexico where oil spots constantly appear. With the oil fields of the land nearing exhaustion, the economic importance of such a potential discovery is obvious.

The resources sought by the Rainbow include also vast stores of inorganic matter—salts, minerals, chemical elements.

DIFFICULTIES IN WAY OF PLANES IN ARCTIC WORK

Ice Is Hummocky and Landing Would Be Dangerous.

DIRIGIBLES BETTER.

Commander MacMillan Prefers Lighter Than Air Machine For Work.

SYDNEY, N.S., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Dirigibles are the only aircraft that will be able to thoroughly and satisfactorily explore the Arctic wastes, according to Commander Donald B. MacMillan, who arrived here to-day from his latest expedition to the north. Airplanes are feasible to a certain extent, the commander said, but their operation is surrounded by great uncertainty on account of the difficulty of landing anywhere away from the home base. The ice is hummocky and to light upon it invites great danger and generally means that it will be almost impossible to rise again, even if serious injury is avoided in gliding down.

In a word, planes to be safe must fly from the base and return home with alighting.

Your grandparents relied on ENO

Years before the C.P.R. spanned Canada, ENO's "Fruit Salt" had found its way across the continent. As years have sped, its sterling merits have become more and more widely acknowledged. Now there is not a corner of the civilized world where the morning 'dash' of ENO is not part and parcel of life as it should be lived.

ENO excels because it is the one simple, pleasant and, above all, natural way to ensure internal cleanliness. You never wish you hadn't taken ENO, as perhaps you have wished with other laxatives. It doesn't do good to-day to leave you worse to-morrow.

It excels, too, because of its purity, its unchanging high quality, its freedom from purgative mineral salts and sugar and flavouring matter.

The rule of our grandparents—ENO's "Fruit Salt" first thing every morning—is as sound to-day as ever it was.

Northwest Rebellion of 1885

We assured him that we would be good to him if he were to come over to our camp, by giving him a quantity of oats and hay. He was aware that we had immense quantities of it over there. So it was not hard by making promises to get him to let us stay another night and get him in fairly good humor. We stayed until we practically ate all that was better than what we had, drank all the milk, and in general, ran the whole place. The next day the fellows put the climax on our visit. They took the collie dog and tied a large tin can to its bushy tail and let ti go. Unnecessary to say, that dog started over the prairie, passing the farmer in the field. We could just see a small speck this side of the Arctic circle somewhat. The farmer started for the house and we started for the camp amid a shower of oaths. We arrived at the camp and were at once arrested as deserters and put in a guard tent. Next day we were summoned once more to appear before the Colonel, who reminded us of how serious a charge it was to go outside the lines, and was the same as desertion; but Col. Deacon was in the best of humor and discharged us with a warning.

A little pilfering was done besides the taking of the keg from that pile of goods before mentioned. I remember one dark night my sleeping partner rushed into the tent, tumbled over everybody, lifted the curtain at my head and threw something out which rolled down the bank. The guard saw him and gave the alarm, calling, "Guard turn out." The Col. was out in an instant, calling, "Bugler, bugler, why don't you blow the fall in? Blow the fall-in at once." The bugler could not find his bugle, and the few who mustered at the call disgusted the Colonel. However, he made all hands get out and ordered a diligent search to be made, with the usual result that they could find nothing. He was very angry, and Capt. Burke always had to take his medicine for all that went wrong.

The Colonel and Captain Burke, would fight on sight, having had several arguments which generally ended in Capt. Burke's submission.

On one occasion, while on the barge going down the river, it was stated that, while in a state of excitement in an argument over the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava, the Colonel grabbed the Captain's plate knife and fork, and deliberately threw them overboard. It was while in such a state that he called Captain Burke and his men, Ali Baba, and his 40 thieves.

The North Saskatchewan is a larger river than the south branch and takes its rise away in the Rocky mountains. We saw it rise nine feet in a very short time.

We stayed at this place a couple of weeks, before the boat hove in sight to carry us west to Battleford. She had been engaged bringing up troops to Fort Pitt. The boat was a large flat bottomed stern-wheeler with boilers in the bow, engines in the stern. We were soon busy loading up our transport or what was left for we had sent over half of it over-land to Battleford, by farmers' teams to supply the regiments there. This left us with just what belonged to the six companies of the midland regiment who were at Fort Pitt, a place 100 miles west of Battleford.

Arriving at the latter place we disembarked for a few hours, received orders to proceed on our journey to Fort Pitt, all the regiments having concentrated there. B. Battery, General Middleton and staff also.

When we hove in sight the troops were all on the bank of the river to greet us. But when within speaking distance to our surprise, some one yelled out—

"Here is Colonel and his forty thieves," It was really too bad that such a remark had been made, as those troops had already had their feelings aroused against us, which the foregoing will go to give the reason for such.

It appears that when these regiments got their supplies that many of their boxes had been tampered with.

Their men all knew along before what had been sent them as they had received their mail from home and instead of what they expected found stones, sods and clay in them; some had only half what was sent. It was one of the meanest transacrions that we had to contend with. Of course these men thought we were the guilty parties and this remark, coming from men of our own party did not make matters any better. However, an investigation was held with the result that we were exonerated of all blame, for it was proven that the farmers who portaged those goods along the route actually at night buried them in spots so that on their return trip home they could recover it.

This gave rise to many heated arguments and was very poor encouragement for us who labored hard, handling and guarding and practically losing nothing, while under our charge. Then to get served with abuse for our pains.

Fort Pitt was a Hudson Bay post. It was here that several mounted policemen were shot by "Big Bear's" braves. They were of the Blackfeet tribe. It appears that a posse of police were away on duty, but on returning came innocently upon Indians lying in ambush, who opened fire on them, killing several whose remains the Indians mutilated horribly. We saw their newly made graves with a rough board cross erected to their memory.

This is as far as the Toronto regiments went. The Midland Regiment once again were formed together, with Col. Williams at its head. The regiment presented a great change in appearance from what they looked two months previous. One would scarcely recognize each other. We had caps made from the bags which held the oats. Our boots were in bad shape. The hair on our faces were sunburnt and our hair cutting parlors were lacking of tonsorial artists. We were a hard looking lot, roughing it.

We soon got orders to embark for Frog Lake, forty miles farther on, and inland about 60 miles. We arrived to find what was a missionary settlement, consisting of a church a couple of stores, and several houses, were now in ruins, having been burned by the Indians who murdered some of the inhabitants, leaving desolation in their wake. The Indians, after their depredations had been accomplished, withdrew, taking the war path for it going east.

We stayed here a week, and amused ourselves fishing in a very unique way. Some genius arranged a plan to catch the finny tribe by building a dam across a small creek running out of one lake into another. He left a space of four or five feet in the centre, where were laid a number of small poles horizontally, so as the water would strain through them, then laid boughs of trees and stones all around the four sides, except the space where the water ran on the slide. It worked like a charm for to our surprise, in the mornings, this would be found loaded down with splendid fish called pike and pickerel, more than we could use from day to day for the time that we were here.

Now, this was the turning back part of our journey, as orders were issued to prepare to go back as Big Bear had been captured by the Mounted Police, a few miles north of Battleford, and the war or uprising was over.

We made no delay to get out of this part, as it was full of muskegs or marshes, also well wooded with small timber. The flies and mosquitoes were very troublesome, and seemed not to hesitate one like a bee, whether it was because to take holv. They woulv simply go at they were used to doing so on the Indians, and took us for the same.

We were soon back to Fort Pitt, and went into camp for a few days. The sun was getting pretty hot and we took shelter during the hottest part of the day. But reqently quite a few were not feeling well, owing to its influence. Here also our gallant Colonel Williams took sick, and was taken on board the boat. Everything was done for him that the surgeons of the regiment could do, but he died, only being sick a few days. Sunstroke was the primary cause, along with anxiety. All our enjoyment after this sad, sudden event was at an end, for, I might say, the rest of the journey.

It was surprising to see how all went about in a serious, thoughtful manner, as if looking for something. The men felt the loss of their leader very keenly. He was a man we all felt proud of, being a soldier, every inch of him, Canada producing few his equal. That is a tribute that all the men he came in contact with while in the field on this occasion, pay to him.

This sad occurence changed matters considerably. Next, orders were issued to embark for Battleford.

Here the Midland, Queen's Own, 10th Royal Grenadiers, A and B Batteries, and Mounted Police, all formed up in funeral order and marched from the boat to the police barracks with the remains of our leader on a gun carriage. The Queen's Own Bugle Band played the "Dead March in Saul." It was very impressive. Orders were issued for the regiment to prepare to leave for home on the shortest notice.

Col. Williams' body was sent overland by trail to the nearest C.P.R. station.

We were soon on board a flat bottomed boat and rushed with all possible speed, going a different route altogether to what we had traversed before, taking an all-water route to Selkirk. It proved to be the best for us as we had ne guard to mount, no work to do, but take in the beautiful scenery about us.

It is quite a distance from Battleford to Prince Albert. Here we got off to get a glance at that ferocious monster, Big Bear.

But we were much disappointed in him as he sat on a box inside a log hut.

He was no taller than five feet six inches, very slight anv about fifty years of age.

He did not like to see us looking at him and turned his head to one side.

Sometimes we would encounter sand bars on the widest part; but we had pilots on board who taught us something that would have stood to us on those barges.

Those pilots would stand at each side of the boat at the bow and call the depth of the water so that the man at the wheel would hear them. Those men were half breeds, and seemed to talk backwards. For instance, they would call out, "six foot water, three foot water," which was sufficient for the vessel to float on, but when he called out "one feet" the boys would laugh. Then again we would hear "bottom water no." These soundings were taken with a long pole which they shoved into the water.

Prince Albert was barely on the map those days, but today it has its railway and is a most progressive place.

By the way, I have learned that one of our company, a Peterborough man, had the honor of being its Mayor. I refer to William Cook, a son of John Cook, who for years was employed by the Dickson lumber company of this city.

We made several stops on our way down to Selkirk, but they were of short duration, and all of Hudson Bay posts. At the one at the head of lake Winnipegagosis, we tried our hand at fishing, securing some large hooks here on which we tied red flannel throwing into the lake from shore, in which manner we were successful in landing some very nice fish. Some may say that that is a fish story, but however, I will vouch for the truth of it. At this stop on our journey we were transferred to a better boat, as the one we had come so far on was not safe on a large lake. This boat could not carry us all, but towed a large barge in its wake down to Selkirk. It took us quite a number of days to reach there. We were received by the best citizens of that place, also quite a number came over from Winnipeg, by special trains, the distance being sixteen miles.

Long rows of tables were made for the occasion in a nice shady park. Every table had its waiters and it certainly kept them busy for an hour at least. Kegs of lager ornamented the tables every few yards, and, as everyone seemed to be working freely they were soon empty.

The result was we had to have many special policemen appointed to round up the town and bring the men back to the boat as all of the soldiers were in a more or less demoralized state, this being the first opportunity that afforded itself in four months to get all we could to eat and drink, and as the saying is, we didn't do a thing with, especially the kegs.

Trains were soon got ready and we were on our way to Port Arthur, here to take the steamboat down to Owen Sound.

This trip was fully enjoyed by us, the tables being supplied with the very best.

When we came to the American Soo, we were told to stay down in the hold of the ship where we were told to remain out of sight until we were locked through, as the authorities could not pass men with rifles who were not citizens, through their country. So we passed through without delay.

We arrived at Owen Sound on Sunday morning in time for breakfast at the different hotels. The Grand Trunk had two trains with two engines on each train, to carry us to Toronto. The first train proceeded but a short distance when one of the engines blew out a cylinder head, which delayed us a couple of hours, but those trains lost no time once they got started.

Every city, town or hamlet was gathered at the stations along the route, and in many instances it was amusing to see the people running across the fields with the country band following up in the rear, only to see us fly past when they would recognize that they were late and we would not wait. Then they would start and cheer. We made no stops except for the locomotive to be supplied with water. It was too bad to disappoint the citizens, as they had made preparations for us, expecting us to stop. But we just flew past, arriving in Toronto at three o'clock p.m.

It was here we recongized what it meant to be soldiers who tried to do their duty. Toronto is without doubt the most patriotic, enthusiastic, sympathetic and generous city that we have in Canada and she proved herself such on our a.,ival.

They expected us much earlier in the day. It was a beautiful day. All the city appeared to be out in their best. The mass of people that gathered to give us a reception would be hard to estimate. Many came in from the surrounding towns and cities the day before so as to be on hand to swell the numbers. Every window, verandah, house top, shed, car and lumber pile had its capacity. The streets were roped at all crossings along the entire route. We marched from the union station to the Albion hotel on George street, a distance of a mile or so, led by the bands of the city. Toronto has had many large crowds of people, but never had one with more enthusiasm and where it was shown with such expression the cause was apparent.

We were the first home direct from active service, clothed in the uniforms that were issued to us on the start, with the exception of the caps which we discarded. We made ourselves the caps from bags which contained the oats, and they looked so neat that even the officers wore them. and they became regulation. Many had purchased themselves boots. We also had a belt, made which hung across the breast for putting our ammunition in which was capable of carrying thirty rounds. We were a husky lot, all sunburnt, with our faded red coats. We received expressions of sympathy from many on account of losing our Colonel, whom the whole of Toronto respected.

It was difficult for us to ward off even the ladies who persisted in gathering amongst and around us, pulling the buttons off our tunics, or anything in the shape of what would do as a souvenir. They would exchange their jewellery for any simple relic.

We were marched to the Albion hotel for dinner, then entrained for Port Hope, arriving that night. We immediately fell in and marched to the park which is on a hill. Many of us did not put up a tent that night, but lay down on the grass, without any covering, and were soon fast asleep. It rained some during the night but, strange to say, we did not know of it until morning. Our clothes were quite wet but they soon dried on us. We were reinforced by the arrival of several regiments or battalions from the surrounding counties for the funeral of our leader. It was quite a contrast between the bright new uniforms of the incoming regiments and our own, and just so much in the appearance of the regiments. They looked quite pale and delicate, while we looked the opposite.

The funeral march was tiresome, tedious and long, we being under arms for five hours or more, and was the largest that did honors and conveyed a citizen of that of that place, many shedding tears along the route. Each man of the Midland carried mourning tied on his arm, while the different bands played the funeral dirge. It was very impressive.

Many of the raw recruits succumbed to the trying ordeal and fell out, the heat of the day being very oppressive, but not a man of the Midland showed any signs of fatigue. So much for roughing it and the experience gained during the past four months.

It was in Port Hope we performed our last duty as a regiment. Here we disbanded and took our different routes home.

It was a great pity that the regiment was not photographed, as each man would have been proud to take a look at one of the finest regiments that ever was formed in Canada.

We were soon on our way to Peterboro and arrived in due time. The old familiar town went fairly wild, being up to the mark in doing herself justice with regard to giving us a reception. We will always feel grateful to our city and her citizens for their kindness and welcome accorded to us.

The mayor gave us the freedom of the town; the citizens or council (I don't know which) gave each a ten-dollar gold piece as a souvenir, which most of us found hard to keep.

The pace was too hard to keep up we we soon quieted down.

Only four remained in the West—Privates Alfred Rogers, Tytler, Tanner and Cook, the Government giving each man who served west of Winnipeg a grant of land of 160 acres on condition that he remain or pay for the settlement duties to be done. This, along with the free grant given to any intending settlers, would make the amount 320 acres, and only four of our number accepted.

The rest of us applied for scrip. Its face value to the Government was eighty dollars. But we, not owing the Government, sold for what we could realize. About the highest price paid for such was $66, but many sold as low as $25.

We travelled further and saw more country and active service along with hardship, than any other regiment (and all in just four months)), who left for the West on this occasion.

THE END.

BURNBRAE CHURCH HELD ANNIVERSARY

Large Congregations Listened to Sermon From Rev. James Grier.

BURNBRAE, October 6. — The anniversary services in the Burnbrae Church, the cradle of Presbyterianism in the township of Seymour, and the parent of all the churches of that denomination in the district, was held yesterday, the preacher for the day being Rev. James Grier, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Campbellford. It is 85 years since the late Robert Neil, D.D., settled in Burnbrae, and gathered around him the foundation of what eventually, under his ministry, which lasted over half a century, became one of the strongest rural charges in Canada, and which to-day still maintains its vitality in spite of the changes in the social conditions of the country and the shifting of population, which have done so much to undermine the vigor of rural congregations. The late Dr. N. was the man who blazed the trail in which so many church goers, past and present, took their way.

The anniversary offering at both services amounted to $872.38, one of the largest in the long history of the congregation.

The church was well filled in the morning and was crowded to capacity in the evening. The regular choir was assisted by a male quartette from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Belleville, the visitors rendering two appropriate selections at both services, "sermons in song," as they were styled by Rev. D. A. McKenzie, pastor of the church. Mrs. John Storie of Campbellford, acted as organist, and also played the accompaniments for the visiting quartette.

Visitors were present from Stirling, Campbellford, Rylstone and all over the district.

Keeping an Inheritance.

In the morning the preacher, Rev. James Grier took for his text I Kings xxi:3: "The Lord forbid it me that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee," words used by Naboth in his refusal of King Ahab's request to purchase his vineyard.

The speaker pointed out how this Canaan was regarded by every Israelite as God's land, and they His tenants, and one condition of their lease was that it never should be alienated except under extreme necessity. No price could possibly be put upon it.

Naboth's action therefore stood for all time as a testimony to the truth that some hings in life are priceless.

This principle was illustrated in the case of the Belgians, who refused to put a price on the inheritance of their fathers, paying the price of refusal in the same ruddy coin as did Naboth. The literature of Greece had made her isles, though small, immortal and priceless.

Presbyterianism, in spite of its admitted defects, had done so much for generations of men that to many it was a priceless heritage, not to be parted with lightly. No gift of God could be purchased. Honor, innocence, purity, love, peace of conscience, respect of our fellows—these were all priceless and the duty was that so many listen to Ahab and try to barter them away. The speaker pled with his hearers not to sell their spiritual inheritance.

Christ's Table Talks.

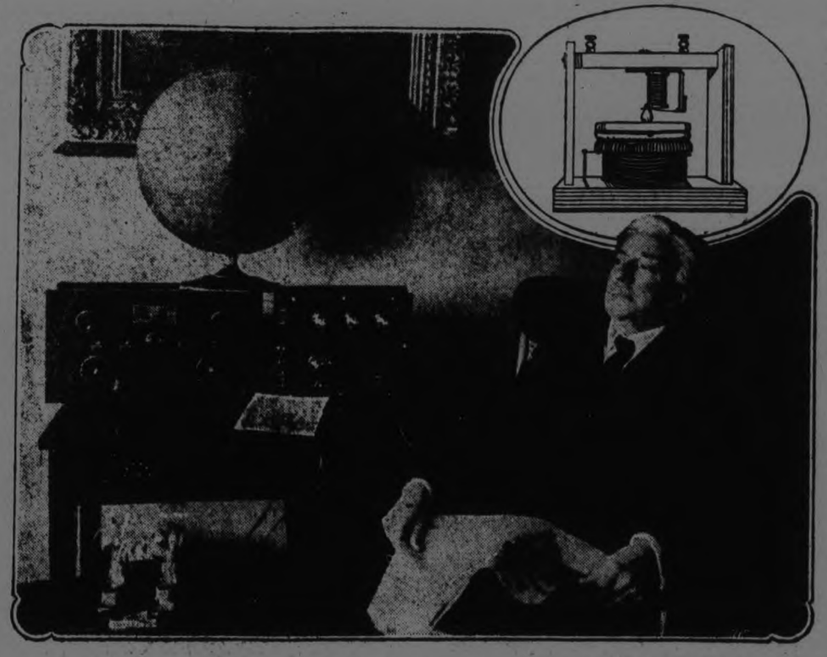
In the evening Mr. Grier found his text in St. Luke's vii:40: "Simon, I have something to say unto thee; and he said, Master: Say on."

Much of the Gospel record came to us like this—table talk. This was due to Christs intimate dealings with men. His ready acceptance of hospitality, and His desire to take advantage of every opportunity to meet men where most they needed him.

In every condition of life Christ has something to say. No phase of life was beyond His power to deal with. Christ was also inexhaustible in what He had to say. His fulness was that of a fountain. And Christs word to mankind was always a personal word. Sometimes stern and serious, but always kind. It means much to the life where Christ enters if in response to His "Somewhat to say," there is the ready request: "Master, say on."

"For life is strong and stable only as its defects are pointed out by the light of His truth, and rectified by His spirit."

The Maker of the First Telephone



Thomas A. Watson, who, as a young machinist 49 years ago, built Alexander Graham Bell's first telephone, naturally takes a keen personal interest in the development of radio.

Referring to the wonder of radio, and its fascinating interest, Mr. Watson says: "As I sit in my study and listen to voices and music that come to me through the ether from far away places, my mind goes back to that hot summer day when Prof. Bell and I were thrilled by the first feeble sound transmitted electrically — a sound from which the great present day telephone system has been developed.

"Wonderful as the radio is, there is to me nothing in it more astounding than the everyday work of the Bell System — the transmitting of nearly fifty million telephone calls each day straight to the individual desired, regardless of time, distance or location. That is the stupendous achievement accomplished by telephone engineers."

Privileged to take part in the beginnings of the telephone fifty years ago next June, Thomas A. Watson, from his quiet home in Boston, is able to watch each new step in the tremendous extension, by wire and by ether, of the range and power of the human voice. Wonderful as radio telephony is, he feels confident that far greater marvels are in store for the future.

MANY ATTENDED FAIR AT KEENE

All School Sections Were Represented and Exhibits Were Good.

MANY CLASSES.

KEENE, Oct. 6.—The Annual Rural School Fair of Otonabee was held on Tuesday, Sept. 22nd, at Keene. All the school sections of Otonabee were represented and competition was exceptionally keen and exceptional ability was shown by the contestants in all classes. HORSES ARE WINNERS.

Accumulates Ten First Prizes at Two Showings Cutting Corn.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 6.—Geo. Gummell, of Warkworth, R.R. 1, has been very successful in exhibiting his pair of driving horses and brood mare and foals, receiving at Colborne Fair, five first prizes and two thirds; and at Castleton Fair, five first prizes and one second; he also is exhibiting at Campbellford.

Geo. Helson Jr. is a very busy man these days. He has already filled twenty solos with his Fordson tractor and thirteen-inch Gilson cutter. Mr. Helson cuts half-inch and his work is much appreciated by the corn growers of this section. The corn crop is very heavy. The variety known as Bountiful is the most popular for ensilage; and the Pride of Nishna for sheaf feeding. The root crop has been set back by the recent drouth. The cowhorn turnip has withstood it the best and is becoming very popular as a milk producer.

SOME PRIZE WINNERS

Petherick's Corners People Won Prizes at Campbellford Fair.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Oct. 7.—Petherick's Corners was well represented at Campbellford Fair on Friday last. Mrs. John Simpson carrying off a large number of prizes in the domestic science list. Messrs. Garnet and Thomas Kerr succeeded in capturing most of the red ribbons on Jersey and Ayrshire cattle.

The October meeting of the Rylstone Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Barnum on Wednesday afternoon, October 7th. A box of fruit for the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, will be packed at this meeting.

Miss Gladys Simpson spent the week-end in Campbellford visiting friends.

School closed on Thursday and Friday on account of the teachers' convention at Colborne.

Miss Agnes Thomson and Mr. J. D. Thomson of Grafton and Bewdley respectively, spent the week-end under the parental roof at Crow Bay.

Mr. Arthur Petherick spent a few days of last week in Campbellford visiting friends there.

The Young People's rally day programme will be presented on Thursday evening in Zion church. A hearty welcome is extended to all.

CONFIRMATION IN CHURCH AT MADOC

Archbishop Spratt Confirmed Eighty-Two Boys and Girls.

MADOC, Oct. 7.—On Sunday last a noteworthy service was held in the Sacred Heart Church, when Archbishop Spratt of Kingston confirmed eighty-two girls and boys presented by Father O'Riordan from his two parishes of Queensboro and Madoc.

The little girls looked charming in their dainty white frocks and veils. The altar of the church was beautifully decorated with quantities of flowers.

Early mass was celebrated at 7.30 and confirmation took place at 10 o'clock. Archbishop Spratt was assisted by Father Lacey, his secretary, and by Father O'Riordan, priest incumbent. His Lordship addressed the parents on their duty to their children. He spoke very highly of the training the children had received and said that a great deal of credit was due to pastors, parents and teachers.

The Archbishop also addressed the congregation on the financial state of the diocese. He expressed himself as being particularly pleased at the sum, five thousand dollars, which the Madoc church had subscribed toward the building of the new college at Kingston, which is so much needed for the training of student priests.

Special music was rendered during the service, and Mrs. Fred Meraw took the solo parts.

At St. Peter's.

Rev. Mr. Extense of Toronto was in Madoc on Sunday in connection with the O.T.A. He gave two very fine temperance addresses in St. Peter's Presbyterian church, taking the Holy Communion sermon in the morning and conducting the entire service in the evening.

TOURISTS LEFT HUGE SUM IN THIS DISTRICT

IMPROVE HOTELS.

Chamber of Commerce Find Ample Return For Courtesy Expended.

American tourists left a total of $252,480 in the Peterborough district as a result of their invasion of Canada between June 15 and September 15 inclusive. This startling fact was learned to-day as the result of the activity of the Chamber of Commerce in obtaining the information from all standard banks in the city of Peterborough and the village of Lakefield, and includes the receipts of paid cheques and currency exchanged.

Thus a quarter of a million has been added to the revenue of the district due to exploitation by the Chamber of Commerce affiliated in the drive with the local branch of the Ontario Motor League and the Trent Waterway Development Association. These organizations claim the credit for this new industry as it is averred that no others have chosen to interest themselves in the development of this new industry. This quarter million of dollars, it is further stated, does not approximate the total sum spent here as there are other monies which would not necessarily pass through the bankers' hands as many of the tourists would have their money exchanged as soon as they crossed the border.

The branch of the Chamber of Commerce located in this city has expended much effort to encourage tourists toward the Kawartha chain of lakes and the results, as shown by the accredited figures of the banks would appear to justify their efforts.

A policy of courtesy has been pursued by the authorities connected with the organization and so complete is the information furnished to inquiring and prospective tourists, that they have expressed their satisfaction frequently and promise return visits.

Deputations greet yachting parties of prominence and extend their greetings, while frequently some members of the board escorts a tourist party along the northward trek. Maps and other guidal information is supplied liberally so the visitors seldom lose themselves or wander aimlessly through uninteresting country.

F. G. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested that considerable improvement might be effected in the hotel accommodations supplied at the resorts where people of refinement might be more liberally supplied with comforts and this would go far in encouraging the best possible class of tourists. Mr. Stinson admitted that the hotels were greatly improved over conditions prevailing in former years, but is of the opinion that more encouragement should be supplied if this valuable asset was to realize its true worth and if further development was to be attained.

LONDON, Oct. 7. — (Canadian Press).—The Daily Mail says that special legislation against Communists is being considered which would create a new criminal offence. It is suggested that this could be defined as "attempting to alter the constitution by revolutionary means."

PUBLIC LECTURE AT LOCAL E.I.C. MEETING

Member of Hydro Staff Will Give Illustrated Address on Power Supply.

A regular meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada will be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, Oct. 8th, at 8.15 p.m., when a paper will be given by W. C. F. Publow, A.I.E.E. of the Hydro staff.

Mr. Publow will speak on the Central Ontario System, and his lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. It is felt that an address devoted to the subject of our immediate power supply is important, and is of interest to many who are not engineers; therefore, the executive extend to any interested person a hearty invitation to attend the meeting.

The chair will be occupied by R. L. Dobbin, M.E.I.C., and all visitors will be welcome.

MISSIONARY GAVE ADDRESS ON CHINA

Dr. Goforth Occupied Pulpit of St. Andrew's Church, Omemee, Sunday.

OMEMEE, Oct. 7.—On Thursday afternoon the Women's Guild of Christ Church, Omemee, met at the home of Mrs. Albert Ford. The President, Miss Lila Fee, conducted the business part of the programme in her usual capable manner. The meeting was chiefly to arrange the annual bazaar. The date is set for Saturday afternoon, December 5, and further plans will be made at the November meeting. During the afternoon the ladies worked on articles for this occasion, orders and otherwise.

Just recently the Guild and the A. Y. P. A. together have redecorated the church, both inside and outside, and are deserving of much credit.

The hostess, Mrs. Ford, served dainty refreshments at the close and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Special Harvest Home services will be observed in Christ Church next Sunday, October 11, the Rev. J. D. Patterson, of All Saints Church, Peterborough, will occupy the pulpit at the morning service. At 3 p.m. Rev. Dr. Archer, a returned missionary from India will give an address and there will also be a service in the evening, but it is not known yet who the special speaker will be.

Rev. Mr. James, of Newcastle, spent the week-end in town and was given a hearty welcome by his former parishioners.

The Women's Missionary Society, of the United Church, met for their regular meeting in the Sunday school room on Thursday afternoon. The President, Mrs. Rowland, conducted the opening exercises which were followed by the repetition of the Apostles' Creed in unison. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Robert Williamson, and the Watch Tower responses were as follows: Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Japan; Mrs. G. Newman, China; Mrs. R. Wilson, Oriental; Mrs. J. Widdes, India; Mrs. R. Poast, Montreal; Mrs. J. Bushnell, Temperance; Mrs. L. Mahood, Giving. The hearty rendition of "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" helped to increase the missionary spirit.

Mrs. Widdes read a communication of thanks from the Fred Victor Mission for two crates of fruit sent by the Omemee Society and through the recommendation of Mrs. T. C. Ivory, who is in charge of this matter, the Secretary was advised to order another crate of empty jars.

Mrs. Rowland gave an explanation of the combining of the Missionary Messenger, Missionary Outlook, The Monthly Letter, The Monthly Leaflet, into one magazine called the Missionary Monthly, and as all subscriptions should be forwarded to The Presbyterial Secretary by November 1, Mrs. J. Widdes was appointed to look after subscriptions for same.

It had been suggested by the Board of Managers of the Sunday School that the W. M. S. be responsible for a story, talk, or anything along missionary lines, in the Sunday School once each month. A resolution was passed to assist the Sunday School officers and Mr. F. G. Sandy was appointed responsible for the first Sunday which, if agreeable to the Board, will fall on the third Sunday of each month.

Plans for the annual bazaar which will be held on Thursday, November 26, took up much time. The ladies were appointed for the several booths, and a novel attraction will be an orange tree.

Several ladies had been called upon from friends at a distance to donate a handkerchief or some article towards a bazaar which they were having in their town and were anxious to have the idea tried out. Accordingly, if the plan works, a handkerchief booth will be in evidence. A donation of wool and pillow covers had been received. These were distributed to a few ladies, the cases to be embroidered, and the yarn to be knit into mittens, scarfs, etc. Each lady will be asked to be responsible for two articles.

Owing to the late hour, the remainder of the programme was dispensed with, also any further business regarding the bazaar was left over until the November meeting.

The meeting closed with prayer after which refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. Ivory, Mrs. M. Wilson and Mrs. Charles Rutherford.

At St. Andrew's.

Rev. Mr. Goforth, a returned missionary from China, occupied the pulpit in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening. The attendance was fair, when we consider the fluent manner in which the returned gentleman gave his address, an opportunity which will possibly never come again, was missed by many. Mr. Goforth devoted his time to Field Marshal Feng and his Christian army. He chose his text from St. John 15:8, "Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit: so shall ye be my disciples." General Feng is a man 44 years of age, and is over six foot tall. He had no opportunity to go to school. He joined the army at the age of 15 and being an ardent worker, he is now, when looked at from every standpoint, possibly the best educated man in China. He had been called a hypocrite by some, but hypocrites do not accomplish such feats as General Feng has accomplished and he is deserving of having the text applied to him. When commanding an army of 9,000, he had a vision of seeing hundreds, or even a thousands, baptized, but later his vision broadened and he could not rest until all were saved. "God has given us a promise. Have we been saved? and also our small families." Copies of Jesus Christ is what the world needs and only that will convict the world of righteousness and judgment.

The speaker told of a missionary who was compelled to go with a robber band, only to find inculpable murder on either side of the road. "We have no idea what goes on in this heathen land or we would appreciate a Christian land," said Mr. Goforth. He further showed where General Feng had received answers to prayer and where he had won his large army by love. Hypocrites don't do this. We are responsible to God for our being. Would to God, that the whole land were as honest as General Feng. He has the true idea. The vision he has is, that if all ministers, Sunday School teachers, deaconesses, etc., were filled with the Spirit of God, then everyone in the whole land will feel the power of it. General Feng sought the Kingdom of God, first, and God promoted his success. He opened a school for bandits, where they could be taught to earn a decent living upon their release. At the age of 38, he saw out of his army of 80,000, 30,000 baptized into the church. His first vision had been 9,000 and he was forced to say, "God has done exceedingly abundantly." The soldiers had admitted they might as well be Christians because they had to act as one. Do people here outside the church see the power of God and act so? Not so. There are too many Christians to-day who hide the Bible. General Feng kept it in sight and used it in public: we owe all to God's book. In conclusion, Mr. Goforth spoke of his work in China as one of pleasure. He is only obeying God, and if we have never heard the call, we can at least do our part by our prayers, as well as our gifts.

ONE KILLED IN CAR COLLISION

Truck Skidded, Hit Coupe and Turned Over on Road.

TWO MEN HURT.

PORT COLBORNE, October 7. — Canadian Press. — One man was killed and two others injured in an automobile collision on the Welland Canal highway just outside the town limits, yesterday afternoon.

Silas Beamer of Welland, died of a fractured skull in the Welland Hospital two hours after the accident, while Gordon Beamer and William Cowan suffered numerous cuts and bruises.

The men were in a truck driven by Gordon Beamer, which skidded across the pavement and crashed into a coupe driven by Melvin Misener of Humberstone. The impact turned the truck completely over.

RISING SUPPRESSED.

Syrian Crowd Was Dispersed By Cavalry After Riot.

BEIRUT, Syria, October 7. Canadian Press. — A Syrian cavalry squad has put down what is described as a local uprising at Samah, killing or wounding 30 of the demonstrants.

A crowd, which included many Bedouins, menaced the public buildings, disarmed the local police and are reported to have set fire to a palace before the cavalry arrived.

AUTHORITIES GUARD BOSTON POST OFFICE

Armed Men in All Branches, Which Are Miniature Fortresses.

BOSTON, Oct. 7. — (Canadian Press). — Because of numerous recent hold-ups and murders in and around Boston, the police and Federal authorities have made preparations for a possible attack by underworld forces.

The main post office and each of the 83 branches have been turned into miniature fortresses, with expert rifle and pistol men as guards. Post office receipts and registered mail are being transported in steel armored trucks, and every post office clerk serving at an open window has been armed with an army revolver.

End Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex eliminates the germs in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to ten thousand sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it banishes your Catarrh you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him thru medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pa., and often rode horse-back thru the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N.Y. where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold. If your druggist does not sell the "Discovery," in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to Dr. Pierce's Branch Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

CANADA HAS NOT HIGHEST TAX HON. G. N. GORDON TELLS MEN

Statement Promulgated By Conservative Propagandists is Fabrication, He Says.

FAIR WAGE CLAUSE.

Mis-statement By Mr. Denne Regarding Dam No. 4 is Answered By Minister.

The statement made on billboards of the city by the Conservative propagandists that "Canada is the highest taxed" country, was denounced as a fabrication by Hon. G. N. Gordon last night, speaking to a good crowd at the main Liberal Committee rooms. "Mr. Peck," he said, "has been busy circulating about the city figures and statements that are just as incorrect as any of Mr. Burnham's statements ever were."

The facts of the case, Mr. Gordon pointed out, are given by the Chancellor of the British Exchequer, a man of the highest standing in statistical work in the world, and his figures show that instead of being the highest taxed, Canada is third from the lowest of English speaking countries. The figures, quoted by Mr. Gordon are:

	Per cap. taxation 1923-1924 £	s	d
United Kingdom	15	18	0
New Zealand	2	5	3
Australia	8	1	9
Canada	7	19	0
United States	6	14	10
South Africa	3	9	11

"These,' said Mr. Gordon, "are the correct figures, and to endeavor to foist on the public the absurd statement that Canada is the highest taxed country is despicable. The taxation in Canada had been reduced 25 per cent. this year from what it was in Mr. Meighen's regime."

Refutes Dam Story.

Another mis-statement Mr. Gordon pointed out, is being broadcast by Mr. Denne in support of Mr. Peck's candidature. This is to the effect that the men employed at dam number 4 are not receiving the fair wage provided for in the contract. As a matter of fact, Mr. Gordon said, when Mr. Denne was a member of the city council he is said to have allowed a contract to go to Mr. Wilford, who was vice-president of the Conservative Association of Lindsay, without even suggesting that a fair wage clause be inserted.

In the case of this dam being constructed between Lakefield and Peterborough at the present time, the Minister had made certain the fair wage clause was inserted; and further that the Peterboro wage (and not the Lakefield wage) should prevail. "To-day," he declared, "I made inquiries and found there is not one word of truth in the assertions made by Mr. Denne that these men are not being paid the fair wage. Every man on the job is being paid at least 35c an hour, and I understand ten more men were taken on last Monday morning."

In addition to the work now under way there is work totalling $172,000 to proceed at Young's point, lasting from October 15th through the winter. This, which was secured through his efforts, will absorb a great many unemployed during the hardest months. The dam at Lakefield will be repaired as soon as an appropriation can be put through.

Referring to a letter in which Mr. Lillicrap questioned the needs of repairs at these dams, Mr. Gordon indicated the loss sustained through leakage.

"The dam at Young's point has been leaking for 25 years," one of the audience interrupted.

Continuing, Mr. Gordon pointed out the necessity for conservation of water so that Peterboro factories should not be prejudiced by lack of power. Building and repairing these dams means that the water can be used over and over again for power development. The speaker had been energetic in this work, he said, having lots of opportunity after the sleeping sickness that had overcome this part of the riding as far as the Trent Canal was concerned, during the previous ten years.

Conditions Better.

"Mr. Peck and some of his cohorts are advancing to this election on a wave of bad times of their own making," Mr. Gordon said, "and it's going to be pretty hard to get rescuers to embark on the same sea of hard times just to please them. People know that taxes are 25 per cent. lower now than when Mr. Meighen was in power; they know that there are less failures than in 1921, and more firms doing business; they know that Canada is exporting more goods than she is bringing in; and they know the Canadian dollar has jumped from 85 cents value in New York Exchange to over 100cents. If you reduce the taxation you increase the people's buying power, you help merchants, manufacturers and everyone in the country. That is what the present administration has done."

Railway Situation.

Mr. Meighen declares he is against amalgamation of the C.N.R. with the C.P.R., Mr. Gordon said, but he is out, on his own statement, to cripple the C.N.R. He will cut off all capital expenditure and choke the system to death.

The speaker referred briefly to efforts of Mr. Meighen and Mr. Drayton to put a tax on flour, oatmeal, and other foodstuffs, averted only by a violent opposition started by Mr. Gordon. That tax would have increased the cost of living for the people of Canada by hundreds of thousands of dollars, striking at the fundamental foods of every household. Mr. Meighen has pledged the Western provinces to put a tax on United States anthracite, so that Alberta coal may be sold in Ontario. "You can't haul coal thousands of miles an sell it at the same rate that you sell coal brought 250 miles," Mr. Gordon declared. "If he raises the tax on coal so that only Alberta coal can come in, as he has promised, then it means you will be shovelling dollars into your furnaces. A bonus of that kind to the coal producers is nothing short of a bribe to Alberta at the expense of the people of this city."

In conclusion, Mr. Gordon pointed out that only an honest discussion of the actual facts is needed to overcome the fabricated statements made by his opponents, and urged his workers to present the facts as gleaned from reliable authorities.

2,675 DWELLERS IN N. MONAGHAN

The population of North Monaghan township is 2,675 according to the assessment roll for next year's taxes. The statement does not indicate what proportion of the residents are suburbanites but it provides a basis for the estimation of the total number of residents of the city and its annexes in North Monaghan since the city's population is now 21,495.

A summary of North Monaghan's property values, assessment and population is given as follows:

CONTINUING CHURCH HELD FIRST SERVICE

James Dutton, of Peterboro, Preached Sermon to Presbyterian Remnant.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 7—On Sunday afternoon, the members of the Continuing Presbyterian Church held their first service in the Baptist Church at 2.30, with Mr. James Dutton, of Peterborough, in charge.

Mr. Dutton paid a tribute to the courtesy of the Baptist people who loaned their building and organist to the little group, who for conscience sake have left the church and are without a church home. He referred to the kindness which the Baptists and Anglicans had shown all over Canada.

Next Sunday, Mr. Richard Lees will be the preacher at the service, which will be held at the same hour.

Mr. Dutton took his text from the epistle of St. Paul's to the Phillipians, the third chapter and part of the 13th verse—"Forgetting the things that are behind."

This was written while St. Paul was a prisoner in Rome for the faith that was in him. The chain which bound him to his goalers was a constant reminder of his position. In spite of his comfortless condition, the word "joy" is used no less than twenty times in this epistle.

When this epistle was written, St. Paul was old and his life was nearly ended and, though crowded with incidents and opportunities, persecution and hardship, he writes urging forgetfulness of the things which are behind and pressing on the race at which he is as sure as at the beginning.

St. Paul urged his hearers to forgive and forget, the former is much easier than the latter and one of the marvellous things about God is His willingness to forgive and to forget our sins and short-comings. We would do well not to forget God has led us through all these years of pilgrimage. There were three thoughts which the speaker desired to leave with the people.

(1) Forget the past sins in your lives.—A minister said that the people who voted against church union had great need of confession of sin and at first the speaker was inclined to resent this, but on closer reflection he realizes that if we wish to succeed and be worthy of the highest tradition there must be confession of sin and a willingness to humble ourselves before God to whom sin is repulsive. God has promised that if we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness, but we do not believe that as we should. St. Peter denied Christ and yet in the day of Pentecost, he preached that great sermon which brought 3000 to believe in Christ.

(2) Forget past successes.—Often, success is a stumbling block because we are inclined to become self-satisfied and fail to see the need of fruther endeavour. We are proud of our Church and her achievements, both in Canada and in missions in foreign lands. Now the Church is smaller and some may think it can never be great again but we must look ahead at the great things which lie before. A greater leader of the Presbyterian Church said recently, that the Church is recovering so fast that they cannot keep pace with it, and this news is coming in from all the provinces. Let us dream of a great Church, neither financially or numerically, but great because of the people, who realize the love and power of Christ, and no man can measure what the future has in store.

(3) Forget past disappointments.—There is sorrow in the hearts to-day because the Church where you have lived and labored is lost, but, if the Church is lost there are gains for God has not forgotten, but asks us to forget our losses.

We have left a strong faith and an invincible hope and a firm determination to continue; God does not measure our capacity by our intellectual attainments, and we are going forward to the greater things which are before.

WATER STEAL HOLDS UP GRAIN BOATS

Above are seen views of some of the thirty four grain boats which were held up in the Welland canal last week as a result of the unusually low water levels which have recently been brought about by the Chicago steal and other causes. Although the vessels are loading more lightly than in previous years one or two of them nevertheless strikes bottom in the canal every so often, with the result that all traffic is tied up until they can be refloated. Thousands of dollars are thus being lost as a result of delays and curtailed cargoes in the case of the vessels and of stoppage of work in the factories when water normally used for generating electrical power has to be diverted to raise the canal levels.

NEW REGULATIONS.

Young People's League of Marmora Laid Plans For Winter Season.

MARMORA, Oct. 6.—There was a full attendance at a meeting of the Executive of the Young People's League at the Parsonage on Friday evening, when new regulations for the conducting of meetings for the coming session were drawn up. The Christian Endeavour Department is in charge of the programme on Wednesday.

YATES—WILSON.

The wedding took place in Hamilton on Saturday of Mr. A. V. Yates, of Deloro, to Miss Christina Wilson, of that city. Both having been on the staff of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, are well-known and very popular in this locality. They received many valuable gifts, including a cheque from Deloro Staff Club and a set of cut glass ware from the general office staff. Upon return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Yates will reside in Deloro.

After spending a day in Montreal, and last week end as the guest of the Rev. W. P. Woodger, of Trenton, Mr. Ernest Osborne returned to Winnipeg last Friday, accompanied as far as Toronto by his mother, Mrs. Ben Osborne, who is spending a few days in that city.

Under the superintendence of Mr. G. E. Blake, the Deloro Sunday School reopened on Sunday with a goodly attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hartley left on Sunday for Toronto, to spend a week's holiday there.

Mrs. John Bateman visited Trenton and Belleville, the early part of last week.

Mr. K. B. Patterson spent the week end in Hamilton.

Mr. W. L. Rigg is spending a week in Toronto.

Mrs. Edward McGarvey, who has been spending the past month with relatives in town, returned to Toronto on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Arthur Hart, of Deloro, is spending an holiday in Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. William Marsh, of Campbellford were visitors to town on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Narrie and two grandchildren visited relatives in Campbellford on Sunday.

Mrs. William Jones, Sr. is on the sick list.

Miss Mildred Heogle, of Campbellford was the soloist at the United Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. Michael McFarlane recently paid a visit to his native village.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Yeomans and family, of Havelock, were visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Abe Smith's on Sunday.

MEIGHEN WON'T MAKE PROMISES

Tells Nanaimo Electors That His One Policy is Adequate Protection.

NOT SPENDING MONEY.

NANAIMO, B.C., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).Optimism about a Liberal victory in the election is narrowed down to Government supporters, and with these it was an optimism of words rather than conviction, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen told a gathering of electors in Nanaimo yesterday. While the Premier and his henchmen were boasting of coming victory, it was significant that four cabinet ministers were fleeing through the window of the Senate or elsewhere, and three had deserted their constituencies to seek safe havens elsewhere," he said.

The Conservative leader said that if his audience expected promises, they would be disappointed. Perhaps, he said, they have been led by Premier King to expect promises. The Liberal leader exuded promises. "If there is anything you particularly want in way of public works, just suggest it in the right quarter before election, and you will get at least a promise from the present Government," exclaimed Mr. Meighen.

But he did not intend to start recklessly spending the public treasury in advance to obtain votes. He had only his official defined policy of adequate protection for all branches of Canadian industry to offer as a solution of the problem of wider home markets, increased railway traffic and increased immigration.

EIGHTEEN GRAIN CARS DERAILED

Track Torn Up and Serious Loss to C.N.R. Rolling Stock Near Best's.

Eighteen cars, loaded with western wheat, were derailed early this morning near Best's station, on the Lindsay line of the C. N. R., about four miles from Peterboro. They were tumbled down a forty foot embankment and thrown togeth in one of the most serious accidents of its kind in this district. Passenger traffic this morning, in and out of Peterboro was diverted by way of the Millbrook link to Lindsay. The noon train came through to Millbrook up to Peterboro, and returning to Millbrook proceeded on to Port Hope. This evening's train was directed in the same way although in the opposite direction.

This afternoon it was believed that the line would not be cleared until late to-morrow.

No person was injured in the tangle but it apparently represented quite a heavy damage bill in rolling stock for the cars were all new. Considerable grain was spilled but this loss was diminished by the strength of the freight cars. Employees of the C.N.R. said they had no idea of the cause of the derailment.

CANADA CANNOT BE CALLED FREE

So Long as Liquor Traffic is Allowed There Can Be No Progress.

SAYS W.C.T.U. HEAD.

PEMBROKE, Ont., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—"Can we expect progress in our fair Dominion so long as the Federal Government fails to recognize international law and through our excise department permits smugglers and rum runners to illegally pursue their course; so long as permits for home brew and commercial manufacture are permitted in dry areas, so long as the government can disregard the mandates of the people given at the polls and force upon loyal peoples a ruling contrary to the will of the majority, just so long we dare not say Canada is free.

"The indifference and worse of our legislators cannot be passed by lightly. If we vote them into power we shall share their guilt" declared Mrs. Wm. Pugsley ,president of the Ontario W.C.T.U., in the course of her address at the 48th annual session of the Provincial Convention of the Union, in session here. "The question of prohibition is a political one, it is in politics to stay," she said.

According to Father Maurice Beckett, a priest-scientist in London, there is a possiblity that all lighting and heating, and even cooking, will be done by radio. He has been successful in sending power by radio over a distance of 10 feet.

A daily newspaper in London is now printed on paper made entirely of straw.

OPEN LETTER NO. 14

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

I once heard of a cab driver who thought he could economize by cutting down on his horse's feed.

After making the first cut, and finding that the horse could still work, he figured it would be safe to make a second. Getting by with that, too, he decided to try a third. But the third proved disastrous; the horse became so weak it could do no work at all. And though the driver begrudgingly restored it to a full diet again, he had to quit business for a time, waiting for his horse to recover.

When, from a desire to enable our people to economize, you start the process of scaling down customs duties on manufactured goods, you are committing yourself to a course that is fraught with great danger.

Strong, healthy industries will serve the country far better than industries whose strength you unintentionally impair. Like the cab driver's horse, they are capable of greater effort, and more prolonged effort, when well-nourished than when under-nourished, and in their case that means a larger output, more materials used at good prices, and more labor employed at good wages.

But carry the process far enough, and inevitably you will make a cut that will serve as the proverbial last straw, to break some industries down, and force them to close. It is that last cut that constitutes the difference between a protective tariff and a revenue tariff.

Whether it be a five per cent. cut from 20 to 15, or only a two per cent. cut from 10 to 8 (and when an industry is in the last stages of weakness a two per cent. cut may prove just as fatal as a bigger one!), the saving to Canadian consumers is negligible.

But to Canadian workers in that industry, it makes all the difference between employment and unemployment, to retailers in the towns where the individual plants are situated it makes all the difference between good times and bad times, to neighboring farmers it means a restricted market, to other manufacturers who have been selling them materials and supplies it means reduced sales, and to the railways that have been serving them it means no raw material to haul.

Now Canada has to have some sort of tariff in any event, as a means of raising revenue. So the price she pays for protection, with all the incidental benefits just mentioned, is not the full amount of her tariff, but only the extra 2 or 5 per cent. needed to keep her industries functioning.

If the purpose of your experiments were to determine, for each class of industry, the exact point in tariff reduction where the element of protection finally disappeared, leaving only the element of revenue, I am prepared to concede that they might have some scientific value, as indicating danger spots, to be kept as far as possible away from, for all future time.

But if your real and only object is to enable people to economize, I submit there are ways you can help them better than by prescribing a starvation diet for the industries upon whose proper functioning so many of them must depend for their livelihood!

OPEN LETTER NO. 13

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Have you ever stopped to consider how quickly business of every kind reacts to that intangible something we call "confidence," or "lack of confidence," as the case may be?

A confident farmer doesn't hesitate to bring a larger acreage under cultivation, or to purchase the implements necessary to plow, seed and harvest it. A confident artisan doesn't hesitate to build himself a home, or to indulge his family in modest luxuries. Multiply each by the hundreds of thousands of farmers or artisans who may have similar cause for confidence and the result is good times for all!

But let a farmer or an artisan lose confidence, let the former grow fearful that there will be at best only a poor market for his product, or the latter that he will shortly lose his job, and the tendency in each case is to cut expenditures to the bone. Multiply that by the hundreds of thousands of farmers or artisans who may have similar cause for misgiving, and the result is bad times for all!

But business reacts just as quickly to the confidence, or lack of confidence, felt by the business man himself, as it does to the confidence or lack of confidence felt by his customers.

A merchant who is confident that his customers are going to be able and willing to buy freely, doesn't hesitate to stock up in anticipation of their demands. The manufacturer who is confident that he can hold his own against competition in a growing market, doesn't hesitate to renew contracts for material, or to undertake plant improvements or extensions. Multiply each by the thousands of merchants or manufacturers in a similar frame of mind, and we have a business boom!

But let a merchant or a manufacturer lose confidence, let the former entertain the belief that sales are going to fall off, or let the latter see a situation looming up where foreign competitors are likely to arrive to undersell him, and in each case all plans for the future are suspended, and buying is reduced to a day-to-day basis. Similar action, for similar reasons, taken by thousands of other merchants and manufacturers, produces a business depression!

Your policy to date has been one of tariff reduction. Tariff reductions inevitably tend to increase the competition from foreign goods in the domestic market, and so to lower prices and to reduce wages. Is there anything in that sort of thing to inspire confidence? Has it enabled business men to plan more intelligently for the future, and has it encouraged them to go ahead with those plans? Has it given confidence even to the farming community for whose benefit it was designed? How could it possibly do anything else than undermine confidence?

Tariff instability is the greatest confidence-destroyer known to business. One year's reductions only start speculation as to what the following year's reductions are likely to be. The result is a slowing-up all along the line, the abandonment of a go-ahead policy and the substitution therefor of a hand-to-mouth policy, a general avoidance by capital of the risks incidental to business, and a rush by capital to seek safe investment, even at low returns, in government and municipal bonds.

The only quarter in which Canada's tariff instability builds confidence is outside her borders! The increase of activity that has been so noticeable of late on the part of British Trade Commissioners and United States Consuls resident in Canada, in reporting to their respective Governments the new opportunities for trade that our tariff reductions have created, is surely eloquent of the loss of confidence our own producers must feel.

Tariff stability on the other hand, based on real protection, is the greatest confidence-builder known to business. As seeing is believing, turn your eyes southward and see what it had done for the United States!

The responsibility for a large part of what has happened to Canadian business in the last three years must lie at your door. But provided you now show yourself possessed of the vision and the courage to adopt a policy of tariff stability with real protection, you might fairly take credit later on for the business recovery that would be certain to follow.

Yours respectfully,
J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

PROGRESS IN IMPLEMENTS OF AGRICULTURE IN ONTARIO WAS SHOWN AT WOOLER EXHIBITION

First Plow Ever Used in Murray Township Was on Exhibit.

RAIN SPOILED FAIR

Arrangements For Best in History Were Ruined By Storm.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WOOLER, Oct. 7 — There was certainly at least one novel feature at the Wooler Fair which was held yesterday, something that showed to a demonstration the progress that has been made in agricultural machinery within the past 100 years, a feature which the directors of other fairs in Ontario would do well to note and imitate. The first plow ever used in Murray Township was on exhibition, holding a place of honor in the main hall. This plow was used by the late Sam McColl when he came from the old country in 1815 and settled on a farm in this district, a farm still held by his descendants. It has one handle and the moldboard and landside are of maple. The only iron about the instrument is the share, so cunningly fitted to the wooden frame that the contrivance is a silent testimony to the skill of the blacksmiths of pioneer days. Imagine a man of modern times, plowing with a one-handled implement, among roots and stumps and pulled by oxen at that. But there were no cities in those days in which the discouraged young farmer could find refuge.

The owner and designer of that plow was the grandfather of J. S. J. McColl, who at the age of 83, is hale and hearty, yet treasurer of the Wooler Fair, a position which he has held for over 30 years. The farm on which the plow was first used is now occupied by L. B. McColl. The former has made a present of the plow to the Fair Board, and its permanent home in the main hall, where it was shown yesterday, a building 30 x 60 feet that was erected since the fair of 1924, at a cost of over $700.

Rain Spoiled the Fair.

After the directors had made special preparations for holding the best exhibition in the history of Wooler, with improved grounds and a new building, rain spoiled the fair. The race track was a sea of mud and water, and the races had to be called off, although there were some of the best horses in the district on the grounds. S. Blewett of Peterborough was there with Si Winger; Ross Turley of Frankford had Viola Belle ready to start, and Charles Armstrong of Havelock was on hand with his pair of pacers, Mack R. and Rex Hal. There were the two local horses, Butcher Girl and the Sharpe colt that has won every race in which he started this year.

There was a fair display of cattle. The Holsteins, predominating, and of light and heavy horses. In the sheep pens, C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, had 16 exhibits, and every one of them won a red ticket. W. J. Cowan of Codrington, had his string of 13 Percherons on exhibition and, as usual, carried off all the honors in that class. When Mr. Cowan was asked yesterday why he always brought 13 horses to a Fair, he declared that the popular superstition attached to that number had no terrors for him. He was, himself, the youngest of a family of thirteen children and has always regarded himself as fairly luky since he started life on his own.

Two Specials.

The W. I. of Wooler offered two special prizes for the best plain white cake and for the best made man's work shirt.

Mrs. Percy Gooding, mother of Nancy Elizabeth, the infant that won second in the Peterboro Examiner baby contest at Campbellford, was awarded first in a bake of plain pastry.

The prize winning baby was not on official exhibition yesterday but it was one of the chief attractions of the fair.

The men's shirts were not judged before the Examiner representative left for home but the articles on display were creditable examples, and evidence of the fact that the art of needlework has not been lost by the women of the Wooler district.

How Old is Wooler Fair?

There was more than one octogenarian at the Fair yesterday in spite of the unfavorable weather, men who have spent all their lives in this district, and yet not one of these could recall when the first Fair was held. T. B. Pake of Brighton, who is in his eightieth year, and who is rather inclined to boast that he never cast a Conservative vote in his life until his son-in-law, Milton E. Maybee, was elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1921, says that he attended the Fair at Wooler 55 years ago, and has not missed many since. At that time the horses and cattle were shown on the street, and the other exhibits in the village hall. Mr. McColl, the treasurer, has attended the Fair for over 60 years, but his memory goes back no further.

Another rarity of which Wooler is proud is its brass band of fifteen pieces, which has been in existence without a skip for the past 35 years, and which claims to hold the record for continuous service in Ontario. The band did not play yesterday, but the Cornwall Kilties were brought here in order to give the patrons of the Fair a change in the musical programme. H. B. Currey is leader of the Wooler Band, and he is at present training a number of boys to take the places of some of the veterans who have been with it from the beginning.

Some of the Visitors.

The candidates for Parliament, Milton E. Maybee and Fred J. Slade, availed themselves of the opportunity agorded by the gathering to meet their friends. Warkworth sent a large contingent and Campbellford was well represented. Among those from the latter town and vicinity were Neil Morrison, Councillor and Mrs. W. S. Wiggins, Mrs. Harry Lowrey and Mrs. E. C. Dolman and ex-Reeve Van Volkenburg and family of Seymour; Dr. S. L. O'Hara and W. S. Battisby, who came to act as judges of the races, but whose services were not required.

The directors of the Fair, the officers of the Board being E. W. Wessels, president; T. C. Jones, vice-president; H. Wessels, secretary, and J. S. J. McColl, treasurer, are not dismayed. They have surmounted many an obstacle and stood many a hard bump in the past, and will survive the misfortune of yesterday.

FINAL SESSION OF CONVENTION

Teaching of Art and History Was Taken Up on Friday.

OFFICERS ELECTED

COLBORNE, Oct. 7.—About one hundred teachers left for different parts of Northumberland County on Friday noon as a very successful convention came to an end, many of the older members stating that it was one of the most interesting conventions that they ever attended.

The session was opened by Rev. Robert McKim, Anglican pastor of Colborne, who stressed the work of the teachers of teaching the pupils law, order, justice and obedience.

Miss M. Mitchel of Colborne High School gave an excellent paper on "Choice Literature."

Mr. S. W. Perry, M.A., of the College of Education, Toronto, then demonstrated and explained many important facts in Art, especially classic and Gothic lettering.

A very hot discussion then arose on the teaching of history, many teachers differing in their methods.

Miss M. Draper gave an excellent account of her trip to Northern Ontario. She also gave an interesting description of the mining process, as was described to her in Cobalt.

The Nominating Committee then gave its report as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. Robt. Boyes.

President—Mr. C. S. Jones of Brighton.

Vice-President—Mr. M. Smith of Warkworth.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. C. S. Haig of Campbellford.

Auditors—Mr. Everett Fairman of Petherick's Corners and Miss Edna Connor of Myersburg.

SCHOOL BOARD MET LAST NIGHT

Routine Business Was Transacted at Meeting of Trustees.

REPORTS READ

Routine business engaged the attention of the Board of Education at the regular October meeting last night. The reports of the various health officials showed considerable inspection work done among the children of the schools and a number in need of attention. J. A. Abraham, attendance officer, reported the majority of absentees back in their places. In July, August, and September there were 41 applications for working and home permits for adolescents, of which 28 were granted.

One hundred dollars was granted to the athletic associations of the Collegiate Institute to assist in financing sports, the distribution being left to the Principal. The question of using the schools as polling places in the municipal elections was left to the property committee.

The attendance report for the schools is as follows:

	On roll	Average	P.C.
Collegiate	639	620	97
P. of Wales...	615	579	93
Central	490	464	94

"Canada, Canada, land of the beaver,
Labour and skill have their triumph to-day;
Oh! may the joy of it flow like a river,
Wider and deeper as time flies away.
Bells, chime out merrily,
Trumpets, call cheerily,
Science and industry laugh and are gay."

—John Reade.

It was a magnificent Canada that John Reade pictured when he wrote his celebrated Ode to Dominion Day,—a Canada that was in a very real sense the land of the beaver,—a Canada that was abundantly prosperous under the dominating influences of science and industry!

But his prayer that her progress might flow uninterrupted like a river has not been altogether fulfilled. For the past few years the picture of Canada as he painted her has been turned towards the wall.

Under the withering policy of cancelled protection, Canadian science has become little more than a handmaiden to the United States, Canadian industry has languished and contracted, and the Canadian beaver finds a shadow on its right to pose as our national emblem!

The Exodus of People to the United States

The cream of our youth, fresh from schools and colleges where they have been trained in the arts and sciences, are leaving the homes that have raised them, are forsaking the country that has educated them, and are throwing in their lot with Canada's greatest rival.

Native-born scientists, writers, artists and musicians of exceptional ability all too frequently drift away from Canada to the United States, where careers of wider scope attract them, and where more money is to be made by the exercise of their talents. Many of our ablest business executives are similarly lost to us because of the tempting offers they receive from across the border.

Canada educates these young men and young women at the public expense—brings along a new lot of them every year—for what? For Uncle Sam to take his pick! And the irony of it is that when he gets them, he frequently employs them at tasks that result in loss of business, loss of employment, to people in the country of their birth!

The Exodus of Material to the United States

But it is not alone of people that the United States has been bleeding us. It has tapped our storehouse of raw material as well, and is slowly but surely depleting it.

Canada is foolishly selling her forest products as raw materials, when she might be selling a much larger proportion of them as paper, or as highly finished articles of wood.

Canada is foolishly letting United States millers take her hard wheat, that makes the best flour in the world, and grind it into flour to supply foreign markets, when she might be supplying those markets herself.

Canada is foolishly inviting United States manufacturers to help themselves to her ores, so that they can make them into metal products to sell back to her, when she might be making them into metal products herself, and forcing the United States consumer to buy from her.

Economic laws do not work one way for one country, and another way for another! Repeat the cause, and inevitably you repeat the effect!

No country in the world is more blessed than Canada with the things necessary for rapid and sustained progress. All she needs is men and money to develop her resources. And these she can get if she goes after them properly!

Being still what is commonly known as a pioneer country, Canada should be attracting population from lands that are more congested. But at present she isn't! And the reason she isn't, is that she is doing nothing to assure the prospective immigrant a steady job at good wages!

You Cannot Make Bricks Without Straw

Canada cannot hope to attract immigrants so long as her own people are leaving her in thousands, and going to the United States!

She cannot possibly compete for immigration with the United States so long as her manufacturers are denied the protection that would enable them to pay United States wages, and still hold their own against importations from low-wage countries!

By steadily lowering her tariffs, Canada has been forcing her manufacturers into a position where they are between the devil and the deep blue sea! They must pay substantially United States wages or lose their skilled help. Yet when they do, without a tariff like that of the United States to protect them, they cannot control their home market against European goods that have been produced by cheap labor!

If Canada wants immigrants, it must have healthy industries. And if it is to have healthy industries, it must protect them!

But by Using Good Seed You Can Grow Fine Wheat

Canada should aim to use not only her own resources, but the raw materials available from other countries, to build up healthy industries for herself.

The United States has managed to build up huge paper, nickel and asbestos industries on the basis of raw material largely supplied by Canada.

The United States produces no raw silk, no raw rubber, and very little raw sugar of its own, yet to-day it possesses the world's greatest industries in those lines.

Such industries have been a big factor in swelling that country's population, and adding to its prosperity. If Canada were to develop similar industries in the same way that the United States has developed them, there is no reason why she could not swell her population and add to her prosperity in proportionate degree!

NO MONEY FOR WAR MEMORIAL FROM SEYMOUR

Councillors Refuse to Act Without Approval of Ratepayers.

PAY SCHOOL BOARD

Counties Council Requires Total of $15,047.27 From Township.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 7. — Major J. M. Bygott and G. A. Kingston, representing the War Memorial Committee, appeared before the Seymour Council Monday afternoon and renewed, on behalf of the I.O.D.E., the request for a grant for a soldiers' monument. Both delegates made short addresses, explaining that the Town Council had already made a grant of $1,000, and that plans for the memorial had been accepted, the cost to be between five and six thousand dollars. It was proposed to have the work done during the coming winter, so that the monument would be ready for erection next spring, but the committee wishes to know where the money is coming from before anything further is done.

Reeve Grills and Deputy-Reeve Peake explained to the delegation that following the first request for a grant the Council had decided to call a meeting of the ratepayers of the township to get their views on the proposition, and that at that meeting not a single taxpayer, outside of the members of the Council had shown up. In view of that fact, the Council, being short of money, did not care to assume the responsibility of doing anything this year.

Mr. Kingston suggested that a good way to get the opinions of the ratepayers would be to submit the question to them in the form of a plebiscite at the next municipal election, and this course may yet be taken.

To Pay School Money.

Major Bygott was more successful when in his capacity as Chairman of the Board of Education he asked the Council to pay as soon as possible at least a portion of the money which the township owes for the maintenance of the town schools. The Major was accompanied by Dr. H. B. Longmore and George O'Sullivan, members of the Finance Committee of the board.

The township's share of the cost of maintenance this year is $2,200, and of this nothing has as yet been paid. The three members of the delegation took turns in presenting their case, explaining that the salaries of the teachers and other expenses had to be settled monthly, and that the town had already borrowed money to pay the bills.

After the delegation retired, it was decided, on motion of Councillor Turner to pay the board $1,000 at once.

Hydro to Pay Share.

A communication was received from the legal department of the Hydro Commission agreeing to the request of the Council that the Commission pay half of the $453.86 which the township has expended on repairing the highway between the new power houses at Dams 8 and 9.

Owing to County.

Seymour Township this year must pay into the counties' fund the following amounts: County rate, $12,905.64; public and separate school rate, $129.05; debenture rate, $193.58; bridge rate, $1,819.00.

The township is also expected to furnish six grand and 24 petit jurors for duty at the various court sittings this fall.

Bills totalling $1,968.44, the greater portion of this amount being for work on the highways, were ordered paid.

LAKEFIELD CITIZEN CELEBRATES BIRTH

S. S. Spence Was 76 on Tuesday—Still Hale and Hearty.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 7.—Mr. S. S. Spence celebrated his 76th birthday on Tuesday, October 6th and is the recipient of good wishes from friends all over the village. Mr. Spence is Lakefield's veteran business man and can still set the pace for the younger men. He is deeply interested in all local affairs and takes an active part in municipal, political and church affairs.

The softball games scheduled for this week are:

Thursday, October 6th—Firemen vs Douro.

Thursday, October 8th — The Grove vs Selwyn.

The standing of the teams to date is

	G.P.	Won	Lost
Firemen	1	1	0
Business Men	2	1	1
Grove	1	1	0
Selwyn	1	1	0
Douro	1	0	1
Masons	2	0	2

The vote on the cement by-law will be taken on Monday next and the by-law, it is claimed, will insure to the village for years to come a industry which stands well in the forefront of Canadian manufacturers and which has in times past spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the village and will in future do even greater things. It is pointed out that a large factory with a large pay roll helps every one as there is a decided advance in the value of property in prosperous times and this may influence the vote on Monday.

The siren fire alarm has been wired and is sounded each day at 12 o'clock noon. The new electric siren will replace St. John's church bell, which, by the courtesy of the officials of the church, has been for many years the fire alarm.

The annual Field Day of the Public and High schools will be held, weather permitting, on Wednesday afternoon of this week. Owing to an unfortunate accident, Clare Irwin, who has always been one of the outstanding figures at these sports, has broken his right arm and will not be able to compete this year.

There is a great deal of interest shown in this Field Day in Lakefield and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance of friends of the school and also parents.

TUBERCULOSIS RAPIDLY DECLINING. .. .. ..

Vital statistics prove it. Tuberculosis is not now considered the absolutely fatal disease it was 25 years ago, if it is taken in hand early. The modern treatment is not drug treatment, but dietetic, sanitary and hygienic. If proper foods, cleanliness, fresh air and sunshine can cure tuberculosis they surely can prevent its onset. And if these can prevent the onset of such a terrible disease they surely can prevent the onset of most other diseases. And, since food is that out of which bodies, good or bad, are made, food must surely be the most important. And Food Science agrees that the most essential foods are the unchanged foodstuffs of nature. Science lays a large share of the blame for so much disease upon the extensive use of white flour and refined "ghost cereals" from which the mineral salts, fats and vitamins have been foolishly refined away, and without these there can be no permanent health.

Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is a natural, unrefined whole grain product, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran. It compensates the deficiencies of white flour, "ghost cereals", etc., and reinforces your health. Its growth-promoting properties make it especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th. month. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Do you remember, when you were little, of your dream of finding the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow? All during the Summer when you saw your girl friends falling in love and sat by and watched, you felt as though Love ahd passed you forever. But how wonderful now that the langourous Indian Summer days are here and you find the one of whom you have dreamed has come to claim you for his own! Aren't you glad you waited and didn't despair? For even though the golden glory of the Summer days has faded, the rich wonder of the ideal Indian Summer days more than makes up for your lonely time. Love comes to all of us, if we are patient, and no matter what the season, it is the ideal season for Love.

USING PATCHING PLASTER TO MEND WALL BREAKS.

The first requisite of good grooming in the home is, of course, good broom—or, to be more thoroughly modern, good vacuuming. Dustless corners, speckless rugs, polished furniture do much to make hour house spick and span. It takes more, however, than the application of the broom, the vacuum cleaner and the dust cloth to keep the walls and plaster presentable. No matter how spruce the room is otherwise, it looks shabby if there is a crack in the ceiling or a break in the wall.

In the kitchen, which should be the neatest room in the house, there are sometimes holes in the wall where water and waste pipes enter. Close them up. Water bugs and roaches are looking for just such cozy retreats.

You may have tried mending the walls with plaster of paris and found the job unsatisfactory because this material hardens very quickly and shrinks away from the edges of the break. An easier substance to work with is the prepared patching plaster to be obtained in hardware and paint stores. It is a fine-etxtured mortar, scientifically prepared in powder form, needing only the addition of cold water to make it of the right consistency for patching. A small trowel or an ordinary steel kitchen knife does the job satisfactorily here, but in the case of small crack a pain brush isg the best implement and the plaster should be mixed thinner than when larger surfaces are to be covered. And when the plaster dries there will be no crack around the edge of the patch to be filled with a separate application.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Queen Mary Branch Has Open Meeting in School

An open meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the school on Monday evening, with a good attendance. The President, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, was in the chair.

The presentation of diplomas for entrance examinations was made by Messrs. A. Mowat and M. N. Clark, followed by an address given by Mr. Mowat, in which he congratulated the pupils on their success in passing examinations, and also touched on the kindergarten work in the schools.

A musical programme included violin numbers by George Gatfield, a piano solo by Margaret Johnson and a piano duett by Miss Greta Welbourn and Tom Allen, vocal selections by Miss Doris Donley, with accompaniment by Miss Gwen Donley, and readings by Mrs. H. Connolly and Miss Helen Ross. The service of light refreshments brought the evening to a close.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY
By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DISCUSSES A NOVEL NIGHTDRESS FOR TRAVELLING.

"Would you mind awfully if I sent you to Chicago this week?" asked Madame one morning. "Mrs. Stanbridge has sent for some new friends and, as you know, I never feel confident unless some one goes with them to see that they are properly shown."

"Wonderful!" I answered. "I've been wanting a change for weeks. Besides you know I always welcome the chance to pick up a different idea—as one often does from the West."

Oddly enough it was Gaby who made the discovery. I was safely tucked in my berth and she was still in the dressing room when a hand came exploring through the green curtains and Gaby's excited whisper made me come quickly. I slipped hastily into my Pullman robe and followed to find Gaby to all appearances cold creaming her face but really appraising another traveler. "Look," whispered Gaby, "It looks a dress except for the length, but it's really a night dress."

And sure enough it was, the exact sort of travelling gown I have always felt the need of and never seen. Dull silver blue in tone, it had long sleeves and a soft roll collar that fastened up the front with dainty blue silk buttons. A glance at the diminutive mules which she wore were a necessary assurance that it really was a garment meant for sleeping purposes.

"The sleeves are put together with hemstitching and the vest is outlined in the same way," murmured Gaby again. "When she turns around you'll see that there is a darling monogram of deep purple. And all those side pleats in the skirt give plenty of fullness for any amount of restless stretching. Do you think you can make a sketch from memory?"

ADVICE TO GIRLS
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens and about a month ago I was visiting in another city and met a young man whose friendship I value very much. I told him I was going to move and woud write him wy address. As it happens, I did not move. This young man is now working in this city. Would it be quite proper for me to write to him, asking him to call on me.

SHORTY.

Shorty: It would be a very nice and courteous thing for you to do, Shorty.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1. I have received a letter from a young man whom I have only seen once or twice. Should I answer the letter?

2. Should a girl ask the young man to call on her for the first time, or should the man ask permission to call?

POPPIES.

POPPIES: 1. It is wisest not to answer such letters, as they may lead to embarrassing situations later on.

2. The young man should ask permission to call.

SECRETS OF CHARM
By Lucrezia Bori

A LEMON AID TO BEAUTY.

Recently I met an old friend, whom I had not seen for a long time. I knew that she had met with reverses in fortune years ago and that she had had to work hard since then, as she is the mother of a large family of small children.

Knowing these things I was agreeably surprised to see that she looked as young and pretty as she did years ago when she had everything to make life easy for her. I noticed especially that her hands, which had always been lovely, were as soft and white as when she was a girl.

I could not refrain from remarking on the beauty of her hands. She smiled in a pleased way and replied:

"If they are pretty still, it is because I have always used lemons to keep them soft and white. My grandmother tauhght me the value of lemons in beautifying the skin and I have always remembered what she told me. I am never without lemons in the house."

I made her tell me more, and what I learned I am going to pass on to my readers.

Most of us have lemons in our ice boxes in the Summer, if we drink iced tea or lemonade, or use them for various flavoring purposes, but how many of us think of keeping a lemon handy as a beautifier? However, from now on I recommend this practice as an excellent one.

When you find that your hands are stained from peeling fruits or vegetables, or working with a typewriter, or any ordinary cause, rub them thoroughly with the half of a lemon. A lemon from which most of the juice is removed is quite as good as an unused half, so you will do well to save the lemons you have squeezed for lemonade. Then again, you may have a slice or two of lemon left over in the ice box. A single slice can work the same results, so the treatment is not an expensive one.

Also, when you are caring for your finger-nails, you will find that digging them into a lemon, pinching them far into the inner side of the rind, will whiten and cleanse the inside of the nails wonderfully.

OYSTERS AGAIN IN SEASON

In selecting oysters for cooking, the medium sized ones are the best for all uses but frying—the large oysters are choicest for this use. In frying the oyster, it may be dipped in a dainty fritter batter, or in fine sifted crumbs, or in white cornmeal, according to choice.

Fried Oyster Sandwiches.

Select the medium sized oysters and dip them in seasoned fine crumbs, then fry in hot fat. Drain on blotting paper or yellow butcher paper. Have ready thinly sliced bread lightly buttered, then smeared with tartar sauce. Lay on oysters to cover one slice, then place the other on top, dusting with a little paprika and garnishing each sandwich with a stuffed olive.

Oysters in Ramekins.

For six ramekins, drain and chop eighteen small oysters coarsely. Add a beaten egg, pepper, salt, juice of an onion, a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves, a tablespoonful of soft butter and a small cupful of fine crumbs. Mix well and fill buttered ramekins with the mixture then add a tablespoonful of cream to each one and bake a delicate brown in the oven. The ramekins may be used as an entree for a fish dinner, or for a luncheon dish if preferred.

Panned Oysters On Toast.

For four people, make four slices of toast, remove the crusts, butter and arrange on a hot dish. Take two dozen oysters and drain them well. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a small saucepan and slip in the oysters, cover and shake them for two or three minutes over the fire until their beards curl, then turn them onto the toast, ust with a little pepper and salt, garnish with lemon quarters and serve.

Creole Oyster Loaf.

Slice the top from a bakers' loaf, then scoop out the crumbs. Oil over the surface and set in the oven for a few minutes to toast delicately, then set on a hot dish. Meantime, fry as already described two dozen large oysters, after first dipping them in very fine crumbs. When done, fill the loaf with oysters and turn over them a very smooth tomato sauce, highly seasoned with pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of curry powder, a tablespoonful of sugar and add to it a tablespoonful of washed and chopped capers. Put on the cover and serve garnished with parsley and lemon quarters.

Spanish Oysters.

Put a layer of oysters in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, dot with butter, dust with pepper and salt, a tablespoonful of grated onion. Add a layer of fine crumbs, then the oysters again and so on until the dish is full. Have crumbs and butter on top. Dust with a little grated American cheese and bake a delicate brown.

CHAPTER IX.

"Kiss your Daddy Jim!" Bob choked, holding the child down until his lips brushed the still warm cheeks of his father.

Then Bob bent over and kissed him, too, while hot tears fell from his eyes upon the face of his friend.

He had to crawl away now, to save his own life and that of Bobby. When he got clear again of the wreckage he was in a daze of grief for his friend; of terror for the extent of the disaster for which, as driver, he was responsible, to a less or greater extent he did not care. The crushing truth was that he had failed his trust—and at what a cost. Hardly knowing or caring what he was doing, Bob seized Bobby up into his arms and staggered off into the night with him—into the wild and barren mountainside country, away from the screams and groans of the maimed and frightened in the tangled, burning monument to his moral unfaithfulness to duty.

There have been, in the long and oft-times honorable history of beds and bedmates, surpassingly odd bed fellows; dukes and beggarmaids, prelates and—but then, there is little emphasis in a mere nibble of an inexhaustible cake. Historic instances form the exception to the rule; the case of Caroline and Jane form an exception to the exception.

Because, in any serious phase of life, there never were more intimate bedfellows than these two who were total strangers to each other—intimate, that is, in a sense of not having a single emotional secret from one another; in boring with the eyes of sex instinct through the defensive armor of each other's soul; in trying to appear as if they did not know full well that their spirits were naked, one to the other. Experience gave Jane no advantage in this, for through the medium of half a dozen words and a night together it was given to Mary to read Salome.

Upon awakening that morning following the party, Jane ascertained, by a slight turn of her head, that her bedmate was awake. They exchanged frosty good-mornings. Then Jane gave herself up to a voluptary's animal luxuriating in the yielding delightfulness of the feather bed—that locally considered barbaric and outlandish furnishing introduced here in the spare West, by the pioneering Widow O'Leary.

It did not take Jane long to discover in the morning light something on a high shelf that she had overlooked in the gaslight of the night—that was, a photograph of Bob in obvious and significant prominence. Jane whet her rapier on the discovery.

Caroline, rising quietly, went to the window and made wide the way of the fresh breeze and sunlight. Caroline's nightgown was not thin; and before this moment Jane had not found a chance to observe what she had been dying to observe—Caroline's figure. Now, against the flood sun, her gown became transparent; the slender boyishness of her young form was revealed to Jane's jealous eyes, who thought of the dumpiness already creeping in behind her own knees.

A hurried pounding on the door—and Mrs. O'Leary calling in a high, frantic voice for Caroline to open. Alarmed, Caroline unlocked it hurriedly. Mrs. O'Leary's face was as white as her apron.

"The Limited's been wrecked!—Jim Fowler was among the killed, and Bob and Bobby are missing!"

Caroline sank weakly upon the bed, slim fingers clutching her throat. Jane looked serious, but not particularly upset. Ever after, Caroline remembered that Jane's face had shown no sorrow—for she had glanced at her in the tragic tension of the moment, and had seen only stone.

The rest of the story that had filtered down the line to Crater City was told as fast as Mrs. O'Leary's excited, trembling, lips could voice it.

"Relief trains are bringing in the hurt. There's ugly talk amongst trainmen that Bob took a chance and deliberately ran past the red signal that was set against him at Rise Ravine station. 'Twas his fault they all say, and his arrest has been ordered. But they can't locate him!"

Presently Mrs. O'Leary was gone, weeping—and the two girls were left alone in a dead silence. Finally Jane shrugged.

"I guess one must expect those things on a railroad!"

Caroline moaned at her in grief-stricken intensity. "How can you be as matter of fact about it? Don't you realize what this means—to poor Bob——"

"Means he's in a hell of a jam, I guess!"

Caroline forbore in despair. She rose then, goading her quivering body into action, and started swiftly to finish dressing.

"I'm going to him—I'm going to Bob—he will need help!"

Jane appraised her coolly; glanced up at the picture on the mantel, then back to Caroline and remarked:

"It means—ever so much more to me. I think you'd better let me see Bob alone!"

Caroline stared at her. If it were true that Bob would rather see this woman, Caroline would not stand in the way; but the disgust over Jane's heartlessness had not left her yet, and Caroline did not think there was much real concern now behind Jane's declaration.

"You can go to him if you want to," she cried stoutly, "but I'm going, too! I love Bob and you can't keep me from him!"

Jane nodded, and drew out a cigarette "Oh course, but I tell you what he is to me——"

Caroline, in terror, stopped in the movements of dressing. Jane smiled on, ever so sweetly, reaching over the bureau for her handbag and taking from it a significant gold circlet, which she held up to Caroline's eyes.

Caroline gasped—"No! No! You can't mean——"

"Oh, yes! Yes! I do mean just that—Bob is my husband. You wouldn't want to come between man and wife, would you?"

For the second time in the fatal five minutes of bad news following bad news, Caroline collapsed to the bedside. Jane met her eyes boldly, brazenly, and Caroline could not find in them the hint of a lie she hoped to find.

She finished dressing now, apathetically—courageously trying to hide her hurt from the alien in her room. And, finishing, she went out—without a word. She was grimly and earnestly determined to help Bob no matter what his former relationship with Jane. Caroline knew in her heart that somehow Bob's part in this was aboveboard; it was not in her heart to believe that Bob would make love to her if he was the husband of this woman, at least without first telling her of the fact and seeking a meeting on honest terms.

But wait and search through she did through that long day, and through many long days that followed, there was no sight of Bob or word from him. The wreck was cleared away, the Transrockian flyer steamed on their wonted way, and the excitement became a part of the City's remembered past. The charge of negligence of duty hung in the air, to be clamped on Bob should he ever be found. And the trainmen talked—talked in ways that made Caroline's ears flame and her heart sicken within her—of the sort of a man Bob must be that he would run away from the result of his incompetence or carelessness or both.

Jane had gone. Left without seeing Caroline again, that first day.

Then something happened that fired Caroline with renewed hope after many days of despairing waiting. One of the girl clerks in the Western Union office—an alert little girl, who also boarded at Mrs. O'Leary's—fell to gossiping with Caroline one day, in the course of a combined friendly and dining visit to the lunchroom.

"Say, remember that woman you had overnight a while ago?"

"Well, she was a cuckoo! Came into the office that morning and gave me a message to a guy in Chicaog—called him husband. Will you believe me if I tell you she took back that message' rubbed out the name of her 'husband', and inserted a different name no less than four times. She must run a sharem!"

The girl fumbled in her bag. "Look, I sneaked out the office copy to let you read it!"

Caroline read with a mist of eagerness over her eyes:

Henry Gaston: Hotel Amazon, Chicago. At last I have come to my senses comma dear husband comma and realize that I love only you stop Wire money order and I will come at once stop Jane Caroline's heart was fluttering like a frightened robin's, as she handed the message back to the girl.

"But that ain't the worst of it," the girl now explained, "for that guy sent the money order within two hours, yet a week later we got a message for her came to the office asking why she had not shown up. I don't believe she ever went there!"

Caroline did some fast and furious thinking during the next hour, and at the end of that time she slipped over to the telegraph office and with the connivance of her girl friend, sent a message of her own to Gaston, diplomatically phrasing a request for information about the relationship of one Bob Wilson to Miss Jane Gordon, as she called herself.

Before night this return wire was in Caroline's hands, which were shaking from the very joy of it:

Caroline Dale, Crater City. Don't know any Bob Wilson but a Bob Snobson was Jane Gordon's first husband as result of college boy elopement escapade stop Boy disappeared account disgrace of his prominent family stop Father hzd the marriage annulled stop Jane Gordon married several times since stop Can you heid me find her stop

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE CATS OVERRUN THE TOWN.

In the little town of St. Ives, on the Cornish coast, every tourist or visitor gets a little shock of amazement at the spectacle that presents itself. Cats are everywhere—underfoot, scurrying about, sunning themselves, washing their paws and generally occupied with the duties that make up the life of any cat.

We might, perhaps, on first glance think that this abundance of cats was a nuisance. There are few of us who would care to have more than one or two cats about all the time. Even the most enthusiastic cat-lover contents himself with a few of his pets. But among the people of St. Ives there could be no such thing as a superabundance of cats. They encourage the growth of the feline population with every means at their disposal.

The inhabitants of this strange little town explain this phenomenon in this fashion: The town is very old. Some of the houses, indeed, are five hundred years old. And the fishing gear, which is very precious to this fishing village, is stored in the basements during the Winter months.

The implications are obvious. Where there are old wood and dampness there are likely to be rats. The cats are the protectors and saviors of the industry of the town.

There is one peculiar thing about the cats of St. Ives. They do some fishing on their own account. They romp over the sands and prance out among the waves. They will watch a shallow pool for hours until some small fish or crab emerges within reach, and then pounce upon him.

There is an old rhyme that is frequently sung about St. Ives and the visitor finds that the contents have the virtue of being true. It is:

"As I was going to St. Ives
I met a man with seven wives.

St. Ives Cats A-Fishing.

Every wife had seven sacks,
Every sack had seven cats,
Every cat has seven kits.
Kits, cats, sacks and wives,
How many were there going to St. Ives?"

You can easily see that the cats and their offsprings were far in the majority in the crowd.

The light of early morning in October! Who can think of anything finer, when the weather is sunny?

Robin Hood was already out raking up leaves and getting his chores well in hand, so that he would be free for the day, and it was not yet breakfast time.

How wonderful it was. The air was full of the joy of health and happiness. It had a peculiar tang to it, a cool but very friendly freshness, which all the Merry Men were feeling at that very moment, for all were up bright and early.

This was to be the day on which they would perhaps move into their tool-house log cabin. And, as the early morning mist started to rise from the fields and hills, disclosing patches of woods in all their flaming beauty, even though much of it had fallen to the ground it was too much for Wess Johnson; he ceased his raking and went over, beyond the barnyard, to the old cedar-rail fence at the edge of the Greenwood, and sat upon a rail, as the sun, dissipating the mists of morning, warmed his manly young soul and filled him with the glory of God, Who must indeed be Glorious, to think in such beauty.

While Wess sat in silence, there was a rustling of leaves along the bottom rail, and a chipmunk, not knowing he had company, was going about his business, gathering seeds from weeds, and trying to make his overful mouth contain two more apple seeds, which absolutely refused to stay put. It made Wess laugh, which startled the chipmunk so much that he gave a big puff of astonishment, blowing the seeds everywhere. He became so excited that munk so much that he gave a big puff he tried to get in a hole which wouldn't hold him, and when Wess laughed again, he lost his balance, falling to the ground and disappearing.

"So that is how seeds get scattered, is it?" mused Wess. "And just look at those birds eating along the hedge rows. They too are busy eating weed seeds. There is Rossignol, and there is our little Chippy, and-and-and—, h'm, I wonder what those two are, they do not belong here."

And, as the birds worked closer, Wess finally had a good look at them, and to his very great delight, they were Fox sparrows, from far north, on the way south for the winter.

"Well, who would have thought that I would see a Fox Sparrow, without looking for it?" thought Wess. "I will have a hard time making the Merry Men believe that."

The fancies of morning, both in the air and in Wess himself, began working that magic change in him, making him from a mere schoolboy, into the romantic and charming fairyland prince, Robin Hood, Chief of the Merry Men of the Greenwood. And then, as he sat there, watching the birds, and listening, listening, listening, a woodland nymph began to dance among the trees and sing a pretty little song. It seemed as though this Greenwood Fairy meant him to hear, so he listened to the song.

The Song of a Woodland Nymph to Robin Hood.

Oh, Robin Hood, come blow your horn,
Your Men await its calling,
Let echoes borne
Upon the morn,
Shake Greenwood leaves afalling.

Oh, Robin Hood, blow long and clear,
Shake every limb from sleeping,
Your Friar dear,
And all, are near,
Each tree will yield its keeping.

Await your horn resounding,
Come, blow the call!
Awake them all,
And set the echoes bounding!

—W. H. R.

Wess awoke with a start, for his father was coming across the field towards the Greenwood, blowing the curled horn, in an effort to call Wess to breakfast.

"You fell asleep, Wess, and fell off the fence into the grass, just as I was going to call you," laughed Mr. Johnson, "so I went in and obtained your Robin Hood horn. Half the boys are over at the house already, waiting to move the shack."

This was surely crazy magic, for Wess could hardly make out whether he was asleep again or not. He had been asking his father for the log house, as a headquarters for the Merry Men, but had not been promised it, so he felt his way a little.

"The boys will be glad if you will let us have the toolhouse, Dad, did they say anything much when you told them whether they could have it or not?"

Mr. Johnson had not intended to let them have such a fine house, as he really needed it, but when boys are fine, manly little fellows (some of them not so little), and Robin Hood gets up so early to do his work that he forgets it and falls off a rail fence, sound asleep, well, what can a man do?

"I'll tell you, Wess, if you can give me one good reason why you sat doing nothing, and fell off the fence, I will give you boys the house," bargained Mr. Johnson.

"Would a Fox Sparrow that you never saw in your life, eating weed seeds on our farm, be a good answer?" anxiously ventured Wess. "And many other useful and beautiful birds working for you for nothing?"

Mr. Johnson could not stand the pressure. He put his arm about the lad's shoulder, "Wess, my boy, that house was set on smooth skids, the last time it was moved, and if you will go over and borrow an extra pair of horses, we can move that log cabin into the greenwood in two hours; six horses could move the moon, almost."

Wess was no longer asleep, no longer by his father's side, no longer hearing woodland nymphs. He was running, almost flying, to the house. Before his breakfast was over, Jimmy Britton had become Friar Tuck; Don Bonter, Little John; and the eager lads, the Merry Men of the Greenwood.

When Robin Hood stepped out into the yard, with his Mother behind him, the yard was full of chains, horses, boys, and noise, in the centre of which rested the little log cabin, shorn of door, window frames and foundation. It was already on rollers, ready to start for the Greenwood, and the place for it not yet selected.

The rest of the story of the moving of the house of the Merry Men, will appear next week.

GIRL WHO SOLD SELF GUILTY OF LARCENCY

Oriental Maid Completed Two Transactions With Two Men.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6 (United Press)—Can a woman sell herself to two or more men? And if she does what charge can be placed against her.

These two questions, while perhaps offering a court no great problem in the Americas where there are more laws than enough to cover every possible phase and kink of human conduct, presented a neat puzzle for the International Mixed Court here to work out. But work it out it did, arriving at two answers to the second count.

"No," was the answer to the first question tendered to the jurists. The second was not so easy but after much pondering and ransacking of municipal statutes and Chinese criminal codes, it was decided that the accused and entirely unconcerned female would be tried either for larceny or for obtaining money under false pretences, with a preference for the former violation.

Pretty Pan Ling-tz was destitute. She needed money and needed it badly. Assuming an unquestioned right as far as Chinese law goes, she sold herself to an ardent suitor for Mex. $80. So far everything was lovely, but the eighty failed to last as long as Ling-tz expected so Miss Pan calmly sold herself to another gentleman at reduced rates.

Purchaser No. 1 began an investigation and discovered his property in possession of the second buyer. Argument was to no avail. Persuasion, solicitation, entreaty, and threat, met with no more success. In desperation the rejected lover appealed to the police. Ling-tz' arrest followed, and the legal battle was begun.

While it was admitted little Miss Pan had a right to sell herself to one man, it was decided that from that date she became the property of that man from whom the only escape was either to buy her freedom or take legal action to prove that she was mistreated. Therefore if she sold herself to another, she stole something that did not belong to her and disposed of it—larceny pure and simple.

With a jail term for robbery staring her in the face, the complainants relented. The first buyer agreed to sell to the second and thus settle the matter. He held out for a higher price however in true Chinese style, and made a neat profit on the transaction. Everyone, including the Court, was satisfied.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY MAKES A DISCOVERY.

When Dotty heard the queer crying noise she stopped suddenly and began looking to see who it was.

"Oh, dear," she whispered, "I wish Happy Giggles was here. I'm sure he could help whomsoever is in trouble."

"Sure I can," laughed a merry voice, and the very little elfin Dotty had been wishing for appeared around the edge of the bushes, "Well, here I am, Dot. What is the trouble now?"

"Oh, Happy Giggles!" exclaimed Dotty. "I'm sure glad you are here. Some one is in trouble. Hear him crying? I've been trying to find out who it is. Hear it?"

The queer crying noise sounded again from the bushes and out popped a wee, little, greyish-brown creature, with rather large ears, and bright black eyes.

"Well, well, if it isn't Crying Hare!" cried Happy Giggles shaking the little fellow's front paw and introducing him to Dotty. "Dotty here thought some one was in trouble. She heard you crying."

"Goodness no," chuckled the wee little fellow. "I wasn't crying at all. You see some folks call me 'Crying Hare' because I make the funny noise you heard. I'm not a Hare at all. My real name is Pika, Billy Pika. True I have hair on the soles of my feet just like all hares, and I haven't even as much tail as a Rabbit has."

"Well, Mr. Pika," laughed Dotty. "You're not much larger than Mrs.

Goodness No I Wasn't Crying."

Peter Rabbit's babies. But your ears are rounded while Bunny Rabbit's ears are pointed. Where do you live Mr. Pika?"

"Away up in the mountains under the rocks," replied Mr. Pika. "I have been haying all day——"

"Been haying," laughed Dotty, "what in the world do you mean by that?"

"Why, gathering grass and pea-vines," chuckled Mr. Billy Pika. "You see I live on the fresh greens all summer and then along in the fall, I begin to gather in the grasses and pea-vines, lay them on the rocks to dry in the sun, and then when I'm sure they are quite dry, I carry them down into my store-rooms so I'll have something to eat during the cold days."

"But why do you dry them first?" asked Dotty who was terribly interested in the little fellow. "Why not store them green?"

"No, indeed," laughed Billy Pika. "They would all sour and spoil if I did. No, I never store them away until I'm quite sure they are dry. If you'll excuse me now, I'm very busy," and with a funny squeaking sound, Mr. Billy Pika gathered up a few whisps of grass and bounded away, "hoppy-idy-hop," over the ground.

Dotty watched him out of sight and when she turned around to say something to Happy Giggles, she found he had hopped away also. Laughing softly, Dotty ran on down the path to the brook in search of new adventure.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY GO OUT TO MEET ADVANCING YEARS?

In one of his books, my friend, Dr. Frank Crane, says: "Be children, all of you, be children. God save us from an elderly, respected world. Be children and learn how to play."

That is good advice.

Have you ever observed the difference between one old man and another? One is spry, good natured, alert and young in spirit despite his years. The other is lame and halting, uncertain on his pins, and ever cross and crabbed.

It is a pity to grow old. Old age and death must come, of course. But why encourage age? Why go out to meet increasing years?

There are fundamental reasons why some persons seem much older than others who have had exactly the same number of birthdays. It isn't a matter of the spirit alone; there are physical reasons for the difference.

Local disease, characterized by decay or pus formation, will produce conditions capable of undermining the strongest body and the sweetest spirit.

Neglect of the mouth, the preservation of a few old roots of teeth, permitting a chronic nasal catarrh, bronchitis or running ear to go on year after year without real attempt at cure, disregarding an obstinate constipation or a persistent diarrhoea, and overlooking a long-standing involvment of the generative organs—in one or more of these careless acts may be discovered the foundation of a rapidly progressing old age.

But if there is no underlying physical defect, if all the organs are sound and functioning as they should, there is no excuse for giving way to advancing years. Here is where we need the stimulation of Dr. Crane's advice. We need to answer his appeal by the determination to be young, to be children.

When you advance in life create new interests if you have tired of the old ones. Cultivate a hobby. Collect stamps or coins, interest yourself in the church, the lodge or in politics. Get pleasantly excited over community matters.

Learn to play golf or even to run an automobile. Every day I see a man of ninety riding a bicycle past my door. It can be done.

Learn how to play, even though you haven't played since you were a little child. Don't fold your hands and invite death! Don't stand on your dignity. Don't crave to be "old and respected." Be young and act young, no matter if it shocks the neighbors. They may call you an "old fool," but be glad if they do. Folks never call a dying man an old fool, so if they call you that you may thank God and take courage. You are on the way to a happy and active old age when you will be spoken of as "eighty years young." Learn how to play!

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

B. B. Q.—What would you advise for matter in the eyes?

2.—My eyelids are red. What causes this?

A.—This may be due to an infection or cold in the eyes. Bathe them with a warm solution of boracic acid several times a day and at night apply 1 per cent. yellow oxide of mercury ointment.

2.—The redness is caused by inflammation, which will disappear when the condition has been cleared up.

F. P. K. Q.—What causes a girl of 11 years to have queer dreams at night?

2.—How much should I weigh? I am 11 years old, 4 feet 5 inches tall.

A.—This may be due to neurasthenia. Build up the general health by eating the meals at regular intervals. Get plenty of exercise and also plenty of rest and sleep. Be sure to have regular intestinal elimination. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—You should weigh about 56 pounds.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8.

A day of complexity and probable inharmony is forecast from the dominant lunar and mutual directions. With Saturn in strong position, wielding an adverse influence, there are likely to be delays and obstructions as well as sinister situations brought about by treachery and deception. Mars, also in unfriendly attitude, may cause trouble through quarrels and rash acts. Litigation should be shunned.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of troublesome conditions, largely caused by ill-temper, quarrels and rash deeds. But there is also a menace through deception and treachery. A child born on this day may be disposed to be ill-tempered and impulsive, a tendency that may cause many difficulties in life unless it be subdued.

NEW COMPOUND KILLS WEEDS.

Unsightly weeds along the garden path are doomed, according to a German correspondent of Popular Science Monthly. Certain compounds have just been patented that may be added to the gravel before laying the paths, in order to prevent any weeds from growing. The most potent of these compounds are the soldium and calcium sulphonamides.

Blue-jay is the efficient way to rout a corn. It leaves nothing to your guess-work. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each plaster is a complete standardized treatment, with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn. Simply put on the plaster—it does the rest.

She hated to acknowledge the Corn

So goes the old saying. And few indeed, like to confess a corn. It seems such an undainty thing—an admission of physical untidiness. One may conceal the presence of a corn, but not its ill-effect. It shows itself in the face—and the humor. That twinge in the toe means a frown on the forehead—and a thorn in the disposition. But how foolish to carry a secret sorrow in your shoe! You can end the pain in ten seconds—and the corn in two days—with a pleasant Blue-jay plaster.

G. A. BRETHEN DENIES ASSERTION OF MRS. FALLIS THAT HE WOULD LINE UP ONLY BEHIND LIBERALS

Progressive Candidate Declares Old Parties Exchanged Political Advantage in West Peterborough and Wentworth—Avows His Independence.

MEETING HELD AT WESTWOOD.

Meighen Subordinated Welfare of Canada to Interest of Conservative Party in Quebec Says the East Peterborough Member.

Replying to the assertion which he said Mrs. H. T. Fallis had made at the Conservative meeting at Norwood to the effect that if he was elected in the new constituency of Peterboro-Hastings, he would simply line up behind Mackenzie King, G. A. Brethren, M.P., at Westwood in Asphodel Township, last night defended his record in Parliament as an Independent Progressive, charged Liberals and Conservatives with giving party interests precedence over the welfare of Canada, and declared that East Peterboro had been thrown in with North Hastings in redistribution as part of a political deal between the old parties, in which the Conservatives received an equivalent advantage in the riding of Wentworth.

"After the meeting at Norwood," said Mr. Brethen, "I asked Mrs. Fallis upon what grounds she had stated that I would line up with Mackenzie King, in the event of my election. She told me that she supposed that I would. I said to her that my record in the House showed that I had voted with the Government twenty-three times and twenty-five times with the Conservatives against the Government. And I remarked that on such important matters, Mrs. Fallis should speak facts and not suppositions."

Further on in his address, which was received with rapt attention by the audience of some forty-five men and women, Mr. Brethen said that the great curse in the political life of Canada today was partyism, and as an illustration of his arraignment he related the following episode:

Opposed Harbor Grant.

"Shortly before the House closed the Government brought in a bill to expend $10,000,000 on the Quebec Harbor. The Progressives said, 'Show us how you justify that outlay?' The Government replied that they proposed to build more elevators there. We made an enquiry ourselves and found that they were not using the elevator capacity which they had there. We were then told that the wharves were to be improved. We concluded that it was a wasteful appropriation and we fought it all afternoon and evening and again the next day, and when the vote was taken we Progressives were solidly against it. That was the party Mrs. Fallis and others say always lines up with Mackenzie King. We opposed it to a man, and if we had got any support, we could have blocked it.

We looked to our right, where the fifty Conservatives should be sitting. That is the party that is preaching economy if they get in and are busy just now criticizing the Government for wastefulness, and that say they will pull Canada out of the hole. Well, they had a wonderful opportunity that night to have saved this country $10,000,000. When the vote was taken there were in the House only nine of the fifty Conservatives, and six of that nine voted with the Government, because each of them wanted an elevator, a post office or something else for his own constituency.

Just Three Conservatives.

Just three of the fifty Conservatives voted with us. Where were the rest? The rest of them were in the lobby. Why didn't Mr. Meighen come in and vote against that bill and save ten millions of the people's money. We met him in the lobby afterward, and chaffed him about it.

Mr. Meighen said: "I'm in bad enough in Quebec. I don't want to get in worse."

Mr. Meighen was willing to let ten millions of the people's money go into wasteful expenditure to save the Conservative party in Quebec. Is that the leadership we want in Canada? On the next vote they got a few more members in, and Sir Henry Drayton spoke against the bill. Mr. Meighen, however, remained out.

That's partyism, and if you were down there you would curse partyism. You need to elect more men who will put Canada first, otherwise you will continue to pay and pay and pay for partyism as you have been paying a good many years."

Mr. Brethen said he believed the people were beginning to wake up and think for themselves and act for their best interests.

Will Turn Corners Squarely.

"I voted for the Progressives and against the Progressives; for the Conservatives and against them; for the Liberals and against them. I am as free as the air I breathe to support what I think is the best legislation for my constituency and for Canada as a whole. Don't be alarmed about any pledges or alliances by me with any party. A man said to me that I might not be long in political life and that I should learn to turn a sharp corner. Ladies and gentlemen, you will find me farming at Norwood before I'll do anything like that. I'll take the corners square, or not at all. I believe I can do you people some good at Ottawa. If you think I can do more good than Dr. Embury at Ottawa, vote for me. I think that's fair. And that's all I ask."

Redistribution Story.

In his introduction Mr. Brethen referred to the incidence of redistribution on old East Peterboro. "I wanted the two Peterboro ridings to be united within the county boundaries. It was no advantage to me. You can realize that from the fact that it would have included an urban vote of 28,000. When I advocated the joining of the two Peterboros I did it simply because I knew that the people who sent me there wanted it that way. Why did it not go that way? The wishes of the people were not considered, nor was the principle which had been followed by the great men of the old parties in the past, namely that county boundaries should be maintained and preserved. No, the only consideration was that the change made it easier to elect certain members. The people were only an after consideration. The change was made with the solid united vote in the House of Commons of the Liberal and Conservative parties, except the late Tommy Thompson. It was opposed by the solid Progressive vote and Tommy Thompson.

It was said at Norwood that the Conservative party was not to blame. The Conservative party at Ottawa has got to take the blame for the part they did take in it. The changing of this riding would never have gone through if the Conservatives had been solid for making Peterborough one. It was a political bargain, and I saw it done. I was in the corridor outside the committee room where I could be quickly reached if needed. I saw three Conservatives and three Liberals come out and go to the end of the corridor. They came back and Mr. Harry Stevens, the Conservative member for Vancouver, stood up and moved that Otonabee, Douro and Lakefield be added to West Peterborough and that the rest of the county get the new riding of Hastings-Peterborough. The solid support of every Conservative and Liberal was opposed by the Progressives. I moved on the floor of the House that the two Peterboroughs go together. The debate ran until one or two in the morning. I did all that I could against the rest, and when the vote came the Conservatives and Liberals went solidly against my motion, except the late Tommy Thompson of East Hastings.

Afterwards I met Mr. Meighen in the lobby, and I wish to say that any reference I make to Mr. Meighen is political and not personal, for personally I like him. He said to me, "Brethen you're right. I'm sorry I couldn't support you, but we were tied up by what our men did in committee. Two or three other Conservatives said much the same thing. Of the Liberals, Mr. McMaster and Mr. Raymond told me that I had put up a good fight, that they were sorry they couldn't support me, but they had to support their party.

That's partyism for you. Don't blame the people of Hastings. They didn't want the change any more than you did. Blame the people who voted for it."

Mr. Brethen declared that the riding had been changed because the Conservative member for Wentworth wanted something, and Mr. Gordon wanted something in Peterborough.

Tariff a Pretext.

Sketching the tariff policies of the Liberal and Conservative parties, Mr. Brethen affirmed that in fifty years the difference between them was only between one and two per cent. In the United States the Fordney tariff of 1920 did not save the farmers of that country from the depression of their industry in 1923.

"You can't judge the prosperity of the United States by conditions in a few great cities. What about the United States as a whole. In the first six weeks of 1924 seven National and 95 State banks in six of the middle west States went broke because they were holding the notes of farmers who had become bankrupt. And in the four years 95 National and 457 State banks went into bankruptcy. We think it is awful when we lose one Home bank in fifteen years, and so it is. But what of the conditions I have just named. We want prosperity for the farmers as well as for the cities."

Tax Reduction.

Mr. Brethen declared that tax reduction and not the tariff was the paramount problem facing this country. In the House of Commons on June 2nd, 37 members voted for Mr. Meighen's tariff policy and 147 voted against it. "And I believe it will meet the same result at the hands of the people," remarked Mr. Brethen.

"The issue for years to come will be tax reduction. Canada is the fourth most heavily taxed country in the world. France with all her war loss is not taxed as heavily as the people of Canada. Every other nation in the war, I refer particularly to the United States, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, have reduced their war debts. The United States has paid off $5,000,000,000 in five years, and the interest has been reduced accordingly. Canada has done practically nothing.

Blames Government.

I claim the present Government is to blame because it had not the moral courage to take hold of the problem and give us the leadership we need. Why didn't Mr. Meighen have the vision after the war, when times were good, to begin paying off the debt? Men in other countries had the vision to do it. And so it becomes that much harder for us. What is wrong with Canada is that we have not an outstanding man in either party to give us leadership in this respect. President Coolidge has reduced the United States war debt, not by talking of saving millions, but by saving the pennies and the dollars. He has lopped off two billions in two years from the debt of $5,500,000,000, and is trying to reduce it another half billion dollars. The people appreciate economies of that kind. The U. S. per capita debt has been cut from $54 to $27. We can do it too if we get busy."

Mr. Brethen said he had suggested in the House the reduction of the Civil Service by requiring a working day of eight hours instead of less than six hours, but the Government did not accept it because the Government has two members elected from Ottawa, and the Government was afraid of taking action that would antagonize the Civil Service vote.

"It has been a custom for members of Parliament to try to get a post office or armoury. I haven't tried to get a post office for East Peterborough, because I'll not support for East Peterborough the expenditure of money for any building we can do without. Because if I did I could not oppose wasteful expenditure for a public building in any other constituency. And I believe every public expenditure should be ear-marked for the nation's interest, and that it should be pure economy to build it rather than do without it. It must come to that before there will be any improvement in the financial condition of Canada."

Mrs. J. McCaffery.

Mr. Brethen avowed himself a temperance man, and the Progressive policy on the temperance question was dealt with at length by Mrs. John McCaffery, of Madoc. "A woman speaking recently said the temperance question was not an issue in this election. What can be done for temperance unless through our governments. All temperance legislation comes through governments. If we don't send men of outstanding temperance convictions to parliament we cannot get this legislation through. You have heard it said that the pen is mightier than the sword, but when we are marking our ballots we should realize the might of the pencil we use."

Reeve John Scott, of Asphodel, presided. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE

Sells for 2c More a Gallon —and is worth it

1 The Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has never made, or sold, but two grades of gasoline—White Rose and Red Seal. Our Red Seal sells for 32c a gal.

2 They are pure as gasoline can be made.

3 For nearly a half-century White Rose Gasoline has been sold for more a gallon than the market price of ordinary gasoline.

4 White Rose is the only gasoline for which those who know its merits have willingly paid a higher price for nearly fifty years.

5 White Rose Gasoline is made by a Company that drills its own wells, owns its own pipe lines, tank cars and refineries.

6 The sale of White Rose Gasoline has increased from a few hundred gallons to many millions of gallons a year.

7 White Rose Gasoline contains no injurious chemicals or "dopes."

8 The results claimed for White Rose Gasoline are based on facts gained from actual usage and not on theory or experiment.

9 Recently, there have been many "price" imitators of White Rose Gasoline. But never has White Rose had a "quality" imitator.

10 No artisan in any line takes greater pride in his product than do the men who sell White Rose Gasoline.

Continuous use of WhiteRoseGasoline will soon convince you of these facts:

11 That it creates a smooth, turbine-like flow of power —never jerky, cranky, sputtery or "bomb-like."

12 That White Rose Gasoline will "drive" your engine to the maximum of its capacity.

13 That White Rose Gasoline can not injure in the least those finely-machined parts with which it comes in contact.

14 That the instantaneous ignition of White Rose Gasoline gives you that most desirable feature—"pick-up."

15 That White Rose Gasoline makes your car run more quietly and smoothly, because it "pushes" instead of "blasts" its way through to the exhaust.

17 That it gives greatest load-mileage.

18 But, only at the end of a year's daily use of White Rose Gasoline will you fully appreciate how much it has saved you. This evidence you will obtain by a comparison of your engine repair-bills as against those of the previous year.

En-ar-co Motor Oil Saves the Silk Surface of Polished Steel

En-ar-co Motor Oil is softer than velvet. It preevnts friction of moving parts. It allows noiseless freedom. It has "body" that withstands the severest heat, always preventing metal-to-metal contact.

En-ar-co Motor Oil forms a perfect protective film between rings and pistons, between pistons and cylinder walls. This prevents seepage of "gas" into the crank case, prevents excess oil reaching valves and plugs to form injurious carbon.

These are the reasons why White Rose Gasoline sells for 2c more a gallon—and is worth it.

SELWYN CONSERVATIVES HEAR SPEECHES ON TRADE CONDITIONS

Foresters' Hall Crowded to Capacity For Campaign Oratory.

DESERTING YOUTH.

Canadian Raw Materials Keep United States' Industry Busy.

Selwyn Conservatives heard an enlargement on the political situation last night when E. A. Peck Conservative candidate, J. F. Strickland and W. Boulton presented their case in the Forester's Hall before what was considered a capacity crowd being composed of both sexes in almost equal representation.

The speakers dilated upon the need for a change in the legislature as evidenced by the spirit of depression rampant which had a direct bearing upon both urban and rural life as each was interrelated. Figures were presented in proof of Figures were presented in proof of assertions made regarding the exodus of Canadian youth to the United States. Criticism was evinced for the policy or lack of policy in the King platform and references made to the tactics of the opposing Liberal candidates, Hon. G. N. Gordon and Hon. Vincent Massey.

G. B. Nichols was appointed chairman and conducted the meeting in a highly creditable manner. The candidate was first called, being followed by Mr. Strickland and Mr. Boulton in the order named.

A. E. Peck

Mr. Peck submitted that he had been a resident of the community for a lengthy period and that in business and municipal matters he had had occasion to meet the people many times and was accordingly well known. Therefore he respectfully sought their support in the forthcoming election.

He was not in the campaign to satisfy any personal ambition but considering the pressure which had been brought to bear upon him he had consented to let his name come before the convention. As he realized that something should be done to improve conditions he resolved to plunge into the situation to uphold what, in his opinion, he considered right.

The country was suffering for want of labour opportunity—it was suffering from the trek over the border because of the lack of employment. Figures which Mr. Peck quoted and which, he stated, were issued by the department at Washington, gave evidence to the fact that Canadians were leaving in ever-increased numbers.

In 1922 the value of settlers' effects registered was five millions of dollars—1923 saw the figures climb to $6,000,000 and in 1924, the last year for which statistics were available the sum amounted to $9,000,000. In the last four years Mr. Peck claimed that records bore him out in the statement that 100,000 Canadians left for the United States. "What is the matter with Canada that both young and old find it necessary to leave their own country to seek fame and fortune in another less favoured, I believe than our own. We have a fine country—the finest in the world—full of the resources of field, forest, mine and lake; we have a people active and progressive yet we are unable to hold these people in such a land." Mr. Peck declaimed.

The Liberal friends were not troubled about the matter however and had adopted no effective measure whereby the exigencies of the situation might be met. The fact of the matter was that the employment provided was insufficient and the reason for that state of affairs was that the government had been negligent in providing protection for Canadian industry. What was true of Canadian industry applied equally to the Canadian farm.

Home Produce Market

Personally Mr. Peck would be a Free Trader if Free Trade were possible of attainment but national conditions appear in such an unsettled state that it could not be evolved.

Duties, however, are imposed and the industry of Canada is affected by the fact that goods manufactured in other countries under cheaper labor conditions can be sold in Canada at prices so low as to cut competition and incidentally swamp Peterboro factories. Carpets can be bought from other countries and sold in the city more cheaply than those made by a carpet factory in operation there. There is a clock factory in the city which makes dependable and cheap time keepers but German and Swiss manufacturers can dump their products in that territory at rates which do not permit competition. The same is equally true of the Woollen industry and in fact all other Canadian industries. There are two avenues open. Either the home market must be built up or new fields opened in foreign lands. But practically all other nations have almost insurmountable tariff walls so in reality that is no avenue at all. Consequently the home market remains and the condition now prevails that thousands of Canadians are leaving the country robbing it of its legitimate consumers.

Canada was directly affected by existing tariff conditions for the following reasons which, Mr. Peck said, were but a few of the many which could be presented Eggs to the value of two million dollars had been imported, this sum was irretrievably lost for Canadian ure; $7,000,000 worth of wool had been imported; $7,000,000 worth of hides; a half million had been paid for foreign butter; another million for apples, while vegetables totalling 10 millions had been purchased from countries other than Canada.

Mr. Peck followed this by showing the discrepancy in the tariff which permitted the marketing of such vast quantities of produce which might be cultivated in Canada.

Canadian corn entering the States paid a tariff of 15c per bushel. Canada fixed no duty on corn. Flour was exported to the States after a rate of $2.04 per barrel had been collected and the same flour could be shipped back into Canada by paying a duty of 50 cents. Tariff on Canadian butter was 8 cents, on United States butter 4 cents. Canadians paid 8 cents duty on a dozen eggs while shippers in the States could market their eggs by paying three cents.

Australian Treaty

Following the recent adoption of the treaty between Australia and Canada still greater competition may now be expected as Australia is favored with an equable climate permitting in some places the pasturing of herds throughout the twelve months of the year. Fresh meat will pay ½ cent per pound. Eggs will be admitted free as will cheese, while butter will pay a negligible sum of 1 cent per pound. Furthermore, Mr. Peck stated, Australian cattle would come with a bonus on each head.

It was not possible to get the essential protection from the King government. King lets things drift along. He has let them drift for four years and it is not likely that he would attack the vexing problems with any additional zeal if given another lease of power. That is why such a lease of power is not going to be granted him.

Mr. Peck felt that it was not possible to build up the country unless trade was protected and accordingly as Meighen was the leader whose policy embodied that principle he was the man worthy of taking charge of national affairs. Briefly Mr. Peck thanked his hearers and solicited their support at the polls.

Mr. Strickland.

Intense interest had always been entertained by Mr. Strickland in all election campaigns, and he had had his ups and down, but he believed that he had seen the handwriting on the wall and was of the opinion that a "political up" was in store for him.

Mr. Peck, he continued, was well known in all the ridings, and as far as he (Mr. Strickland) was concerned he had but one basic fault to find in Mr. Peck's deportment, that fault being his diffidence in "tooting his own horn."

While in politics the speaker claimed that the candidate had done more toward aiding the people than any other man in the Legislature. Wherever one went one might hear Hon. G. N. Gordon dilating upon his efforts in the constituency. His advertising has resulted in placing him in a position of trust.

When he was named as Minister of Immigration he made the announcement that he proposed to settle Peterborough County with English farmers who, by their touted methods of intensive farming, would make the county blossom like a garden. Mr. Strickland had no doubt but that there were just as good farmers in Peterborough County as anywhere in the land, and in addition to that there was as much waste land. He had never heard such a barefaced and impractical pronouncement.

Premier King was out West by this time, and when he heard that his new Minister was going to confine his attentions to Peterborough County, he hastily decided that a Western man was the man for that portfolio, so he had sought to confer that honor upon the Premier of Saskatchewan, who has preferred to take the "wait and see" attitude. Does Mr. Gordon believe the people to be entirely credulous when he nerves himself to propounding such a policy? Surely he must put great trust in the short memories of his constituents.

When King was in British Columbia he stated that it would no longer be necessary for the United States to operate branch factories in Canada. When asked by a member of the audience if the reason would be that the factories were to shut down and the workers lose their jobs, King did not reply but instead requested that the troublesome person be evicted. When Mr. King is requested to enunciate a policy he replies, "Put him out."

There have been periods of bad times, Mr. Strickland conceded, but there has never been a period so marked in this respect as the one which has identified Mr. King's tenure of leadership. This will be a Bread and Butter election, and whether or not the supply of those commodities shall continue depends largely on having the King Government thrown out.

Capital is shy as there is no positive security of returns.

Canadian woollen mills compete with great foreign mills which have dumped their surplus into the wide and unprotected Canadian Dominion. Mr. Strickland's opponents who stated that three woollen mills in Renfrew were operating at capacity, were not fully conversant with the facts. There was no foreign competition in their line as all factories turned out specialized jobs, such as mackinaws, which were used in everyday life, but not one of the factories was capable of finishing the cloth as for undergarments. Yet the opponents thought that, because those three factories were running there was some mark at which to shoot.

Housing Conditions.

Mr. Strickland had no doubt that many present knew of some who had departed for the States to make a living, although he supposed that the exodus was not so pronounced in rural as in urban centres. He ventured to say that if any of them wanted to move to Peterborough he could get a house at a saving which might amount to $1,000. He didn't know where some of the people were digging up their taxes. Not so long ago it was considered cheaper to own a home than to pay rent. Now householders are paying three or four times the normal rent in taxes. A Peterboro auctioneer had acquainted him with the fact that four families had sold their effects last week, intending to move to the States. The situation was deplorable, and the sole remedy was the turning out of the Government and replacing Meighen as the administration head.

Much publicity has been loosed regarding the stand which Vincent Massey has adopted. The purposes of King would have been better served if it had been the late Lloyd Harris who had become involved. Mr. Strickland claimed that Lloyd Harris forgot more about implement manufacture than Vincent Massey will ever know. However, Massey was well educated although he had never been active in political life. It is quite likely, the speaker continued, that he may shortly be a resident of Great Britain where he will ensconse himself when the smoke of the campaign has cleared away. His handle will serve him there in elevating him to the eminence which his vaulting ambition craves.

Senate Reform.

The Premier states that he will reform the Senate—reform it from within, and he has already launched into the campaign of reformation, judging by his recent numerous appointments to that body of aged politicians, weary of the conflict, and anxious for a surcease from strife. Are these gentlemen irresponsible to match his designation of that body through the medium of the Globe?

The Premier complained of the Senate killing his pet bills, but the country can thank the Senate for defeating measures which would have occasioned stupendous expenditures.

In August, Mackenzie King proclaimed that he would not permit himself to be stampeded into an election, and within three weeks of that valiant glorious dictum he stated that he would go to the people. What transpired between those highly contradictory statements? It must have meant that the King government had the sinews of war in their hands, and those who supplied those sinews did so with the confidence that a stable government would be returned to power.

The only way to assure a stable government would be to support the candidature of Mr. Peck, concluded the speaker.

W. Boulton.

"During the past four years Canada had experienced one of the worst periods of depression in its history," asserted Mr. Boulton.

When he went to Peterboro he tried unsuccessfully for some time to find a house; there were two for sale, but they were not what he desired. In an issue of the Examiner recently he noted that twenty-five private houses were on sale not counting the holdings of real estate dealers. There must have been others who did not advertise. He had watched affairs with an observant eye for a change, but it had not so far materialized. "Nor will it until October 29th" he declared.

He related that a leading Liberal had told him that Peck in the city would be given a heavy majority; but he was not so confident about the country.

The tendency of the day was to stabilize national life, some giving the war as the cause of unrest while others placed the blame on the weakness of governments, fashioned on the group plan, which had been found in the weak reactionary aftermath of the war.

King was encouraging this group system when he told the people of Ontario to fight those of Quebec. In other places he is not preaching this disintegrating doctrine but advocating the most amicable of unions.

Natural Assets.

What good is a country which is not the factory of its own resources? Canada is peculiarly blessed with plenty of raw material, but what good will it do if Canada sends that material to the United States' factories, and then sends its youth after it to make up the goods?

By voting for Peck, one automatically voted for "made in Canada" goods. Sixty-five other countries had raised their tariffs and Canada left her ports open to the tide of cheap goods with an insignificant bar to act as a check.

England met the Napoleonic war debt with a high tariff but later lowered the walls to permit the entry of much needed cheap food. That was the direct cause of the rural people flocking to urban centres, and the abandonment of village industry.

Now, again, as a direct result of free trade principles, England has 3½ millions of unemployed, while France which raised the tariff varying from 2 to 12 per cent., has absorbed 2½ million people and unemployment does not exist.

The United States is the greatest national phenomenon in the world. The population of that country has increased at the rate of a million each year, as protection there is the highest known with the exception of France. Mr. Boulton was glad that the States opened their doors to the Canadians, who might have starved had they remained here.

In the past ten years Canada had bought from the States goods to the value of two billionss of dollars in excess of goods sold.

In 1923, Canada bought $73,000,000 of farm produce from the U. S. which gave a return order of $42,000,000.

Canadian oats pay a duty of 15c per bushel entering the United States as compared with the Canadian tax of 10 cents. Canadian furniture pays a duty of 50 per cent.

"The trade balance has been cited as good, but," said Mr. Boulton, "that favorable trade balance is at the expense of Canadian raw material."

Pulp was exported at $6 per cord, and imported as newsprint for $160 per cord. Why did Canadian mills not make the newsprint and employ Canadian labor?

Asbestos valued at $7,500,000 was shipped to the States which, were it brought back manufactured, would be worth $75,000,000. $36,000,000 was the sum paid United States workmen to convert Canadian raw material into the finished article.

The Tariff Board which King promised carried no weight with Mr. Boulton. He recalled that a similar board had been proposed by Sir Robert Borden, only to suffer defeat by the Senate because of Liberal opposition.

Mr. Boulton drew a brief comparison of the two leaders—both were of the same age, graduates from the same University, and both had served equal terms in politics. The speaker considered Meighen's war record greatly superior to that of King. Meighen was not a promising Premier. King had at one time been considered a promising statesman, and he remained so, although few of his promises were fulfilled. Mr. Boulton concluded his remarks with prophetic words, wherein he pictured the success of the Conservative candidate and the placing of Meighen in command of the Dominion's affairs.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem and enthusiastic cheers for Mr. Peck and Mr. Meighen.

EASTERN ONTARIO TEAMS HAVE WON MANY TITLES IN O.B.A.A. SINCE BELLEVILLE BROUGHT SENIOR CHAMPIONSHIP TO C.O.B.L.; PETERBOROUGH CLUBS RESPONSIBLE FOR MAJORITY OF TITLES

Grand Trunks Only Team to Bring Senior Title to the East.

GAINER IN 1921

Intermediate Trophy Has Been in Peterborough Twice and Picton Twice.

OSHAWA, Oct. 7.—In going through the amateur baseball records it is to be learned that the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association was organized at Hamilton in May, 1918, and the first champions declared were the Hillcrests of Toronto. In 1919 the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League was organized and became a member of the Provincial body and Belleville in the league's first year of operation won the championship, then went up against the Oslers of Toronto in the first round of the O.B.A.A. senior play offs, losing in Toronto, but winning at home and in a sudden death game at Peterboro they were victorious. Belleville then won the both ends of home and home games with the International Harbester team of Hamilton in the finals and brought the Times Trophy and Provincial championship to the East in the first year of the Central Ontario League's activities. Since 1919 the Central Ontario League has been in three Provincial finals, with a good prospect of making it four this week. The Central Ontario League champions have met Toronto champions seven times in the Senior play-offs and have won four out of seven starts—Belleville have been in four, Peterboro one, Oshawa one and Kingston one.

In the intermediate series of the O.B.A.A, Eastern Ontario teams have been winners of the Spalding Trophy four times, Picton won it two years in succession 1920-1921, Canadian General Electrics of Peterboro twice in succession 1922-1923, while Oakville copped the silverware last year and for this season St. Anthony's of Ottawa, who defeated Deloro in the final game of the East, will play Goodyears' of the Toronto Lakeshore League in the final.

In the junior series for the O.B.A.A. Trophy, the Lakeviews of Peterboro brought the silverware to the East two years in succession, 1923-1924.

In the Juvenile Section for the Mail and Empire Trophy the East has as yet to come through with a win.

Peterboro Maple Leafs brought the Toronto Evening Telegram Trophy Midget Series championship to the East in 1922, while Ottawa and Guelph are to play off for this year's honors.

In the Bantam series for the Carls-Rite Trophy, Peterboro were declared winners in 1923.

In the senior series of the O.B.A.A., Galt Terriers are the only team to have the distinction of having won the championship two years in succession. The names of the cities in which the Times Trophy and Senior honors have rested are Toronto, Belleville, Hamilton and Galt.

C.O.B.L. Record.

1919—Belleville eliminated the Oslers of Toronto, in a three game series, each team winning away from home and Belleville taking the deciding game played in Peterboro. Belleville then won two straight games from the International Harvester team of Hamilton.

1920—Peterboro won by default from the champions of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, when the Toronto teams declined to live up to the O.B.A.A. constitution, by declaring a winner by the time designated. Peterboro went into the finals against the Plowites of Hamilton, losing the first game in Hamilton, in the return game in Peterboro which went eleven innings, Peterboro won by a 2 to 1 score, but in the play off at Guelph the Plowites won out by 9 to 4.

1921—Oshawa lost both ends of home and home games with the Hillcrests of Toronto; Hillcrests then defeated the Guelph Maple Leafs in the finals.

1922—Belleville defeated the Hillcrests of Toronto two out of three games, each team won at home and in the play-off at Peterboro Belleville won out; Belleville then went into the finals with Galt and won in the Western City, but were defeated at home and in the play off at Guelph.

1923—Belleville lost both ends of home and home games with the Royals of Toronto, who in turn were defeated by the Galt Terriers in the finals.

1924—Belleville were defeated in a sudden death game at Oshawa after each team had won its home game by the Oslers of Toronto who then defeated Orillia and Galt in the finals.

1925—Kingston eliminated the Oslers of Toronto in home and home games, they lost in Toronto, but won at home and in the play off at Oshawa won out by 3 to 1 and defaulted to Niagara Falls in the semi-final round. The Cataracts will play Copper Cliff in the final.

RIGHT HANDERS TO OPEN SERIES MEADOWS TO OPPOSE JOHNSTON

Veteran Hurlers Will Occupy Mound in First Game.

INJURIES PLAY PART.

Harris, Moore, Peck and Others Will Play in Spite of Hurts.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—The hopes of the two champion baseball clubs have been placed in the arms of right-handed pitchers, Stanley Harris, youthful manager of the Washington Senators, has announced Walter Johnson as his choice for the opening game of the World Series, at 2 p.m. tomorrow, while Bill McKechnie, the Pirate leader, has nominated Lee Meadows and Vic Aldridge for the opening two tussles.

McKechnie has not decided upon the order of his moundsmen's appearance, and Harris, although optimistic, conveyed dout as to the ability of Stanley Coveleskie to assume the burden in the second encounter. Yet, all indications point to a clash between Johnson and Meadows on the opening day, to be followed by a Coveleskie-Aldridge duel, leaving the third game rivalry to the sturdy left-handers of the clubs, Dutch Ruether of the Senators, and Emile Yde, youthful Pirate. In case of rain, Ray Kremer, Pacific Coast man of might, may go to the firing line for Pittsburgh tomorrow or perhaps Aldridge will be the selection, If Meadows appears in the box it will be the first time in any World's Series that a bespectacled pitcher has taken the mound.

Injury may play a part in the drama about to be unfolded. The second basemen, Manager Harris of the Senators and Eddie Moore of the Pirates will be handicapped by lame digits.

Moore injured the thumb of his throwing hand in the last game of the season against Cincinnati on Sunday, and yesterday did not appear at the field for practice with his mates. Harris' middle finger on the right hand is swollen as the result of a spike wound suffered some time ago. He says that the injury will not handicap him. Both Harris and Moore, however, are certain to start in the series.

The Washington manager admitted on arrival here that Coveleskie had suffered somewhat from a sore back but declared that the hero of the series of 1920 between Cleveland and Brooklyn would be ready to take his turn. Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran short stop, who has provided one of the main cogs in the machine that has carried through to two straight pennants in the American League and a World Series contest with the New York Giants, will enter the battle with a weak right leg.

The Senators face the Pirates tomorrow, however, with a sterling reserve corps, which includes the record-making Everett Scott, veteran of championship battles. Extra seats have been piled in almost every section of the ball park, and it is expected that 45,000 can be accommodated at the games here.

Hotels are already filled and the full crest of the flood is not expected until tonight.

OTTAWA READY FOR ARGONAUTS

Hope to Have Lynch and Monohan in Saturday's Team.

OBJECTIONS WAIVED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—With the exception of Joe Tubman and Charlie Connell, the entire squad of the Ottawa football club turned out this afternoon for a lineup practice. Tubman is nursing a sore leg, while Connell has a boil on his arm. They did not dress today, but both will be in uniform for the Argonaut game in Toronto Saturday.

Ottawas are hoping against hope that Vince Monohan and Charlie Lynch whil be aavilable for the Toronto game. Reports had it tonight that Montreal and Hamilton Clubs had waived their objections and Argonauts' decision was expected to also be favorable. If this is so, the two Brockville players will likely both be used in the game naginst the Scullers.

Harold Starr was again on deck today and is making fair progress on his bad foot. The team worked on interference and signals yesterday afternoon and the heavy work was dispensed with owing to the slippery condition of the ground, due to a light rain which fell practically all day.

The team is in good shape, and while not counting on any decisive victory, are individually confident that they will give the Oarsmen a rare old battle for the decision Saturday. The game means much to Ottawa chances now. A victory would elevate them to the heights, but a loss would not necessarily mean the end of their championship.

MAKING DOLLARS LAST LONGER.

How to make one-dollar bills last longer is the subject of intensive experiments now being conducted jointly by the U.S. Bureau of Efficiency and the Bureau of Standards. Twenty carloads of these bills are manufactured by Uncle Sam each year. Due to the quality of material now used, they wear out sooner than the experts think they should. At present the paper money is made from rags—about 75 per cent linen and 25 per cent cotton. Experiments are being conducted to see if the government cannot employ stronger bases, such as wood pulp, manila hemp, and Kansas wheat straw.

A MAN-MADE HURRICANE.

To drive out the poisonous carbon monoxide produced by 46,000 autos that will pass daily through the new vehicular tunnel nearing completion beneath the Hudson River, a tearing hurrican will whirl constantly through the tube, says Popular Science Monthly. A unique system of ventilation approved recently solves the last important engineering problem of the great tunnel. Immense electric fans will drive a 75-mile gale through a seven-foot airway under the traffic road.

A "pressure tester" has been invented, used much like a fire gauge, to test the ripeness of apples. The purpose is to determine the length of time the fruit will keep in storage.

BOTH WORLD'S SERIES RIVALS LACKING IN RESERVE STRENGTH ONE INJURY MAY DECIDE ISSUE

Young Pirates Less Likely To Require Services of Utility Men.

LAST YEAR'S LESSON.

Peckinpaugh's Mishap Nearly Spoiled Senators in Giants' Match Last Fall.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. — (United Press).—Reserve strength is a vital factor to be considered in doping the chances of the Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the world's series.

They are two good ball clubs, representative champions out of a pair of hot races in which their opposition extended them to the very last. They have good pitchers, good catchers, good infields and good outfields.

Yet either team could be wrecked by one injury as the reserve strength on the bench is not of the usual championship caliber. One spike turned in the ground, one blow from a batted or pitched ball, one slip on the grass and the whole tide of battle might be turned in the series.

The Senators had a narrow escape in the world's series last fall. The team was fortunate in going through the season without serious injuries and the lack of reserve power was not apparent until Peckinpaugh pulled up with a charley-horse and had to sit on the bench.

Result of Peck's Injury.

Bluege had to be moved over from third base to shortstop and Miller, who was not even a minor league infielder, had to be used at third. Poor Miller, trying with all the gameness of a real fighter, found himself up in every pinch and he was almost useless. The Senators, of course, finally beat the Giants but it was luck more than class that dropped the Giants in the last game.

Bucky Harris learned his lesson from that experience and he got busy this year and collected some veteran reserves. He got Mike McNally from the Boston Red Sox but Mike didn't hold up and was passed to the minors. He secured the veteran Deacon Scott from the New York Yankees but Scotty is not good for many games and he has slowed up to a walk. He picked up Joe Harris from the Red Sox also and found him very handy when Joe Judge was hit on the head with a pitched ball in Detroit and was forced to the bench for weeks. Harris is not the best of fielders, but he is one of the most dangerous batters in baseball.

Harris also picked up Bob Veach from the Red Sox to use him as a pinch hitter and for occasional duty in the outfield. He also has Nemo Leibold for spare duty in the outfield and a youngster, Jeanes.

As catching reserves the Senators have the veteran Hank Severeid and young Tate. Muddy Ruel, who has been doing most of the work behind the bat, is badly worn from the strain. He is a little fellow and has to work chiefly on nerve. He is a great little catcher but his work fell off badly late in the season, the loss of strength showing chiefly in his poor throwing to the bases.

The Pirates received a heavy blow when "Lucky Johnny" Rawlings, perhaps the best utility player in baseball broke his ankle late in the season. His work at second base during the final drive of the Pirates was a piece of art and without him the Pirates certainly would have had more difficulty if they did not actually lose the pennant.

As utility infielders the Pirates have the veteran Stuffy McInnis, who can still bat even if he is as slow as a truck, and Ens and Thompson. The team would be in a serious plight if anything happened to Traynor or Wright.

In the outfield the Pirates have as reserves, Carson Bigbee, a good relief man and Haas, a youngster. Bigbee has slipped a lot in the last two years but he is still good for a game or two.

The Pirate catching staff has a good reserve in Spencer and two alternating regulars, Johnny Gooch and "Oil" Smith.

Mediocre Reserves.

Compared to the brilliant reserve staff the Giants had in the world's series last year the utility men of the two champion teams this year is decidedly ordinary. It is not fair, however, to compare any team's secondary strength to that of the Giants because John McGraw has recruited more high-class reserves than any other two teams in baseball.

The Pirates, however, will be much less liable to need reserves than the Senators. The Pirates are comparatively a young club and the players can stand the wear and tear better than the veteran Senators. If anything should happen to Peck during the series, the Senators probably would blow their chances.

GOLF TOURNAMENT TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

French Champion Made Hole in One in Drawn Game.

CHANTILLY, France, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Arnaud Massy, of France, former title-holder, and Arthur Compston, of England, were tied for first place at the end of the second day's play in the French open golf championship tournament. Each had a total of 291 for the 72 holes.

Massy made the "hole in one club" during the afternoon round when he sank his tee shot on the 165-yard ninth.

Massy and Compston will play off the tie over 36 holes to-day.

Percy Alliss, of England, finished with 295, Jean Gassiat, 296, and George Duncan and Aubrey Boomer 298.

GETTING TOO FAT.

Californian Welterweight Forced Out of Class By Growing Weight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Facing a new and persistent foe in nature, Dave Shade, of California, Tuesday indicated that he was prepared to give up his three year quest of the welterweight boxing championship, now held by Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N.J.

Shade admitted that he has become too heavy to qualify for the 147-pound division without severe training methods, after the New York Boxing Commission had returned to his management a forfeit of $10,000 posted to bind a championship contest.

"Get me a match with Harry Greb for the middleweight title and I won't worry about fighting Walker," said Shade.

BREAKS MAY DECIDE WORLDS SERIES LUCK SETTLED THE ISSUE LAST YEAR

Three Surprising Strokes of Good Fortune Won Championship for the Senators in the Deciding Game With Giants—Catcher Tripped on Mask.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(United Press).—Pitching, battling, fielding and base running will all have their important parts to play in the world's series that is to start soon between the champion Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The "breaks," however, will also be an imoprtant factor and they can't be figured in doping the chances of the two pennant winning teams to win the series. No one can tell whether luck will side with the Senators or the Pirates or will remain neutral and divide its smiles and its frowns.

It is perhaps a fact that in many years, luck did not play as conspicuous part in deciding the champion ship as it did last year in aiding the Senators to win the deciding game from the Giants.

There were three distinct breaks in that game that turned the tide in favor of the Senators and gave them the rich rewards of the difference between the winners and the losers' share of the receipts.

Ball Took Freak Bound.

In the ninth inning the Senators tied the score when a ball took a freak bound over Freddy Lindstorm's head. It was tagged a sure out. Lindstrom was all set to field the ball on an easy bound and make the throw to first when it hit a pebble, a hole or something directly in front of him and bounded high over his head.

Such breaks are not unusual but they are almost miraculous when they happen twice under almost identical circumstances at the most critical part of the game.

In the twelfth inning the same break occurred and the Senators won the ball game. Again an easy chance went down to Lindstorm. The play couldnt have been duplicated any more perfectly if it had been removed from the ninth inning and replayed. The ball took another freakish bound over the little third baseman's head and the winning run was over.

In that same twelfth inning there was another intervention of luck that put the winning run on the bases. Muddy Ruel was at bat and he knocked a high foul behind and to the left of the plate. Hank Gowdy, as dependable a catcher as any manager could desire, tore of his mask and tossed it out of his path. The mask bounded in front of him and Gowdy stepped into it. He tripped and stumbled and lost the catch. Ruel then doubled and scored the winning run on the third break of the game.

You can go to a thousand big league ball games and you never will see an experienced catcher like Gowdy step into a mask and lose a catch. Even a fiction writer would hesitate to base the turning point of a diamond drama on such a freak occurence. But it happened nevertheless.

In figuring the chances of the Senators and the Pirates in the coming series, it is fairly safe to base calculations on the batting averages of the teams, the pitching strength against different types of attack, the gameness of players under fire, the differences in managerial strategy, etc. You will be able to get a fair idea of what can be expected, especially if you have had an opportunity to see the two teams in a number of games during the regular season.

But you can't figure the breaks. You can't tell what a young player like several of the Pittsburgh stars, will do when he sees a two-thousand-dollar ball coming at him. The Washington players can be doped because they have been under fire in one world's series and have survived the strain and tension of two hard pennant races. A good money player in one game will be a good money player in any number of games.

Not Fighting Club.

The Pirates never have been renowned as a fighting ball club. On the contrary, they have been accused in the past of lacking gameness, not physically but mentally. There was nothing in the play of the Pirates this season that would indicate any lack of bravery but the National League ball players will tell you in confidence that two of the Pittsburgh players are apt to be nervous in a tight place.

There is a difference beween physical and mental bravery and it is the fear that the mental strain on the Pirates will upset their game that will cause many dollars to be waged on the Senators.

The breaks in this series will be most important—if they are as prominent as they were last year—because such luck tends to discourage a young player who has not been through the fire. Even the experienced Giants in the last series reached the point where they felt—"How can you beat that luck"—and if they were discouraged the youthful Pirates might blow up completely.

From the early part of the season when the Pirates started their drive for the National League pennant, experienced baseball men thought that the Giants would win out because the Pirates would be certain to blow. Many of them think that influences more than batted balls and pitched balls will cause them to blow during the series.

TEAM FROM CAPITAL VISITS TORONTO

Ottawa Club Confident of Victory in Inter-City Baseball Match.

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press). — St. Anthony's baseball team of Ottawa, holders of the Eastern Intermediate O.B.A.A. title, left for Toronto late last night to play Goodyears of that city this afternoon in the first game of the home and home series for the Ontario championship. The locals are right in trim for the titular series and are confident of victory over the Western Ontario title-holders. The Saints will send Val Chartrand to the mound. Chartrand is looked upon as the best right-hander in Ottawa and district and has a long string of victories to his credit this season. The locals will field their strongest nine against the Queen City crew.

COLLEGE RUGBY.

Ashbury College, Ottawa, Plays Lower Canada College on Saturday.

OTTAWA, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—Ashbury College Senior rugby team will open its 1925 season with the annual game against Lower Canada College on the Ashbury Grounds on Saturday afternoon. The local Collegians have been practicing steadily for the past two or three weeks under the coaching of Jess Ketchum, member of the Ottawa Big Four team, and have shown much improvement over last year.

PLAYERS EXCHANGED.

Deal Between Brooklyn and Boston Was Consumated Yesterday.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—A deal between the Brooklyn and Boston National League clubs by which the Braves receive Outfielder Eddie Brown, Catcher Zack Taylor and Infielder Jimmy Johnston for Pitcher Jess Barnes, Catcher Mickey O'Neil and Outfielder A. G. Felix, was reliably reported to have been closed here yesterday.

DROP KICKING.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 7—Benefits derived from the game with the old boys were manifest in the McGill Intercollegiate squad this afternoon after Tommy Hall, who played on the Old Boys' line in the game, had got through showing the Red and White front rankers their weaknesses. Hall joined Shaughnessy's staff of assistant coaches today and, while Pep Paisley and Dr. "Bones" Little were working with the backfield men and substitutes, Shaughnessy and Hall were driving the line men.

Heavy scrimmaging was resumed again and the results of the advice given by the coaches soon got results. While the first string squad did not work as smoothly as was wanted, they at least ripped through the substitutes for first down without let up. The end runs went well though at times there was a little hesitation by the halves first in the run in deciding when to make the pass out, a delay which at times proved fatal.

A feature of the recent drills at the stadium has been the attention paid to drop kicking. Shaughnessy has been working with Jack Nickles, Des Walsh and Eddie Hanna at this important detail and with the half hour that is put in each day, these three players should develop into fairly steady booters by the time McGill is ready for the opening clash with Queen's.

Heavy workouts today and Thursday will complete the squad's preparations for the exhibition match with Royal Military College here Saturday. It is likely some new players may get a chance in this tilt. Flynn, American footballer, who played on the half line at Colby last year, was moved up to the senior substitute list yesterday. Freddy Dion, an Ottawa youth, worked for a time with the senior backs. Pouler, another United States College player, who comes here with a reputation as a drop kicker, made his first appearance in uniform this afternoon and will get his tests in the next few days.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans
By CHESTER HORTON

Something like perfection in golf develops for the player through swinging the club over and over again the right way. Swinging it continually in the wrong way only fastens wrong habits more firmly into your game. The player's understanding at all times should be that the swing is the thing to strive for, and he should keep this in mind until by gradual degrees he can accomplish the swing in the same, easy, natural manner when the ball is actually being played as gracefully as he does in practice swings. There is a difference between the practice swing and the swing that counts, and the presence of the ball accounts for this difference. Learn to ignore the ball beyond seeing it, and instead of letting the mind dwell on how hard and how far you are going to hit it, keep in mind how rhythmically you are going to swing. This manner toward the ball aids ease and timing wonderfully, and they are what count.

SENATORS WILL COME OUT ON TOP IS VERDICT OF EXPERT OPINIONS BUT PITTSBURGH WILL DIE HARD

Both Teams at Full Strength For First Battle of Series.

"BIG TRAIN RIGHT."

Pirates' Star Utility Fielder Laid Aside By Injury—Light Wagering.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—A battle that promises to add a spectacular chapter to the history of baseball's championship conflicts starts today, with the Washington Senators, champions of 1924, defending their laurels against the onslaught of Pittsburgh's new National League titleholders, a fighting array which hopes to regain the glory that was this city's sixteen years ago.

Unless all signs fail, it will be a closely waged struggle with Washington's great defensive club, led by Bucky Harris and Walter Johnson, pitting its experience and steadiness against the youthfully inspired and brilliant attack of Bill McKechnie's Pirate crew.

Johnson, dramatic pitching figure of the world's champions, will pick up for the Senators where he left off victoriously in the final game of last season's battle with the Giants. His opponent in all probability will be Lee Meadows, veteran bespectacled right hander and mainstay of the Pittsburgh staff. Both have been through many a big league struggle, though Meadows has had no world's series experience.

They will be the central figures in the opening spectacle today at Forbes Field where a capacity crowd of 45,000, taxing every avilable bit of seating space, is expected to provide an enthusiastic setting for the first world's series game here since 1909.

The official forecast was for a rainy, cold day, but hope was held out that it would clear sufficiently for Governor Gifford Pinchet of Pennsylvania to toss out the first ball promptly at 2 o'clock.

The eve of the big championship tonight found Pittsburgh like a convention city, jammed and packed at every angle, with enthusiasm rampant but wagering comparatively light and chiefly on an even money basis.

Offer Odds.

Johnson's selection as Washington's first pitcher, however, and reliable reports that the "Big Train" is "right" have influenced Washington's legion of followers to offer odds, in some instances of 7 to 5, that the American League titleholders will capture the opening game.

A consensus of expert opinion, of which the representation is far, wide and numerous, favors Washington to retain its championship, but there is no lack of faith, on the other hand, in the ability of the Pirate offensive to break down the defensive bulwarks of its rivals.

Both teams will have their full strength upon the opening field of battle, but both will also face some handicaps, with Washington seemingly up against the severer difficulties.

Pittsburgh has lost her star utility infielder, Johnny Rawlings, who will watch the series on crutches from the grand stand, as a result of a broken ankle. Eddie Moore, who replaced Rawlings at second base, also will start under the handicap of an injured thumb on this throwing hand, but Washington has three semi-casualties among her stars, including Manager Harris himself, Shortstop Roger Peckinpaugh and Stanley Coveleskie, veteran right-handed twirler, counted upon to share the main burden with Johnson.

Senators' Handicaps.

Of the three, Harris, with a badly swollen middle finger on his right hand, seems the most handicapped, and may not, in fact, be able to last through the entire series. He admits this himself.

Coveleskie has recuperated from a strained back, but there remains some doubt whether he will be at his best.

Pekinpaugh's ankle has again shown signs of weakness.

Stanley Harris will have his heaviest hitting array in action tomorrow to combat the Pirate attack. He decided today to put Joe Harris, a strong sticker, in right field in place of Sam Rice, who will move over to centre to relieve Earl McNeely, whose $50,000 hit won the last world's series, but whose stick work has fallen off considerably this season.

With the exception of Rawlings, Pittsburgh will have the identical line-up which carried the club to the pennant. While it has not been through the tests which the Senators have met, the Pirste club excels in youth, speed and batting punch. In Cuyler, Carey, Traynor, Wright and Barnhart, the Pirates have an array which has battered down all opposition thus far, backed up by a pitching corps which ranks among the best in either major league.

Batting Order.

The probable batting order for today's opening game is:

WASHINGTON — Rice, cf; S. Harris, 2; Goslin, lf; Judge, 1b; Bluege, 3b; J. Harris, rf; Peckinpaugh, ss; Ruel, c; Johnson, p.

PITTSBURGH—Moore, 2b; Carey, cf; Cuyler, rf; Barnhart, lf; Wright, ss; Traynor, 3b; Grantham, 1b; Smith, c; Meadows, p.

Umpires—At plate, Rigler, National League; at first base, Moriarty, American League; at second base, McCormick, National League; at third base, Owens, American League.

MORE EARTHQUAKES.

Italian's Predictions Again Fulfilled, According to His Seismograph.

ROME, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—Two proolnged earthquakes were recorded last night on the seismograph of Rafaele Benbandi, the Italian wood worker whose earthquake predictions have astounded the world. The disturbances, according to the lay scientist, were in a northeasterly direction and a considerable distance from Italy.

The phenomena, Bendandi declared, was a fore runner of the telluric movements he recently predicted.

Pittsburgh -	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	1	5	0

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Bright sun shone down from clear skies on this battleground for the opening clash of the world's series to-day between Washington and Pittsburgh, champions of the American and National Leagues.

Between 45,000 and 50,000 crowded the park to capacity.

Washington's grey-clad squad was the first to trot out of the dug-out for practice. They were greeted by a cheer, but the outburst was mild in comparison to the noise that welcomed the Pirate Clan, snappily attired in new white uniforms, embellished with an emblem signifying their pennant victory in the National League's golden jubilee campaign.

Johnson and Babe Adams, the pitching hero of Pittsburgh's victory of 1909, were photographed together as they shook hands. Johnson posed afterwards with Meadows, his prospective rival for the day.

Line-Up.

The batting order of the rival teams was:

Washington—Rice, cf; S. Harris, 2b; Goslin, lf; Judge, 1b; J. Harris, rf; Bluege, 3b; Peckinpaugh, ss; Ruel, c; Johnson, p.

Pittsburgh—Moore, 2b; Carey cf; Cuyler, rf; Barnhart, lf; Traynor, 3b; Wright, ss; Grantham, 1b; Smith, c; Meadows, p.

Umpires: At plate, Rigler (N.); first base, Owens (A.); second base, McCormick (N.); third base, Moriarity (A).

Time: 2.00 p.m., Eastern standard time.

First Innings.

Senators—There was a big cheer when the Pirates trotted out on the field. Sam. Rice took his position at the plate. Meadows threw up a few balls for the final try out and the game was one.

Rice up. Wright threw out Rice. Rice hitting the first ball pitched. Traynor took Harris' hopper and got him at first. Meadows threw over a wide curve and Goslin let it go by. Meadows kept the ball on the outside. Goslin took a big swing and missed it by a foot. Goslin went out, Grantham unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Moore up. Johnson flung over a few fast balls as Moore walked to the plate. Rice came in fast and took Moore's fly. Carey up. Carey was hit on the arm by one of Johnson's speed balls. He rubbed his arm vigorously, and the players gathered around to see if he had been badly hurt. Carey walked to first base. Cuyler up. Carey went out stealing, Ruel to Peck. Cuyler fanned. No runs, no hits; no errors.

HOME RUN.
Second Innings.

Senators—Meadows was working his fast curve ball. Judge went out, Wright to Grantham. Joe Harris hit a long drive to the right for two bases. It almost went into the bleachers for a home run, and the umpire had ruled that it hit into the stands and bounced out, and Harris was given a home run. Bluege struck out. Peck drove a long foul to the left. Carey gathered in Peck's high fly. One run, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Rice went over to deep left to take Barnhart's fly. Traynor got a line single into right for Pittsburgh's first hit. Pirates were trying hit and run play. Wright forced Traynor, Judge to Peck. Grantham struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Senators—Traynor robbed Ruel of a two-base hit by his leaping catch of a hard hit ball. Johnson went out, Wright to Grantham. Rice got a single into right. Meadows tried to get Rice off first. Rice was picked off, Meadows to Grantham. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Smith flied out to Joe Harris. Pittsburgh folks cheered their pitcher. Meadows got a base on balls. Moore hit into double play, Peck to Judge. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Senators—Harris was hit by a pitched ball. Meadows fed Goslin nothing but curves. Grantham took Goslin's liner and doubled Stan. Harris at first. Judge went out, Moore to Grantham. Meadows threw nothing but curve balls the entire inning. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Carey struck out on three pitched balls. Cuyler hit over the middle bag. It was the second hit off Johnson. Cuyler was run down between first and second, Ruel to Judge to Peck to Judge to Stan. Harris. Barnhardt fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Senators—Joe Harris got a hit to deep short. Bluege singled into left, Joe Harris stopping at second. Morrison is now warming up for Pittsburgh. Peck singled into left, Harris going to third and Bluege to second. Bases were filled and no one out. Ruel fanned. Pittsburgh infield played back to try for double play. Johnson also struck out. The crowd went frantic. Joe Harris and Bluege scored on Rice's single to centre. Peck went to second. Traynor threw out Stan. Harris at first. Two runs, four hits, no errors.

HOME RUN.

Pittsburgh—Traynor hit a home run into right field stands. The stands rose and cheered as he crossed the plate. Wright fanned and sat down. Peck took Grantham's grounder and threw wildly to first. Grantham stopped at first. Smith flied out to Joe Harris. Grantham stole second. Meadows fanned. One run, one hit, one error.

Sixth Innings.

Senators — Smith took Goslin's pop. Max Carey went back and took Judge's long hoist. Carey took J. Harris' high fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Marberry went out to warm up for Washington. Bluege made easy work of Moore's grounder and got him at first. Carey went out to Judge, unassisted. Joe Harris came in and captured Cuyler's fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Senators—Bluege tried to bunt but fouled the ball. Bluege went out on strikes. Peck went out, Traynor to Grantham. Ruel went out, Meadows to Grantham. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Barnhart struck out. The third strike was a fast ball around his neck. Sam. Rice went over the fence to take Traynor's long fly. Wright struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Senators—The crowd gave Johnson a big ovation. Wright made a leaping catch of Johnson's screamer. Wright threw out Rice at first. Wright took Stan. Harris' grounder and threw him out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh — Grantham hit a high one to Joe Harris. Smith singled to centre. Bigbee ran for Smith. McInnis batting for Meadows McInnis struck out on three pitched balls. Bigbee stole second. Bluege took Moore's hot smash and threw him out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Senators—Morrison went in the box for Pittsburgh and Gooch took Smith's place as catcher. Goslin got a single into right. Judge sacrificed, Grantham to Moore. Goslin on second. Morrison's big curve fooled Harris. Goslin scored on Bluege's single to centre. On the throw in Bluege went to second. Morrison threw out Peck at first. One run, two hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—McNeeley, now playing centre and Rice moved to right field for Washington. Carey was hit by a pitched ball. Cuyler fanned. Barnhart singled; Carey stopped at second. Traynor flied to McNeeley. Wright popped to Judge. No runs, one hit, no errors.

ANSWERS CHARGES OF LABOR LEADER

Chairman of Save-the-Surface Campaign Comments on U.S. Printing Allegation.

George Henderson, chairman of the Save the Surface Campaign Committee and president of Brandram Henderson, Limited, when interviewed regarding a recent press notice to the effect that those interested in the campaign were advocating the buying of Canadian paints with literature printed in the U.S.A., firmly reiterated his statements, already published, that the Save the Surface Campaign buys nothing whatever from across the border.

The charge was brought at a meeting of organized labor at which J. T. Foster, president of the Trades and Labor Council, was the speaker. Mr. Foster entered a strong protest against the alleged inconsistency of Canadian manufacturers who advocate the purchase of local goods, but who buy their advertising matter from the States.

"I think," said Mr. Henderson, "that the allegation arises entirely from a misunderstanding of the real facts in the case and these I can easily make clear.

"The Save the Surface Campaign in Canada, subscribed to by nearly all the paint and varnish manufacturers, has bought all its printing from Canadian printers for years past and has written every word of its propaganda right here in Canada.

"There is, however, a similar campaign in the United States, subscribed to by American interests, and it is quite possible that some overflow of the literature of that campaign has reached Mr. Foster and he, quite naturally I think, may have confused the two campaigns.

"It is possible that Mr. Foster is referring to some literature of Brandram Henderson, Limited, as printed in the U.S.A. We are at present buying no advertising whatever from the States outside certain color cards which we are compelled to obtain there. These take less than 5 per cent. of our total advertising expenditure. Such color cards are a necessary surplus over what we ourselves can produce.

"Why are you compelled to buy these cards from the United States?" Mr. Henderson was asked.

"Because," he replied, "there is not, to my knowledge, a firm producing color cards for the trade in the entire Dominion of Canada."—Montreal Gazette.

AUXILIARY DERAILED.

HASTINGS, Oct. 7—While coming from Belleville to assist in clearing up the wreck near Best's Station, the auxiliary train was derailed near Birdsall's. The engine remained on the tracks but every car of the superintendent, Mr. McMillan, went off the track. No severe personal injuries were caused.

Passengers from the west were met at thesce ne and transferred to another train which arrived at Hasoings about 2.30.

The most powerful single-engined airplane in the world was exhibited recently in England. It is a biplane with a 650-horsepower engine. It will carry as many as 16 passengers, with baggage, at a speed of more than 110 miles an hour.

Time is given to everyone to carry out kindly deeds.

GERMAN PARTIES ASK EVACUATION

Resolution Passed Calling For Shortening of Rhine Occupation.

WANT COLOGNE.

BERLIN, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—The executive committee of the Centre party meeting at Paderborn, Westphalia, today adopted a resolution declaring that the negotiation of the Security Pack, efforts toward which are now being made at Locarno, must be followed by the evacuation of the Cologne Bridgehead, the amelioration of the rigors of occupation in other areas, and the shortening of the occupational term.

Similar resolutions were adopted by the Rhenis section of the German People's party meeting, at Cologne.

HARRINGTON SING SING WARDEN IN "MAN WHO FOUND HIMSELF."

Warden Lawes of Sing Sing has reached the screen in the person of John Harrington, one of the principal actors in Belasco's "The Dove," who plays the dean of the "college" on the Hudson in Thomas Meighan's current picture, "The Man Who Found Himself," directed for Paramount by Alfred E. Green, and to-day for the last time at the Capitol Theatre.

Harrington, a burly man of wide stage experience, recently made his screen bow in the part of a crafty fake blind beggar in Herbert Brenon's "Street of Forgotten Men."

The player gave such a splendid account of himself in his initial role that he was promptly awarded the difficult job of playing the famous warden in an important prison sequence in the Meighan story, which is an original for the screen by Booth Tarkington.

MISSING!

60,000 Girls in Their Teens Are Reported Missing Annually—The Greater Percentage From Good Homes.

Police records show that no less than 60,000 girls are reported "Missing" in the United States in a single year. In New York City alone 4,000 disappeared in 1923. Probably the real number exceeds that, as not all cases are reported. The youngest girl who came to the attention of the Travellers' Aid Society was only ten years old; the oldest twenty-three. The average is seventeen. A great majority of missing girls are still in their teens. Less than ten per cent. of them came from criminal environments—the majority being from the better class of homes.

The reasons why girls take the terrible chances which they must face once they have thrown aside the protection of home and the safeguards of social conventions, are so numerous as to defy classification.

All too frequently there is a man in the case, usually one unknown to the girl's parents, and an unfit associate of any girl, according to Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, New York's first policewoman and head of the women police of that city.

In eight years she has handled thousands upon thousands of missing girl cases. From these actual experiences sensational revelations are promised in the realistic and thrilling policewoman's photodrama, "Lilies of the Streets," which comes to the Royal Theatre Thursday.

A strong cast headed by the popular Virginia Lee Corbin and Johnnie Walker includes Mrs. Hamilton herself, appearing in the picture in her official capacity. The story reveals what happens when a beautiful young girl, daughter in a wealthy family, throws all restraint aside in her search for thrills. She meets and is fascinated by a suave man about town, who loses no time in compromising her, so that she falls a ready victim to a blackmail plot. All the action takes place in New York and the filming of the picture under Director Joseph Levering was done from actual scenes and locations—from underworld haunts to society mansions, from smart roadside cabarets to low dance halls.

Thus achieving a realism seldom equalled in screen annals, the pitfalls and traps laid by human vultures who live but to prey upon women, are shown with intense dramatic effect; each incident, episode and situation having the actual counterpart in real life and recorded in metropolitan police annals.

CIRCUS FREAKS IN "THE LIVE WIRE."

Side Show Performers Used for Atmosphere in Hines' Comedy.

"Funny men, fat men, little men, big men, freaks of fate and a thousand wonders!

"Step this way, ladies and gentlemen. See them all—here, now—right inside—all for the price of a single dime!"

The typical cry of the circus barker, known to countless millions, will be "seen but not heard" when Johnny Hines' first National picture, "The Live Wire," comes to the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

It is in this whirlwind comedy that Johnny Hines has incorporated the world famous freaks in the circus sequences of his production, and how effective these scenes have proven is well in evidence from the many excellent reports that "The Live Wire" has received.

In "The Live Wire" Johnn is cast as a daredevil wire artist, who after suffering an injury, becomes a knight of the road," and eventually puts over a large amusement park project.

Scene upon scene of humorous content and thrills are reported to be the rule in this First National production, with the circus sequences playing an important part in the fun-provoking activities of the picture.

AT THE GRAND.

"LUCKY 7" IS DUMBELLS LATEST.

The vivacity and versatility that made them from their very formation the cleverest entertainment troupe in Haig's armies has not deserted The Dumbells.

Graced by the presence of such ever-popular favorites as Al. Plunkett, Ross Hamilton, "Red" Newman, Stan. Bennett, Pat Rafferty, "Jock" Holland, Ben Allen, Morley Plunkett, Glen Allan and Jimmy Devon, they will offer their latest and greatest success "Lucky 7" at the Grand Opera House for two days, Friday and Saturday, October 16 and 17.

That his seventh annual revue in Canada might prove his greatest offering as a theatrical producer Captain Plunkett has supplied his constellation of stars with the best musical number and sketches available in the world's markets and has supplied each individual item on the program with a special setting.

The Dumbells are so firmly intrenched in the affections of local theatre-goers that their engagements here have come to mean crowded houses at every performance. Relying on past records for his assurance of the future Captain Plunkett has increased his cost of production and weekly expense by over a third more than any preceding season and has adopted as his slogan "No empty seats". The management of the theatre and the box-office staff are out for a new record this time and reserved seats will be put on sale at the theatre on Wednesday, October 14th, while mail orders are now being accepted and filled in order of their receipt. Mail orders should be accompanied with cheque or money order for the value of the tickets, plus tax.

CAKES OF 'DRY ICE' SENT BY AIR MAIL

New Solidified Gas Keeps Ice Cream Frozen for Hours at a Time.

Science has just perfected a marvelous new way to keep ice-cream frozen in its original state for hours at a time without the use of ice. It is now possible to send a pint of ice-cream from New York City to Chicago by air mail, and when the package is opened the ice-cream will be found to be frozen hard, just as it came from the freezer many hours before.

The material that makes this remarkable feat possible is called "dry ice." It cannot melt. It is perfectly dry to touch, and yet it is so cold it will make a thermometer go down to 110 degrees below zero.

You have noticed the small bubbles that form and rise to the surface in a bottle of soda pop when you pry off the cap. This new ice is made out of the same gas that forms these bubbles. In other words, it is carbon dioxide gas cooled down and compressed until it finally forms a solid, frozen mass.

Solidified carbon dioxide has been produced on a laboratory scale several times but this is the first application of this queer freezing agent to the preservation of ice-cream or such. Its use is the result of a long search by a New York ice-cream manufacturer for a method of packing his product in small packages so that customers can take it home and keep it in perfect condition for hours afterward.

Although the temperature of dry ice is colder than the North Pole in winter-time, it may be handled with bare hands, provided the skin of the fingers is not allowed to touch the solid lumps for more than a second or two at a time. In the ice-cream plant, lumps of dry ice are sent to the packing-room, where workmen place cylindrical pieces in a large carton which also holds the smaller containers filled with ice-cream.

The outside container, as well as the one that holds the ice cream, is made of paraffined cardboard and is itself a fair heat insulator, so that the warmth of the outside air permeates slowly. Instead of heating and melting the ice-cream, the air warms the surface of the block of frozen carbon dioxide and gradually converts it back into a gas again. The gas passes away through a small hole in the outer container.

"Carnegie" Cruises Around the World in Search of Magnetic Secrets

Tied to her pier in Washington, D.C., is the strangest ship in the world. At present she is laid up, with her deck hidden beneath a tentlike structure that covers her from bow to stern. But within a few weeks she will set out on the latest of a series of cruises around the world, engaged in one of the most unique missions on the seas.

The ship is the Carnegie, a 155 foot brigantine owned by the Carnegie Institution of Washington and operated by the institution's Department of Terrestrial Magnetism. Her task is to voyage all over the navigable waters to make a magnetic survey of the oceans, to cruise in search of the mysterious magnetic and electrical phenomena that appear to occupy all space that attract the needles of compasses, that cause the brilliant displays of the aurora borealis, that produce the radio bugbear—static—and that assist in balking the waves sent out by radio stations.

The Carnegie is like no other ship ever built, because she is put together with practically no iron nor steel in her. It was extremely important that a ship investigating the world's magnetism carry nothing to deflect the instruments. She is made of wood fastened with locust treenails, copper, and bronze. All rigging is of hemp, anchor chains, using instead great manila hawsers 11 inches in circumference. The chairs on board are put together with bronze fastenings. The cook uses aluminum and copper kettles. If the sailors carry pocket knives aboard, they must throw them overboard before sailing. Every bit of metal must be tested carefully with a magnetic needle before it is allowed on board.

While the Carnegie is a sailing vessel, she carries an auxiliary motor, and in this steel could not be eliminated entirely. The specially built engine is made of brass, bronze, and copper, but the pistons and cams are of steel.

As the ship wanders from the North to the South Pole, the scientists on board determine the variation of a compass. This information, used in charts prepared by the United States Hydrographic Office, in collaboration with the British Admiralty and the French, Japaneses, and German governments, has saved hundred of sailors from shipwreck.

SERMONS OF TO-DAY ARE NOT ADEQUATE

Archbishop of Canterbury Criticizes Clergy at Congress.

EAST BOURNE, Sussex, Eng., Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—A severe admonition to the clergy for the inadequacy of present day sermons which fail to draw people from golf, motoring and other Sunday diversions was the feature of an address by the Archbishop of Canterbury at the opening of the Anglican Church Congress here yesterday. The keynote of the Congress is "World problems and Christianity."

Choosing for his text verses 12 to 14 of the forty eighth psalm, the Archbishop enjoined the clergy to make a closer study of the needs of present day living. "The average sermon has not kept pace with the advance in education or with the average man's and woman's wider interest in all sorts of human knowledge and world affairs," the Primate asserted.

Mining Market Strong With Drop In Volume

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—A strong tone was shown on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, with a slight decrease in the volume of trading. Teck Hughes passed the 200 mark, being sold at 201, and Barry Hollinger climbed three at 23. Vipond advanced three and Castle Trethewey three, the latter reaching 133. Argonaut reacted two points at 19 1-2 and another weak spot was Keeley, down one.

Heavy Profit Taking Caused Reaction In Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—Although the wheat market opened with an upward slant today, heavy profit taking led soon to down turns. Continued unfavorable weather in Canada and the strength of quotations at Liverpool were the main bullish factors. Opening, unchange to 7-8c higher, new style, December $1.41 1-2 to $1.42, and May $1.42 to $1.42 1-4, was followed by a reaction to $1.40 1-4 for December and $1.40 3-4 for May.

Corn and oats were governed largely by the action of wheat. After opening at 1-8 to 5-8c advance, December 78 3-8 to 78 1-2, the corn market receded to below yesterday's finish. Oats started 1-8c to 1-4c higher, December 40 3-2. Later quotations showed some loss.

Packers' buying of October and November lard, gave the provision market a lift.

Brazilian Moves Higher On Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press).—The generally strong tone continued on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with Brazilian and F. N. Burt Common, the active leaders. Brazilian strengthened an eighth and Burt advanced one and seven-eights to 66 7-8. Canada Steamships Preferred advanced one and a quarter at 56 1-2, and Maple Leaf two at 95 1-2. City Dairy and B. C. Fishing eased a quarter point, and Consolidated Smelters also closed the morning a quarter lower, while Mackay Common was three quarters lower at 136.

AMERICAN LABOR ESCHEWS RUSSIA

No Affiliation With Spirit of Overthrowing Government, Says President.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press.)—Amid scenes of great enthusiasm, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, this afternoon announced that American labor would never affiliate with the Russian labor movement, "that stands for the philosophy of overthrowing the government." His statement was made in response to a hope expressed earlier by Arthur A. Purcell, member of the British Parliament, that America would establish close relations with the Russian labor movement.

SMALLPOX CASE HERE.

Norwood Man, on Holiday, Detained at Isolation Hospital.

Business at the Isolation Hospital has shown a little briskness of late. The register shows one case of diphtheria, one of scarlet fever, and the latest patient is down with smallpox. His illness was first diagnosed as chicken pox, but was later considered to be smallpox, and as a safeguard was admitted to the hospital as such. This patient is a Norwood man who recently came to Peterboro for a holiday.

The city officials have no direct knowledge of a number of typhoid cases which have been treated here. They were said to have originated at a summer resort in this district which, The Examiner was told, had previously received certain orders from Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officer of Health.

ARCTIC WASTES BROUGHT NEARER

Exploration Will Open Up Vast Mineral Wealth of North.

HALIFAX, Oct. 7 (Canadian Press)—That the frozen expanses confined within the bounds of the Arctic circle are, figuratively speaking, brought nearer to civilization through the medium of northern expeditions and that the vast mineral wealth of that far off country will, in a not far distant future, be placed at the disposal of the government and private interests in the United States and Canada, were two statemens made here yesterday by Commander E. F. MacDonald, of the United States exploration ship Peary, one of the units of the MacMillan expedition which arrived at Halifax yesterday.

TWO FOUND DEAD.

TORONTO, October 7. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. Kathleen Cunningham and her daughter were found dead in their apartment on Sherbourne street this morning when neighbors becoming alarmed at their non-appearance, broke into their rooms. Death was evidently caused by gas escaping from the gas stove, which was found disconnected. The two lived alone in the apartment, and was of only two rooms.

Joy Ride Not Appreciated Whale Ran Away With Boat

CORDOVA, Alaska, Oct. 7. —(Canadian Press.)— Being towed 20 miles through rock-strewn waters at night by a harpooned whale was the experience related by Capt. Louis Lane, of the whaler 'Gunnar,' who arrived here yesterday on his way south.

The mammal was harpooned in Prince William Sound, north of here, and towed the Gunnar, which is operated by three men, and is said to be the smallest independent unit whaler in the world, for 20 1-2 hours before tiring out.

PLOWING MATCH.

Peterborough Plowmen Are to Compete in Ennismore.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Plowmen's Association was held last Saturday with President R. T. Lillico in the chair.

Final arrangements were made for this fall's match to be held in Ennismore, just over the Chemong bridge, on the farms of Reeve Corkery and Joe Holland.

A splendid list of prizes is being offered and it is expected that this year's match will surpass any heretofore.

A PRESENTATION.

Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. Lodge Gave Dishes to Recent Bride.

The regular meeting of Vimy Ridge Lodge L.O.B.A. held last evening in Victoria Hall, was marked by the presentation made to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carney (nee Rose Foster) of a handsome set of china dishes, accompanied by an address.

There was a large attendance at the meeting during which initiation ceremonies were carried out, and which was closed by the holding of a weiner roast in the hall. The presentation to the bride and bridegroom was made by the Worthy Mistress, Mrs. Agnes Foster, and Mrs. Charles Wright. The address was read by Mrs. G. Campbell, recording secretary.

POPULATION OF PETERBORO HAS DECREASED 231

Loss As Shown By Assessor in Comparison With 1924 Total.

ASSESSMENT UP.

Population of City 295 Less Than 1920—Births 304 Last Year.

Peterboro's present population is 231 persons less than last year and 295 less than in 1920.

Such is the bleak and cheerless reflection of the municipal corporation's well-being as shown in the unrevised assessment roll upon which next year's taxes will be based.

The population totals of the city proper for the last six years are:

1920	21,790
1921	21,439
1922	21,505
1923	21,661
1924	21,726
1925	21,395

And while it is disclosed that the number of residents has decreased, the total assessment is $399,250 higher than last year's, but as some slight compensation for property owners the assessor has marked up the total value of real property by $442,465.

A capitulation of the assessor's information provides the following outstanding facts bearing on the city's condition as to personnel and finances:

Value of land	$6,402,875
Value of buildings	$15,301,590
Total	$21,704,465
Total taxable real property	$16,161,850
Value of property liable for school tax only	$2,404,430
Exempted from taxes, or liable only for local improvement	$3,103,185
Business assessment	$1,578,510
Bus. Ass. liable only for school rates	$1,526,580
Taxable income	$923,995
Total Assessment	$25,733,550
No. of residents	21,495
Children between 5 and 18	5,079
Births last year	304
Deaths	98
Dogs	650

The value of land and buildings last year was $24,262,000 and the total assessment was $25,334,300.

The population of the city by wards is as follows: south, 5,788; centre, 2,471; west ward, 5,277; north 4,827; Ashburnham 3132.

MOORISH LEADER IS DETERMINED FIGHT TO THE END

Wavering Tribesmen Are Executed By Orders of Abd-el-Krim.

MORE SURRENDERS.

Movement of French and Spanish Troops Hindered By Heavy Rains.

FEZ, French Morocco, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—The French and Spanish troops are now in full contact, having completed a wide encircling movement extending from the Kifane Ajdir sector to the western section of Abd-el-Krim's front. This being accomplished, the troops may find it necessary to take up permanent positions because of the torrential rains which have now begun. It is probable that all troop movements must be halted within a few days.

Reports of summary executions by Abd-el-Krim's orders of followers wavering in their support of the Moorish chief, in a campaign of repression, are interpreted here as indicating that the Riffian ruler has decided to fight to the bitter end, in spite of recent defeats. The executions have caused consternation among those tribesmen who have been lukewarm in their support of Abd-el-Krim, and renewed offers of surrender are being received by the French; all carry the conditional clause that the French must undertake to protect the tribesmen against Riffian vengeance.

Tanks and Airplanes

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, Oct 7.—Heavy rains put a stop to military operations in this region today. Combined operations by French and Spanish cavalry will be resumed as soon as the weather permits. More than 40 airplanes and 30 tanks, together with much artillery, have been concentrated by the French near here.

Only One Company In Canada Engaged In Pencil Industry

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—The Dominion bureau of statistic declined to make public the figures of lead pencil production in Canada in recent years. It was explained that only one concern—the Cane Company of Newmarket—has made a return regarding this industry. Section 15 of the Bureau of Statistics Act precludes the publication of information regarding any particular corporation or individual. In the pencil manufacturing line, the Cane Company, apparently, is alone in the business. The statistics of any industry are published only when at least three firms are engaged in it.

MONAGHAN MAN IS CHARGED $126 BY NEW RATES

Increase From $54 a Year to $126 a Year For Power.

DOMESTIC RATE.

Example of Effect of New Charges on Suburban Consumers.

North Monaghan householders, in their grievance against the Hydro Electric Commission for the sharp increase in domestic power rates that takes effect on November 1st, say they would not have objected to an increase of twenty-five per cent but when the new charges are 100 per cent higher than the rates that have been levied by the Peterboro Utilities Commission the township householders complain that they are being hit too hard.

"I had installed an electric stove and heater," said one resident, "and my bill was $9 for two months, but under the new rates I will have to pay $21 for two months or a total of $126 a year as against $54 a year heretofore. The increase on me is more than 100 per cent and I think that fair-minded city people will admit that this is an exorbitant advance."

The notice by the Utilities Commission to the North Monaghan people contains the following clause: "Consumers wishing to continue their electric service will kindly call at the main office of the Commission and sign a contract at the new rates on or before November 1st, 1925. It will be deemed that all services which are not covered by new contracts at the new rates on November 1st are no longer required, and these services will be discontinued on and after this date."

Friday evening's meeting in May's School will likely reveal the resentment in the suburban part of the township at the higher cost of their power.

BETTER OUTLOOK FOR ALL TRADES SAYS SPEAKER

Optimistic Tone Prevails at Convention of Motor Manufacturers.

FIRST IN CANADA.

Address Deprecates State Management of Industry—Too Much Red Tape.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—With about 150 delegates in attendance from various parts of the United States, the first convention ever to be held in Canada of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association opened here yesterday. Mayor Duquette welcomed the delegates on behalf of the City of Montreal.

The principal speaker was Berl Thorpe, of Wishington, editor of The Nation's Business, the official organ of the United States Chamber of Commerce. In his address, he deprecated the States as manager of industry, owing to the impossibility of its deciding anything rapidly. In business, he said, rapid decisions were imperative, and the inevitable red tape in government-owned enterprise made them out of the question. "We over-estimate what the Government can do in business affairs," he declared, "and we underestimated the intricacies and interdependence of business."

Another speaker was Francis H. Sisson of New York, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, who said that an analysis of trade reports, without exception, indicate an improved outlook for business and better trade conditions.

BALDWIN'S SPEECH TO-NIGHT AROUSING LIVELY INTEREST

Is Expected to Answer Criticisms Recently Aimed at Government.

SPLIT IN CABINET.

Annual Conference of Conservative Party is Being Held To-day.

LONDON, October 8. — Canadian Press. — A lively interest has been aroused over the speech of the Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, is to make to-night at the annual conference of the Conservative Party at Brighton.

It is presumed that he will answer the severe criticisms to which he and his colleagues have been subjected recently by a section of the press.

The chief grounds for these attacks has been the government's attitude on the Mosul question, due to the declaration of the Secretary for the Colonies Amery at Geneva that the British government was prepared if necessary to retain its hold on Mesopotamia for twenty five years beyond 1928, which previously had been indicated as the date the British would leave there.

The anti-government critics insist there is a strong division of sentiment in the cabinet over this matter, and that the Conservative government is disgruntled over the British committments in Mosul.

It is understood that at yesterday's cabinet meeting which was the first held in nine weeks the Mosul question was fully discussed and that the line Mr. Baldwin would take in his speech was agreed upon.

The anti-government critics also are telling the public that there is dissatisfaction in the ranks of the Conservative party over the government having granted the recent coal subsidy, and that they may expect to hear something soothing from the Premier on this subject.

ANSWERS CRITICS.

STANLEY BALDWIN,
Premier of Britain, who will reply to criticism of policies at conference to-night.

MEIGHEN MADE WHIRLWIND TOUR

Addressed a Meeting in a Vancouver Shipyard—New Constituency.

HEALTH IMPROVED.

NORTH VANCOUVER (Canadian Press).—After a strenuous day of campaigning on Vancouver Island on Tuesday, Hon. Arthur Meighen conducted a whirlwind, one-day tour of the Vancouver district yesterday. He appeared greatly improved in health. The slight indisposition which compelled him to cancel a meeting in the Comox-Alberni riding on Tuesday is passing away.

Mr. Meighen addressed a gathering in a local shipyard in support of the candidature of G. H. Morden in the new constituency of North Vancouver. He spoke briefly, outlining his policies and appealing for a change of fiscal policy in the Dominion.

CONSERVATIVES DENOUNCED FOR INCONSISTENCY

Latest Appointed Member of Cabinet Advocates Policy of Moderation.

MIGRATION TO U. S.

Cites Financial Figures of Last Year of Both Administrations.

TORONTO, Ont., October 8. Canadian Press. — Hon. Herbert M. Marler, the newly appointed member of the King Cabinet, speaking last night at Markham, a few miles north of here delivered his second attack in Ontario on the Conservative tariff policy for what he charged as its inconsistency. His earlier address on the political issues of the day was made here this afternoon at a meeting held under the auspices of the Toronto Women's Liberal Association.

Mr. Marler, who was selected as being representative of the English-speaking people of Montreal, and who was member in the last parliament for the riding of St. Lawrence-St. George, declared the policy the King government advocated was one that would embrace all Canada.

Policy of Moderation.

"There can be no separate eastern and western policies," he said. Geographical and industrial conditions of both east and west must be recognized. The Conservatives, he added, had always talked about raising the tariff to "a protective one that would safeguard the Canadian manufacturer," but averred they had never done it, and quoted from budgets brought down by Sir Henry Drayton, and earlier by Sir Thomas White, in which far from raising the tariffs, they had lowered them.

He quoted from Hansard as showing that Sir Thos. White had declared specifically that "the evils of a high tariff are too well known to make it necessary to allude to them."

Touching the question of migration of Canadians across the border Mr. Marler read statistics going to show there had always been a movement. While admitting freely, he said, that large numbers of Canadians had crossed to the United States in 1924, he contended that this was not due to the King tariff having caused trade depression in Canada but solely because of the extraordinary boom conditions in the Republic, which conditions were a resul of money surplus accuumulated during the war before the United States became a combatant.

In addition to this, he said, it was when the American boom was at its greatest height that Washington introduced the quota immigration law, which restricted the flow of people from Europe, so that with buildings going up everywhere and labor at a premium, Canadians were attracted by the unusual prosperity in the United States. Now, he added, they are returning in large numbers to Canada.

Quoting from financial figures as illustrative of the country's condition during the last years of the Meighen regime and during the last three years of the Liberal administration, Mr. Marler said there was no gainsaying Canada had prospered exceedingly well.

"Why, then," he asked, "should anyone want a change of government? They can only get a change for the worse.'

The tariff in existence now, said Mr. Marler, was Mr. Fieldings tariff of 1907, and it had never been materially altered by the Conservatives when they were in power, nor did he suppose it would be supposing they came into power again.

Sydney Girl Is Held Cannot Join Sweetheart

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., 8.—(United News).—Geraldine Conroy was one of the pretty Sydney girls who surrendered to the wiles of cupid during the United States fleets cruise to Australia. She arrived here Tuesday with the announced intention of marrying Lieut. A. E. Colton of the U.S.S. Pennsylvania. Colton is at San Pedro, however, and immigration officials, declaring the Australian quota filled, refused to allow her to enter the country.

A hurry call has been sent to the officer with the plea that he rescue his fiancee from the Angel Island detention station.

Fair Jockey Piloted Winner Down Stretch

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—An eighteen year old school girl, with her hair done up in braids under her jockey cap, today piloted Walter Earl's horse, Hogier, to victory in the Town Plate one of the oldest events in English turfdom. The fair winner is Eileen Joel, daughter of the well known turfman, Sol Joel.

Another girl jockey, Miss Gladys Rickaby, riding Pooh Bah was second, and a third, Betty Tanner, finished last in a field of five on Skylark.

Third place was taken by a male jockey on J. J. Jarvis's horse F. Rooked.

JUDGES WILL SIT TO REVISE LISTS URBAN CENTRES

Voters to Apply in Person To Have Names Included.

OCT. 15 LAST DAY.

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—Throughout Canada judges or the nominees of judges begin to sit tomorrow for the revision of voters' lists for urban polling divisions, that is, for cities and towns whose population exceeds 5,000 and certain other areas which, although not included in a city or town incorporated as such, have been directed to be treated as urban by reason of their having a dense or transient population.

Every revising officer has been allotted a certain number of the preliminary lists for different polling divisions prepared within the last fortnight by urban registrars. Any qualified voter whose name has not been included in the preliminary list for the polling division in which he resides may apply in person to the revising officer for that polling division to have his name added to the list.

Revising officers will strike from the lists the names of every person alleged to be disqualified by affidavit sworn before the urban registrar, unless such person attends pursuant to the notice he has received and satisfies the revising officer that he is properly qualified. They will also dispose of applications to strike off names of voters whose qualification has not been attacked by affidavits sworn before the registrars, provided two clear days' notice of such applications have been given by registered mail. A notice of this kind may be given by any one by letter stating the time and place of the sittings of the revising officer at which it will be made, but the applicant in any such case must attend and give some evidence of the disqualification of the person whose name is sought to be struck off.

The revising officers' sittings will continue daily until October 15, after which the list of voters for every urban polling division will be closed and printed. No voter who should vote in an urban polling division can do so unless his name has been included in the list.

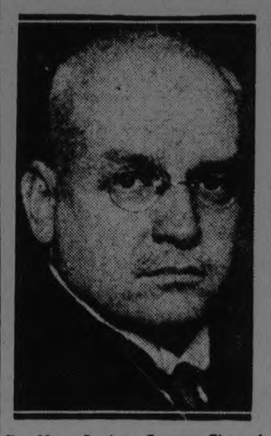
SPIRIT OF CONCILIATION MARKS EXCHANGES BETWEEN STATESMEN DESIROUS OF A WORLD AT PEACE

CHANGE OF HEART.



Dr. Hans Luther, German Chancellor, laboring to banish fears of another Franco-German war.

French and German Ministers Steal Way For Private Talk.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

Germany Desires to Prevent Wars For All Time, Says Chancellor.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—Not only peace now, but peace for all time, is Germany's desire. The German Chancellor, Dr. Luther, so informed M. Briand the French Foreign Minister, yesterday, in a private consultation of the two statesmen, which stands out conspicuously as the biggest single event since the opening of the security conference.

The two leaders stole quietly away from Locarno and, meeting at a secluded spot on the shore of Lake Maggiore, had a frank talk on European problems as a whole, and especially how best to consolidate the peace of Europe.

This meeting of conciliation marked by an expression of the determination of both statesmen to do everything humanly possible to banish the Franco-German war spectre, has injected a new ray of optimism into the political atmosphere, despite the fact that it did not result in the fashioning of a formula whereby France can guarantee, in a special way, the territorial integrity of Poland and Czechoslovakia, her allies.

That problem will require a consultation of the cabinets at Paris and Berlin, for France and Germany will find it difficult yielding from their original position without the support of their home Governments and home parliaments.

The conference itself, which met for only an hour today, achieved no substantial progress. The spokesmen of the various delegations admitted this, but they qualified it

SYNOD ASKED TO GIVE LARGE SUM

One-third of Presbyterian Requirements Come From Central Ontario.

NEED $600,000.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press.)—With an allotment based on its proportion of the total membership, the Synod of Toronto and Kingston will be asked to assume one-third, or $200,000 of the budget of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, for the year 1926. To carry on the work of the church, the Board of Administration, appointed by the General Assembly, has decided that $600,000 is necessary, and yesterday before the meeting of the Synod, in Knox church, G. Tower Ferguson, representing the Board, revealed to the ministers and elders the financial plans and requirements of the coming year.

TAXES REDUCED.

Rumanian Cabinet Cuts Levies on Various Export Grains.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—The Rumanian cabinet has decided to reduce substantially the export taxes on corn, barley and beans in an effort to relieve the financial crisis brought on by inability to sell grain abroad in competition with Russian exporters.

NO DANCE AT LAKEFIELD PAVILION TO-NIGHT. 1d84 2395

DAIRY PRODUCTS SHOW INCREASE

Butter and Cheese Exports Bring $9,200,000 More Into Country.

WIDER MARKETS.

In the seven months this year ending with July, according to the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch news letter, Canada supplied the United Kingdom with 4,927,266 pounds of butter compared with 154,224 pounds in the same period last year and 40,458,544 pounds of cheese compared with 29,153,504 pounds in 1924. In the twelve months ending with July our total exports of butter were 28,869,207 lbs., valued at $10,317,819, compared with 14,474,241 lbs. worth $5,273,479 in the previous year, and 140,149,300 lbs. of cheese, $27,894,665 in value, compared with 119,225,800 lbs., valued at $23,702,976. This shows an increase in favor of 1924-25 of 14,394,916 lbs. in butter and 20,913,500 lbs. in cheese and a combined increase in money of $9,296,029, by which amount the country has been enriched.

YOUR GARDEN

SHRUBS THAT WILL ATTRACT THE BIRDS

Even the small place can be made attractive to the birds by a judicious choice of shrubs and trees. These can be both ornamental and useful. Indeed, the fruits of many of the choicest shrubs as the Viburnums are much appreciated by our feathered friends. This fall, winter and spring, observe the bird visitants about the home, and plan to improve its attractiveness along this line during the spring planting season. No argument should be needed to prove the advantage of their presence, as most garden lovers are familiar with the battle against garden foes. The following shrubs are listed as an aid and arranged alphabetically.

Late Summer Food.

Barberry (Berberis)—Crow, Cedarbird, kinghird, robin, sparrow, woodpecker.

Dogwood (Cornusin species)—Blackbird, bluebird, catbird, cedarbird, chickadee, crow, grosbeak, oriole, sparrow, vireo, woodpecker.

Virginia Creeper (Amelopsis quinquefolia)—Bluebird, chickadee, crow, kingbird, robin, sparrow, woodpecker.

Food in Winter.

Snowberry and Indian Currant (Symphoricarpos)—Grosbeak, junco.

Sumac (Rhus)—Cedarbird, chickadee, grosbeak, and early spring food for returning birds.

The Hawthorn and Viburnum, as well as some mentioned before, also supply very early spring food for returning visitors.

Many of the other ornamentals producing berries are also attractive as long as their berries last, such as the honeysuckles, cotoneasters, wild cherries, cedars, Canadian hemlock and junipers. These berry-bearing shrubs also have a great decorative value as well, in early winter, when the warm oranges, reds and clear blacks of the berries are most attractive.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

HON. VINCENT MASSEY DERIDES IDEA THAT HIGH TARIFF WOULD BE BENEFICIAL TO THE FARMERS

Prices of Farm Produce Determined in World Markets Says New Minister.

AT MILLBROOK.

Friendly Reception —Spoke Also at Newcastle Last Night.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 8.—The Hon. Vincent Massey, Liberal candidate in Durham, addressed two meetings last night, the first in the Town Hall here, and the other at Newcastle. Both were largely attended.

Millbrook gave Mr. Massey a friendly, respectful reception, but the demands of his crowded evening militated against the fullest effect of his local appeal, for the reason that he began his address promptly in order that he could leave early for Newcastle, and, as a result, late-comers heard little or none of his speech. He was accompanied by his wife, and was joined here by S. S. Stanley, ex-M.P.P., who presided as chairman, and Fred J. Sandy, ex-M.P.P. of Victoria, both of whom endorsed his candidature.

Mr. Massey spoke with an easy, fluent delivery and a command of simple, effective words that graced his thoughtful presentation of those phases of the campaign with which he dealt. And he declared that it was political ideas and opinions he wished to discuss and not personalities.

"I am on the best of terms with my opponent, and I admire and respect his leader. I like his candor and his personality, but I disagree entirely with his policies."

Sincerity of Electors.

Mr. Massey said that the issues of the campaign should be approached in all sincerity and with the sole thought of what policy was best for Canada. "Let each man and woman ask themselves what they would do if the decision was left entirely to them, and let each vote as if the millions of others did not exist. I shall not complain so long as it is a thinking vote. Let us think of Canada as a whole and of our part of it in relation to that whole."

There had been too little exchange of information between members of Parliament and their constituents, Mr. Massey said. "I give you my promise that if elected I shall do something which will meet with your approval. If it be my fortune to represent you I shall frequently send to the voters of all parties in this riding circular letters keeping you as closely informed as I can as to what is going on and why at Ottawa."

Mr. Massey said he believed a great deal could be done by such understanding and co-operation between a member and his constituents. Recently he had met a man in Millbrook who had asked him what was the effect of motor traffic on the railways. And as the railway problem was one of grave concern to all Canadians, he had made enquiries which showed that motor 'busses were taking from the railways' passenger service a sum estimated at $9,000,000 a year and motor trucks $25,000,000 a year in revenue from the freight service. This was a loss of $34,000,000 a year in transportation revenues. Not all of it was taken from the railways because a considerable part of it was new business.

Preference For Durham.

Mr. Massey said the question was asked as to why he was standing for election in Durham and not in Toronto. He spoke of the old connexion of his family with Durham County. He had a farm in Durham, but he did not pretend to be a farmer in the full sense of that word. He believed that farming often did the city man more good than he did to farming. Nevertheless he delighted in his Durham farm, and found that it enabled him better to understand the problems the Ontario farmer had to contend with.

"I feel in harmony with the minds of the people of Durham, and I sincerely believe that they and I think in much the same way. I stand for your suffrages as a citizen of Hope township and not as an employer or manufacturer, and I feel that if you accept me I can be of service to you. I thought it wise to sever my business relations entirely, and I come to you as a citizen ready to devote all my time to the work you may set me to."

Declaring himself a Liberal, Hon. Mr. Massey said he had not been a keen partizan.

"I believe that the two groups which have honored me with their endorsement think alike, and I know profoundly that I agree with them."

Says Tariff a Tax

The tariff is a tax, Mr. Massey said, that had to be paid for and paid heavily. High protectionists propose to give farmers a tariff claiming that it would be good for agriculture. Much is being said of the tariff of the United States but that has nothing to do with the question before Canadians, because the United States is a country completely self-contained whereas Canada is not. At present the great American myth was being given to the people in full measure.

It is said that the Prince Edward Island potato grower would benefit from a tariff, whereas his problem is that he can't sell his product to the New England States. We are told that a tariff would benefit the coal industry of the Maritimes, but the problem of those mines is the high freight rates to Ontario and Central Canada.

Will a higher tariff benefit the farmer. It is proposed to give farmers a tariff based on the theory that they will get higher prices. That gives the show away. For on the one hand it is said that if industries get a higher tariff the consumer wont' pay more and on the other hand if the farmer gets a tariff the consumer will pay more because it is contended the farmer will get higher prices for his produce. And so the high protectionists plan to pit our two great industries together like Kilkenny cats, engendering antagonism between producers and consumers.

Is that constructive statesmanship Mr. Massey asked.

Butter Imports Small

"They say that if the tariff is raised on butter the farmer will get 4c more a pound. Two years ago we produced 162,000,000 pounds of butter of which we consumed 140,000,000 pounds and exported 22,000,000 pounds.

We imported less than 4,000,000 pounds or about one-fortieth of what we produced. Do you think that an increase of 4c more on the 4,000,000 pounds we import would have any effect on the 162,000,000 pounds we produce.

In 1923 we produced 4,500,000 barrels of apples and exported one-third of them at prices fixed by the markets of the world. In that year we imported 165000 barrels, a mere fraction of our production. Do you think that a higher tariff on apples would have any effect on the price of those we sell elsewhere. Protection might work if we consumed all that we produced. That is the ideal of protectionists. It is achieved by raising the cost of living and no one is better off in the long run than before. It is an artificial prop complicating the problems of life."

Mr. Massey suggested that in this decision confederation was on trial. Western Canada would not accept a high tariff. It was not in their interest, and they resented it as being solely for the advantage of the east. "And because of that, why should we entertain this policy for one moment?"

"Let us put away that faint-heartedness which we have been hearing, and with faith, and goodwill and understanding I believe you and I can bring in a new and better Canada."

The meeting was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

LONDON CANDIDATES

Frank White, former member of Parliament, who has been again chosen by London Conservatives as their candidate.

E. Sydney Little, twice Mayor of London, Ont., and industrial magnate, who has been unanimously chosen to contest that city in the Liberal interests.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous waste matter is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

There is no guess work about Rheuma bringing you back to health. That's why McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick relief.

KEENE FAIR ATTENDANCE WAS LESSENED BY COLD WEATHER

Good Showing Made By Peterborough Horses in Free-For-All.

FINE CATTLE SHOWN.

Other Exhibits, Both Agricultural and Women's Work, Were Good.

(By Staff Reporter)

The Otonabee Agricultural Exhibition held its second day at Keene Fair Grounds yesterday, with an attendance that was somewhat marred by the chilly weather and the fact that many of the farmers are behind in their work and are loth to take even a day off to "come and look at the cows and pigs we see every day," as one man expressed it.

Exhibits were well filled, with the exception of the horse showing for which Keene is famous, and which was possibly not as large as usual this year.

Two trials of speed were on the programme, a free for all, open to trotters and pacers, with a purse of $100, divided as follows: (1) $50, (2) $30, (3) $20, and a green-race with first, second and third money of $15, $10 and $5.

Three Peterboro horses took the money in the free for all, S. Blewett's Major Hal and Cy Winger taking first and third place respectively, and Ed. Jones' Bub coming in second. Baby Direct, owned by A. Elmhirst of Keene, and Kelly Todd, owned by Chas. Fife of Keene, also ran. The first heat saw almost a dead finish between Bub and Major Hal.

First, second and third places in the green race went to Dick Winger, owned by W. Elmhirst of Keene, Louis, by J. Elmhirst of Keene, and Babe owned by H. Elmhirst of Keene.

Judges for the track events were N. M. Henry and A. W. Blade of Peterboro and W. A. Richardson of Norwood, with Merton Storey as starter.

Judging in the ring as done by J. Lee of Kemptville. Young light horses were considered the best class in this section. Some of the biggest exhibitors of horses were Messrs. W. A. Drummond, Fred Fox of Birdsalls, Chas. Kindred of Zion, Messrs. Hope Brothers and Harry Redmond with his snappy driving turnouts.

The silver cup donated by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Minister of Immigration, for boy or girl drivers under eighteen years of age, the cup to be won two years in succession to become winner's property, went to Harold Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson.

The silver cup given by A. Gibson, jeweller, of Peterboro, for best trained foal shown by girl or boy under fifteen years of age, was won by Bobby Humphries, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Humphries of Lang.

Large Cattle Showing.

There was a good showing of cattle, with large exhibits by Messrs. S. M. Comrie, W. A. Drummond, F. A. Easson, R. Humphries of Lang, and W. A. Anderson, showing a number of Holsteins. Wm. F. Allen of Madoc judged the cattle and hogs.

Special awards in the beef grade cattle section were won as follows: For herd of dairy cows the first prize of $5, given by Messrs. A. Brown and Company, went to Edgar Wood, and the second prize of $2 in goods, given by R. Heard, went to W. A. Anderson. For the championship bull shorthorn, a prize of $2 in goods given by W. Burns of Peterboro, went to Wm. Bishop. Championship Holstein bull, $10, given by G. A. Brethen, winner, W. A. Anderson. Goods to value of $5, presented by the Higgins Hardware Company of Peterboro, for the best shorthorn herd, was won by M. Pimmett. For the best Holstein herd, goods to the value of $5 given by G. T. Gall, won by Edgar Wood. For the best pair of feeding cattle, a first prize, a case of spark plugs, value $7, donated by Duffus Motor Sales Company, went to R. A. Nelson, the second prize of $3 went to W. A. Nelson, and the third prize, $2, by C. C. Nelson, went to Roy Kemp.

The prize of a dairy pail, donated by A. E. Mieks, for the best shorthorn heifer of two years, went to M. Pimmett. For the best Holstein, two-year old heifer, a dairy pail donated by Messrs. Adamson and Dobbin, went to W. A. Anderson. S. M. Comrie, with the best Holstein cow, over two years of age, won the cup, valued at $25, donated by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Peterboro. For the best grade Holstein cow, the first prize of $3 went to W. A. Drummond, and S. M. Comrie received the second award of $2, donated by W. A. Anderson.

In the swine section, good showings were made by Thos. Beatty of Peterboro, R. Humphries of Lang, and Harry Manley. The Canadian Packing Company's special awards of $7, $5 and $3 for the best pen of three bacon hogs were won by (1) R. Humphries of Lang, (2) Harold Weir, (3) Thos. Beatty of Peterboro.

In the sheep pens, Wm. H. Elmhirst, R.R. No. 1, Indian River, had a bunch of first prize cards awarded to his nice group of Oxford Downs.

About one hundred birds, including some good-looking water fowl, were housed in the pens outside the main building, and were judged by J. R. Hope. Large showings were made by Messrs. Jas. Wilson, Frank Walsh, W. A. Nelson, C. C. Nelson and R. A. Nelson.

In the Main Building were fine collections of grains, roots and vegetables, judged by W. G. Barry of Norwood, with good exhibits by Messrs. S. M. Comrie, W. A. Drummond, R. E. Drummond, F. A. Easson, Harry Manley Chas. Nelson, W. A. Nelson, R. A. Nelson, Harry Read Henry Weir, Carl Weir and Frank Welsh.

For the best collection of field roots the prizes of $3 and $2, offered by R. A. Nelson of Keene, were won by W. A. Nelson and C. C. Nelson.

In the Main Building also was an especially good showing of apples, a nice lot of butter, preserved fruits and pickles, and a collection of flowers and plants. Fruit was judged by Mr. Walter Oke, and dairy products by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of Peterboro.

The special awards on butter were won as follows: R. Neill Company of Peterboro award of $3 pair of shoes for first prize five-pound crock of butter, went to Mrs. J. H. Nelson, and the Howson Garage prize of 60 cents per pound for best ten-pound crock of butter (to become their propetry) went to Mrs. W. A. Nelson.

Prize Winners.

For a collection of fruit, 10 sealers, prizes of $3 and $2, given by Dr. Walsh, went to Mrs. S. M. Comrie and Mrs. C. C. Nelson. For collection of pickles the prizes of butter dishes by Messrs. Schneider, jewellers, of Peterboro, and of two pairs of ladies' boot rubbers, by Mr. J. Kylie, of Peterboro and of two pairs of ladies' boot rubbers, by Mr. J. Kylie, of Peterboro, went to Mrs. C. C. Nelson and Mrs. W. H. Allen of Lakefield, respectively.

In the floral section, Mrs. George Spence, and Mrs. Webster of Lakefield, Mrs. J. H. Fletcher, Mrs. J. J. Moore and Mrs. G. Adamson were first prize winners.

Mrs. J. H. Nelson took first prize for dressed fowl and butter entries.

W. A. Nelson had a red first award ticket attached to his monstrous green specimen of a cattle squash.

A number of decorated sheaves were on view. First prize for oat sheaf went to W. A. Nelson, and for a wheat sheaf to C. Mather.

Mr. George S. Taylor of Keene had a variety of merchandise from his store on view, in a well-displayed selection of paints and varnishes, a number of stoves and furnaces, and an interesting exhibit of overalls, the strength and wearing qualities of the fabric and stitching being demonstrated by attaching a hundred-pound bag of sugar to a single pair of overalls suspended from an overhead wire.

In this building also were the two Singer machines whose good qualities were explained by Mr. J. W. Stuart of Peterboro.

Grafton and Company's fine exhibit made a brave and cheerful bit of color on the grounds, the display being in charge of Mr. Lorne Conway. The Midway contained a couple of booths, "the largest yoke of oxen in Ontario," a few dart games and a row of smiling tabbies that offer themselves willing sacrifices to errant marksmen and buzz with discontent when they are knocked down, and a game that had as prizes rugs from the Brinton Carpet Company's factory, in Wilton and Axminister weaves.

The Chemong Indian band played generously on the grandstand during the afternoon.

Ladies' Work.

The big hall was filled with interesting examples of ladies' work, with a special section for children's exhibits of cooking, penmanship and Mrs. R. V. Dawson and Miss Clara Armstrong of Peterboro were judges.

The fancy work section was representative of many types of dainty stitching, with a specially good exhibit of quilts in novelty patterns, and some pretty blue and pink rugs. There were several pretty handbags, with one odd sample in pink silk, covered with tiny white shells. There were some nice pieces of hand-painted china, with a first prize award for cup and saucer to Miss Eleanor Foley, some pretty water and oil sketches, and a collection of snapshots, flanked by fine examples of penmanship.

Among the many first prize winners in the ladies' section were Mrs. J. J. Moore, Mrs. H. Read, Mrs. Webster and Mrs. George Spence, the two latter from Lakefield.

The display of cooking was excellent. Mrs. S. M. Comrie, Mrs. C. C. Nelson, Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Mrs. J. H. Nelson and Mrs W. H. Allen of Lakefield were foremost holders of red tickets for first prizes.

The prizes of $3 and $2 offered by W. A. Nelson for the best collection of baking went to Mrs. S. M. Comrie and Mrs. W. H. Allen. The Howson Garage award of $1 for the best loaf of bread, to become their property, probably to serve as a partial base for the butter which was claimed by them also for another prize in dairy products, went to Mrs. W. H. Allen of Lakefield.

In the miscellaneous fancy work section, the special award by Turnbulls, Limited, of Peterboro, for the best collection the prize being valued at $3, went to Mrs. Webster of Lakefield.

Mr. John Crane's prize of $2 for best penmanship with a second award of $1 by the society, went respectively to Kathleen Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Nelson, and to Helen Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weir.

The Fair finished up with a dance in the evening.

Officers for the 1925 Keene Fair are R. A. Nelson, president; G. E. Kent, 1st vice president; C. C. Nelson, 2nd vice president, and J. A. Drummond secretary-treasurer. Honorary directors: G. A. SCENE OF PARLEY.

Locarno, a small town in Switzerland, was chosen as the scene of the security conference because of its inaccessability, and Austin Chamberlain expressed surprise when he found several hundred newspapermen there. The above map shows the location of Locarno.

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangercus body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much underweight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1925.

THIS WEEK'S DUTY.

How many Peterboro householders are making any effort to carry out the Fire Prevention Week slogan, "Clean up"?

In the majority of houses a check-up might disclose surprising conditions as regard fire hazards.

These conditions should be remedied during the present week as a most valuable contribution toward making Peterboro fire-safe.

The trouble is to get people to realize their personal responsibility.

They are willing to admit that Canada's fire waste each year is much larger than it need be, and most of them are able to see that they have to pay their share of this huge bill—yet when it comes to action the average citizen is content to leave everything to the fire department.

It is much surer, safer and simpler to prevent fires than to put them out—but we concentrate almost altogether on fire fighting and neglect the prevention side of the question.

This week should be used to remove the most dangerous fire hazards from every building in Peterboro.

MAKE SURE NOW.

Conditions regarding the voters' list in several of the Toronto ridings suggest the wisdom of every elector consulting the latest lists to make sure of his vote before it is too late to remedy matters by appearing before Judge Huycke.

It is not enough to know that your name was on the last Provincial list; it may have been omitted when the new list was compiled.

It is not even enough to know that you are registered; your name may inadvertently have been dropped as the lists were prepared.

The only sure way is see the list for yourself, and if you find that a mistake has been made, you still have a chance to correct the error.

The organizations at the committee rooms of the respective candidates are in a position to supply the necessary information, and voters who are in doubt should not fail to take advantage of the service both are prepared to give.

The Examiner stresses this matter because it feels that every elector should use his franchise on Oct. 29th, and therefore that every elector should be sure that he will not be refused a ballot paper when he applies for one.

A LESSON FROM BASEBALL.

Young Canadians can find, without a great deal of searching, a lesson in the success of Walter Johnson, venerable Washington pitcher, that should be of great value to them.

It is obvious that no athlete after nearly twenty years' service in professional baseball could make such a sensational showing as Johnson did yesterday unless he took care of himself.

Here was a veteran, thirty-eight years of age, who had toiled year after year on the pitching rubber, baffling the strongest club in the National League and striking out no fewer than ten of the Pittsburg players.

The steadiness, cool nerve, courage and strength of arm exhibited by this wonderful old athlete were not developed upon a career of dissipation or disregard of the simple rules of health.

The Johnson of 1925 is the Johnson of 1910, because he has regarded his body as a machine that must be taken care of, not as something that would function perfectly no matter how much it was ill-treated.

It is possible for only a few to be expert baseball pitchers, but the opportunity to live sanely and conserve one's health and strength is open to everyone who will follow the example of Washington's famous pitcher.

HECKLING A NOVELTY.

A feature of the present political campaign has been the absence of "heckling," something that the newcomer to Canada from the British Isles finds it difficult to understand.

The interruption of a speaker by someone who differs from his views occurs so frequently at British political meetings that the Canadian method seems tame in comparison.

The political speakers across the Atlantic take the "heckling" as a matter of course, and many of them are so adept in taking advantage of the opening given them by questions from the audience that they usually turn the interruption into good account.

The other night in one of his meetings on the Pacific Coast Premier King ran into a heckler, and the incident was such a novelty that the Canadian Press saw fit to feature it as news.

Canadian audiences are usually content to listen silently, and even when they cannot accept the speaker's views receive them without outward signs of disapproval.

The result is that the colour and the flashing repartee that distinguish many of the political gatherings in the Motherland are missing.

A little "heckling," if done by someone who knows the issues, might add spice to some of the meetings of the present campaign.

FRANCE WOULD BORROW MORE.

France, having sowed the wind, is now reaping the whirlwind. M. Caillaux must face his Parliament, having accomplished practically nothing. He has not succeeded in reducing the principal of the amount owed by France to the United States. He has merely made an arrangement by which France will have to pay something every year, in the shape of interest. And that means higher taxes for the French people.

The French people have never been willing to tax themselves highly to reduce their national debt. In 1815 their debt amounted to only 1,601,000,000 francs, which was one-fortieth of the national wealth. By issuing "rentes" for internal improvements, without making adequate provision for paying them off, they had increased their debt to 11,116,000,000 francs in 1868; it was then one-seventeenth of the country's wealth. Then came the Franco-Prussian war and the five billion francs indemnity to Germany—the war itself was too short to be costly. This burden was added to the national debt, and still there was no sinking fund. Instead, there were occasional conversions, by which the rente-holders exchanged them for new securities at a lower interest, but with larger capital value. This reduced the annual interest charge, but increased the debt. In 1913 the "perpetual" debt, for which no sinking fund was provided, was 22,000,000,000 francs, or one-fourteenth of the national wealth. At the same time, the American debt was about one-half of one per cent. of the national wealth.

In other words, France had deliberately postponed the evil day of payment by letting her debt pile up rather than tax her people to reduce it. Then came the deluge. The people who had declined to tax themselves found the value of their Government securities cut to a small fraction of their pre-war worth. In addition, France, which had never had a foreign debt, found herself at the end of the war owing about $4,000,000,000 to the United States and a somewhat smaller amount to Great Britain.

This situation France steadfastly refuses to face. She has never taxed herself to pay off her debts, and she does not want to begin now. But the alternative is bankruptcy.

And now France wants to borrow still more money, not from our Government, but from private sources. Naturally, private sources will not lend unless the new loan is given precedence. The United States should see to it that not one dollar of a preferential loan goes to France from private investors until our taxpayers, who are paying 4 1-2 per cent. interest on the $4,000,000,000 we have loaned to France, are secured. They should have the first lien on French resources; and until their claim is recognized, they should have the only lien.—Detroit News.

RAMSAY MacDONALD RESURGENT.

The divinity which shapes the ends of political leaders is an inscrutable thing. A few weeks ago Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose love of travel is infinitely greater than his interest in politics, was joyfully contemplating a trip to Canada to renew the pleasant associations of previous visits, and to add to his stock of knowledge of a country which has always impressed him. But almost on the eve of his departure came the announcement from our Premier of dissolution and a general election, and loth to intrude under such circumstances, the leader of the British Labor party cancelled his passage and decided to remain at home.

It would now seem as if Mr. Mackenzie King had unwittingly done the former Labor Prime Minister of Britain a good turn, for if the general elections in Canada deprived Mr. MacDonald of an enjoyable trip, they have provided adequate compensation by affording him an opportunity of strengthening his political position at home of which he might not otherwise have been able to take advantage.

In the whole history of the British Labor movement there has not, perhaps, been a more critical event than the recent conference of the Parliamentary Labor party at Liverpool The industrial conflict precipitated by the miners' dispute, the activities of the Communists, the menace of a class war, the widespread talk of impending revolution, and the ominous proceedings of the Trades Union Congress at Scarborough had all invested the Liverpool conference with a significance that could not be easily exaggerated Above everything else, it was to be the chosen battle-ground of contending forces within the sphere of Labor itself, the decisive phase of a conflict between the official Labor leaders and the Communists for control of the Labor party.

So in large measure it proved. The fight was a stern one, exhibiting as never before the bitterness and rancour that exist within the ranks of a once united party, and in the end victory rested with the moderates or constitutionalists. But the impressive feature of the conference was not so much the crushing defeat of the "Reds," significant though that was, as the vigorous and triumphant assertion, or rather reassertion, of Ramsay MacDonald's leadership.

A few months ago, it looked as if MacDonald's days as leader of the Labor party were numbered. During the last session of Parliament his authority was openly defied by the advanced ring of his followers, and belittled even by some of his own friends. When the miners' dispute reached the height of a national crisis, his vacillating attitude pleased neither friend nor foe; and, for the time being, the leadership of Labor seemed to have passed from his hands into those of the extremists represented by the Cooks and the Wheatleys. The Communists believed they had him and his party on the run; Ramsay MacDonald was as good as deposed; and with the aid of skilful propaganda and black-jack methods of persuasion they vigorously set to work to complete his downfall.

At Scarborough they nearly succeeded in their object, but they reckoned without the Scotch stubbornness and intellectual superiority of the man whose political head they sought. It has been said of Ramsay MacDonald that he is more an idealist than a practical politician; a student and philosopher rather than a leader capable of facing and dealing with realities. Nearly twenty years ago Keir Hardie proclaimed him as "the greatest intellectual asset of the British Labor movement." And in his own circle he has been suspected of subscribing to Socialism rather as an intellectual creed than as a practical formula for the solution of Labor's ills.

But if the Communists had studied his career as a Labor protagonist they would have known that when challenged on a matter in which he firmly believed, such, for instance, as his unwavering belief in the value and importance of parliamentary action as opposed to direct action, there was no stronger or more determined fighter in the ranks of Labor than the "canny" Scot who led them. They would also have discovered that his detestation of Communism was no new thing, for four years ago he described the Communist as "a politician in crinolines, and corkscrew curls," and a little later showed that he saw through their game when he wrote: "Where they themselves are in power, repression is their sole idea of co-operation; where they are in a minority, they ask for co-operation while they continue to attack."

It may have been Ramsay MacDonald's mistake that he underestimated the strength of the force he denounced, and gave it too much rope. His triumph at Liverpool is an augury that that mistake will not be repeated. By his courageous stand and sweeping victory he has struck a devastating blow at the "Reds," and at the same time regained his ascendency as the leader of British Labor. To Trotzky's caustic question in his recent book, "Whither Ramsay MacDonald?" Liverpool has furnished the answer.—Ottawa Journal.

RALLY DAY SERVICES.

Held On Sunday At Bailieboro and at Bensfort and Fraserville.

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 6.—The members of the Bailieboro Union Sunday School held their rally day service on Sunday evening.

Owing to the death of the pastor's father who died on Saturday at his home at Bowmanville, Rev. Mr. Folley was unable to be present at the service, and the assistant superintendent, Mr. Jno. Porter, took charge of the service, while Rev. Mr. Howard of Millbrook United Church, delivered an instructive and inspiring address entitled: "Loyalty to Jesus."

The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion with abundance of autumn flowers, autumn leaves, sheaves of grain, and plenty of highly-coloured fruits and vegetables.

There was a large turnout of Sunday School members and the parade of the members carrying beautiful bouquets of flowers which they placed upon the trays held by Misses Ruth Dawson and Kathleen Bateman, was magnificent to see.

During the service Miss Bessie Barnard gave a recitation, and the chorus, which was sung by the primary classes, was also much enjoyed by all. The choir also rendered a splendid anthem, and the Rally Day service was pronounced a real success. The Rally Day services were held on the other two appointments at Bensfort in the morning, and at Fraserville in the afternoon; at both of these appointments both services were largely attended.

On account of Rev. Mr. Folley's sad bereavement, the fowl supper which was to have been held at Fraserville on Tuesday evening, was postponed until one week from Tuesday. The opening meeting of the Epworth League here was also postponed for one week, until the pastor's return.

Personals.

Mr. Jas. Byers, of Rochester, motored to the village on Sunday and was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Jno. White.

Miss Irene Elliot, of Elizabethville, was the guest of Miss Ethel Falls over the week-end.

Miss Kathleen Bateman, of Peterborough, spent the week-end the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. Francy, of Port Hope, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hibbard on Sunday.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values collapsed today, despite a noticeable upward trend at the start. According to some observers, the reaction was largely due to the circumstance that successive jumps had carried the market more than 9 cents a bushel above prices current last week, and that a setback was to have been looked for. Wheat closed heavy, 2 3-8 to 3 5-8 cents net lower, new style, December $1.38 1-8 to $1.38 3-8 and May $1.38 7-8 to $1.39, with corn 1 5-8 to 2 7-8c off oats at 3-4 to 7-8c decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions 10 to 75 cents down.

Crumbling of prices in the wheat market began when the fact grew apparent that although unfavorable weather continued in Canada and in the Northwestern States, the new buying yesterday lacked volume, and appeared to be mostly for previous sellers. Some of the chief buyers of late became sellers, and quickly demonstrated that the market was without adequate support. Breaks in price which rapidly followed were to some extent due to 21,233,000 bushels increase of the world's available supply total an dto reports of rain in Argentine, where Tuesday there had been complaint of dry weather.

Foreigners were said to have been active in yesterday's selling of wheat. The Southwest was also credited with selling rather freely. Disturbing financial reports from Bucharest, Rumania and from Hungary and Austria were given considerable notice in some quarters, and were likewise said to have been responsible for more or less of the selling that took place here. Dearth of demand from exporters had a further depressing effect.

All deliveries of corn declined to new low price records for the season. Weakness of wheat was the governing influence. Reports of frost were ignored, the corn crop being practically all matured. Oats were ruled by sympathy with corn and wheat.

Provisions finally responded to the action of grain, and lost sign of buying on the part of packers.

EGG MARKET

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of price advances in St. John and Vancouver the egg market remains unchanged today.

Toronto—Firm and unchanged. Jobbing, fresh specials 54, extras 52, firsts 45, storage extras 45, firsts 42, seconds 38.

Montreal—Egg market is quiet and unchanged in tone and price. There is some feeling that lower prices may be expected shortly. The poultry market is quiet and unchanged in tone or price.

Calgary — Egg market conditions are unchanged, with receipts practically nil. Dealers paying country points, extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 24. No improvement in poultry market. Springers 14, heavy fowl 11 to 13, light fowl 7 to 9.

Edmonton—Egg market is unchanged. Jobbing extras 40, firsts 35, seconds 30.

Vancouver—Egg market took a one cent advance yesterday with dealers paying country points, extras 50, firsts 48. Jobbing, fresh extras 54, first 52, seconds and pullets 48. Live poultry market is steady and unchanged.

St. John — Egg market is higher with wholesale fresh extras 50, firsts 44, seconds 38. Storage extras 44, firsts 40, seconds 35. Demand is steady.

Halifax—Jobbing, fresh extras 52, firsts 45, seconds 35. Poultry market is unchanged.

Chicago—Fresh firsts 40 1-2 to 42 1-2, December refrigerators 34 1-8.

New York—Fresh extra firsts 45 to 50. Fresh firsts 41 1-2 to 44, December refrigerators 35 1-8.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows.

Sterling demand $4.83 5-8.
Sterling cables $4.84 1-8.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press). — There was some inquiry here yesterday in the local grain market from New York exporters for No. 1 Northern at 14 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. here, with sellers asking 15c per bushel over, and sales of odd lots of No. 1 feed oats were made to local buyers at 5 1-4 cents per bushel over the October option, c.i.f. Montreal.

An improved demand for Ontario and Quebec oats was evident in the local domestic market and prices were firm.

The tone of the market for potatoes and prices remained steady. There was no change in the market for winter wheat flour, the demand still being somewhat limited.

Trade in millfeed was reported quieter, with the tone of the market continuing easy. A fair amount of business was transacted in baled hay and the market displayed a firm undertone. Rolled oats were unchanged in price with business steady.

Beans were quoted at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

A good steady trade continues to be done in eggs for domestic consumption, and the market was fairly active with a firm undertone. The receipts yesterday were 2,418 cases, as compared with 2,730 for the same day last week, and 3,645 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The toen of the market for potatoes remains steady under a fair demand for supplies and a moderately active trade was done.

CHEESE MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—The receipts of cheese were 5,167 boxes, as against 7,722 for the same day last week, and 4,009 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was rather quiet, but the undertone was steady.

BUTTER MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—The receipts of butter yesterday were 772 packages, as compared with 1,700 for the same day last week, and 3,159 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further hange in the condition of the market, prices being about steady at the recent reduction noted, but the demand showed no marked improvement and the volume of business on the whole was small.

FASCISTI APPROVE SEPARATE MINISTRY

Will Make Premiership Separate From Other Portfolios.

ROME, Oct. 8.—(United Press). —The Fascisti Grand Council has approved the establishment of a special portfolio of the ministry of the presidency which will make the premiership distinct from other ministries.

The council also decided to erect a full judiciary especially assigned to capital and labor disputes. The decisions of this newly created body will be compulsory as applying to Fascisti, industrial and unions.

"The grand council", a statement accompanying the decision declared, "recognizes trade unions as necessary to modern life. They must be controlled and incorporated into the state."

NEW GOLD FIND.

Transvaal Region to Yield Huge Store, Believed By Investigation.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The possibility of a new immense yield of gold in the Transvaal region of South Africa seems foreshadowed in a report received here saying that "long lost main reef" on the Randfontein estate has just been discovered by an English company.

The Randfontein main reef ends abruptly at what is known as Witpoortje fault, due to some primeval break in the strata. Numerous costly attempts have been made from time to time to find a continuation of the reef but without success.

It is said that the reef has been discovered at a depth of from 700 to 900 feet and that it can easily be worked.

SOLD IN PETERBOROUGH BY
H. T. MILLARD, 225 HUNTER ST.

OPEN LETTER NO. 15

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Which is the better subject for taxation—a concern that is doing a growing business at a good profit, or a concern that is doing a dwindling business at little or no profit?

Not to be too hasty about it, consider it first from the standpoint of indirect taxation—customs duties, sales taxes, cheque and receipt stamps, etc. From which concern do you get the greater revenue? From which is your revenue the more likely to be permanent?

Next consider it from the standpoint of direct taxation—on income. In that case the answer is even more obvious, is it not? If a concern is making no profit, its usefulness as a subject for direct taxation is nil!

Now forgetting about the taxation side of it altogether, and thinking only of such matters as the employment provided, and the business created for our railroads, our banks, our professional classes, our retailers, and our farmers, which of the two kinds of concerns above mentioned is the more worth-while to Canada? Again, there is no room for argument, is there?

It's the go-ahead businesses that promote Canada's development by advertising the country as a profitable field for investment. Conversely, it's the go-behind businesses that retard Canada's development by warning investors away.

Before Canada can resume her interrupted development, she must make herself attractive to money! She must prove herself to be a field where money can be invested safely, and with reasonable assurance of good returns.

In proportion as she does this, she not only promotes the general prosperity of her people, but she simplifies the problem of raising a revenue adequate to her needs. In proportion as she fails to do this, she subjects her people to depression, and intensifies the problems of taxation.

If conditions in Canada were such that the investment-seeking surpluses of her people were going into productive enterprises, which create employment year after year, instead of into the non-productive uses to which the proceeds of government and municipal bond issues are usually applied, we would be on the high road to prosperity, because foreign capital would be quick to follow where domestic capital had shown the way. But when domestic capital shuns productive enterprises in favor of low-interest-bearing securities, thus advertising to the world its fear that money invested in productive enterprises would not, under present conditions, be safely invested, is it any wonder that foreign capital looks askance at us?

Surely it behooves us to enquire why domestic capital should run to shelter in this way, why productive enterprises have become unattractive to it, and why your Finance Minister, in consequence, is forced to try yearly shifts in the incidence of taxation. What else can it be but the numerous distress signals flying from the masthead of invested capital that has been imperilled, impaired, or well nigh extinguished in the shallows of tariff reduction, and the determination of investment-seeking capital to steer a course that will keep it far removed from that hazard to business navigation?

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,
President.

TAKEN FROM GAOL ON SECOND CHARGE

Variety of Cases and Charges Have Featured Cobourg Court.

COBOURG, Oct. 8 — Everett Woodcock, who is serving a term at Guelph on a conviction of theft, was brought here to answer to a charge of stealing a bicycle at Campbellford some months ago. He was given another two months at the reformatory when he came before Magistrate Floyd last week. He is said to be from Marlbank.

Charged With Perjury

Cobourg has had a plethora of interesting Police Court cases recently. Wm. Foster of Cramahe Tp. was committed for trial for perjury by Magistrate Floyd and bail of $500 was accepted. It is alleged that Foster and a man named Hall from the same municipality pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and were fined, Foster stating he got the liquor from Hall at Hall's barn. When this statement led to Hall being charged with selling Foster said he got the liquor somewhere else, hence the perjury charge.

Armistice Day Dinner

At a meeting of veterans held at the Armouries here on Thursday night committees were appointed to make arrangements for the Armistice dinner which will be held on the evening of Armistice Day. The following officers were appointed—Chairman, Lt. Col. A. E. Hopper, M.C.; Vice-chairman, Capt. David Dick; Secretary, Major C. T. Peterson; Treasurer, Lt. Fred Pepino.

An attempt will be made to secure as speaker, Lt.-Col. the Hon. W. H. Price, D.S.O., Provincial Treasurer.

SCOTTISH M.P. RAPS NEW ORGANIZATION

'Bob' Smillie, O. M. S., as Menace to Labor and Capitalists' Tool.

GLASGOW, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—The organization for the maintenance of supplies in case of a general strike was condemned at a conference of Scottish miners here yesterday. The conference passed a resolution protesting against such an organization being formed in the United Kingdom and expressing the view that it and similar organizations would be used against the miners if an industrial conflict occurred in which the miners were involved.

Robert Smillie, M.P., President of the Scottish Miners' Federation, addressing the conference, said it was the government's business to protect the people, not the business of a private body of men. He regarded the "O.M.S." as the organization for the maintenance of supplies is coming to be known, as a menace to organized Labor and was intended to help the capitalists to continue the enslavement of the workers. Mr. Smillie said the important fact in connection with the organization for the maintenance of supplies was that it was being established with the approvement of government officials, one of whom was the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN THOMPSON.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 8. — The death occurred on Monday, Oct.5 of Mary Eliza King, the beloved wife of John Thompson, in her 76th year.

The deceased, who has been ill for a year, has resided in Havelock for five years, moving here from Asphodel.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, one daughter, Mrs. C. Davidson of town; three sons —Richard of Toronto, Samuel of Regina, Sask., and Thomas of Seymour.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday after noon, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. C. Davidson, Mathison street, and was conducted by Rev. E. O. Seymour of the United Church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hinton of Hastings. Interment was made in the Maple Grove cemetery.

'BIG SIX' DIED LATE YESTERDAY

Tuberculos Pneumonia Caused Death of Great Pitcher.

WONDERFUL RECORD.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—Christy Mathewson, "Big Six" of baseball and president and part owner of the Boston Braves, died here at 1 o'clock last night. Christy Mathewson was the greatest pitcher baseball has ever known. He was a member of the New York Giants during the greatest part of his major league career and in 1905 pitched three shut-out games against Philadelphia Athletics in the World's Series of that year. When his pitching days were over he went to Cincinnati as manager of the Reds, but while he was still connected with that club he went overseas to do his part in the world war. He had been ill for a long time.

Death, according to his physician, Dr. Edward N. Packard, was due to tuberculos pneumonia.

NOMINEES BUSY NEAR COBOURG

F. W. Bowen, of Durham, is Mentioned as Conservative Minister of Agriculture.

MEETINGS ARRANGED.

COBOURG, Oct. 8.—Affairs are warming up a bit in the political line in the lakefront district, after being very quiet considering that an election is only a little better than three weeks away. Although no dates for meetings have yet been definitely fixed, such men as Hon. J. R. Cook, Provincial Hydro Commissioner; Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways; Mayor Belford, M.P.P. of East Northumberland, are expected here to speak in the interests of Milton E. Maybee, the Conservative candidate. Mrs. Howard Fallis of Peterboro and Mrs. Thomas Bowman, Toronto, are lady speakers, who are expected, and Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, is another speaker expected. Mr. Maybee will hold meetings, it is understood, at Brighton, Campbellford, Colborne, Hastings, Castleton, Bewdley, Harwood, as well as Cobourg.

Liberals At Work.

Mr. J. F. Slade, Liberal candidate, has not yet definitely announced his program, but some notable Liberal statesmen are expected here also. Mr. Slade is, however, by no means idle. He is going through the country organizing and meeting the electors.

Cabinet Timber In Durham.

Mayor Chalk of Port Hope is attributed with the statement at a recent Conservative meeting in Port Hope, that if Hon. Arthur Meighen is returned to power, the choice for Minister of Agriculture was destined to fall upon Mr. F. W. Bowen, the Conservative candidate for the Commons from Durham county.

WEDDING BELLS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8.— Ida Winnifred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Adams, of Ranney street, was quietly married at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, to Gladson Angus, formerly of Warkworth, but now of Rochester, N.Y. The ceremony was performed at Norwood by Rev. R. McLennan, pastor of the Baptist church, who married the bride's parents, when he was stationed in Campbellford, 20 years ago. Only the immediate relatives were present.

The bride wore a handsome ensemble costume of brown, with shoes and hat to match.

On the night preceding the ceremony the bride was made the recipient of many handsome and useful presents from friends in town. Mrs. Ed. Bates and Miss Mildred Cook called at her home, and on behalf of the employees of the Weston Shoe Company, presented Miss Adams with a set of silver tea spoons and cut glass pepper and salt shakers. The members of the C.G.I.T., of which the bride was an ex-president, and at present secretary, also tendered her a shower of linen and silver articles.

After the ceremony at Norwood the wedding party motored back to Campbellford where the wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, the dining room being tastefully decorated for the occasion. A reception will be tendered Mr. and Mrs. Angus at the parental home this evening. After a honeymoon trip they will reside in Rochester.

Mrs. Angus has always been an active worker in the Campbellford Baptist church, was formerly a student in the High school, and has a host of young friends here, all of whom will join in wishing her every success and happiness in her new home.

ACCUSED DEALERS ASK PARTICULARS

Counsel For Defence Demands Further Details of Charges in Indictment.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—Particulars of allegations contained in the indictment have been demanded by 53 British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba fruit and produce dealers, who are awaiting trial in the Assize Court.

J. C. McCruer, who is prosecuting, has been served with a demand for particulars, which has been prepared by defence counsel.

Reciting the charges, the Crown has been invited to state whether a trust, a breach of which is charged, was verbal or written, and who is the beneficiary of the trust arrangement. Particulars are sought of the alleged secret commissions and of "fraudulent means," mentioned in the indictment.

The Crown has been called upon to state by what manner of means the accused are alleged to have restricted the supply or marketing of fruit and produce and restrained and injured trade and commerce.

AT CONVENTION

School Closed While Teachers Attended Pedagogue's Conference Last Week.

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 7. — School was closed on Thursday and Friday of last week for the Teachers' Convention held in Peterboro. Miss Lorna Aikenhead and Mr. Joseph Walsh both attended the convention.

Obituary.

The sudden death on Friday, October 2, at Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, of Annie Bullock, beloved wife of Wm. E. McIlmoyle, came as a great shock to her many friends and neighbors.

The deceased, who was fifty-two years of age, was born and had resided all her life in the vicinity of Young's Point, and was a faithful member and church worker of the United Church here. She will be sadly missed in the church and community.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and two sons, Willis and Kenneth, both home; her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Bullock, of Lakefield; five sisters: Mrs. John Hurl, Mrs. Herbert Matthews, Mrs. Ernest Harvey, all residing in the community, Mrs. Payne of Dummer, and Mrs. Tackaberry of Toronto; three brothers: Charles of Peterboro, Samuel of Lakefield and Josiah of Young's Point.

The remains of the late Mrs. McIlmoyle were laid to rest in the Lakefield Cemetery on Sunday, October 4th. She was followed to her last resting place by a large number of sorrowing friends and relations.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family in their bereavement.

ANNIVERSARY OF PONTYPOOL CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Rae, of Orono, Officiated at Special Services Last Sunday.

PONTYPOOL, Oct. 8.—The anniversary services of the Pontypool United church were held on October 4th and were well attended. The service was opened by hymn, "Come Ye Thankful People Come." Rev. Mr. Rae of Orono was the officiating pastor. He took the reading lesson from the 23rd Psalm. He stated that this was the most beloved psalm, a psalm of rest. Some great men have compared it to the nightingale that sings so sweetly after the other birds have gone to rest. Spurgeon said it was like a meadow lark starting from the earth and swooping slowly upwards, its song growing softer and sweeter as it ascended until it disappeared in the sky. The opening of the passage, "The Lord is my shepherd," is a bold statement, and gives a note of possession and it is followed by the assertion, "I shall not want". It is a great thing to be able to say, "I have never wanted, is it not a greater thing to have such faith in the Divine Being as to say "I shall not want."

After some worthy comments on the rest of this psalm, the choir sang an anthem which was followed by Rev. McRae leading in prayer. He then read the 20th chapter of Exodus, followed by a quartette "Come Unto Me", by Messrs. Preston, Mrs. McGill and Mrs. Thompson.

The pastor introduced his subject as the Sunday school teachers decalogue. The first commandment in every school teachers and church workers decalogue should be, "Thou shalt have great faith." The rest of the commandment was very ably explained and the service was concluded in the usual manner.

The services in the evening were well attended. The text was taken from Leviticus, 25th chapter and 9th verse.

The Ballyduff choir was very highly appreciated in both services and especially attractive was the cornet solo, accompanied by the organ played by J. J. Clarke. The church was nicely decorated with fruit and vegetables for the occasion.

The hot meat supper on Monday night was largely attended, the tables being loaded with everything appetizing and nicely decorated with bouquets of flowers and also friut, the concert following. The play, "Turning the Trick" was very ably given by the different characters, Everyone seemed delighted with the evening's entertainment. Mrs. James Richardson furnished music on the piano between acts. Money taken at the door amounted to $85.

The Ladies' Aid.

Owing to sickness in the parsonage the Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Shaw. After the usual programme they decided to have their bazaar on November 14th.

LIBERALS DID NOT SELECT CANDIDATE

PERTH, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press) —The Liberal convention held in Lanark yesterday failed to appoint any member as a standard bearer for the Liberal party to oppose the Conservative candidate, Hon. Dr. Preston of Carleton Place. The convention was very largely attended, the majority of those present being women. Peter McCallum of Almonte, the newly-elected president, gave it as his opinion that with only three weeks to carry on a campaign it would be foolhardy for anyone to take a position as a candidate in opposition to the Conservative nominee.

SPIRIT OF CONCILIATION MARKS

with the declaration that fresh suggestions were forthcoming concerning the necessity of a clean-cut understanding that compulsory arbitration must be the guiding principle of the Rhine pact. This is what the allies have been contending for, and the jurists were asked to frame new articles dealing with this subject. Presumably these articles will be discussed at the plenary session tomorrow, which is fixed for 2.30 p.m.

Compulsory arbitration is a feature of the Geneva peace protocol, whose fundamental principles the French are anxious to keep to the fore inflexibly and which many other nations at the recent League assembly also approved as the only sure safeguard of world peace.

Locarno, therefore, like Geneva, appears headed on the road where he who refuses to arbitrate and commits warlike acts will be hailed as an aggressor and punished.

Czechoslovakia, through her Foreign Minister, Edouard Benes, arrived on the scene today. Dr. Benes immediately conferred with Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs and M. Briand, who put him in touch with the developments.

"I am optimistic," said the Czechoslovak Minister to the newspaper corespondents of his country as he emerged from these conferences.

Gustav Streseman's condition improved yesterday. The drop in his temperature and the disappearance of the swelling in his throat, aided by sunshine and balmy air, put him in such splendid humor that, talking in an animated manner, he stopped at a tea shop and consumed three fancy cakes.

At night Locarno is bathed in the brilliancy of millions of electric lights, which the citizens are festooning about the buildings and around the lake. On the mountain top and on the dome of the famous church "Our Lady of the Rocks," appear in letters of fire the word "Pax." Locarno is trying to create both material and spiritual encouragement for the making of a real peace.

MRS. ANGUS CAMPBELL WON $1,000.

We have already paid thousands of dollars in prizes. In recent Puzzle Games, Mrs. Angus Campbell, Forest, Ont., won $1,000; Miss Lucy Firestone, Quit, Ont., won $1,000; Rev. Theo. Isler, Wellesley, Ont., won $1,000; Mrs. Thomas Fuldmore, Athens, Ont., was another winner of $1,000 and Mrs. Joe Doyle, Marmora, Ont., also won $1,000.

Mr. G. M. Carmichael, Welland, Ont., won $500, and Mrs. Emma Moore, Chesley, Ont., also won $500.

Mrs. R. S. Morphy, Walkerville, Ont., and Mr. Clarence L. Merrick, Allieton, Ont., each won $300, while Mrs. W. C. Sharpe, Glen Allen, Ont., Mrs. J. F. MacMillan, Ottawa, Ont., and Mrs. George MacIntosh, Monklands, Ont., each won $200.

And, now, here's your opportunity.

OBSERVE THESE EASY RULES

1. Any man, woman or child who lives in Canada and is not a resident of Toronto, and who is not in the employ of The Mail and Empire, may submit an answer.

2. Prize Winners in former Picture Puzzles conducted by The Mail and Empire winning $200.00 or more are not eligible to participate in this Puzzle.

3. All answers must be mailed by October 17th, 1925, and addressed to C. A. Montgomery, Puzzle Manager, Mail and Empire.

4. All lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only, and numbered consecutively 1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything else, use a separate sheet.

5. Only such words as appear in Webster's Dictionary will be counted. Do not use hyphenated, compound or obsolete words. Where the plural is used the singular cannot be counted, and vice versa.

6. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects or articles. An object or article can be named only once.

7. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of names of visible objects in the picture that begin with the letter "T" will be awarded First Prize, etc. Neatness, style or handwriting have no bearing upon deciding the winners.

8. Any number of people may co-operate in answering the Puzzle, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group of two or more have been working together.

9. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be awarded to each tied participant.

10. Subscriptions (both new and renewal) payable in advance of $5.00 per year by mail or $6.00 per year delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton, will be accepted.

11. All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription to The Mail and Empire is sent in.

12. Three prominent Toronto citizens having no connection with The Mail and Empire will be selected to act as judges to decide the winners, and participants, by sending in their answers, agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

The judges will meet on October 27th, and announcement of the Prize Winners and correct list of words, will be published in The Mail and Empire as quickly thereafter as it is possible, at any rate not later than three weeks.

You Can Win $1,000

The "T" Word Picture Puzzle Game is a campaign to increase the popularity of The Mail and Empire. It costs nothing to take part and you do not have to send in a single subscription to win a prize. If your list of "T" Words is awarded First Prize by the judges you will win $30; but if you would like to get more than $30, we are making the following special offer whereby you can win bigger cash prizes by sending ONE or TWO yearly subscriptions to The Mail and Empire.

HERE'S HOW: If your answer to the "T" Word Picture Puzzle wins First Prize and you have sent in ONE yearly subscription to The Mail and Empire at $5.00 by mail or $6.00 delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton, you will receive $500.00, instead of $30, second prize $250.00; third prize $250.00, and so forth. (See second column of figures in prize list.)

Or, if your answer wins First Prize and you have sent in TWO yearly subscriptions to The Mail and Empire (new or renewal subscriptions) you will receive $1,000 in place of $30; second prize $500; third prize $500, and so forth. (See third column of figures in prize list.)

Isn't that a liberal offer? But look! We will give extra amounts on all prizes in the same manner. If your answer is qualified by TWO yearly subscriptions and you win fourth prize, you will receive $300, and so on down the prize list.

Your own subscription will count, or subscriptions to start at some future date. Just write on the order when you want the paper started, and it will start promptly on that date.

This offer applies to RURAL ROUTE patrons as well as subscribers living in cities and towns. If you are already receiving The Mail and Empire, your subscription will be extended from its present expiration.

MADOC HAD GREATEST FAIR IN AGRICULTURAL BOARD HISTORY ATTENDANCE BREAKING RECORD

Considered the Finest Exhibition in the District—Weather Favoured.

SPECIAL MIDWAY.

Exhibits Numerous— Carefully Selected— Holsteins Predominated Cattle List.

A rift appeared in the clouds yesterday, and Fortune again favores the Madoc Agricultural Society, lifting the anxious look from the faces of directors who had watched with grave concern the wet applications bestowed so frequently and indiscriminately by Mother Nature.

Although the morning had dawned under decidedly Wintry auspices, Old Sol, pushing through the cloud banks, decided to align himself with Will Stewart and W. J. Hill, the highly efficient and workmanlike secretary. Such was the effect of this co-operation that Madoc Fair resolved itself into the most successful of any which had heretofore been held in the village. Many who had been present on all the [illegible] held in any point within a radius bounded by Peterboro[illegible] and Picton, declared it the best of the season. Beaming under the radiance inspired by such a pronounced success, the directors and all others concerned assumed a genial bearing, making all visitors welcome and doing all in their power to make the last minute touches bear out the promise of a year's arduous preparation.

The general atmosphere of the Fair was that found in any functions of like nature. The crops were in the barns; the promise of a bountiful harvest was fulfilled and farmers could well afford to relax by a holiday spent with neighbors seldom met, to say nothing of viewing the products of the year's work. Five thousand paid admissions was calculated to be a conservative estimate of attendance. Animated by the hilarious holiday spirit, cares dismissed by tasks completed, and spurred on by the nip of frost in the air, everyone "stepped out" and patronized with gusto the merry-go-round and Ferris wheel, while the hot dog stands and sea-foam taffy vendors were hard put to it to maintain a supply nearly equal to the demand.

The Midway.

Sideshows lured the unwary by the pictured representations of wonders within, while the bally-hoo howlers injunction with some of the specimens abjured the uninitiated to gaze upon the hidden marvels. All on the Midway stopped to follow the progress of a diminutive pup as he warily ascended a long ladder, paused momentarily to arouse suspense interest, then plumped down boldly into a width of canvas held by attendants.

Spinners of Fortune wheels invoked the patronage of passers-by by assuring all of the certainty of being the "next lucky winner." Crowds milled around the exhibits manifesting equal interest in chickens and fancy work, cheese and milking machines. A loaf of bread which, the owner proudly claimed, "took enough dough for twelve loaves," excited a great deal of comment and when a local hotelman purchased that loaf, the comments took on a note of concern as voiced by out-of-town guests who possibly suspected that the inner portion of the huge mass might belie its outward promise of delectable delight.

Crowds thronged the race track, circled the band stand where the Madoc Kilties Band of the Young and Adams Stock Company played a relief part, while children from the Public and High Schools put on an exhibition of drills which reflected the generalship of the leaders, The Indian war dance drill by a fair group from the Public School elicited much commending comment and the Maypole dance by the more decorous High School maidens won favor from all sides. A wand drill by Public School girls and a flag drill by the boys impressed the crowd by the faultless accuracy on the part of all concerned. An exhibition of clog dancing, by a youth, a little maiden and elderly gentleman of eighty-five summers to the exuberant notes of a violin, stirred the audience with the age-old primeval instinct to seek expression by exercising the pedal extremities.

A food booth, permanently constructed and utilized by the Women's Institute, catered efficiently to the wails of the inner person.

The Fair Grounds.

For the past three years the exhibitions have been held in a new park which is situated at a distance of one mile north of the village. Formerly the Fairs were held in a rented property situated on the Mamora Road to the West, but becoming dissatisfied the directors decided to purchase the plant, which they now occupy. It was originally a fifty-acre farm, but a portion has since been sold to a private party. Durinng the three years of holding the Fair in the new grounds, success has crowned the efforts of the directorate; bad weather departs when Madoc Fair Day approaches, when formerly the elements used to roar in unholy glee when they anticipated the dawn of the local agricultural festival.

To such an extent has the jinx forgotten Madoc that the grounds are not only free of encumbrance, but two fine buildings have been erected and tastefully painted in grey and white. Electric wiring has been installed, whereby the revels of the day might be prolonged after nightfall.

The surface of the grounds is of a rolling nature, with two large hills from which a bird's-eye view may be obtained of all sections of the Fair.

One of these is circled by a half-mile track, which race-drivers believe to be one of the fastest in the Province. Despite the general hilly contour of the park, the track is perfectly level and composed of a hard springy turf conducive to speeding.

The Races.

Three races held the interest of the turfmen, a free-for-all run in 2.34 1-4 by Turley's Vilo Bell, winning in straight heats. Topsy B. came through also in straight heats, while J. Moore was extended to four trials before he was accredited with the victory.

Time 2.25 1-4.

Track officials were as follows: Judges: Tom Blue, J. McGowan, Geo. Tice, Jim Harris.
Timer: John Henderson.
Starter: Clayton Tucker.
Track Marshall: Steve McQuigg.

Two novelty races, a slow race for Fords, and a saddle sweepstake for running ponies excited considerable interest. Two Fords survived the rigours demanded by the creeping pace, while a feminine entrant rode her cayuse down the stretch to a decisive win over her two male contenders.

The Exhibits.

Cheese predominated in the produce building with the colored classes, of in the minority. Many entries were made in the various classes of which the Exhibition Board, Bank of Commerce, Dominion Bank and Specials were the main exhibits—the Bank of Commerce Cup was won by Frank Palmer.

In cattle the Holstein class attained the greatest prominence with the honors going to James Corkery and Henry Kells.

Ayrshires, Jerseys, Herefords and Durhams were also well represented.

Hens, numbering among them Plymouth Rocks, Barred Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, Langshans, Brahmas, Minorcas, Leghorns, as well as a considerable showing of turkeys, geese, ducks, guinea fowl and a variety of pigeons, were prominent in the poultry section, adding their distinctive notes to the merry discord. Sheep and cattle from a far corner of the field, attempted to attract the attention which was their due.

Heavy horses made their ponderous and dignified way before the judges stand; the light horses frisked and cavorted playfully, attempting to gain their freedom. All entries in these classes were particularly well prepared, showing that grooms had spared no efforts to attain the best possible results.

Percy Downey led the winner of the heavy draught class, showing a remarkably fine specimen of the Clyde breed. This fine horse, has been a consistent winner at many of the fairs where he has been exhibited.

The walking race staged by two heavy teams was marred by departing automobiles obstructing the track

The ladies' department was exceptionally well filled, provision having been made for the various kinds of fancy work together with the utility display of comforters, rugs, towels, children's knitted goods and others. Special attention was given to children who were given opportunity to compete in a junior department. School children's classes occupied a large section of the building.

Apples bore out the fact that this is one of the best years which the crop has experienced, while farm produce and cut flowers showed evidence of favorable growth conditions.

Domestic Cooking Specials

Mrs. M. Allen, Mrs. M. Hamilton, Mrs. E. Tumelty, Mrs. J. Caskey, Mrs. W. Ross, Mrs. J. Ellis, Miss Vankleek, Mrs. J. English, Mrs. H. S. VanAllen, Mrs. W. Whytock, Mrs. W. Stewart, Mrs. R. Wickham, Mrs. M. Maybee, Mrs. W. A. McColl.

The evening entertainment was split between a movie in the Empire, a stock company performance in the Masonic Hall and a dance in the Armouries. All performances were patronized by capacity crowds.

Those responsible for the success of the fair were: Honorary Member, J. Robt. Cook M.L.A.; Honorary Presidents, W. E. Tummon, J. A. Caskey, A. Nicolson, W. H. Kells, C. John Smith; President, Will Stewart; 1st Vice President, Will Miller; and Vice President, Robt. Woods; Secretary, Will J. Hill; Treasurer, Samuel Rollins; Auditors, Henry Kells, Jas. Caskey; Directors, C. J. Smith, Hector Wood, Jr., W. T. Harris, George A. Ketcheson, Samuel Rollins, Jno. Glover, George Walsh, A. T. Downey, Hugh Empey, J. C. Barton, Arthur Woods, Samuel McCary, Jas. A. Moore, Malcolm Allen, Joseph English, John Chambers, Joseph Chambers, Herb Bailey.

Flushed with the happy consummation of their efforts the Directorate is already planning a fair for next year which will relegate this year's success to a list of minor triumphs and provided that the weather continues to favor the Madoc Agricultural Society will advance to heights which are at present dimly conceived.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Ginger-bread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly

ONLY FOUR HURT BY EXPLOSION

Acetylene Tank, and Not Bombs, Blew Up at Bordeaux.

EXAGGERATED STORY

BORDEAUX, France, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—The explosion of the acetylene tank of a freight vessel in the harbor here today gave rise to reports that a cargo of bombs had been detonated while awaiting shipment to Morocco. First reports mentioned a large number of casualties but late in the afternoon it was stated that four workmen had been injured.

OBITUARY.

WINNIFRED SAUNDERS.

The death occured yesterday, at the family residence, 49 Jackson Avenue, of Winnifred, dearly beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saunders, in her 26th year.

She attended Park Street Baptist Church, and prior to her illness, which extended over several months, she was employed in the insulation department of the C.G.E.

She is survived by her sorrowing father and mother, three sisters, Violet, Verna and Edith, and one brother William, all at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 49 Jackson Avenue, on Friday, October 9, at 2 p.m. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Norman McLeod will officiate.

PROTECTION FOR FARMERS AND WORKERS SUBJECT OF SPEECHES

Good Audience Gathered at Bensfort to Hear Conservative Policies.

MR. PECK SPOKE.

Messrs. Mills, Strickland and Soden Also Explained Election Issues.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Bensfort last night in the interests of E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate. Mr. Wood was elected chairman, and the following speakers took part: Colonel Mills, J. F. Strickland, R. J. Soden and E. A. Peck.

Colonel Mills.

Colonel Mills said that it was a long time since he had been in the Township of Monaghan. He had had the privilege of travelling through Canada from coast to coast, but he had yet to see a township equal to this for general farming. The speaker said that he had known E. A. Peck since 1882, and had always found him to be a real man. E. A. Peck, the speaker continued, has served the country in many capacities, at one time being the member for this riding in the Ontario House, and whilst there was largely responsible for the introduction of the Workmen's Compensation Act, and at the present time is solicitor for the county. "Many of the older members present," he said, "will remember 1876, one of the worst years in the history of Canada." Hard time were prevalent and industries were at a standstill. It was then that Sir John A. MacDonald conceived the idea of a national policy, a policy that would benefit the working man and the farmer alike, by placing a tariff on imports sufficient to keep out foreign goods. In 1878 business took a turn for the better, new factories were opened, and by 1880, Peterboro had commenced to become a place of importance, and had remained so until the last few years, when the Government now in power had reduced the tariff to such an extent that around Niagara Falls, the Liberal party had found it almost impossible to get a man to run, due no doubt to so much American fruit entering the country.

The speaker declared that there was no comparison between the leaders. During the great war Mr. Meighen had devoted himself to the interests of Canada, whilst Mr. King was in the United States striving to produce good effects between capital and labor, to what purpose he did not know, for when he had a chance of settling the postman's strike, he delegated the task to the Minister of Labor. Take the case of the Nova Scotia miners. "Did Mr. King do anything there? No." The Nova Scotia Provincial elections came on about this time, and inside of twenty-four hours the newly elected Conservative Government had the strike settled. Mr. King formed a committee to consider changing the Union Jack, but when he found that the sentiment of the country was against him, he declared his committee disbanded. The speaker concluded by saying that October 29 would show what the people thought of E. A. Peck.

J. F. Strickland.

Mr. Strickland stated that to-day people were taking an interest in politics that they never had before, and as a result were examining the records of the different parties very closely. Mr. King stated: "I will not be stampeded into a general election," and in less than three weeks the House was dissolved. "Why? Because the country is in such a state that we cannot afford to put up with it any longer. Mr. King has come to the country with a barren record, and asks to be sent back to improve. He comes to the country with four policies: Immigration, Canadian National Railways, Tariff and Senate Reform. Talking of Senate Reform, to-day's Globe says to Mr. King 'that his exultation on decease of Conservative members in the Senate was a disgrace.'

"Mr. Gordon claims that we have not discussed the tariff. We have and will continue to discuss the issues of this election which is tariff. In 1921 Mr. Gordon was appointed Deputy Speaker, and no doubt has been useful in that capacity, but I challenge Mr. Gordon to show by Hansard where he has done the things he has claimed to do. Mr. Gordon's policy has been to brand any assertions against his figures as being lies, but can he doubt the Assessor's figures in The Examiner, wherein it is shown that Peterboro's present population is 231 persons less than last year and 295 less than in 1920. The United States has placed a barrier against all except Canadians entering their country, with a result that last year, according to official figures from Washington, over one hundred thousand Canadians entered the States to take up permanent residence, whilst only two thousand returned to Canada. Yet the Liberal party claim that fifty per cent. have returned. This country cannot stand this drain, and the only way to stop it is by tariff. If this present Government is allowed to continue we shall be slowly but surely absorbed by our neighbors to the south. In Peterboro last March the president of the U.F.O. made the statement that if the average farmer would pay less attention to cheaper implements and devote more thought to produce that the saving effected would be infinitely more. Assertions have been made that industry needs no protection, and yet I saw in one American paper the statement that if Mr. King was re-elected there would be no need of American firms operating Canadian branches. The United States is the only logical country for us to compare ourselves with, and if they, with their millions of population, have a high tariff around their country—why not us?" In closing, Mr. Strickland stated that Mr. Peck's policy, "Canada for Canadians," was the only solution of the problem.

R. J. Soden

Mr. Soden stated that he would always vote for what he considered to be to the best interests of the country, and if he considered that the present Government had made Canada a better place to live in or work that he would vote for it, but what was the situation today. For instance, continued the speaker, take the Peter Hamilton Company, William Hamilton Company, G. W. Green Company, the Auburn and Bonner Worth factories. Is any one of them employing the numbers they did four years ago? All these are reasons why E. A. Peck should be elected. Since the King Government came into power, there have been three revisions of the tariff, all lower, and in the United States any changes that have been made, are higher. "Canada will be a great country despite Mr. King." Mr. King wants Canada to be a cheap country to live in, but a cheap country is always a poor one. Mr. Soden contrasted the figures of different commodities in regard to the duty on them in entering United States, and in entering Canada. The duty on wheat entering the United States, he said, is 43 cents per bushel, from the United States to Canada 12 cents per bushel, corn is 15 cents, entering Canada there is no duty, on hay it is four dollars per ton, entering Canada two dollars per ton. If you think this is fair and are satisfied with these conditions, vote for the present Government. Mr. Soden stated that the present Government had shown no business ability in handling the natural resources of the country, and concluded by appealing to all present to support Mr. Peck, a man of sound judgment, one who had the interests of Canada at heart, and would be a credit to this Riding.

E. A. Peck

Mr. Peck stated that the ground had been very ably covered by the preceding speakers. "What influenced me most in becoming a candidate for this Riding," said Mr. Peck, "was the steady flow of Canadian citizens to the United States, and the only remedy for this was protection for both manufacturers and farmers. Once money goes out of this country it goes out for good, and as a result people engaged in producing food products, are losing as a result of city people leaving Canada. The mechanic can pick up and go, but the farmer has to stay, and in order to live needs a good home market." The speaker declared that last year the imports of vegetables and fruit was valued at ten million dollars, and during the same time, meat to the extent of seven million dollars was imported. The United States has adopted the protective policy of placing a tariff on anything they can produce. What is Mr. King doing about it? Has he tackled these problems in a proper fashion? He has failed to do anything but simply sit still." Mr. Peck stated that he had been accused of giving false figures, and said that any figures he had given during this campaign had been obtained from Government books published under the name of Hon. T. A. Low, and he naturally assumed that a Minister of the Crown would tell nothing but the truth. "I don't want you to vote for me personally," said the speaker, "vote for the policy that is sure to improve this country. Protection is my main plank, and I am doing this from a sense of duty, from a sincere desire to serve this country and this riding."

A vote o fthanks to the chairman

A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded with the National Anthem.

CHINESE STUDENT AT WARSAW CHURCH

W. B. Djang Preached Interesting Sermons to Dummer People.

WARSAW, Oct. 8.—Sunday the three churches—Bethel, in the morning, Carmel in the afternoon, and Warsaw in the evening—were filled to hear Mr. W. B. Djang. At each appointment he gave most inspiring sermons. At Bethel, he mentioned a few of the things that have happended recently in China. When introducing Mr. Djang at Warsaw, Rev. Mr. Herrington said that no one represented a greater number of people nor an older nation, than Mr. Djang. He represents, as a native of China, one quarter the population on the globe, and the oldest existing nation. Before Abraham came out of the land of Ur, China was a nation.

Mr. Djang took as his subject, "The Love of God." He read the 13th Chapter of First Corinthians. At the beginning, he touched on present conditions in China, and said that Christianity was being put to a test in China, and the result of that test would affect the whole world. At present there is a population of four hundred million in China. Of these forty thousand are Christians, that is one Christian to every ten thousand, and these Christians are largely from the poorer and least influential class.

One could hardly listen to Mr. Djang without feeling a strong desire to help spread the knowledge of the Love of God. Mr. Djang, when through his studies, plans to return to his native land to give the story of Jesus Christ to his own people. He is a B.A., a student of Knox College, Toronto; a native of Shantung Province, China, and a third generation Christian. After graduating from the Shantung Christian College, Tsinan, he came to Toronto three years ago. He has since taken two years in economics, and one year in theology. During the summer he represented the Mission Board of the United Church at no less than twelve summer schools.

Before returning to China, he will finish his course in theology, and take some post-graduate work in Europe.

SOLOS AND ADDRESSES.

Excellent Programme Given at Burnbrae Presbyterian Church Fowl Supper.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 8.—The fowl supper held in the Burnbrae Presbyterian church, following the anniversary services of Sunday was liberally patronized by residents from all the surrounding towns and district. Over 600 sat down to the tables, which were loaded with the dainties for which the Burnbrae ladies are so justly famous, and there were provisions enough left to satisfy the appetities of as many more.

The receipts amounted to $291.30, which, with the contributions on Sunday, bring the total to $174, the largest anniversary revenue the Burnbrae church has ever taken in.

An excellent programme was rendered, addresses being delivered by Rev. James Grier of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Rev. R. Simpson of Stirling, and Rev. Hugh Shaw, retired Baptist pastor, now residing at Menie. The soloists of the evening were Rev. C. C. Clarke, of Christ church, Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. John Payne, and Miss Hazel Atkinson, also of Campbellford. Mrs. Clarke and Mr. William Pearson, the latter organist and choir leader of St. Andrew's, Campbellford, acted as accompanists.

Miss Lillian Hay, one of Campbellford's most accomplished elocutionists, gave two readings, which were much appreciated.

Antonio, the old hermit on the cliff, talked his very best to little Jean and Mary Burns, after he found them lost in the woods, and took them to his hut.

He had just finished telling them about how the fairies make the Goldfinch put on his wife's dress for winter, or one very much like it, when there was a rumble of thunder, to which all listened, as it rolled in echoes about the dark hills.

In the strange silence of the night, after the echoes had ceased and before Antonio re-started his stories, Jean started—"Oh, Mary, I think I heard Daddy calling us, down in the valley."

Antonio went out to the edge of the cliff and listened, and sure enough, up from the valley, in a far away dream-like tone, came the calling of an anxious daddy, seeking his Jean and Mary.

The large voiced "Hellow-below," bellowed down by the old hermit, shook the hut and Jean and Mary nearly fell off the cliff.

It was but a few moments, until the girls had taken the old man's place in the hollering operation—"Hello, Daddy, are you down there? Yes, Daddy, we are away up here, and Antonio has fairies, so don't tell Mother we are lost till we get home." And so it went on, until Antonio explained to Mr. Burns that nobody could go down or up the trail at night and Jean and Mary would be safe above, until morning. So poor, anxious Mr. Burns had to stay below.

And, as Antonio was putting the little girls into his own bed for the night, and preparing to sleep on the hearth himself, he returned to the fairies and birds, in order to attract the sandman, who likes good stories and comes to hear them always.

"I will tell your daddy, in the morning, that the Bobolink is ceasing his spinking and spanking. Maybe that will make him laugh. You know, little girls, the fairies must laugh gleefully when folks are so easily fooled. The Bobolink changes his coat of varied colours, to a striped yellowish buff, changes his song to a mere "clink," goes down south where the folks call him a ricebird and abuse him, so he leaves them alone and goes to South America, returning again in Spring, in his best clothes, and——" Antonio stopped, scratched his head, then blew out the candle, to welcome Mr. Sandman.

RUSSIAN SCULPTURE AT EXHIBITION

No section of the art exhibition at the C.N.E. attracted more attention than the painted and sculptured work from Russia. Notable in the collection, which was organized by the Russian Art Societies of Moscow and Leningrad, is the carved wooden figure of a man by Anna Golubkine. A portrait of a man by Ilya Mashkov provides an interesting contrast, both in the medium and mode of expression. The object of sending this Russian exhibit to America was to acquaint the people of this country with the contemporary work being done in the hands of the Soviets.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AUTO WRECKS DUE TO COLOR BLINDNESS.

Recently there was held a convention in Atlantic City where better traffic laws were considered. One of the speakers said that three quarters of a million automobile accidents were caused last year through three causes. These are misleading highway signs, disrespect for the law and color blindness.

It was declared that four per cent of all automobile drivers are color blind. They cannot distinguish between red and green.

Color blindness is a strange defect. It is something which cannot be prevented and cannot be cured. It just is. Either you are not color blind, or you are.

If you are color blind you cannot be a safe automobile driver. You are sure to have trouble, sooner or later.

When I was a boy I had a playmate of the same age. Having read about signaling at sea by the use of colored squares of cloth, we decided to try it out on land. Raiding the ragbag we found red, green, yellow and other colored textiles. It was not long before we had prepared a code. From above down, red, green, blue meant, "Come over to my house." Another combination meant "good bye."

My friend's window was visible from mine and we set out to signal each other. I was puzzled to find that his signals meant nothing to me and mine were unrecognized by him. What did it all mean? My friend was color blind. One color meant little more to him than another.

You will see a person now and then, wearing the most outrageous combinations of high colors. I have no doubt many such people are color blind, or have very weakly developed color sense.

Failure to match colors is one of the earliest signs. Sent to the store to get a spool of thread to match a green ribbon, left to yourself you may bring back a spool of red thread.

The absence of the color sense may mean little to most persons, but locomotive engineers and automobile drivers must be perfect in this regard, or disaster will come.

The pathetic thing about it is that the possessor of color blindness may be utterly unconscious of the defect. No examination for safe driving is complete if it does not include a test of the color sense.

It is shocking to learn that so large a percentage as 4 per cent should be traced to this cause. Thirty thousand accidents might have been prevented last year had this test been made and the defect discovered.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY CHANGES HIS MIND ABOUT SOME THINGS.

When Dicky's mama called him in from his play to pump the water into the great big tank under the spout, Dicky grew very cross and began kicking the dirt with his new shoes.

"Well, of all things," laughed a merry voice, and Gocomeback, the wee travel elfin, hopped down beside him and caught hold of his knee. "What's the idea of ruining your new shoes that way?"

"I didn't want to hurt my new shoes," said Dicky shamefaced, "but every time I want to play mama has something for me to do. Now it's to pump the tubs full of water so she can wash in the morning."

"Is that all?" laughed the elfin. "My, if you pitch right in you'll have the tubs full before you know it. That just makes me think. I'll bet you'd enjoy living with a little friend of mine," and before Dicky could ask any questions he found himself sailing through the air beside the wee elfin. "If you lived in the country where I'm going to take you you'd never be asked to pump water in washtubs," and Gocomeback chuckled to himself as if he had a good joke.

They sailed over mountains and seas, and when Dicky's feet touched the ground again he stood on the banks of a strange river. All along its banks as far as he could see were spread out white clothes to dry. Crowds of women, all dressed in gay-colored dresses, great full skirts and wooden shoes were busily getting out the family wash in the river.

"My goodness, where in the world are we?" asked Dicky. "Surely this isn't the way the women have to get out their washing"

"Indeed, it is," laughed Gocomeback. "You're in Germany and this is the Moselle River. All along this river bank you'll see the white linens spread out to dry, for in this country folks don't wash their clothes in a tub like your mama does. They all bring them down to the edge of the river here and wash them among the rocks and spread them out on the grasses to dry in the sun. That's why I said if you lived here you wouldn't have to pump tubs full of water for your mother."

Dicky watched the German women a while, then he shook his head.

"Come on, Gocomeback," he whispered. "Let's go back to America. I believe I'd rather pump the tubs full every day than to see my mama out washing in the river that way," and taking hold of Gocomeback's hand they hurried back home.

Dicky not only filled the tubs full of water, but he chopped wood and carried it in behind the stove, and that was the last time anyone ever heard Dicky complain about washday.

Some years ago a well-known pianist gave an exhibition of his marvellous powers of memory by playing, without a pause, 400 pieces of music without a page of notes before him, and another eclipsed even this feat by similarly playing 1,500 separate compositions during a continuous sitting of forty hours.

The matter in this column has been supplied by the Conservative Publicity Committee in this campaign.

WHAT THE KING GOVERNMENT DOES FOR THE WOOLEN AND KNITTED GOODS FACTORIES

Read What This Manufacturer in Belgium Offers in Competition With Our Canadian Workers in Wool.

It is useless for Mr. Gordon or his friends to tell that the Canadian wool worker, in our Canadian factories is protected under the prevailing tariff. If the present duties were abolished and higher duties substituted, and preferences set aside, as should be, over 20,000 more men and women could find employment in our Canadian woollen mills. The absence of this employment is one of the causes that is costing Canada thousands of her best citizens annually. Given adequate protection, the industry will flourish, steadier employment furnished, money paid out in wages be expended and wholly better times prevail.

We cannot blame the Canadian importing dealer for buying his stock in the best (which means, to him) cheapest market. His local competitors will do so, if he does not. And put up a competition that he may not meet. People who cherish the idea that because things are cheap (if they are), forget that if there be not wages at hand to buy, the lower price is of very little assistance in making a living. Following is a part of a letter recently received by a wholesale dealer, in a Canadian city, offering to supply woollen knitted sweaters, sport coats, hose and such goods on terms that Canadian factories may not endeavor to meet. See what the Belgian man writes, almost inploring that an order be forwarded, and the inducements he offers:

St. Nicholas (Waes).
Telephone: St. Nicholas, 338.
Belgium,

Dear Sirs,

The favorable exchange of Canadian currency against Belgian francs, the present crisis in our industry, the cheap labor conditions in Belgium, and my willingness to work and sell at any price, will now enable you to buy your stock of goods for the coming winter season at most favorable terms.

To give you an idea of what is my specialty, I add a print of some models, but I am able and prepared to make for you any model you wish to make. Useless to add that any colour can be chosen and that I can work on patterns furnished by your own good selves.

Half-heavy knitting. Usual men's measure, reversed collar, $4.00.

No. 8 pullover. Usual men's measure, reverted collar, $3.00.

Jerseys. Usual men's measure, reverted collar, $2.00.

The writer adds additional prices on ladies' wear and for children, and again offers to make anything, in any style, color and weight to [illegible] samples, and continues:—

"In these prices are undestood Canadian Income Duties, packing, forwarding, formalities and insurance, till destination. Transportation from Antwerp to your domicile will be effected through Dominion Express according tariffs in vigor at present. Small orders will reach you per parcel post; others over 100 lbs. weight, per Canadian Express, always per Dominion Express which company will also collect amounts against delivery of the goods.

From this you will note that you must add Dominion Express tariff rates to prices given to have the total costs. Real big orders are forwarded as freight. Bills of lading in care of a bank.

Hoping, Sir, to receive your esteemed reply.
We remain faithfully,

Carefully note "my willingness to work and sell at any price," and the "cheap labor conditions in Belgium," are the determining factors in this offer to beat down Canadian prices and close Canadian factories, and take away employment from Canadian men and women. The writer is enabled to make assurances which he makes because he has the King Government behind him, confident that so long as the Canadian duties are what they are, he with his cheap labor and keen love for work, can out-sell and out-bid.

Voters. If you vote for Mr. Gordon, you vote to continue this state of affairs. VOTE FOR MR. PECK, and he assures you that, in thorough accord with his leader, Mr. Meighen, he will assist in putting a stop to such reckless and heart-breaking competition. And just remember, these price-cutting Belgians are the same Belgians we helped during the war. Competition knows no gratitude.

INVESTORS WORRY NO DIVIDENDS PAID

Stockholders in New Ontario Mine Have Different Opinions of Venture.

CODRINGTON, Oct. 8. —There is a financial problem at present before the people of this district, those who are interested in the mining industry of New Ontario. Stock in a copper mine at Bruce, to the amount of several thousand dollars, has, during the past few years, been purchased by those who had money to invest, the local agent for the company being David Stewart. One of the heaviest investors is James H. Ross, a wealthy farmer near the village, who is deputy reeve of Brighton township and who went to Bruce and made a personal investigation of the mining property before purchasing stock.

So far the local stockholders have received no dividends on their investments, although Mr. Ross, who is in a position to know, declares that there is plenty of copper in sight but the proper machinery for getting it to the surface is lacking. According to his idea it is a question of operation rather than of deposits.

Mr. Stewart is now advising his customers to transfer their stocks from the copper company to a gold mine that has recently been located at Quinte, in New Ontario, promising them certain and quick returns. Some of the stockholders are prepared to mak the transfer while others are holding back.

An outside representative of the copper people has been here advising the stockholders to stand pat, assuring them that the mine in which they are interested will yet prove a bonanza.

Stranger Than Fiction

By M. B. LEVICK

The grizzled man of the sea listened carefully when he chanced to was something he could not quite make out. Like something forgotten. If he happened to take a hand in the talk himself men looked at him. Of course you could fight a man who looks at you the way you don't like, but you can't fight them all. Besides, there is no use being harsh when you're but lately out of the hospital. And to talk seemed sometimes to clear up that queer doubt.

They may not look at him because of the news he had. Maybe they'd heard it already. Maybe they didn't care anyhow. It would be just something to talk about. The most important thing he knew was about himself—his being sick and getting back from half around the world, even if he found himself on the beach now that he was home.

Picture, for example, a casual group. Some one happens to mention the Indian Ocean. If that starts a man on his own experiences you'd think at any rate he'd be entitled to a decent hearing for half a moment.

Suppose a man said to them: "Well, for all of me you can have the whole blooming East to yourself. I'm just back. Was laid up in a red hot hospital. India. Touch of fever, they said it was. Weeks and weeks lay flat in a bunk and the punkah enough to drive you nutty, with the coolie pulling a string and making it wave around in the air like a big black bird and not giving enough breeze to cool your big toes. I'll never forget that hospital. And the fellow in the next bunk in the ward—he was getting well, and Lord, how he'd gabble—talking and talking about nothing at all except Weihaiwei. You'd think China was home to him. He was stuck on a girl there or something, and talked about how he was going to set up in business and get rich. Was all excited because of the British lease. The English have just leased Weihaiwei, you know. Took over the bay and all the islands and the whole thing from truck to keel."

A man might expect a proper interest in a bit of news from the other side of the world. But if he said something like that the others would just look that queer way. Some youugster who had been out there on a voyage or two might say: "Weihaiwei was British ever since I can remember."

The grizzled man knew that, youngster or no youngster, the British got the lease in the present year.

Handbooks will tell you that the lease was obtained in 1898. But he had no handbook.

Naturally a man who has been laid up in a hospital has lost his color a bit. That gives no right for some fellows you never saw before to act as if he thought you had unshipped you rudder when you answer a civil question.

"What ship" some one asks. You name the one that took you out to where the fever is. Some one says there was a ship of that name lost in Bass Strait years and years ago.

"The Spidireen, then," you say.

The Spidireen is the mythical ship whose crew is composed of men who prefer not to be too open with chance comers.

"Never heard of her" some youngsters would throw in. Likely he hadn't, from the looks of him.

But there was something wrong. It had nothing to do with such distant things as Acheh Head and the Southwest Monsoon. It was here in port. How the port had changed in just a few months. A lot of young lubbers who looked as if they didn't know enough to shake hands with the mate at the end of a voyage. The mission looked just the same. He'd been there so often—always when in port—that he could find his way around as easy as a man aloft on a dark night. He'd slept in that same bed before. But was it just the same? Was there anything different besides the new bulletin board they'd put up while he was away?

There was this cloudiness and doubt in his mind. He just wasn't certain and he didn't seem able to make himself fast long enough to decide. The accordion in the room where they stored men's things—that was right enough. But that steamer trunk over there in the corner! Who ever heard of a sailor carrying a steamer trunk for a sea-bag? And where had all the spars gone so suddenly? The land is always changing; the eating houses and the theatres shift around so a man is never certain of finding the same ones between two voyages; but ships don't change that way. Why, look up and down the wharves and you couldn't make out a single square-rigger any more than a bos'n bird.

Thus the grizzled man fretted, perhaps afraid that they would send him back to a red-hot hospital, and too uncertain to take issue when men scoffed at the news of 1898.

He trudged back to his quarters in the annex of the Seamen's Christian Association. Suddenly a doubt seized him like sickness. This was what he had forgotten. He stopped. "Who am I?" he aked the desk man.

The man at the counter had heard many men ask such questions. "Run along to bed now," he said. The sailor was abashed. What kind of man was he not to know who he himself was? He would ask no one that question again. They might send him to a hospital, and he had had enough of hospitals ....

A grizzled business man in a sack suit sat in a hospital, worrying a little as to whether or not a certain lease had been closed. He pictured the land involved, and it was land a thousand miles from salt water. He thought of the date as it would be written on the lease and the year appeared to him in a fine of typewriting: 1925.

"And then, said the man beside him, "you said to the fellow at the desk, 'Who am I?'"

Slowly the business man traveled again through the years that had dropped out of his mind.

This is the story of John N. Neubert, real estate dealer, of Flint, Mich. He left a hospital at Ann Arbor on July 4. Five days later John Neubert, a seafaring man, registered at a New York sailors' institution. Amnesia had cut the Michigan man's life in half, throwing him back to the days when he followed the sea twenty-seven years before. His loss of memory is attributed to the results of fever suffered in India. He was found wandering on the Brooklyn waterfront.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY OCTOBER 9.

Although this day may be notable for the removal of a long-standing obstruction, yet difficult situations and complexities are likely to continue. Finances may be jeopardized, lending money might be a risk, and there may be anxiety caused by papers, writings or bad contracts. Be careful with these. Those in the employment of others may be under a threatening sway. In heart and home affairs the situation may be quite as sinister.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of difficulty and threatened loss of business, money and employment, although there may be a certain breaking up of crystallized conditions. Every precaution should be taken in the handling of papers or documents. A child born on this day may be clever and industrious enough, but it may be unreliable as well as rash in the handling of financial matters.

W.C.T.U. SPEAKER CHARGES BETRAYED

Miss McCorkindale Tells the Ladies That People Are True to Law.

PEMBROKE, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—"You are fighting more than your own battle, the eyes of the world are turned on Canada. Your victory makes it easier for us and you must remember that you are fighting a battle for the Empire," said Miss Isabel McCorkindale, 'Y' organizer and field secretary, Sydney, Australia, in an address given last evening at the meeting of the Provincial Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"You've been somewhat betrayed, but the people have stood true to the law and you must remember that it is only the people in power that have betrayed you," the speaker said. "If this battle was left to the people there would be no trouble in realizing prohibition, but it is the moneyed people who are able to accomplish any end through the spending of money."

OBITUARY.

THE LATE THOMAS MAGEE.

(Contributed)

There passed away in Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, on Wednesday, September 30th, one of Omemee's most highly respected residents, in the person of Mr. Thos. Magee.

It is difficult to pay a fitting tribute to the memory of so noble a man. As such a life was a blessing and benefaction to all within the sphere of its influence, so is the death of such a one a public misfortune as well as an irreparable loss to the home circle made desolate by his departure. He was a tower of strength to all in need of a helping hand. No one was more willing to aid the suffering, cheer the desponding, sustain the weak and to throw over the frailties of our race the mantle of Christian charity, and when sickness and death came to him as it comes to all, not only the relatives but the whole village and surrounding community were plunged into sorrow.

The great destroyer had placed his signet on his brow and all that love and medical skill could do could not avail, and, to-day, hundreds who loved him, living, mourn him dead. In the presence of such a sorrow how cold and impotent are words and how doubly deep would be the grief over the grave did not the rainbow of Christian hope span the dark gulf between time and eternity.

Mr. Magee was a faithful and devoted member of the Presbyterian church. Many beautiful floral tributes were placed on and around the casket, bearing their silent testimony of love and esteem.

The funeral on Friday to the Emily cemetery was largely attended, the solemn and impressive service at the house being conducted by Rev. R. S. Scott of Cannington, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Weir of the Anglican church and Rev. Mr. Roland of the United church. The service at the grave was conducted by the Orange Order of which he was a member. The pallbearers were brother Orangemen, viz.: Messrs. H. Jones, C. Ivory, R. J. Patterson, M.P.P.; L. Windrem, W. Thorn and W. Magee.

Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves to mourn his loss, one sister, Mrs. Wm. McConnell of Emily and three brothers: David, who is living in British Columbia, James and George of Omemee, to whom many hearts go out in sympathy in their sad bereavement.

MRS. GEORGE SCOTT.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 8.—The funeral of the late Mrs. George Scott was largely attended Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. E. O. Seymour, pastor of the United Church, had charge of the service at the house. Mrs. Tom Brown of Seymour West sang sweetly, "Does Jesus Care." The floral tributes were beautiful and were from the following:

"Gates Ajar," husband and family; wreath, grandchildren; cross, L.O.B.A.; wreath, Sewing Circle; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Lane, Toronto; spray, Mr. Tedford, Peterboro; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rose; basket of roses, friends and neighbors; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fleming; cut flowers, Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd.

The casket was carried by three grandchildren and three nephews—Messrs. Victor Scott, Percy Patterson, Ray Scott, Harry Waters, Knowlton Waters and Bruce Longmuir.

The funeral cortege proceeded to Maple Grove Cemetery, where interment was made. There were sixty-six cars followed the remains to their last resting place. The L.O.B.A. had charge of the service at the grave.

THE LIMITED MAIL

by ELMER E. VANCE

Novel by William Basil Courtney

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros.

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

There it was, all in front of her—revealed. There was no doubt in Caroline's mind that Bob Wilson and Bob Snobson were one and the same person. Snobson! Caroline trembled to think of the social prestige and position of the man she loved. The proud, cold blood of Puritans was thick in Snobson veins; they were the Matterhorn of the country's social Alps.

When the Limited Mail, westbound, pulled out one sultry night two weeks or more after Bob's disappearance, Caroline was a passenger, crumpled in a corner of a Pullman seat a wan, pathetic, hopeless figure, fleeing a past that promised not future—nothing, but dreary loneliness and an always virginal heart.

CHAPTER X.

When the exigencies of a mellowing physique had made the brake rods no longer safe or comfortable outlet for his wanderlust and had forced Potts to write ex- to his beloved calling (as he had written it long years before to his teachership in the college) and to seriously undertake retirement, he did so with no small or men gesture. Ex-vagabond and ex-professor though he might be, Potts would die before giving up the liberty and the philosophic calm and peace of his avocation—nature-loving. Therefore, knowing that this would in all probability remain his home for the rest of his placid life, Potts had looked around the vicinity that he loved best—the awe-inspiring mountain billows above Crater City. He had looked with an eye to solitude, to beauty, to utility. And he had chosen well and wisely—a sun-drenched land harbor, a little cove of grassy bottom between shores of high boulders and towering pines; an overlooking yet unseen place where Potts could revel in the contentment of doing nothing, while his ruminative eye mused over far-flung prospects and from where he could see the Transsockian tracks below and with the air of a traveling connoisseur, watch and listen to his favorite trains. Here he had leisurely patched together, using odds and ends of timber and nondescript material, a makeshift shack—his palace, as uncrowned king of all he surveyed in a capital of hobodom that was too lonesome a place for anyone except eagles, and hobo philosophers—and fugitives.

One of the latter class had found Potts a comforting host for two weeks past now. For Bob Wilson, together with little Bobby, had shared the peace and the concealment of Potts' shack since the day following the wreck of the Limited.

When Bob had stumbled away from the scene of the catastrophe, bearing Bobby in his arms, it was without definite plan or purpose. All that night he had wandered aimlessly in his grief, far back into the country, then returning to the railroad after dawn of the next morning, and crossing to the west side of Granite Gorge. Not far from here Potts had found the wayfarers and taken them "home." Bob had not cared or dared to venture out of his hiding-place since then, but from papers brought back by Potts from his daily foraging excursions to the tracks Bob learned that he was held responsible for the wreck learned how he had run past the Rise Ravine Junction signal. He remembered that this was the moment of which he had dropped his watch. And he cursed the Fate that seemed to be making endless game of him.

On the same night that Caroline fared from from Crater City with broken hopes and heart on the westbound Limited, Bob sat up late in the doorway of the shack, watching storm cohorts marshalling behind a bulwark of clouds in the west sky and then sweeping across Nature's eternal battlefield of the sky accompanied by the drumfire of the thunder's artillery and flashing of lightning.

Potts was an early returer, as well as an early riser; he was snoring on a pine-bough bed in a far corner of the shack. Bobby, too, was asleep—on a grass mat before the embers of the evening fire. For Potts' construction skill was such that he had been able to round off and complete the homeyness of his shack by a stone fireplace and chimney.

Bob, looking at both, strangely felt no anchoring impulse to remain here to-night. The end had come for him. He had been responsible for the death of his best friend. He had undoubtedly forfeited whatever place he had attained in the affections of Caroline.

Perhaps he should have gone back and faced the music, yet it would be enduring the cross without getting the crown; he would have been willing to take any punishment did he but know that Caroline would be waiting for him at the end, that she would understand and forgive. But his own stupid indirectness and dodging had stacked the cards against him, where his only purpose had been to save her the pain of naked knowledge. He had wanted to apprise her in a gradual and saving way. Then, always, there was Jane! Still, Jane could have been disposed of quickly enough if publicity no longer mattered—if Caroline knew. In this state and for his reasons, a divorce after all these years of residence would have been but a matter of days. Bob wondered what had happened between Jane and Caroline. Had Jane told everything? What had Caroline thought—of that, and of the present involvements? He wondered how she had borne up under the tragic news of the wreck and her personal interest in it. Without knowing so, Bob was enduring a form of nostalgia—of homesickness and lonesomeness for the girl who, within the short space of a few days, had come to mean everything in his life. He told himself glumly that all of his indecision and immediate troubles had been due to the intoxication of finding himself in love, of fear to touch on anything that would disturb or interfere with that love. But things had certainly been swept away from his clumsy hands.

"What the hell difference does anything make?"

He rose and stumbled away from the hut through the rain; in his dazed, trouble-drugged mood he was under a sort of enchantment, and thought of nothing except claiming surcease in the oblivion of the Gorge.

Unknown to Bob, Bobby had been watching him for some time—pretending to sleep only as an excuse under which to work out his michievous plan to frighten Bob. When Bob started away from the hut, Bobby decided that his opportunity had come.

Part of the "furnishings" of Potts' mansion was a square, bleached bit of muslin of the size of a crib sheet. This had been allotted to Bobby in order that his grassmat bed might be as luxurious as possible. But with childish disregard for the social standing of this vicarious bedsheet in a house of pinebough beds, he now utilized it as part of his scheme to throw a scare into Daddy Bob. With a glowing end of stick plucked from th fireplace Bobby burned two eyes in the sheet, clucking gleefully to himself meanwhile; then he draped the sheet over his head and ran out into the night to follow Bob.

The constant lightning made it easy for him to make out Bob's swinging figure, working down-hill toward the tracks, and Bobby followed as fast as his little legs could move. He began to have some doubts about his ability to overtake Daddy Bob, but he was determined to try.

Bob strode in moody, listless deliberateness toward the Gorge. The Old Witch's Nose loomed ominously above him, as it had on that other night of crisis. The Old Witch had been quiet for a long time now, and pronounced safe. It was probably by way of showing her contempt for the plane and the analyses of men, therefore, that she chose in this storm to vent in one grand, final fit of vicious temper the gnawing anger she had known through the years since the trains first began to rumble past in rupturing indifference to her hitherto sublime solitude.

Bob paused on the tracks, feeling an uncanny sensation of live, cold things crawling up and down inside his spine as he heard the great, devastating roar as the whole profile of the Old Witch sloughed away and crashed down into the cut—on the trestle and into the Gorge. For many minutes the avalanche carried on. When its fury had been spent, and subsided to a settling growl, Bob raced forward to see what had happened.

The final death throe of the Old Witch had been a stupendous, catastrophic one, indeed; for the tons of her granite face had smashed away the trestle, and now there was no bridge across the maddened river—nothing, but torn railends on either side and a black void between.

CLOTH STOLEN.

C.P.R. Sheds at Cobourg Were Visited By Thieves Recently—Door Forced.

COBOURG, Oct. 8.—C.P.R. detectives are engaged in trying to solve the mystery of the disappearance of about thirty-three webs of finished cloth from the C.P.R. freight sheds here. The goods belonged to parties in Ottawa, Quebec and Montreal and were sent here to be dyed. By forcing the door, it is thought, thieves gained entrance to the building. They opened the larger bale, the gross weight of which was about 580 pounds, and removed the goods. Two smaller bales they carried off in lots. There was considerable other goods there also, but the webs of cloth were all they molested. Some time ago it was noticed that the seals of some cars had been tampered with and a special detective was sent here in this connection. He had only been away for a few days when this burglary occurred. Local and provincial police as well as C.P.R. detectives are investigating the disappearance of the goods.

The most universal of forces, gravitation, is the one which remains the greatest mystery to scientists.

Gray—unnecessarily

SOCIALS HELD BY NORWOOD PEOPLE

Many Gatherings Were Held in Village in Past Week.

NORWOOD, Oct. 8.—The Catholic Women's League held a very successful euchre party on Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Tharby, Belmont street.

The Women's Institute held its October meeting on Friday afternoon last at "Balsam Farm," the home of Mrs. George Grover. A paper was given by the hostess and a very enjoyable social time was spent.

The Y.W.A. of the continuing Presbyterian Church held its first meeting since organization on Thursday evening last at the home of the President, Miss Edith Tedford.

The members of the W.M.S. of the United Church who were formerly Presbyterians held a very successful social evening in the Sunday School room of the United Church on Friday evening last. An impromptu program was given, after which a dummy spelling match was held. Sides were chosen for the match by Mr. Geo. Keefer and Mr. Hugh Robb. The latter side won by two points. Refreshments were afterwards served by the ladies.

A large number from the village and vicinity attended the fowl supper held on Monday evening at South Dummer.

A number of the members of the W.M.S. of the continuing Presbyterian Church motored to Campbellford on Tuesday to attend a meeting there to be addressed by Mrs. Horne of Toronto. The meeting was held in St. Andrew's Church.

Many Women Use Simple Mixture

Women appreciate the quick action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. This removes GAS from the stomach in ten minutes and brings out surprising amounts of old waste matter you never thought was in your system. Adlerika stops that full, bloated feeling and makes you enjoy eating. It is an excellent intestinal evacuant for the relief of obstinate constipation or allied stomach trouble. McDermid & Jury and E. APPEAL FOR MERCY IN PAYING PENSIONS

Boston Women Tell of Many Clergymen Doing Menial Work.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Appealing for "justice and mercy" in the distribution of the Protestant Episcopal Church's eight million dollar pension fund, the Episcopal Women's Association of Boston resolved that it was "disheartening to see many of our most educated and experienced clergymen in late years running elevators, floor walking in stores, making radios and doing janitor's jobs."

BOLSHEVISTS ARM.

British Merchants See Victory Unless Foreigners Step In.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—A despatch from Reuter's correspondent in Hong Kong says: "Prominent British merchants who have returned from Canton report that further shipments of arms and ammunition to Bolshevists there are expected shortly. They predicted that combined Russian and Red Chinese forces from Canton would crush the advancing anti-red forces and completely Sovietize Canton unless prevented by the speedy foreign occupation of Canton on behalf of the anti-red forces which they termed the only alternative to complete Bolshevist domination in South China."

FORD DESCRIBES AIRPLANE MOTOR

Will Have Interchangeable Parts and No Adjustments.

TESTS SOON.

DETROIT, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Henry Ford yesterday described the work being done in his laboratory toward developing airplane for common use. His laboratories at Dearborn, Ford said, a already developing a motor for this type of airplane. It will be an eight cylinder, air cooled X type motor developing 200 horse power and weighing about two pounds to the horsepower. It will have, he said, all of the economical characteristics of automobile motors.

The motor, as designed and now in process of construction, will have accessible and interchangeable parts and no adjustments, he continued. If a part wears out it can be thrown away apd another one put in. The manufacturer said the new motor would be tested out in a plane within a short time.

CHURCH STEEPLE STRUCK.

Lightning Disabled Bell on St. Andrew's Church at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Oct. 8.—On Sunday for the first time in nearly sixty years the bell of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here did not peal forth its usual summons to worship. St. Andrew's church was built in 1866, replacing the "old kirk" which stood on William street. On Friday night during an electric storm lightning struck the steeple and set fire to it. The brigade managed to save the church building from being burned, but the bell on Sunday for the first time in many years was not on duty.

CHINESE STAY OUT.

Boycotting Judicial Enquiry Into Shooting at Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Chinese intention of boycotting the judicial inquiry into the Shanghai incident of May 30, when a number of Chinese engaged in a strike demonstration were killed by police, was evidenced at the opening session of the enquiry this morning. Less than twenty Chinese were among 300 persons present. The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

Campbellford Personals

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8. — Chas. R. Dunk, Russel and Roy Farrell and Hylton White, who have been out West for the harvest, returned home Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. John Martin of Toronto spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. S. Burleigh. They left Monday for a trip to Montreal and Quebec, returning to town next week.

The ladies of St. John's United Church held their monthly missionary meeting Tuesday at 3 p.m. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by the Apostles' Creed. Mrs. T. L. Diamond gave the minutes of the last meeting for St. John's and Mrs. E. Greig read the minutes for the McIntosh Auxiliary. They decided to have a Rally Day at the next regular meeting. Different letters were read from missionaries of the Women's Missionary Society by Mrs. Malcolm, Japan; Mrs. E. J. Bonney, China; Mrs. Bateson, Indian Settlement of British Columbia; Mrs. Wm. Phillips, French; Mrs. W. Ashton, Ukranians; Mrs. Robert Moore, on temperance work. The meeting closed with prayer by the President, Mrs. Oliver.

Miss Mabel Mitchell has returned to her home on the Havelock road from the Ontario Business College, Belleville, where she completed her course with honors.

The Willing Workers of Christ Church held a successful euchre party in the Parish Hall Monday evening. The prize winners were: Mrs. D. W. Douglas, Miss Hazel Atkinson and Messrs. A. L. Riendeau and Matt. Sargeant.

That CORN!!

Is it Coming Back?

If you merely cut the top OFF it certainly will. The business end is the root. You must get it OUT.

Cutting the top of a corn off with a razor or burning it off with caustic lotions, etc., doesn't do any good. It may do great harm by causing infection or even blood poisoning.

Also it hurts and the root just sprouts right up again, so your corn soon has a brand new top on it bigger and more painful than ever. The top is only dead skin anyway. Get at the little pointed part or core that extends down into the toe. That is what hurts when it presses on sensitive nerves, and it is the part you have to get out. A good handful of Reudel Bath Saltpeas dissolved in a gallon or so of hot water will soften corns and callouses, like water softens soap. Just soak them in this for a while, then take hold of the corn with your fingers, and out it will come root and all. The refined Reudel Bath Saltrates costs very little, and any druggist will have it. A half-pound is sufficient to rid the whole family of all foot troubles.

Obtainable at most drug stores for 50c. or direct from the distributors, Macnamara Limited, New Birks Building, Montreal.

Smiles abound when Mother's dealing Doses of "that Kruschen feeling."

"Pass the Kruschen, please"

The magic password to health and happiness!

"Pass the Kruschen, please" — at countless breakfast tables throughout the country these simple words are spoken every morning, in just the same casual tone as "Pass the salt" or "Pass the marmalade."

But how full of meaning is the phrase! It means that every member of the family has learnt to practise the joyous habit of the little daily dose which is the Habit of Health.

Put the Kruschen bottle on your breakfast-table, and see what it does for you and all your family.

That tiny pinch you tip every morning into your cup of coffee or tea — you can't taste it, but it supplies your system with just the six salts it requires to keep your blood stream pure and your internal organs properly active. Under its gentle but persistent influence the liver and kidneys perform their duties as Nature intended them to do; all impurities and waste matter that cause tiredness and depression are driven out of the system; new, refreshed blood is sent coursing through your veins and your whole being is filled with tingling exhilarating sense of fitness and joyful energy.

Do you feel like that? Does your family? If not—

Put the bottle on the breakfast table!

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The ingredients of Kruschen Salts are necessary for healthy life. Your body must of necessity obtain these ingredients from somewhere, or you could not live. Normally, your system should extract these vital salts from your food — meat, bread, fruit, vegetables, milk, eggs, and so on; but when, owing to impaired digestion, errors of diet, overwork and worry, anxiety, sedentary occupation, and many other causes, your system does not extract from your food the correct proportions of these essential life-giving salts, then you suffer from depression, headaches, constipation, or disordered liver.

Kruschen Salts, should be your safeguard. Besides cleansing the body of impurities, gently, surely, and painlessly, they possess a wonderful power of giving new life and vitality to the countless millions of cells of which every body is composed. Flesh, blood, bone, brain, and nerve are all made up of cells, and every cell requires one or more of the numerous constituents of Kruschen Salts for its healthy life.

SENATE REFORM OR ABOLITION FROM AN AMERICAN VIEWPOINT

American Writer Treats on Motions in Commons Dealing With Senate.

DIFFICULTIES MET

Differences Between Canadian and American Systems Pointed Out.

By D. FRANK S. BOHN

The Canadian Senate is under attack and may soon have to submit to reformation. The cry, "Mend 'em or end 'em," begins to heard on all sides. The battle is almost a duplicate of that waged so fiercely by Lloyd George against the British House of Lords in the first decade of this century.

When the Canadian Senate was established by the British North America act in 1867 as a regular part of the Federal Government of the Dominion, it was modeled directly upon the British upper house. Though the hereditary principle is not followed, the ninety-six Senators are appointed by the "Governor in Council", which means the party in power, and they hold office for life. The ninety-six Senators are divided into four groups of twenty-four each. These groups are selected, respectively, from Quebec, Ontario, the three Maritime Provinces and the four Far Western Provinces.

It is said by the Canadian advocates of reform that a change has long been overdue, though there is a feeling that postponement of reform until the present time has been fortunate. The world's experience in the last ten years and its best thought as regards these things are believed to be of great value in such an undertaking. The people of Canada may now, if they so desire, reorganize their Dominion Senate in a way to serve the ends of good government according to the larger experience and peculiar needs of the new time.

Popular Opinion Asks Reform.

In the House of Commons at Ottawa recently, when Senate reform was debated, a young man, a Progressive, arose to lead the attack on the Senate. Of course this young man was stalwart, athletic and in the flush of health. Of course, too, he was from the West. But we can allow the reader no more easy suppositions. No, the young man did not make a typically flamboyant "Western" speech. To an American interest attaches to this young man because he is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, class of 1909. He began his address by making long and pertinent quotations from the writings of Alexander Hamilton and James Bryce. The resolution to which he addressed himself read as follows:

That, in the opinion of this House, the Senate as at present appointed and constituted is not of the greatest advantage to Canada.

"Mr. Speaker," he began, "I make no apology in proposing this resolution. I realize fully, that many experienced Parliamentarians will look askance at, perhaps resent, the humble effort of one so inexperienced as myself in proposing this problem for the consideration of the House. But I think my defence and an ample one, is to be found in the fact that public opinion has pressed this long-standing question to the very gates of Parliment itself."

There are three general points of view with regard to the Senate in Canada. A large majority of the Senators and some of the more conservative members of the House of Commons would retain the Senate much as it is. The "Ginger Group," composed of a dozen extremely Progressive-Farmer representatives from Alberta and Ontario is at the opposit end of the argument. The writer asked the Hon. Agnes Macphail, the only woman member of the House of Commons, what she would do about the Senate.

Would Padlock Senate

"I would turn the key in the door of the Senate Chamber," replied the doughty member of the "Ginger Group," "throw the key away and pray that it might never be found. And I wouldn't care whether the members of the Senate were inside or outside the Chamber at the time the door was locked.'

Between these two extremes lies the great mass of Liberal and progressive opinion, which will undoubtedly dominate the situation when the deed is finally done. The speech of Joseph T. Shaw of Calgary, qouted above, seems to represent this average that demands a thoroughgoing reform of the Senate rather than its abolition.

The House of Commons contains 235 members. At the last general election, held in 1921, there were chosen 117 Liberals, 51 Conservatives, 53 Progressives, 10 United Farmers of Alberta, 2 Labor ites and 2 Independents. In both the United States and Great Britain the conservative party has waxed strong at the expense of its ancient opponent But in Canada it is the Conservative Party that has bent before the storm and surrendered largely to Western Progressiveism. The present Government of MacKenzie King is strengthened rather than weakened by the presence of more than fifty moderate Progressives. Instead of facing a united party the Liberal Party is in the middle of a divided opposition. Yet, as will be seen later, Mr. King's position is perplexing and difficult.

Senate Invites the Issue

The issue was brought to a head last Summer. The present Government passed a bill which proposed the building of number of Western branch lines by the Canadian National Railway. The Senate threw it out, where upon all classes in the West joined in an insistent demand for Senate reform.

Mr. Shaw found three primary faults with the present structure of the Canadian Senate. These were: "First, the appointment of the Senate by the central authority, the Governor General in Council, is absolutely inconsisten with the Federal system of government. Second the appointment for life is undemocratic. Third, the Senate is altogether too large in numbers." Mr. Shaw went on the compare the population of the United States, which has a Senate of ninety-six members, with that of Canada, which has an equal number of Senators.

One of Mr. Shaw's most telling periods was a quotation from James Bryce on "Modern Democracies": "The plan of nomination by the Executive is even less to be commended, because the members seem to be usually selected for party reasons, sometimes, as in, Canada not merly for the sake of securing for the Ministry a majority in the second chamber, but also in order to reward its elderly supporters who, weary of counting constituencies, are glad to subside into a dignified armchair. There are countries in which secretly rendered political services or liberal contributions to party funds are believed to open the door of the chamber to those whose merits the public has failed to discover."

The general partisan character of the Canadian Senate Mr. Shaw fully proved by tabulation of statstics, This tabulation indicated that in 1896, after the Conservative Party had been long in power and the Liberals took over the Government, the Liberals found themselves face to face with a Senat in which they were outnumbered by the Conservatives 68 to 13. Similarly, in 1911, after the Liberals had been in office for fifteen years and the Conservatives returned to power they aced a Liberal majority in the Senate of 66 to 20.

We of the United States are perfectly familiar with the difficulties that arise when the two houses of Congress, severally controlled by two different parties, refuse to work in harmony. Imagine the situation in Canada. There the people and the House of Commons majority, which includes the members of the Cabinet, and hence bears the responsibility of actual government, must face such a majority in the Senate as the figures above indicate They are utterly without recource except patience to wait until death removes from 25 to 40 per cent. of the Senators.

Mr Shaw observed, finally, that "there are three possible ways to meet this situation: First, obolition; scond, strengthen the Chamber; third, weaken it." While declaring that "abolition is becoming increasingly popular," he himself did not go so far. He proposed that the Senators should either be elected or appointed as the various Provinces should see fit. He argued, furthermore, that the number should be reduced, preferably from ninety-six. Lastly, a Senator should serve not for life, but for eight years only.

Argument for Abolition.

The extreme position, that which demands the total abolition of the Senate, was advocated by Mr. Findley, a representative of the United Farmers of Ontario, who number about thirty in the House of Commons. Mr. Findley's position is simplicity itself.

"Two years ago," he said, "the Canadian Council of Agriculture sent down to the United Farmers of Ontario, in anunal convention assembled, a number of recommendotion there was one calling for the reform of the Senate. The United Farmers of Ontario declined to endorse that recommendation but decided to substitute for the word 'reform' the word 'abolish.'"

Hence Mr. Findley moved an amendment, as follows:

Therefore it is expelient that an humble address be presented to his Majesty the King praying that the British North America act be amended so as to provide that the Dominion of Canada may have the power to make the Senate an elective body or to abolish it, as may be decided by the people in a plebiscite to be taken at the next general election.

Mr. Findley did not take into consideration that such "an humble address" could not possibly be presented to his Majesty the King unless either the Senate or the several Provinces agreed.

HARD PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

For About Three Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had trouble with pimples and blackheads for about three years. The pimples were scattered all over my face and were hard and red. They itched and burned a lot causing me to scratch and the scratching caused eruptions. My face looked so badly that I was ashamed to go out.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me. I continued the treatment and in two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Helen Budnik, R. 1, Box 11, Necedah, Wis., Sept. 27, 1924.

Possible Reconstruction.

In facing this first step toward reform the Government then proposed the only plan which, in the circumstances, is possible. The Hon Jean J. Dennis, a member of the Ministry, proposed a subamendment to the effetc that:

The House approves of the covening at an early date of a conference between the Government of the Dominion of Canada and the Governments of the various Provinces to consier the advisaility of amending the British North America act with respect to the Constitution and the powers of the Senate.

It must be remembered that the Canadian Constitution is structurally different from ours in one importtan particular. The difference arose from the interpretation which the fathers of Canadian confederation placed upon the causes of our American Civil War. Our own Federal Government is a Government of delegated powers; that it, all powers not granted to the Federal Government are thereby reserved to the States. The Canadians reversed the process.

All powers not reserved to the Provinces by the British North America act are thereby vested in the Dominion Goverment. So the British North America act was supposed to take time by the forelock. It would forestall forever any effort to start a conflict between Dominion and Provincial Governments. Now, nearly sixty years thereafter, in reading the speech of Mr. Dennis, one is reminded that, throughout the English-speaking world, minorities still enjoy nothing so much as barricading themselves behind their local Governments. As we note the use of the words "pact" and "compact," we may recall the use of those terms by our oldtime advocates of State's right and secession.

A Contract to Be Observed.

Mr. Dennis first quoted the Minister of Justice, Mr. Lapointe, that "Confederation is a pact or contract. This was, in fact, declared at the time of Confederation. * * * Therefore, if we start from that principle we have to come to the conclusion that this contract cannot be altered unless all the parties to it are invited." Later in the debate Mr Dennis returned to this aspect of the matter.

"Suppose this Parliament," he went on to say, "should pass a direct and specific resolution declaring that the Senate of Canada shall be reformed in this way or that; what would be the consequences?" If the Provinces should be satisfied with it, all well and good; but supposed the province should say: "You have no right to do that; you cannot use the supreme power of the Parliament of Canada to break a contract or to alter our status in the Dominion."

"Now there is no question that the reform of the Senate might bring about an alteration of the status of the different Provinces of Canada. It might bring about an alteration of the status of the minorities in Canada. It is all very well to talk of Senate reform. I am in favor of it; there is no man in this House more in favor of it than I am; but we must approach the question in a legal and a constitutional way. If this Parliament should take into their hands the power of reform the Senate without consulting the Provinces, I am afraid that might give rise to very serious difficulties as between the Dominion and the Provinces."

All of which says indirectly what everybody in Canada knows, to wit, that French Canada will watch with a jealous eye any effort to lay hands upon the British North America act. The B.N.A., which is the Canadian Federal Constitution, adequately protects the French people of Quebec in all their peculiar rights. Now, as the French of Quebec holds 64 out of 117 Liberal seats at Ottawa, the Liberal party is bound to go very slowly and surely in this matter.

The amendment to the amendment as proposed by Mr. Dennis was carried by a majority of 120 to 32. Thus the House went on record for reform by way of a conference.

An Economic Council.

To the observer it seems plain that the people of Canada may, if they wish, give themselves a second chamber which may adequately serve the economic and social needs of the new age. Lord Bryce has pointed out the many weaknesses that afflict the upper house. Yet Lord Bryce was the last man to have argued for the abolition of that house. Bryce would see the second chamber continued and would make it "strong and respected solely or mainly by the quality of its members and by the reputation their careers have gained for them."

The weakness of modern legislature would seem to be due, more than to anything else, to the fact that local geographical districts no longer represent the more important human distinctions or the more vital social needs. One of the interesting speeches made in the course of the debate at Ottawa was by A. J. Lewis. Mr. Lewis pointed out that several members of the Senate seemed to represent, primarily, certain large industrial and commercial interests. One member was on the board of directors of eleven great business institutions. These vast industrial and financial interests should no doubt find representation in the national Government, but the voice of other economic interests and social services is equally important.

At present, labor unions and business interests, health reform movements and educational associations all clamor to be heard. They are very indirectly and inadequately represented by special committees at "investigations" or by paid lobbies. Thus we have created an "invisible government," which is often corrupting in its influence. The numerous and widely separated States or Provinces of a great nation like Canada require direct and forceful territorial representation. The populations of various larger sections and numerous smaller districts must be protected in all their specific interests. But great economic, social and intellectual interesst of the national life are starving and shrunken for need of voice and action in the Goverment. That seems to be Canada's present trouble.

A New Kind of Senate.

The suggestion is made that the members of such a chamber would be chosen primarily by the great national economic and professional organizations for terms of office of not more than ten years. One of the causes of the present criticism of the Canadian Senate is its large number of members who have long passed the age when they can take a useful part in the transacting of public business.

The German Republic has formed a national economic council, which is in reality a third and advisory chamber imposed upon the two others. It is regarded as the largest single constructive addition to the science and practice of government contributed by the new Europe since the war. The tasks of this new upper house are: to supply advice and information to the lower house, to examine legislation and make recommendations for mendment or reconsideration, and to veto any proposed legislation until a later session, when a second or a third passage by the lower house would override the veto.

Canada's Problems.

Such an upper house, it is suggested, might be of valuable service to Canada, for Canada's major problems are economic in character and they loom as barriers in the way of the nation's progress. One of the greatest railways systems in the world, the Canadian National, is now being managed by the Canadian Government at a large annual deficit. The problems connected with the further settlement of the unoccupied areas of the Canadian West and North press for solution. The national debt, largely the result of war loans, now totals 2,500,000,000. The interest upon this debt is about $125,000,000 a year. Some $4,000,000,000 worth of Canadian property (including public and private bonds) is owned in Great Britain and the United States; consequently the high rates of interest on the public debt and the dividends paid to foreigners are serious first charges upon both the Canadian producer and consumer.

The stress and strain of these varied economic obligations and problems tend to make the public mind both receptive and active. But the economic and social problems of Canada do not admit of solution through endless public discussion, however patriotic and high minded it may be. Canada' like the United States, seeks to be somewhat liberated from the bickerings and intrigues of a chaotic political system. This, it is pointed out, might be best begun through drawing into the highest public service a sturdy group of first-rate minds and then enabling those minds to function directly in contact with the problems and largest interests of the country's economic and cultural life.—From a United States exchange.

VERONESE MASTERPIECE RESTORED

There now is on exhibition in the National Gallery of Canada at Ottawka the above painting of "The Dead Christ," by Paulo Veronese, one of the most noted of the sixteenth century Italian artists. When being sent across the Atlantic from England to the United States, the masterpiece became soaked in salt water and on reaching its destination was regarded as a total loss. The New York agent of the Canadian gallery, however, examined it and was convinced it could be restored to its original beauty. He bought it for a comparatively trifling consideration, and, after it had been subjected to the work of Canadian experts, it emerged absolutely unhurt. A price of from $35,000 to $50,000 is now placed upon it.

FRENCH RAILS SLASH DEFICITS

Operation at Profit Nears as Operation Costs Are Reduced.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The French railroads have almost completely recovered physically from the effects of the war but they continue to pile up deficits which are a charge against the public treasury. This is true not only of the one state owned and operated system, but also of the privately operated lines.

During 1924, the combined deficits of all the French systems totalled 458 million francs. The operation account returned a surplus of 1,757 million francs, operating costs being 78 per cent of the gross revenue, but capital and other charges amounting to 2,215 million francs wiped out the surplus and returned the deficit.

Following the war, it was necessary for the railroads to do a great deal of rebuilding. During the war years the systems had been consciously allowed to run down, only absolutely necessary repairs being made, because all the money and energy available were being devoted toward winning the war. Heavy expenditures were necessary to put the lines into good condition, and much work had to be done when materials were on exceptionally high price levels.

Financial Record.

The financial record of the railroad for the years following the signing of peace are indicative of the improvement in the French railroad situation. In 1919, operating expenses were 103 per cent of gross receipts. The following year they rose to 129 per cent, and in 1921 they were 114 per cent. Each year since they have been below gross revenue, and each year has shown a gain. In 1922, operating expenses were 95 per cent of revenue, in 1923 they fell to 91 per cent, and last year to 78 per cent. Net returns have increased from 366 million francs in 1922 to 1,757 millions in 1924.

On the other side of the ledger, capital charges resulting from new construction and reconditioning old rolling stock and roadbed have risen from 1,074 million francs annually in 1919 to 2,215 million francs in 1924. But the operating surpluses have increased faster than the capital charges. The deficits reached their high point in 1920 with 2,794 million francs and have declined annually to 458 million francs in 1924.

It can be seen from those figures that the French railroads have decreased sharply the percentage of their income devoted to operating expenses, have made heavy expenditures on improvements, and decreased their deficits four-fifths in five years.

Receipts Grow.

Receipts have increased rapidly due to continued improvement of traffic and higher rates authorized in 1924. If there is no interference with business the deficits should disappear in the fairly near future. It has also been provided by law that beginning with 1928 the railroads must assume the service charges on all the reconstruction obligations incurred between 1921 and 1925 still unpaid after 1927, and any deficits hat may occur after that date.

At the present time these deficits fall on the public treasury, although French statesmen in their anxiety to give the appearance of balancing the budgets have neglected to include them in the budgets. This is true even of the 1925 budget. Finance Minister Caillaux is reported to have objected to their exclusion, but was overruled by the remainder of the government. Their presence is one of the reasons why the French government has not balanced a budget for 15 years.

The French railroad situation differs considerably from that of the United States. In the first place, there is not the competition found in America. There are very few places between which there is more than one route. The lines were laid down originally to prevent overlapping as much as possible, on the same principle of monopoly under which American public utility companies now work.

Belong to State.

The permanent ways belong to the State. The private companies use the right-of-ways under concessions usually running from 40 to 50 years, at the end of which time the State has the option of either taking over the systems at a valuation, or of renewing the concessions. Rolling stock is furnished by the companies and they also contributed about $5,000 a mile toward construction. The State paid the rest and also guarantees shareholders at least 4 per cent dividend on their investments. So it is a system of combination public and private ownership, with private operation, and the State guaranteeing expenses and dividends.

The government has close supervision over rates, service, and management, much the same as that invested in the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The State operated system is one of the most efficient of the French lines, although it does not differ greatly from other lines. It was greatly augmented in 1910 by the purchase of the Western Railway, one of the worst systems in France. It has been necessary practically to reconstruct this system, and it is alleged that the government paid an outrageous price for it, which has resulted in a heavy load of carrying charges. But there is little difference between any of the first class French railroads.

2½ Cents a Mile.

Passenger fares are 30 centimes a kilometer first class and range down to 15 centimes for third class, which figured into American money amounts to about 2½ cents a mile. But it really amounts to more than that to the French because the buying power of the franc has not declined as sharply as has its exchange rate.

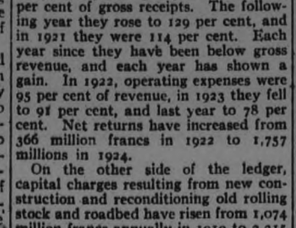
It is claimed that these rates are about 30 per cent under pre-war tariff.

Some of the rolling stock is still in bad shape. It is not unknown for passenger cars to leak during rains. Many of the box cars also have not been painted since the war, and still bear military insignia.

The locomotives, for all of their appearance of being toys, are more efficient than American locomotives in the use of fuel, according to engineers. Alex. Dow, of the Detroit Edison Co., remarked on this feature during a recent visit to France.

It is dangerous to make comparisons between the French and American systems because of the great difference in scale between the two countries. Operating conditions are radically different. France is tiny compared to the United States and there is none of the great bulk of long haul business from which American railroads benefit in transporting coal and crops. French railroads also have the competition of a network of canals extending all over France which carry much of the imperishable freight. There is little in common between the demands on the two systems.

Economists believe that the French lines will shortly overcome their annual deficits and begin returning surpluses. The tendency is all in that direction and barring interruptions to business that state of affairs should arrive shortly.



Excess Fat

Now pleasantly removed

There is now an easy, pleasant way to take off excess fat. No abnormal exercise or diet is required. You can see the results in every circle. Slender figures are ten times as common as they were.

This modern way is Marmola Prescription Tablets. It has been used for 18 years. Users have told others, and the use has spread. People now are taking a million boxes of Marmola yearly.

Marmola is not secret. Our book states every ingredient and explains the action. You will know exactly how reduction comes. Your own druggist signs our guarantee.

Reduction is gradual, rarely exceeding a pound a day. So the body adjusts itself to the new condition.

Investigate Marmola. Ask your friends about it. Beauty, health and fitness call for normal weight. Excess fat is a blight to any man or woman, and today there is no excuse.

WESTERN BUSINESS

PORT NELSON, Man., October 8 (Canadian Press).—Complete faith in the feasibility of the Hudson Bay railway and convinced of its importance and value to the Prairie provinces, a party of prominent western business men who have just completed a tour throughout this part of the country, expressed their intentions of intensifying the campaign for completion of the road. Hints were made that continuance of the undertaking might be introduced as a major issue in the impending federal election campaign on the Prairies.

Despite the fact that the project has been under the hand of inactivity since work was discontinued in 1918, the tourists were agreeably surprised at the manner in which the railroad bed bridges, machinery and harbor works generally had escaped serious deterioration.

The 3,500 foot steel bridge from the north shore to the crib work for the artificial island which is to provide the dockage, was found to be as firm and level as when it was built. On shore there stand the buildings used for housing the 1,100 officials and workmen who were here in 1918, and the supplies necessary for construction purposes. There are the machine shops, electric plant, and a network of narrow gauge railway. Eight locomotives for the railway are carefully housed and prevented from rusting.

Materials and equipment are everywhere in evidence. Large timber for the crib work; a number of floating steel conduits for carrying the material raised by the suction dredgel innumerable lifting cranes, dump cars, steel rails, etc.

Outside the cribwork the water in the harbor is only a few feet deep at low tide. It is proposed to deepen this to 30 feet, which would enable the largest ships to come in. The material raised by the dredges would be conveniently dumped inside the cribwork to form the proposed island. This island is planned to be three miles long, extending upstream, and will be from 400 to 500 feet wide. Work is well advanced on the first 1,700 feet. When the island or a portion of it has been built up, elevators and freight sheds will be erected on it and will provide a terminal for railway trains.

Records kept here for the past seven years show that the river was open on an average for five and a half months, without the use of ice-breakers. The ice goes out between May 24 and June 7, and the river freezes up again, all except a narrow strip out in mid-stream some time in November.

The summer heat of Port Nelson was a surprise to many members of the party. There were days in August when the temperature reached the maximum of 90 degrees, although this is unusual for this far-north country. Timothy and red top hay grow well here; there is plenty of wild pea vine and vegetables grow well at York Factory. An experiment was made here this summer in growing grain, but the seed arrived too late. The seed all matured but as it was planted on June 23, the experiment will not be of any real value this season.

The nearer you get to some people, the smaller they seem.

OPERA AND THEATRE STARS CROSS THE OCEAN

Theatrical and opera stars must cross the ocean almost as casually as some of us do our main street. So it would appear from the pictures shown above. At the upper left, Florence Macbeth, of the Chicago Opera Company, is shown sailing from New York for Continent. Mme. Maria Kurenko, centre, Russian coloratura soprano, known as "The Patti of Siberia," is shown arriving at New York from Riga. On the right, Lady Diana Manners, who starred in "The Miracle," is shown as she arrived in New York aboard the Olympia. In the circle below, Joseph Caillaux, Finance Minister of France, is shown with Hope Hampton, movie star, who crossed to the United States on the same liner with the French debt delegation.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie: A friend of mine, and one whom I think a great deal of, invited me to spend an evening with his people, who live in the country. But since I have never met any of his people, would it be proper for me to go to his home with him for dinner and the evening? —Sunshine.

Sunshine: If the young man's mother has extended the invitation to you, it would be quite proper for you to accept, my dear. But under no circumstances should you consider going if the young man's invitation has not been seconded by his mother.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man twenty-one years of age and am deeply in love with a girl one year younger than myself. She is good and kind and we get along splendidly together, on everything except religion. I am a Protestant and she is a Roman Catholic. I honestly believe that "all religion is good religion and only no religion is bad."

Still the Protestant religion is the only religion for me, and she claims that the Catholic religion is the only religion for her.

Now what I want to know is this: Would it be safe for us to marry and both stick to our own religion.

Trusting you will be able to be of some help to me. I'm rather between the devil and the deep sea at present, I am, Sincerely yours, PETER RABBIT.

PETER RABBIT: Yes, a problem like this does appear rather formidable. Honestly, the only thing I can advise to do is to give her up. You are both young enough to adjust your lives to other ways before it is too late to do anything but grieve over a lost affection. At twenty and twenty-one, you cannot be quite sure of yourselves. This question of religious differences, especially when you are both set in your own beliefs, is almost an insurmountable one. You see, you do not affect your lives only, but those that come after you. A house divided against itself in such a very important matter as religion is not a pleasant place for the children that grow up in it. She will want to have them baptized in the Roman Catholic Church faith and she will honestly believe that she may be responsible for their soul's salvation to God, for the Catholic religion is deep rooted in this matter of baptism in the church. Then she will want to take them to Mass on Sunday, and you may thinks it is Popish mummery when they pray to the Blessed Virgin and make the sign of the cross with holy water. She will hate it when the Orange Lodge passes the house, playing the "Protestant Boys", and if you refuse to allow her to have her way in religious matters with her children, you will break her heart just as surely as if you took a knife to it. And if you do allow her to do as she wishes, what about your own feelings when they are all going off without you, to a ceremony that you may have always looked upon as a mumbling of Latin incantations by a priest who is, according to you, not a free man, but controlled by an Italian potentate over the sea? The love that you think is so deep now will have to be very strong indeed to ignore the pull and tug of religious difference and all the little irritations that will crop up because of it. As a compromise, why can't you agree to separate entirely for a year and see how you both feel about each other at the end of that time. If you can't live without each other that long, get married and take a chance, but I think you had better wait the year and consider the problem well in the meantime. Let me know how you decide your difficulty.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads simply dissolve and disappear by this one simple, safe and sure method. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle it on a hot, wet cloth, rub the face briskly — every blackhead will be gone.

SECRETS OF CHARM

— By Lucrezia Bori —

WAYS TO GET THE GREATEST BENEFIT FROM YOUR BEAUTY AIDS.

Charm is a quality which we seem unable to define, but in my mind it has as much to do with scrupulous daintiness and cleanliness as with anything else.

Show me the woman who is always clean and neat, who dresses as becomingly as she knows how, and who has every article of her clothing as clean and dainty as her person, and nine times out of ten that woman will be worthy of the adjective "charming."

By beauty aids I mean our hair brushes and our nail brushes and our combs and our handkerchiefs. I mean everything that comes in contact with our person.

Our surroundings, of course, include the home in which we live. This applies just as much to the working girl who lives in one room as to the woman who has a beautiful home for a background, with servants to keep it in the proper condition. In whatever station of life you find yourself, your self-respect, I think, is directly related to the way you manage your surroundings and yourself.

Now, our bathrooms and our bedrooms can tell stories of their own. The woman who dresses daintily is invariably the woman who has a bathroom that is kept clean and charming. It need not be sumptuous in its appointments, but absolutely clean it must be if we are going to do ourselves justice. You should keep it in such condition at all times that you would be willing to have a stranger come and inspect it and judge of the people who live in it by the condition in which he finds it.

Wash your hair brush often. It takes you only a minute to cleanse your brush and your comb in hot soapy water, to rinse them and leave them to dry in a sunny, airy place. See that your powder puffs are clean, that there are no unsightly, soiled cloths, which you may have used to remove the cold cream, marring the otherwise spotless condition of your dressing table. Then, too, handkerchiefs are cheap. Have enough of them so you can afford a clean, fresh one whenever necessary.

Guard your beauty aids with a jealous eye!

HAND-KNIT SWEATERS

Those young ladies interested in knitting their own sweaters will be delighted with the comfortable little jacket at the left. It can be knit in a plain stocking stitch and left at that or worked in colored wools in cross-stitch usually on the front and sleeves, leaving the back plain. This is a Canadian design made with Canadian yarns. At the right is a practical and colorful straight-line sports frock for present wear. It is made of all-wool material in a gay bordered design with ball buttons and a colored ribbon tie as ornaments.

SIGNIFICANCE OF BADGE OF I.O.D.E. WAS EXPLAINED

Mrs. Burkholder, Provincial President Addressed Local Ladies.

TELLS OF WORK.

"One Flag, One Throne, One Empire," is Her Slogan.

Mrs. F. M. Burkholder of Hamilton, Provincial President of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, was the guest yesterday of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., and was the special speaker at a meeting held in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association in the afternoon, attended by members of the several I.O.D.E. Chapters in the city. A large number of ladies were in attendance and listened with interest to the address given in Mrs. Burkholder's usual capable and attractive style.

"The significance of the badge" was the theme of Mrs. Burkholder's talk. She spoke of the combination on the badge of the crosses of St. George of England, St. Andrew, of Scotland, and St. Patrick of Ireland, and impressed on her hearers the importance of always wearing this badge, of valuing it and of regarding it as an introduction between members.

When the war broke out, said Mrs Burkholder, the daughters of the Empire were organized from coast to coast and were at once for work. There are now three hundred Chapters in Ontario alone, and five new Chapters were organized after the recent Provincial convention in Hamilton. Reference was made to the feeling of sadness which permeates Provincial headquarters when news arrives of the disbanding of a chapter and of the loyalty, support and sympathy from the primary chapters which were a necessity to the proper carrying on of the work of the Order. Provincial officers were always glad to be of service to the primary chapters.

The sum of $75,000 was still owing on the War Memorial from the Ontario Chapters, and they were asked to make this up. Mrs. Burkholder spoke of the completion of the project of War Memorial pictures, and of the almost pathetic gratitude manifested by some of the rural schools in the northwestern portion of the province when they received these pictures.

The National Flag.

The speaker alluded with strong feeling to the question of a national flag for Canada, and said that although she was a fourth generation Canadian, she had very decided Imperialistic views on the question and thought that the slogan of the Order, "One flag, one throne, one Empire," should be followed out in this regard, and that the Union Jack should be retained as the one flag for the Dominion.

Referring to the meeting to be held at Preston in the near future, Mrs. Burkholder asked as many of the members to be present as possible.

A hearty vote of thanks, delightfully worded by Miss A. Lancaster, and seconded by Mrs. H. E. Stenson, was accorded the speaker at the conclusion of her address.

Business Session.

Preceding the address, a business meeting of the Otonabee Chapter was held, presided over by the first vice-president, Mrs. R. R. Hall. Arrangements were discussed for the tea and sale of work and cooking to be held at Mrs. Hall's house on November 12th. Mrs. Robert Hairstone was appointed as convenor of the book table, Mrs. H. E. Stenson of the sale of home-made cooking, Mrs. T. C. Eliot of the sale of handkerchiefs, and Mrs. C. A. White of the refreshments.

Three little letters were read from the Armenian boy who is being maintained in the Georgetown home by the Otonabee and 57th Regimental Chapters of the city, and an interesting report of the recent district rally at Norwood was given by Miss Margaret English, who spoke of the appointment of Mrs. E. B. Clegg as district representative, and of Mrs. F. C. Webber as district secretary, and the acceptance of the invitation from Peterboro to hold the Rally here next season.

Mrs. F. H. Dearborn, in her report as educational secretary, spoke of the successful passing of their examinations of the two city boys who are being helped in their secondary school work by the Chapter. The "Echoes" secretary, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, reported a total of 63 subscribers to the publication.

ANOTHER FIRM VACATES.

Botnick Bros. Obliged to Get Out at Expiration of Their Present Lease—Selling Out Sale.

One more George Street business finds it necessary to vacate its store, and without having much time to make preparation for it. This time it is Botnick Bros.' clothing establishment that must leave their store, and their large announcement in this issue tells what they are up against. As their lease expires shortly, the disposal of the large stock of ladies' and men's clothing, boots and shoes, millinery, etc., becomes a problem that the firm are settling by way of a hurried selling out sale. This means prices reduced to a point that will induce immediate buying, and quickly dispose of their $35,000 stock.

The prices quoted on the big page advt. tell the story of how they expect to unload, and no doubt there will be a remarkable response to the sale announcement.—Advt.

AMBASSADOR NAMED.

W. W. Yen Will Be Chinese Minister to London.

PEKIN, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press).—A mandate issued yesterday appoints W. W. Yen as Minister to London, with the honorary rank of Ambassador. It is understood that Mr. Yen will not assume his post until after the Chinese tariff conference.

SIGN AGREEMENT.

German Ambassador is Authorized to Complete Trade Treaty.

BERLIN, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press).—President Von Hindenburg informed Soviet Foreign Minister M. Tchitcherin, during their conversation Tuesday, that the German Ambassador in Moscow had been authorized to sign the Russo-German commercial agreement.

My Hair Was Quite Gray

"My hair was gray. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared. A few applications of Kolor-Bak stopped the itching and dandruff. My hair soon stopped falling out and now is again its original shade. I look ten years younger." (A typical letter)

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

RANGE OF EUROPEAN PROBLEMS DISCUSSED IN PRIVATE MEETING

Streseman and Chamberlain Confer Regarding Questions Before Assembly.

SEEK FORMULA.

Chamberlain Would Mediate Between Views of France and Germany.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—A new incident, believed to be of vital importance in its bearing on the success of the Locarno security conference came today in the form of a long private meeting between the foreign minister Stresemann of Germany and the British foreign secretary, Austen Chamberlain.

Like Chancellor Luther and foreign minister Briand of France, who met yesterday, Dr. Stresemann and Mr. Chamerlain not only discussed problems immediately before the conference but the whole range of European questions on which mutual understanding and agreement are essential before a political reconstruction can be achieved. Mr. Chamberlain is anxious to serve as mediator between the opposing views of France and Germany on the problem of the French guarantee for Poland. The two statesmen went over this matter in an endeavor to find a formula.

While this private conference was under way other delegates were resting in preparation for a plenary session this afternoon.

POLICE INDICTED FOR KILLING OF TWO PRISONERS

Grand Jury Recommended Removal of Sheriff From Office.

DISREGARD OF LIFE.

Prisoners Shot Down When Attempting to Make Escape.

MIAMI, Florida, October 8. — United Press. — Sheriff Henry R. Chase, six of his deputies and seven Miami policemen, were indicted yesterday by the Dade County Grand Jury for second degree murder, in connection with the killing of two prisoners during an attempted jail breaking September 27th. All were arrested and released under bonds.

The Grand Jury recommended to John W. Martin that Chase be removed from office because he showed a "depraved disregard for human life."

Ollie Moore, a negro, and B. H. Westbury, alleged members of the notorious Aspley gang, were killed from ambush as they gained freedom, and fled from the jail.

Four other prisoners were seriously wounded and are prisoners at a local hospital.

Sheriff Chase refused to make a statement. He will continue to function as sheriff unless removed.

Considerable indignation developed here when it was learned that the sheriff had been "tipped" well in advance of the jail break, whereup the door through which the doomed men dashed was left unlocked, the ambush arranged and the doomed prisoners shot down as they emerged.

EXPLOSION SHOOK CITY INCINERATOR

John Murphy Struck on Head By Fragment of Glass Jar.

The Board of Works tug o' war team nearly lost one of its stalwarts the other day by an accident at the incinerator that nearly did for Jack Murphy. He had opened the top door of one of the furnaces to stir up the fire when an explosion occurred that rocked the whole building, and hurled a chunk of glass through the aperture, striking Mr. Murphy near the right temple. He was thrown back against the wall, and just at that moment his fellow workman Brown shouted down from the upper storey an alarmed enquiry of what had happened. He thought the furnace had been bombed. Mr. Murphy gathered himself together, satisfied himself that he had not been seriously hurt, and looked around for the missile that had stunned him. It was the bottom of a large fruit jar, the flat side of it having hit him on the forehead.

Investigation showed that a number of jars of preserves that had fermented had been thrown in with the garbage by some householder, and the gas in the jar, expanding with the heat, had burst it. Had the jagged edge of the fragment struck the incinerator attendant, he would have been seriously hurt.

CANADA'S NET DEBT IS LOWER

Total Decreased Twenty-five Million in Twelve Months.

C.N.R. FIGURES OUT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 8, — (Canadian Press).—The total net debt of Canada decreased by $7,321,871 during the month of September, according to figures issued by the Finance Department to-day. During the twelve months since September 30, 1924, a decrease in the amount of the debt was $25,805,122, according to the statement. The net debt on September 30, 1924, amounted to $2,385,406,851. The statement does not include the figures of the railway debt.

The decrease in expenditure during the six months just ended amounted to $6,636,849, according to the statement.

FATALITY MARRED AEROPLANE RACES

One Plane Crashed and Passenger Was Killed—Pilot Hurt.

MITCHELL FIELD, New York, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press). — Basil P. Howe, of Keyport, piloting a Thomas-Morse plane, won the two-seater free for all race which opened the National air races to-day. His time for the 100-mile course averaged 102.9 miles an hour.

The initial event was marred by a fatal accident when a home built monoplane, piloted by Clarence D. Chamberling, crashed after the first lap of the race. Harry Bunnelli, of Hartford, Conn., the passenger, was killed, while Chamberling was seriously injured.

THE WOMAN CRIMINAL.

When Lovely Woman Turns to Crime She Stops at Nothing, Says Policewoman Mary Hamilton

"The most amazing product of modern civilization is the professional woman criminal."

Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, just arrived at her New York apartment after a successful hunt for a missing girl, removed a trim black straw hat, ran a hand through her dark hair, and permitted a pair of rather somber gray eyes to emphasize her words with a long, direct glance.
